Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HA RISON CARROLL.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 13. — Gossips grow more and more skeptical of Evelyn Venable's denials. They predict that the youthful Paramount star will marry Hal Mohr, Fox cameraman, soon after she reaches her majority. Which may mean very soon, indeed, for Evelyn celebrates her twenty-first birthday on Ovtober 18.

All queries get the same answer from Evelyn.

"When I marry, it will be done with the approval of my father and without any attempt to conceal the wedding plans," she says.

Hollywood rumor has repeatedly quoted Professor Emerson Venable as opposed to Evelyn's marriage to Mohr. But the star keeps right on having dates with him.

HANDSOME NILS

Asther, who has shunned Hollywood social life almost as much as his countrywoman, Greta Garbo, is removing himself even further from the cinema sphere. The Swedish actor has bought a 1000-acre ranch in Acapulco, Mexico, and plans to live there whenever he is not working in pictures. Nils' ranch has timber, sugar cane and tropical fruits. The actor is having his furniture and books shipped over from Europe and has even sent his Great Dane, Erik, to live on the ranch.

THE COMING

blessed event in the family of Song Writer Ralph Rainger is being hailed at Paramount as one more link in a series of amusing coincidences.

Each time Bing Crosby makes a picture, somebody in the troupe becomes a father.

It started with Bing's first film, "The Big Broadcast", when Stuart Erwin passed around the cigars. Right around "College Humor" time, Crosby, Richard Arlen and Director Wesley Ruggles all became fathers. During "Too Much Harmony", Skeets Gallagher paced the hospital halls for the second time. It was left to an electrician working with the company to uphold the legend for "We're Not Dressing", but Bing cinched it firmly with the Crosby twins soon after the finish of "She Loves Me Not". And now Rainger's baby will carry on for "Here is My Heart".

A RIOTOUSLY,

frivolous farce, R-K-O's "Sing and Like It" comes to the Capitol Theatre Friday.

Starring ZaSu Pitts and Pert Kelton and featuring Edwaid Everett Horton and Nat Pendleton. "Sing and Like It" starts off at a brisk pace of fun which is maintained and increased to the final fadeout.

ZaSu Pitts, as Annie Snodgrass, gives one of the best performances of her career, as does Pert Kelton in the role of Ruby, the gangster's gum-chewing moll. Edward Everett Horton makes the role of the slightly balmy theatrical producer stand out, and Nat Pendelton is good as the gang chief with the soft heart and head. Convincing comedy villainy is contributed by Stanley Fields, Matt McHugh and Joe Sauers.

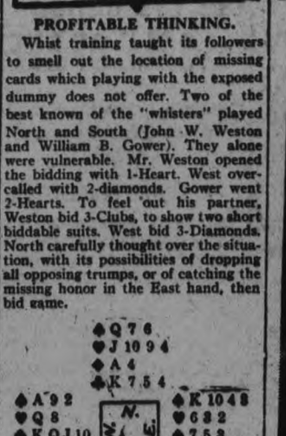
PROFITABLE THINKING.

Whist training taught its followers to smell out the location of missing cards which playing with the exposed dummy does not offer. Two of the best known of the "whisters" played North and South (John W. Weston and William B. Gower). They alone were vulnerable. Mr. Weston opened the bidding with 1-Heart. West overcalled with 2-diamonds. Gower went 2-Hearts. To feel out his partner, Weston bid 3-Clubs, to show two short biddable suits. West bid 3-Diamonds. North carefully thought over the situation, with its possibilities of dropping all opposing trumps, or of catching the missing honor in the East hand, then bid game.



The opening lead was the K of diamonds. It lost to dummy's Ace. The J of hearts was led from dummy, to coax a cover, if East held the Q. When the 2 was played, the declarer paused, then he put up the K of trumps, to avoid a first-round finesse.

One of our best players once said: "When Weston thinks, he always saves a trick." He switched to his Ace of clubs, to test out hand patterns. Most players never would think of such a thing. The 8 fell at declarer's left. The J covered the 2 of clubs. Dummy's K won the trick. The 4 of hearts was led from dummy. The 3 appeared at the right. Weston paused, then up went the Ace, capturing West's bare Q. Dummy's 9 won the clearing trick in hearts.

Two club tricks were run off, ending that suit. West was put in the lead with dummy's last diamond. West held neither heart nor club to lead, and neither declarer nor dummy held another diamond. The stripping process had been completed.

West had to lead a diamond, allowing one member of the declaring team to ruff, while the other discarded, or else West had to lead a spade, that could beat the contract only in case East held the K-J, back of dummy's Q. Like any trained player, Weston knew that he must win one spade trick if he obliged an adversary to lead that suit. With the A-K-10-9 missing, probably opponents would win three tricks, if South had to lead the suit. The strategy had been, first to capture the missing Q of trumps. Next to oblige opponents to lead the dangerous spade suit. West led his Ace of spades. East gave him a come-on. East won the third defensive trick. South went game and rubber, by profitable thinking.

Ginger Experiments With Make-Up, Slenderizing Her Hands With Rouge

GINGER ROGERS

The lovely Ginger Rogers, whose natural beauty requires no embellishing through artificial aids, discovered a grand cosmetic trick for pudgy-handed damsels the other day. Ginger, while awaiting her next scene during the filming of her latest picture, started experimenting with the articles in her make-up kit. And she discovered that liquid rouge when skillfully applied to the sides of the fingers, and blended artistically, tends to make the hands appear long and slender.

Slender hands, with long, tapering fingers, have always been considered the alluring, desirable type. Pudgy, square hands, with stubby, spatulate fingers, do not have half so graceful an appearance. Yet even square hands can be given an attractive appearance if the fingers are made to taper.

In general, of course, the shape of the hand is determined by its bony structure. And little can be done to change this basic structure. But it is possible to influence the muscular structure of the hands and, through proper massage, to improve their shapeliness.

Daily massaging of the fingers will eventually make the fingertips taper and rid them of that unlovely squareness. But such massaging must be done for at least 10 or 15 minutes EVERY SINGLE NIGHT. For it will not affect the fingertips in the least if only done now and then.

In massaging to lengthen and taper your fingers, you should first cover your hands with a good cream. Then, beginning at the base of each finger on the left hand, take first the forefinger, then each of the other fingers successively, between the thumb and forefinger of your right hand, and pull the fingers with a firm movement upward from the base to the tip of each one. Repeat this massaging with your right hand.

Then take the forefinger of your left hand firmly between the thumb and forefinger of your right and begin at the base of the finger. Make a spiral movement from the bottom to the tip of the finger, ending with a slight pinch at the sides of the nail. Do this on both hands. These movements should help to lengthen and taper even the most unattractively-shaped fingers.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Powder Base

Mrs. Tracy: Apply a mild astringent to your skin before you make up your face. This forms an excellent powder base for an oily skin.

Nail Biting

C. F. S.: You will have to break yourself fo the nail biting habit. A bit of tincture of aloes applied to the finger tips will assist you in accomplishing this.

Weight

Sarah: I think a girl five feet three inches tall and 20 years of age should weigh about 122 pounds.

Household Hints

Menu Hint

Spaghetti a la Piasana
Green Salad — Corn on Cob
Fudge Cake — Coffee

This menu is what might justly be dubbed "mixey", with its spaghetti main dish and the very American chocolate cake as dessert. We need some new recipes for serving spaghetti on our meatless days, however, and this one is tasty but omits the usual cheese—a welcome omission to many who do not "go for" cheese.

Today's Recipes

Spaghetti a la Piasana.—One onion, sliced; four small anchovies, one can tuna fish, three cups water, one-half can tomato paste, one-half tablespoon pepper, three tablespoons olive oil, one package spaghetti buttered crumbs. Fry onion in oil until brown, add anchovies and cook until softened, add tuna fish and cook until browned. Dilute tomato paste with water, add pepper and let cook for 25 minutes. Prepare spaghetti by cooking in boiling salted water until tender. Combine spaghetti with the sauce to which has been added the other mixture and sprinkle generously with buttered crumbs which have been browned.

Sour Cream Devil's Food Cake.—Two cups cake flour, two teaspoons baking powder, three-fourths teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-third cup butter, one cup sugar, two squares chocolate, melted; one-half cup heavy sour cream, one-half cup milk, one teaspoon vanilla. Melt chocolate over hot—not boiling—water. Cream butter and sugar, add egg without beating and mix well. Add chocolate, then add flour one-fourth at a time, alternating with the sour cream and milk. The soda, baking powder and salt are sifted with the flour and added at the same time. Add vanilla last, then divide into pans and bake at 350 Fahrenheit.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Tinting Hint

When a number of curtains are to be tinted to the same shade, the safest way for an even color throughout is to measure the amount of powder to be used to a certain number of curtains. Then no matter how many batches it takes to complete the job all the curtains will be the same shade.

For Picnic Lunch

"Recently, when my husband was going on a fishing trip," writes a housewife, "instead of packing fruit in his lunch I chopped two oranges, two bananas, an apple and a few maraschino cherries, over which I sifted a little powdered sugar. This mixture was packed in a pint fruit jar, with a rubber band around to hold a teaspoon in place and packed in with the rest of the lunch. This saved quite a little space, could be eaten with ease and cleanliness, also was deliciously moist without discoloration. I am sure other combinations could be used satisfactorily.

Remove Buttons

When changing underwear into cleaning cloths be certain there are no buttons left on them to scratch the floors or furniture. Besides, those buttons are apt to come in very handy later on.

EDITING GOOD FUN WESTERNER THINKS

Weekly Newspaper Woman Believes It Can Bring Cheer to Community.

MONTREAL, Sept. 13 (C.P.) — Only woman editor among 200 members of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association on a post-convention cruise aboard the steamer Quebec, Mrs. W. J. Rowe, editor of The Western Canadian, published at Manitou, Man., believes that she has been able to make a real contribution of cheer to a community that has suffered severely from drought and depression.

Formerly an Ottawa school teacher, Mrs. Rowe went out West with her husband about 30 years ago. Settling in Manitou, at that time a western outpost, the newlyweds purchased the paper. During the early years Mrs. Rowe took a keen interest in the publication, frequently assisting her husband in preparing copy and securing local items of interest. But in the main she was a housewife, performing manifold duties on her husband's farm.

When her husband enlisted for overseas service on the outbreak of the war, Mrs. Rowe took complete charge of the paper. She has been an editor ever since, though on her husband's return he resumed many of the duties.

FORESEE DIRECT ACTION BY ROOSEVELT ON STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Observers speculated here to-day on the possibility of President Roosevelt taking direct action to end the United States textile strike.

The President's mediation board reported that during two days of conferences it had "been unable to secure an agreement from the group of manufacturers on any basis for an arbitration or its equivalent."

"We regret this deeply," it added, "but believe that other methods of procedure can be found which may lead to a prompt, effective and just method of settlement."

After meeting with the board following its announcement late yesterday, William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, said it would "now report to the President."

SPRINGBROOK ORANGEMEN ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

BONARLAW, Sept. 13.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Springbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 439 attended divine service at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw, on Sunday last at 2.30 p.m. About 75 Oddfellows were assembled, visiting brothers being present from Stirling, Campbellford, Havelock, Madoc and Tweed. The church was filled and a number were unable to gain admission.

The rector, Canon W. G. Swayne, delivered a very impressive sermon, taking as his text the words of Pilate to Jesus, "What is truth?"

During the offertory J. F. Baker sang "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say" to an old English air, accompanied by Mrs. (Rev.) W. G. Swayne.

Immediately after the church service all members of the Brotherhood formed in procession in front of the church and marched to Mont Nebo Cemetery, a short distance away, where they decorated the graves of deceased members with floral tributes.

The long line of Oddfellows, each bearing a bouquet, and wearing their member's badge, headed by Stirling Community Band, presented an impressive spectacle. The band gave excellent and appropriate numbers during the march and decoration ceremony as well as previous to the church service.

The oration in the cemetery was splendidly given by Past Grand, Simon Matthews. He was assisted in the ceremony by Bros. Geo. E. Thompson; secretary; S. Mason, marshall; and J. F. Baker, chaplain.

AUTO MARKERS FOR 1935 READY AT REFORMATORY

GUELPH, Sept. 13.—Inmates at the Ontario Reformatory, after several months' work, have completed the province's supply of auto markers for 1935. Over half a million pairs of licenses for passenger cars were turned out, which, along with those for trucks, trailers and other vehicles, ran the total manufactured to nearly 1,100,000 markers. The colors of the new licenses are black figures on an orange ground.

Autumn Activities Planned By Y.W.C.A.

At the regular meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Board of Directors, held this week, plans were made for special fall activities.

This year the local "Y" celebrates its thirtieth anniversary in the present building, the corner stone being laid September 6th, 1904. The first Y.W.C.A. work in Peterborough, however, was started as early as 1891 in rooms on George street and Brock street. A birthday high tea will be held Friday, September 21 and the committees in charge are already making plans for this special event.

The Y.W.C.A. will also share in the visit to Peterborough of Stephen A. Haboush and Madam Haboush who have kindly consented to speak at the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday afternoon, September 19 at 3 o'clock. Mr. Haboush addressed over 40,000 people in Toronto during a series of travelogues. It is hoped the people of Peterborough will share in this opportunity to hear from this gifted Galilean of the wonderful country, customs and people of his native land.

The annual fall rally will be held Friday, September 28 and the junior rally September 29. All gymnasium and dancing classes and "Y" clubs will commence the first week of October as well as a number of educational classes.

Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner presided at the meeting and conducted the opening devotional period. A tribute to the late Mrs. W. D. Scott, a valuable and beloved member of the Y.W.C.A. Board for over thirty years was paid by the president. Mrs. Scott served the Association twice as president and also as convenor of the Finance committee. Mrs. Kenner also spoke of the loss of a life long friend and supporter of the Association in the passing of Miss Charlotte Dickson. Miss Wood, secretary of the Board, read a notice of a bequest of $500 to the Association from the late Miss Dickson.

Mrs. E. E. Harvey read the financial stateents which while showing a deficit to date of $787.14 compared favorably with a year ago.

Your Health

By DO LOGAN CLENDENING

The science of diet is so exact today that much is expected of it. No part of our daily routine, from infancy to old age, is more closely related to our health and happiness than the food that we put into our mouths.

If I were given sole control over its food, I could wreck a whole continent more completely than the most cruel conqueror with all the implements of modern warfare. Scruvy, rickets, dysentery, phthisis and anemia would follow in my wake. Skin would dry up and rot from shriveled limbs, ulcerous sores would form on listless bodies, eyes would glaze over, feet would swell, nerves would degenerate, woollen bellies, thin pale faces above—the scene has been repeated many times on the face of the earth, not as the work of deliberate malignant ingenuity, but from an even worse enemy of mankind—IGNORANCE.

All the more pity, then, that today ignorance in its worst form—fanaticism and food faddism—should preach its unbalanced doctrines. And this despite the fact that today truth about diet is so well established and so thoroughly scientific. The face of truth is often insipid. It does not lend itself to gaudy embellishment for display in the market place.

Thus we have one writer on diet who tells us not to worry about the amoebic dysentery scare—that the amoebae are not the cause of the dysentery, but the result—that they appear whenever dysentery appears. What rot! And what power for harm in such a statement. People who accept this folly might spread dysentery through a whole community.

Another superstitution foisted on the community is that starch and protein should not be eaten at the same meal. Why not? The human body has both protein and starch digesting machines, and they both work together. It is like taking a town where there are a number of factories and saying the ones which burn coal can't operate the same hours as the ones which burn oil.

The things people want to know about a diet or an article of food: Does it produce acid? Is it fattening or reducing? Digestible? Roughage?

The best diet is a natural diet. Let us take this week some articles of diet and examine them—alone and combined—in detail. Answer all the above questions and many others. Let us take a perfectly natural diet, starting at breakfast and going through to supper.

Floor Show Feature At Summer Gardens

The program at the Brock street Summer Gardens tonight will be featured by the second appearance of one of the most attractive of the season's Floor Shows. Oldroyd and Furneaux, Ballroom Dancers, will demonstrate some of the new and picturesque dances.

At 10.30, they will present a Novelty Waltz, at 11:05 the Carioca, the dancing rage of the season, will be given and at 11:30, this clever dancing team will do the Argentine Tango. Patrons of the Gardens who have been asking for Carioca and Tango demonstrations will be able to watch them at their height, as illustrated by these expert dancers.

Mose Yokom and his orchestra whose music got such a big hand at the Capitol Theatre this week, in connection with screen tests by the Hollywood Studios, will present a number of new up-to-date numbers. Two members have been added to the band's personnel, making it one of the largest dancing orchestras in the district.

The Floor Show, demonstrating the new dances by this visiting team, will be presented tomorrow night also. 1d

Ever see a group of real cowboy entertainers, sometimes termed as a cowboys' band? You have probably heard Ken Hackley and his Oklahoma Cowboys many times from various radio stations throughout the United States, as they have broadcasted from over 200 of the leading and larger radio stations for the past few years.

You will soon have a chance to hear and see them in person at the Capitol Theatre where they will appear Friday and Saturday. This is the original Oklahoma Cowboys which was featured on the National Farm and Home Hour over the coast to coast network of the National Broadcasting Company, the ones that create a sensation in every radio station with their fast and diversified radio programs.

They also have been featured over the Columbia Broadcasting System and Canadian Radio Commission network.

Dot, who by the way is the champion lady roper of the world, will disclose many tricks of rope spinning, and you'll marvel at her skill, as everybody says "She knows her ropes."

Each and every member is an accomplished cowboy musician, playing and using a total of twenty-two string instruments. Of course, they dress in what might be termed their native costumes, large ten gallon hats, cowboy boots, chaps, loud shirts, etc. Yes, sir, honest to goodness cowboys with their quaint and queer entertainment which they have learned around ranch bunkhouses. As they say, they do plenty of payin', singin', dancin', and ropin', and many novelties new to the show going public.

Watch for their special built and decorated car in which they travel. You can't help but see and notice it.

Smith's Falls Lady At 100th Milestone

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., Sept. 13 (CP)—The oldest citizen of this town and perhaps of the district, Mrs. Ellen Boes is to-day receiving congratulations on the occasion of her 100th birthday.

Mrs. Boe's parents were natives of Ireland and settled near Smith's Falls, where she was born. She has never been very far from the place of her birth.

She has lived under four British rulers and recalls vividly incidents of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny. She was 30 years of ago before consummation of Confederation.

Mrs. Boes is in good health, and is blessed with a remarkable memory, being able to recall almost every Governor-General since the union of Upper and Lower Canada in 1841. Her husband died 26 years ago.

A wedding of wide interest to Canadians took place at Garrison Church in Toronto when Miss Mary Gordon Anderson, daughter of Brigadier and Mrs. T. V. Anderson, became the bridge of Wallace Rankin Nesbitt, son of Mrs. Nesbitt and the late Hon. Wallace Nesbitt. The bride and groom are seen here leaving th e church after the ceremony, which was performed by Bishop Renison.

Crooners Win Their Hunger Strike

Performers of station XEAL, Mexico City, are back on the air and feeding up their shrunken figures after winning one of the strangest strikes in history. To force their employers to pay back salaries, they went on hunger strikes and barricaded themselves in the station's studios to broadcast continuously, 24 hours a day, an appeal for public sympathy and support. A crooner is seen performing, attended by nurses, after one of his fellow performers had fainted (below).

Four Nations Celebrate Century Of Peace At Old Niagara

Three flags, five nations, once locked in bitter strife, are joining hands at Niagara Falls in the celebration of a century of peace. Great Britain, France the United States, Canada and the Indian nation are assembled at old Fort Niagara in a gigantic spectacle dedicating the rebuilding of the old fort. Canada was represented by Col. the Hon. Donald M. Sutherland (inset UPPER LEFT), minister of national defence at the ceremonies. W. W. Kincaid (inset RIGHT), noted U.S. patriot, delivered one of the principal addresses as president of the Old Fort Niagara Association. Colorful scenes were re-enacted during the four-day celebration, some of which are shown in the layout ABOVE (TOP) Captain Francois Pouchet's men awaiting attack from the British, under Sir William Johnson, on the parapet of the old fort. Built Of Aluminum But She Is More Than a Toy

Latest patrol boat of the Royal Canadian Mounted police designed for use in combatting smuggling activities in the St. Lawrence River area. Interceptor, shown above is a departure from usual cutter construction in that she is built almost entirely of aluminum alloy, giving her a speed of 20 knots an hour without difficulty since this metal weighs only one-third the weight of steel. She is powered with light, powerful Diesel engines, is 65 feet long, has a beam of 12 feet six inches and a draft of only three feet six inches. It costs four cents a mile to operate this boat at cruising speed of 15 knots an hour and seven cents at 20 knots.

SENSATIONAL PAM BARTON TO MAKE CANADIAN DEBUT

Seventeen-Year-Old British Links Star Arrives With Women's Team.

MEET CANADIAN TEAM

By GOLFETTE
Central Press Canadian

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—Eight of Great Britain's leading women golfers are here to meet a Canadian team in a match which will be a curtain raiser for the Canadian women's open tournament, commencing Sept. 17.

The British team, which will later proceed to Washington, to play a U.S. team for the Curtis Cup, is composed of Miss Pam Barton, Miss Diana Fishwick, Miss Doris Chambers (captain), Miss Mollie Gourlay, Miss Wanda Morgan, Miss Diana Plumpton, Mrs. George Coats and Mrs. J. B. Walker. The team selected by Miss Ada Mackenzie to represent Canada includes herself; Mrs. W. G. Fraser of the Royal Ottawa Club; Mrs. Vera Ford, Vancouver; Mrs. Roy Horne, Calgary; Miss Marjory Kirkham, Montreal; Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, Toronto; Madame Dagenais, Montreal, and Mrs. E. M. Whittington, Toronto.

Mrs. A. Holm, the reigning British champion, was unable to accompany the British team. Britain's number one player, therefore, is young Pam Barton. She is only seventeen, but she has a remarkable golfing record. At her first attempt this year in the British Ladies' Open she succeeded in reaching the final, and then was narrowly beaten by Mrs. Holm. Despite this, she visited France, and at Le Touquet won the French Women's Open against a field of the best British and French players.

She is a pretty, unaffected little player. For her age and size, she can smack a ball from the tee well past the two-hundred-yard sign; moreover, unlike most women players, she can use her wood through the green with length and accuracy. But her strong point is her short game. She has mastered that intricate department of pitching the ball well up to the pin, and, through an uncanny accuracy with her putter, she manages to have many strokes and incidentally win many matches.

Miss Doris Chambers, the captain, may not gain her place in the singles, but she is certainly one of the best women's foursome players in the world. She won the British open in 1923, but most of her successes since then have been in foursome play.

Miss G. Coats is a very steady Scotch player. There are no frills or tricks in her game. Her form is orthodox, but she is always four or five strokes a round better when playing on her native links.

MISS PAM BARTON

Diana Fishwick's golf is well known. On her game she can beat any woman player living; off her game she is just as liable to shoot nineties as any handicap player. She beat Glenna Collett for the British Open years ago when she was only seventeen. But she had to suffer eclipse when Enid Wilson came along.

RUTH IS ON LOOKOUT FOR BID; MANAGER'S JOB FIRST CHOICE

Open to All Propositions, Babe Notifies, But He Prefers to Remain in Baseball.

TAKING ORIENT TRIP

George Herman Ruth, the Big Bambino of Swat, has made no definite plans for the time when he is through as a big league regular, which will probably be next season.

Joe McCarthy's slugging bell cow would like to manage a major league ball club but he also said yesterday he would turn an attentive ear to any and all propositions. Said he:

"Baseball has been my life and it is only natural that when I'm through I'll want to remain associated with it. But if anything outside of the game attractive enough is offered I would probabley take it."

Ruth said he would give little or no serious consideration to any proposition until after he returns from Japan and a trip through the Orient, declaring:

"Then I'll be ready to sit down and listen to what the boys have to offer."

The retirement of Ruth will cause many a manager to breathe easier. Although the Babe lacked much of his old-time batting skill this season, he constituted a perpetual threat to pitchers, and particularly so when opposing flingers had to remember that Lou Gehrig was following him in the batting order.

It's a bad habit, that of allowing a ball to remain near the hole on your line of vision. It's bound to affect your aim. Your eye is taken with any bright object. Certainly the glossy white ball is more conspicuous than the cup.

You may not realize it as you putt out the ball has been seen and remains in your mind as you swing your putter.

Invariably, your putt will roll towards the ball. Very often I've seen putts actually strike a ball over a foot off the proper line to the cup.

It's only a small thing, but it can cost you a win.

Notice the expert next time he goes to putt. He carefully picks up any little object which might take his eye off the line.

There's a reason!

I wish that I could travel around the country doing driving contests against the strong men, not only of golf, but of other games as well.

Why?

Simply to demonstrate that small and rather delicate hands can swing a club well enough to match the best both for distance and accuracy. I've proved it on many occasions, yet people ask, "Are my hands large enough, strong enough to play good golf?"

The answer is—it doesn't require large, strong hands to make the proper swing. The real power comes from the body, not the hands.

Players with large hands generally rely upon them to put the punch into their swings with the result that they seldom hit a straight shot.

It's the way you use your hands not their size, that counts in golf.

So many golfers are troubled with "spread-elbows," as illustrated in the accompanying sketch. It is a bad fault and unless corrected good golf is impossible.

The cause is always traceable to a faulty grip. Hands are placed on the club improperly and as a result work one against the other with the right dominating. Correct body actions is impossible under these conditions.

Grip the club correctly at the address, left hand well over, and keep the left arm close to the body during the backswing. Then the elbows will be in correct position during the backswing, at impact and follow through.

Number 400

So many average golfers have at one time or another taken the No. 8 iron for a pitch shot and "lucked" one up to the pin. Or perhaps he has witnessed some other golfer enjoying "good luck" on a shot like that.

The mental picture of his own or the other individual's perfect shot stays with him and therefore, in the same situation, he will always select the No. 8 and expect results in keeping with that mental picture of perfection. Unless "luck" rules he shall be disappointed.

43 Representatives To Be Named, N. York

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (CP)—Republicans and Democrats of New York State made nominations in their Primary election to-day for 43 Representatives—the largest State delegation in the United States Congress—with many incumbents having opposition.

Most of the contests lay in New York City, where only five Democratic Congressmen, of 21 seeking re-nomination, were unopposed. There were 22 Congressional contests among the Democrats and nine among the Republicans.

Gov. Eugene Talmadge won renomination yesterday in Georgia—where the Democratic nomination means election—in a landslide victory over two opponents. Judge Claude C. Pittman, his closest rival, charged Talmadge with opposing the Roosevelt Recovery program, but the Governor replied that his stand was "Roosevelt and Talmadge."

THE GENERAL manager, permanent secretary and track superintendent are all the year around positions, so you can see at a glance it takes a lot of revenue to even break even before any profit will show at all. Did you notice where old George De Mar woke them all up the other day? Harry Giddings and Charlie Mitchell just about swept Monday's card between them. Harry winning the first two events on the program and Charlie saddling three winners out of the remaining five races.

Ravages of insect pests following the late cold spring have reduced the Russian cotton crop in Central Asia to a small fraction of that of last year.

WESTERN GRIDDERS PREPARE TO BATTLE ON HOME GROUNDS

Prospects of Dominion Final on Prairies Bring Spurt of Enthusiasm—Calgary Looks to be Threat on Roughriders—Others Are Weakened.

TWO WESTERN GRID STARS

GREG GRASSICK

CHARLIE HARRISON

By G. DOUGLAS MACKIE

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Sept. 13.—This year, for the first time in sport history, Western Canada will see a Dominion rugby final. Will it be for the better? All across Canada the high priests of rugby are raising their eyebrows at the precocious demands of the West, and adopting a wait-and-see attitude.

Months of bickering, stirred by the growing discontent of western grid promoters, ended in a triumphal clash of cymbal and boom of drum, when the Canadian Rugby Union at its last meeting ruled that Dominion finals should alternate between east and west.

The principal competition for the right to battle the eastern representation seems from this distance to lie between Winnipeg, runners-up for the Dominion title last year; Regina, perennial challengers, and Calgary—let's see, what year was it they didn't win the Alberta championship.

Fresh U.S. Material

From Winnipeg come reports of fresh American material. Wisconsin, Minnesota and even Cornell are said to have contributed to the first string squad that will tote the pigskin in the Manitoba capital.

Farther west, in the camp of the Regina Roughriders, things are less noisy, but we do hear that half a dozen tall boys who tip a penny weight machine at two hundred pounds, used to get their mail in the United States. Certainly the Roughriders experienced a disconcerting jolt when Curtis Schave, last year's coach and starry backfielder, went back to North Dakota to teach school. Schave came up three years ago from the University of North Dakota to put a winning drive in Regina's backfield. But now in the Queen City of the plains their shouting "local boy makes good" as Gregg Grassick, former Roughrider half, takes on the coaching duties.

The only other current threat for the western championship appears to be Calgary, which has managed to keep the home-bred players pretty well satisfied with home. Charlie Harrison, peer of western punters after a year with Regina, got homesick and is now back home on the Bow river. What with a rising squad of junior graduates and the regular talent, the foothills club may just develop that punch which will carry them beyond Regina.

Other Are Weak

The balance of the western clubs, while turning eager eyes toward the prospect of a Dominion final in their own backyard, do not seem to possess the punch to carry them beyond the preliminary playdowns in the West. Vancouver has not been able to get by Calgary, and does not seem to have improved the calibre of its talent. Edmonton Varsity may not be alone this year in representing the Alberta capital, but the prospects there are no brighter than a co-ed's parlor at midnight.

In Saskatchewan, the Roughriders must overcome Saskatchewan Varsity, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw. The latter tied with the Roughriders in the provincial league last year and forced a playoff, something unheard of in the past.

The Reginans may just miss the extra punch of the seasoned coach and for that reason the Millers might repeat this year, Saskatoon, dividing its talent between the Quakers and the Varsity squad, seems to be faced with two teams below the necessary standard.

It is an even bet that the western challengers on their home campus will provide a much better showing than any of the teams which have travelled east for the coveted title. But we shall see!

Thumbnail History Of America's Cup

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (A.P.)—His fifth and last challenge for the elusive America's Cup in 1930 resulted in utter failure for Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V against the sleek and swift Enterprise, which closed the series for that year with a record-smashing sail for a 30-mile triangular course in the fourth and final race.

The series marked the realization of the life-long ambition of Harold S. Vanderbilt to skipper a cup yacht and he more than proved his worth and fitness for the role by piloting the New York yacht Club's defender to four straight triumphs.

Vanderbilt guided Enterprise to a slender victory over Shamrock by two minutes and 52 seconds in the first race, and widened the margin to more than nine minutes in the second, out-manoeuvring the challenger at the start for a telling advantage.

Third Straight Victory

Enterprise scored her third straight victory when Shamrock parted her main halyard five miles after the start on the 15-mile windward-leeward course. It was a costly mishap for Shamrock because she got away to a good start and held a slender lead over Enterprise at the time.

The defender made the cup safe for the United States for another year when she sailed the course in the final race in three hours, 10 minutes and 13 seconds, setting a new record for a 30-mile triangular layout. The old record of 3:13:18 was made by Columbia in 1901 against Shamrock II.

Lipton's challenger covered the course in good time, finishing a mile behind Enterprise in 3:15.30.

Prince's Partner At Golf Marries

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Bea Gottlieb, favorite golf partner of the Prince of Wales, and the girl generally credited with having introduced shorts to the golf links has become the bride of Charles Martel, New York newspaperman, it was revealed today. Martel said: 'Bea can wear shorts on the links but the pants at home."

FRED PERRY WINS U.S. TENNIS SINGLES TITLE

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

BUTCH KEELING the well known hockey player is sure in the limelight this week at Thorncliffe, although on Tuesday he lost his good sprinter Wark War via the claiming route, when Mrs. S. Grupstein took him for his entered price $800. The horse was the winner of the race and of course Butch collected the purse also. Boscobel was ordered scratched the other day as she arrived in the paddock very sore and as the betting had already started all money wagered on her chances was refunded. This proves something has been wrong with this one all season as she is a much better performer than her last year's form would indicate.

Bushman has again changed hands for the umpteenth time this season. Mrs. Badame is the new owner this time. Despite the changing around this one keeps to his winning habits consistently. There is a keen battle for riding supremacy being waged between Jockeys Mann, Watson and McTague but we believe when the palms are handed out Saturday night that Frankie Mann will grab off the bacon.

IN VIEW of the recent reduction in the daily tax on race tracks we think it would be appropriate to take a look behind the scenes and discuss some of the expenses incurred in running a race meeting. First of all there is the starter who draws a nice daily stipend and he has four or five assistants who do not work for nothing. Then there are three patrol judges, three placing judges and two stewards as well as the steward representing the Canadian Racing Association. An official timekeeper and paddock judge are also required, and a veterinary surgeon is a necessity at all tracks. Fifty people usually comprise the staff of selling and taking admission tickets at the different entrances and special track policemen to keep people from jumping the fence.

The expensive mutuel department has to be kept up about two hours before the first race every day an armored car with about two hundred thousand dollars in cash arrives at the track. This is delivered to the money room where the staff of fifteen check it over and arrange it for the different wickets. Then there is the mutuel ticket department where another corps of fifteen get all the wagering tickets ready for the day's business. Then there is at least fifty sellers and fifty cashiers that deal with the public, and at least fifty more handy men such as janitors, ushers, and such like. Then there is a racing secretary required for each meeting who handicaps the horses and arranges the condition book.

ALLISON LOSES FIVE SET MATCH TO BRITISH STAR

Texan Makes Courageous Stand in Hard Fought Struggle for Tennis Title.

PERRY TIES RECORD.

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—The United States single tennis championships are over and it may rain all it wants to at Forest Hils without worrying any one, for Fred Perry has gone for another year, and with him the American title.

The unfortunate part, for the domestic players, is the fairly definite fact that Perry will be back next year to satisfy his ambitions for three United States single championships in a row, beating the record for invaders of two straight, held by Rene La Coste, of France, and tied by Perry yesterday by his five-set triumph over Wilmer Allison.

Wants Big Cup

Perry wants permanent possession of the big silver vase that goes with winning the trophy three times, something Big Bill Tilden did twice in a row from 1920 through 1925, but which no invader has ever accomplished.

"It's a pretty thing," said Perry yesterday after the cup had been presented him following his 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 1-6, 8-6 victory over Allison. "I'd like to have that to keep."

He'll rarely come closer to depriving himself of something he wants that much, and still manage to retain it, than he did yesterday in conquering the courageous Texan. Perry breezed through the first two sets on the usual rain-drenched turf, lifting his game only occasionally to the heights which it can reach. It looked very much as though to make things interesting for the crowd of 6,000 that braved the bad weather, he gave Allison every opportunity to win the third and fourth sets, which Allison did, the fourth with a string of five straight games, not one of them even deuced.

Hard-Fought Struggle

In the fifth and deciding set, Allison was just beginning to play real tennis when Perry decided to finish the thing off, and then found it wasn't going to be that easy. Allison wrestled him all over the premises, forcing most of the games to deuce, and disturbing the Englishman's well ordered plan of things. Perry finally got his steam up again and took the 13th and 14th games of the set with the loss of only two points to finish the match.

Perry, who is leaving immediately for Hollywood on the way to play in the Pacific Southwest championships, said he'd continue playing tennis until England lost the Davis Cup.

TORONTO LEAFS DEFEAT NEWARK TWO GAME LEAD

Brennan Bests Vito Tamulis in Mound Duel for 2-1. Victory.

MOVE TO QUEEN CITY.

Boonemen Need Two More Wins to Take Series and Go Into Final Round.

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 13 (A.P.)—Two games down to the third-place Toronto Leafs in their International League play-off series, Newark's champion Bears appeared headed for the same fate that overtook them last year as they moved on to the Canadian city for the third encounter to-day.

A year ago they finished far ahead during the regular season only to be eliminated in the first play-off round. To-day they weren't far from elimination again. Playing the next three games on their home grounds, the Maple Leafs needed only two more victories to take the series and go into the final round against the winner of the Rochester-Albany duel.

After winning the opener 3-2 in 12 innings Tuesday, the Leafs came back last night to take advantage of the unsteadiness of young Vito Tamulis at the first and win 2-1. Manager Ike Boone was expected to call upon the veteran "Sheriff" Fred Blake to go after the third triumph to-day while another youngster, Jack Larocca was slated for mound duty for the Bears.

Brennan Bests Tamulis

After his bad start, Tamulis settled down and limited the Leafs to three hits in a strikeout duel with portly Don Brennan, who used to pitch for the Bears. But the damage was already done. In the opening inning Tamulis passed Joe Morrissey and committed a balk that advanced him to second. Then the pitcher erred on George McQuinn's bunt and there were runners on first and third. On Boone's grounder to Alexander, Morrissey beat the throw to the plate. A pass to Murray Howell filled the bases and McQuinn scored the second Toronto run after Bill Regan's fly.

Hurls Brilliant Game

Brennan protected that lead by brilliant pitching in the pinches, although he gave up 10 hits. He fanned 12, getting Hill and Alexander on strikes in the third after Tamulis, Bob Gibson and Cleo Carlyle had loaded the bases with successive singles and then got Fred Muller to ground to third for a force-out. Tamulis recorded 10 whiffings on his side.

Newark's only run was scored in the eighth when Carlyle singled, Jesse Hill advanced him with a sacrifice and Muller brought him in with a base hit.

CHATHAM GRADS WIN

CHATHAM, Sept. 13 (CP)—The Chatham Grads eliminated St. Thomas from the O.A.S.A. Intermediate playdowns and captured the zone championship in two straight games. The locals last night defeated the Saints 15 to 3 in the second game of the series played on the local diamond. The score indicates the play, the visitors being outclassed by a wide margin.

Kingston Holds the Advantage in the First Frame by Scoring Four Runs.

VANNEST ALLOWS FOUR.

Rooke, Moore and Crary Prominent in Winners' Slugging —Former Gets Three.

Cogs continued to brush the opposition aside in their fight for the Intermediate O.B.A.A. championship, last night at the Exhibition Grounds when they got the jump on the Kingston Hawks, in the first of their series, by pushing over an 11 to 4 victory. The return game will be played in the Limestone City on Friday afternoon starting at 4.15.

The winners got away to a shaky start when they made three fumbles in the first canto, while the opposition was getting to Vannest for three counters and four runs crossed before the side was retired. The Cog twirler then settled away to a steady performance that sent seven of the Kingston batters out swinging, and in five out of the eight remaining frames the visitors were sent out in order. Vannest was touched for four singles, three in the first and one in the ninth, and issued just one free pass, holding the opposing batters scoreless for eight innings.

Trouble From Start.

The Hawks started Charlton on the rubber, but he ran into a flock of trouble right away, when the Cogs led by Rooke connected three times, and these with two walks and a force-out sent four counters in to knot the score. He walked Crary, the first batter to face him in the second, and was then yanked in favor of Clark, who finished the game. The latter hurler got into a hole in the third, when an error by the catcher and a single by Moore put two on. He walked the next two batters, sending a run over, Crary singled scoring one and two more were chalked up when the third baseman missed a grounder from Padgett. The side was retired on flies, and the locals failed to tally again until the ninth, although they got runners on in every innings. Rooke, Cadd and Moore all singled in order in the ninth, for one counter and the next two batters were passed to add another marker. Moore crossed the plate with the last run when Crary hit a long fly to centre, and Mein fanned.

Leads Winners at Bat.

Rooke led the winners with three hits in four tries, while Doug Moore and Crary both hit safely twice out of four. Savage in left field for the Hawks turned in the only outstanding performance among the visitors. Boneham at second also showed up well.

CARL HUBBELL HOLDS PIRATES FOR 3-2 WIN

Giants Have 5 1-2 Game Margin as They Open Important Series With Cards.

NEED 12 VICTORIES.

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. (Associated Press Sports Writer).

The Giants to-day faced another highly important series in the battle for their second straight National League pennant—a four-game struggle with the second place Cardinals—and they hope it would be the last time they had to bear down to the utmost until the time comes to do it before the flag-decked world series stands.

With a margin of 5½ games to start the fray as the result of New York's 3-2 triumph over the Pirates while the Cards suffered a 3-1 setback in Philadelphia, it looked as if the Giants needed only to conquer the Dean brothers' jinx again to settle the campaign. As things stood to-day, they required 12 victories out of their remaining 16 games to clinch the flag, regardless of the other club's performances, and a smashing triumph over the Cards would make it even easier.

Hubbell Star of Game.

It was Carl Hubbell, almost single handed, who brought New York yesterday's triumph and removed Pittsburgh's last mathematical chance of tying for the flag. He not only limited the Bucs to six hits in a duel with Ralph Birkofer, but made two telling hits. Trailing 0-2 in the sixth after being nicked for three blows in the fifth, Hubbell singled to start a rally that tied the score when Joe Moore followed with a base hit. Terry walked and Hank Leiber smacked a single. In the next inning Carl drove in Blondy Ryan, who had doubled, with the winning tally.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Carl Hubbell, Giants—Held Pirates to six hits and drove in winning run.

Rube Walberg, Red Sox.—Blanked Tigers with five hits in 8 2-3 innings of relief pitching.

PETES CAN CINCH TITLE ON SATURDAY

Win Over Belleville in Third Game Will Give Them C.O.B.L. Flag.

The third game of the C.O.B.L. playoffs will be staged in Peterborough at three o'clock this Saturday in Riverside Park between Belleville and the Petes. Twice now rain has postponed this third fixture after the Lee crew won the first and second of the five-game series. Weather permitting, it will be cleaned up this week, and the locals can win the Central League championship on their own grounds in three straight games. If a fourth is necessary, it will be held in Belleville early next week.

The Petes are jubilant over the fact that this third series tussle will be played before the home town fans, and the fans are equally enthused. The Nats will be at full strength and batfling to stave off elimination. Chief Williams will hurl for them, while Knotty Lee expects to start Archie Dewell in this important game. It is seven years since the Petes won the Art Johnston trophy and they firmly expect to cop it Saturday before a record crowd of two thousand or more. It should be a memorable baseball battle.

TONY TORRANCE RANKED HIGH AMONG CONTENDERS FOR TITLE

WEATHER FAVORS HIM.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 13. (CP).—The British tide of sports supremacy threatened to-day to envelope the United States amateur golf championship, despite the counter-surge of sharpshooting American youth.

Among the 16 survivors now in the fifth round entering the second day of two 18-hole rounds of match play, was tall, dapper Tony Torrance, one of John Bull's few point winners against the United States Walker Cup team in England last May.

The handsome Scot looms ominously for the rest of the field of native contenders for the crown relinquished by George Terry Dunlap, Jr., yesterday mainly because of his strategic position in the draw plus the fact that he is showing a steady brand of shot-making.

Another factor enters in the Briton's prospects. He suggested it himself. The weather has been gloomy and raw, making for conditions similar to those he is accustomed to.

Draws Eddie Driggs

Torrance, who conquered Johnny Lehman of Chicago and J. E. French, Jr., of San Francisco, yesterday drew the dangerous Eddie Driggs of New York for his fifth round opponent.

It was Driggs who mashied Jack Cameron of Montreal out of the picture by a 2 and 1 score yesterday morning and started a dirge of defeat for Canada's title-seekers which re-echoed about the deep bunkers until the last man from the land of the maple leaf was placed on the sidelines.

Ross "Sandy" Somerville and Johnny Nash, renowned duo from London, Ont., fought brilliantly and victoriously through the Wednesday morning round but weakened enough in the afternoon to get trampled by the surging pack

Somerville, who had well-placed hopes of recapturing the crown he held in 1932, was two up with only three to go in the afternoon when young Reynolds Smith of Texas became very hot indeed. Meantime, "Sandy" caught bunker trouble.

The Londoner plopped balls into traps on the 16th and 18th holes and the Texa squared the match. On the 19th, "Sandy's" spoon second overcarried the green and he recovered weakly. Smith's second was 17 feet from the pin and he was down in two to emerge a tired but happy winner by one up.

Champion Beaten

Young Willie Turnesa—of the Elsmord, N.Y., Turnesas — came fresh from a morning victory over the defending champion, George Dunlap of New York, to put out Jack Nash in the afternoon, 4 and 2.

Nash made the turn two down by using up 39 strokes to negotiate the out-nine. He rallied coming home, collecting three 3-s inside of seven holes, but meantime Turnesa was bagging a pair of deuces and he was an easy winner.

In the morning, before defeat began beckoning them, Somerville won from Sidney Noyes, New York while Nash beat Charles Kocsis, Detroit. Both won by one hole.

Cameron's woods gave him trouble and his losing game against Driggs was far from the excellent brand the knee-panted Montrealer served up in the first two rounds.

Redwings-Senators Resume Play To-Day

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Sept. 13 (A.P.)—Delayed a day because of rain, Rochester Red Winds and Albany Senators resumed their International League play-off series to-day with the Wings one game in front.

Rochester, second during the regular season, opened the first round play-off of the best four-out-of-seven games with a smashing 7-2 triumph over Albany's fourth place club Tuesday. The second game, scheduled yesterday, was rained out and the whole program was set back a day. As a result the clubs were to meet here to-day, then move to Albany to-morrow for the next three contests.

RUBE WALBERG BESTS BRIDGES IN MOUND DUEL

ATHLETICS FALL 3-2.

(By The Canadian Press)

The Tigers saw their American League lead cut to 3½ games over the idle Yankees as Rube Walberg held them scoreless to give the Red Sox a 1-0 triumph in a pitchers' battle. The Sox got only four blows off Tommy Bridges but three were bunched in the fourth inning when singles by Mel Almada and Carl Reynolds and Julius Solters' fly produced the only run. Walberg, who relieved Fritz Ostermueller in the first, gave only five hits, one of which was Hank Greenberg's 57th double.

Athletics Fall, 3-2

Another mound duel saw the Indians take a 3-2 decision from the Athletics by piling up an early lead that survived the effects of Johnny Marcum's pinch homer in the seventh. Willis Hudlin and Bill Dietrich did most of the pitching, although neither finished the game. The other four American League clubs had an open date.

The remaining National League game gave the Dodgers an 8-7 decision over the Reds in a scrap that brought 34 players into action. Ned Barnes, Cincinnati's sixth pitcher, walked in the odd run after Jim Bottomley had tied the score with a homer in the ninth.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By G.J.P.

Ye scrivener in Belleville hed himself a lot of chortles recently over the fact that the Petes were done out of the third C.O.B.L. playoff game here, due to rain, when the loop ordered the next one in Belleville. He chuckled right out loud two days in a row in print. So, perhaps, he'll permit us a dignified giggle or two now that rain once more stepped in yesterday and forced that third game in Belleville to be postponed! Yeah, now it will revert back to Peterborough and will be played this Saturday at three in Riverside. It never rains but it pours, 'tis an ill wind, etc., and every cloud has a silver lining—not to mention the crack about the guy who laughs last. Aw, well, we rated this tilt and there is some justice in the world after all.

• • • • • •

While it was raining here yesterday before noon, they didn't get any rain in Belleville till nearly two o'clock. However, it started while they were working out, stopped long enough to let them start the game and then poured so hard that the tussle was called at the end of the first. The score was 0-0, a no-hit game for Deyell! Konopka and Foley each got a single in the Petes' half but a double-play saved Williams from being scored upon. Some four hundred fans waited around till it was definitely established that the tussle was off, then they sauntered back to the wicket and collected their ticket dough. The Nats lost coin but it was their own fault as they had received a good offer to transfer that game here.

• • • • • •

Needless to say, local fans are tickled at getting a chance to see this promising playoff tilt, which may bring the league title here. If the weather cuts out acting up on baseball days and we get a nice bright day, over two thousand fans will likely jam the park. It should be a thrilling encounter with the desperate Nats, led by Chief Williams on the mound, fighting tooth and nail to break through the powerful Petes' offensive. Archie Dayell—who started like a million bucks with his fire-ball in Belleville yesterday—will most likely get the nod again to start things off.

• • • • • •

And so we get a break in O.A.L.A. playdowns. Dunno whether our little squawk the other day had anything to do with it or not, but the fact remains that the local Kiwanis have been ordered to play the winner of the North Toronto-Scarboro series, first game here next Wednesday and the return tilt in Toronto September 21st. This is as it should be and we're looking toward a mighty close struggle as these Toronto squads are rated pretty high.

• • • • • •

And here's another laugh from Belleville: The Aajmaa Club lacrossers figure they got a shady deal in Peterborough last Friday. It seems that during a rest period, the home executive went into the Belleville dressing room and demanded the written signatures of players. The homesters had a Sherlock Holmes along who examined the signatures of every player endeavoring to find discrepancies whereby a protest might be lodged. Naturally such proceedings unnerved the Aajmaas. They have challenged Kiwanis to a winner-take-all game here Sept. 27th. Some fun." Yeah, some fun. Sorry if our lads unnerved the poor Belleville chappies, but at least give the Petes credit for one thing. They didn't sell them a gold brick for a dollar and a quarter—or maybe it was just because they didn't think of that!

• • • • • •

Cogs went to town here yesterday to slap over Kingston Hawks before some two hundred fans, 11-4, at the Exhibition Grounds. These Cogs seem determined to go places regardless of whether or not the fans turn out. After a shaky first frame, Percy Vannest and his teammates settled away and blanked the Hawks, Percy hurling four-hit ball and fanning seven while his colleagues backed him up in fine style. Neither Kingston twirler looked so hot, nor did the whole visiting team; and the Clubmen, headed by Dorsey Davis, ought to take it in two straight Friday in the Limestone city.

• • • • • •

Dr. Jack Green yesterday won the championship of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, held last year by Bob Abbott. The doc won it in the rain by finishing stronger than his opponent in the finals, Terry Hall. They played thirty-six holes, and at the end of eighteen, Terry's card read 77 to a 78 by Dr. Green. They stepped out again and it poured harder than ever, affecting their games considerably and the scores mounted. The doctor came home in an 82, with his rival taking two more strokes to get in.

The gals' softball game between Westclox and C.G.E. at the Bowl last eve ended in an 8-8 tie in eight frames. It was to have been played off tonight, but due to the inclement weather, it will be held over a day and staged at 5.30 Friday. The winner then meets Omemee Saturday at the Bowl at five o'clock in a sudden-death game with a playoff berth in the second-half at stake. If Westclox should cinch this berth, the Alarm Lasses and Keene will be the playoff contenders in both halves, so one playoff for the loop title will be sufficient. If Westclox loses out in this half, however, a semi-final and a final playoff series will have to be staged.

The Albions moved into the Southend Softball League playoffs lead by nosing out a 12-10 win over Orioles, making it two wins out of three in the five-game series. The Vitarelli crew went ahead in the early innings to lead, 7-2, at the end of the fourth. Three in the fifth and four in the sixth, while Albions came back with three counters in the seventh on hits by Burke and Ashmore with Caccavelli's homer. Orioles tried hard and threatened in their half but had to take the defeat.

Burke and Lazure starred for the winners with great catches, while Carter went best for the other side. Millard led the Birdmen at bat with a homer and double, Watkins also hitting a four-bagger. Mowry and Caccavelli had a homer and triple each for the Albions. The fourth game of the series will be played tonight in the Brinton Field, and a win for Albions gives them the title, while a loss sews the series up. The box score:

CHAPTER 38

Dilly had a royal meal for them—savory sausages and griddle cakes and maple syrup. The doctor ate ravenously, but Giles was not hungry. "I'm dead for sleep," he said, "if you don't mind I'll turn in, I can't keep my eyes open."

Dilly took him to the guest room. "The doctor wants to stay close to the baby. Oh, Giles, if it hadn't been for you, my baby would have been dead."

"You'd better say, if it hadn't been for the doctor." He saw her tears and kissed her on the cheek.

William who was behind her received her then in his arms and she clung to him, crying.

When they had gone, Giles threw himself on the bed, and fell into disturbed slumber. All night long in his dreams he fought the storm; he saw the man in the movies, who was himself, struggling in the icy grip of the elements. All night long he was aware that the thing he was fighting for was not to save Dilly's baby but to save Joan . . . who was being wrecked on the rocks . . .!

In the morning he staggered up to find that it had stopped snowing and that the sun was out. Dilly, white but smiling, was busy in the kitchen. "William has taken the doctor over to see the light. They'll be back for breakfast."

"I thought we'd had one breakfast."

"At four in the morning? And you didn't eat anything."

He didn't eat anything when again they sat at the table. The young doctor casting on him a speculative eye said, "Aren't you feeling fit?"

The gray boat, as they returned over the route they had taken in the storm, rode now through sparkling waters. "There is something cruel in a morning like this," Giles remarked, "after a night when men have fought for their lives."

"Nature is always cruel," the doctor agreed, "and it is only when man gets away from her and finds the grace of God that he is kind."

Giles glanced at him in surprise. He was a round faced little man, skillful and scientific, but he had grasped at a great spiritual truth.

When they reached Granitehead, the doctor took Giles up to the house with him. "I'm going to give you something to set you straight. You've a bit of hoarseness that I don't like, nor your loss of appetite."

The doctor's wife was waiting at the door. She kissed her husband and clung to him. Giles remembered Dilly in William's arms. He thought of Joan. If only she might be there to welcome him on the island!

The sea was still rough, and Giles was almost exhausted, when at last Jose helped him land at the island pier. Giles staggered as he stepped out of the boat. Jose was solicitous, "You sick?"

But before he went to bed he gave an account of the night to Scripps and Amelie, making light of his adventures. Amelie knew Dilly, but since she shrank from meeting strangers, had seen little of her. "Why should you risk your life for other people's children?" she demanded, coldly.

"It wasn't much of a risk, and other people's children mustn't die if we can help it."

"You are always taking chances," she said, passionately, "there was old Peter . . . you went over that windy day and brought him back."

"Why not? There was no one to look after him in the shop. He might have starved. And now he adores Margarida's kitchen. She is always stuffing him. If he doesn't look out we'll be having pate-de-fois-gras without going far afield for it."

He laughed, but his head was splitting. "I'm sorry," he said, "but I'll have to turn in. I'll be as right as rain when I've slept this off."

But he was not as right as rain. Before night he had a raging fever, and now it was Jose who drove the gray boat to town, and brought back the young doctor.

"He's in for pneumonia," was Malcolm Macdonald's verdict, as he came down to the living room, leaving Jose with the invalid, "I must get some nurses over."

"I'll nurse him," Amelie said.

Macdonald shook his head, "Sorry, but I must have experienced people."

"He's my brother," Amelie spoke with tense insistence, "nobody else shall take care of him."

The doctor's shrewd glance studied her. "Of course, he'd want you," he said, at last, soothingly, "but doctors have to settle these things."

She yielded to the finality of his tone, and went away to consult with Margarida, and when she had gone, Scripps said, "He's not her brother. And she is my wife. The war . . . did things to her . . . mentally."

He gave a brief history of her case. The young doctor listened attentively. "I've had some success with people like that," he remarked at the end. "When things are better with young Armiger, I'll take her case in hand. But I don't dare give much hope."

"You'll open a new heaven and a new earth," Scripps said, "if you can bring back to her eyes the look that I remember."

The nurses came, one for the day and one for the night. Giles' condition was very serious. The young doctor going back and forth in the gray boat with Jose dared not speak of the fear in his heart. Scripps would beg: "Is he better?" and sit brooding by the fire. Dilly telephoning, frantically, said to Scripps, "I feel as if it were our fault . . . for calling him out in the storm."

"He would never have been satisfied if you had not called him."

Amelie had no fears. Giles would get well. But she hated the nurses. She grew a bit excitable about it. "It is my place to be there." Scripps was glad the nurses were in the house. Their quiet competency gave him a sense of safety, not for himself, but for Amelie. "If she gets for a moment out of hand," Macdonald advised, "they will know what to do."

But the most dreadful thing that Scripps had to deal with was not Amelie's excitability but the things he heard when now and then he stood on the threshold of Giles' room and looked in. He saw his friend lying straight under the bedclothes, his ruffled hair dark against the pillow, his cheeks burning bright with fever. His eyes were shut, but his lips moved, as heavily and painfully came the reiteration, "Joan, Joan, Joan."

"I have robbed him of the thing he wanted," Scripps accused himself, "after all he has done for me and Amelie . . ."

In the watches of the night he tormented himself . . . if he wrote to Joan, confessing all? Asked her to come? He had heard that such things sometimes turned the tide towards recovery. He said to the doctor: "There is some one he cares for. Do you think if she came?"

The young doctor shook his head. "Not yet. And today he seems a little better . . ."

And now they knew that the worst was over. The nurses relaxed a little. Amelie and Scripps standing in the door were cheered by a smile from the invalid and a weak wave of the hand.

But it was not until Christmas Eve that Giles sat up. He had, then, a little tree, which Jose had cut and which Amelie had trimmed, and it was brought to his bedside. Amelie wore her pomegranate gown, and the lights of the little candles shining on it made her seem like the spirit of the season, not the Christ-spirit, but a mad spirit of revelry and riot such as ruled in certain sections of the land. She had brewed a steaming bowl of punch and she brought it in for Giles and the nurses. She had a wreath on her head of mistletoe. Giles smiled at her, but when at last she went away satisfied, he said to the night nurse, whose hair was gray and whose hands were wrinkled: "Read to me about the star . . ." And she read "And lo the star which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was . . . and when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, . . ."

And Giles murmured, "Thank you," when she had finished . . . and fell peacefully asleep.

It was not until the middle of January that Scripps told what he had done. Giles had been up and about for days, and now in front of the fire with Amelie in bed Scripps began his hard confession.

"Giles," he said, brokenly, "I've been a traitor."

Giles smiled at him, "You sound ominous."

For Friday, September 14

A day of fairly propitious planetary conditions may be found to dominate in current affairs, despite the fact that there may be difficult situations, postponements, obstructions and some deceptive circumstances to combat. These may be vanquished by patience, persistency, determination and diligence. But be alert to these false conditions, and sign papers warily. Employment has some favors, preferment or more solid emoluments to offer.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of fair advancement and satisfaction although it may be found necessary to combat some difficult, frustrating or deceptive situations through indomitable perseverance, patience and hard work. But employers and those in places of power and authority will be found ready to recognize and substantially reward such worthy efforts. Promotion and favors may be sought under this rule.

A child born on this day may be capable and ambitious but possibly given to moods or suspicious reacting on a large success. It should be favored by its superiors, however.

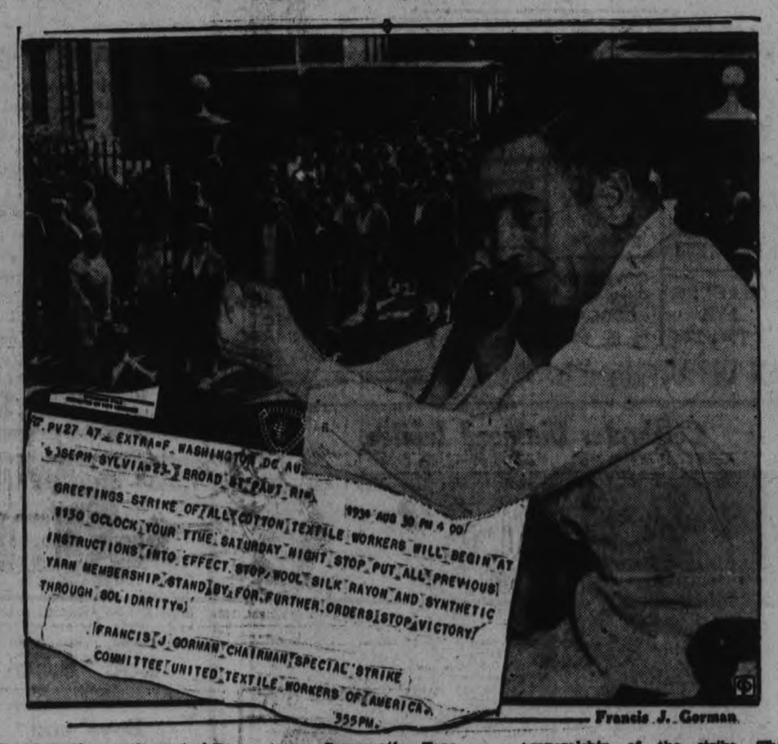
English Mill Worker Is Leader Of 600,000 Textile Strikers

Francis Gorman, English Immigrant, Looks Like Bank Clerk.



Francis J. Gorman

(By M. O. Chenoweth, Central Press Canadian Writer.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—An ex-mill boy from England, whose trade is wool sorting but whose hand is best at labor organization, directs the destinies of 600,000 cotton textile workers of the United States now participating in an extensive general strike affecting 1,500 mills.

Clean shaven, immaculately groomed and slight of build, Francis J. Gorman, an English immigrant, is the man in charge of the strike headquarters of the United Textile Workers of America, located in the Carpenters' Building here. From there come the orders supervising the most serious strike to beset the American New Deal since its inception. And most of those orders are Gorman's.

Far from being the grizzled Bolshevik type often identified as the leader of such labor uprising, Gorman is more on the order of a bank clerk in appearance. His clothes are always neatly pressed; his hair carefully combed.

Conservative Type

In action, he has been conservative. For years, he has been identified with the more cautious leaders of the American Federation of Labor. Somehow, his opinion on social and economic subjects seem to coincide with his conservative appearance.

Similar to his appearance and attitude, Gorman usually has been reserved in his public statements. That is, he was until he and other textile union leaders decided it was time to take drastic action to improve the conditions of the workers, and voted to strike.

And that seems to give the views of the union in a nutshell. Gorman, who expresses the feeling of the group, speaks these words with gusto and a marked finality.

Even so, Gorman is not anxious for rioting or bloodshed to mar his generalship of the strike. This walkout, he insisted, should be an orderly one.

Gorman is handling the strike negotiations with an experienced hand. It has been many years since he was classed as a novice in labor organization.

Old Textile Hand

His active affiliation with the union began 20 years ago when he migrated to the United States from England, his birthplace. He went to work almost immediately in the textile mills of New England, and afterwards held numerous local union positions.

In 1922 he was elected a union representative, and after an apprenticeship of six years he was elected a vice-president of the national body. Since then he has been actively engaged in organization work.

Although now located in Washington, Gorman still retains his home in Rhode Island, where he has a wife and five children. He is a member of the Commerce Commission in his home state.

Professor Hedley D. Wright of the University of Sydney, Australia, has been appointed city bacteriologist for Liverpool, England.

SCOTCH STRUCK WITH DUBLIN'S CAPITAL FLAIR

National Delegation Impressed With Culture and Gaiety of Irish Capital.

ON STUDY TOUR.

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

GLASGOW, Sept. 13 (CP)—Dublin and her people are very much alive and "imagination pictures what Edinburgh might become were she able to assume once more her rightful place in the national life as the capital of a reinvigorated Scotland." These are conclusions of a delegation of the Scottish National Party, which stands for a modified form of Home Rule for Scotland. This body recently visited Northern Ireland, the Irish Free State and the Isle of Man to study certain aspects of self-government.

In Northern Ireland the delegation found the form of local government results in the saving of much time and expense, because local officals can get into immediate touch with National Government department. The delegation, reports however, that "the engine of government in Northern Ireland appears to be too large and expensive for all the work it has to do. Moreover, Northern Ireland is much hampered by the financial and legislative restrictions imposed upon her. They constitute a warning to Scottish Home Rulers not to accept any constitution which does not give Scotland complete control of finance and internal legislation."

In the Irish Free State the delegation found that owing to the cessation of emigration and the increase of rural population it is becoming an urgent matter to settle more people on the land. Impressed with the liveliness of Dublin the delegation reported "she has all the vigor and gaiety which one associates with a capital city. She is not only the seat of government and industry, but the centre of scholarship, letters, drama, music and art."

The delegation found the chief industry in the Isle of Man is the tourist traffic. The Insular Government spends $60,000 a year on publicity, contrasted with the $20,000 grant made by the British government to the Travel Association of London, of which Scotland's share is $2,000.

The lessons or deas suggested by the delegation's visit to these three self-governing states of the British Isles may be summarized as follows:

While none of the constitutions of these countries would exactly fit the case of Scotland, an examination of them and of the way they work has shown that a constitution for Scotland based on the principles of the official policy of the Scottish National Party could be readily framed and harmoniously worked.

As regards Dominion and foreign affairs, Scotland would be in a different position from any of the other three states. The Scottish National Party have in view that machinery will be set up whereby England, Scotland, and the other British nations will deal jointly with their common responsibilities, and particularly with such matters as defence, foreign policy and the Empire.

Peter Charlette, who recently celebrated his seventy-first birthday in Yarnton, England, is the youngest of eight brothers, all "in their prime."

C.C.F. CONDUCT FIRST MEETING OF THE SEASON

SOCIOLOGICAL LECTURE

Speaker Refers to C.C.F. Followers as "Youth of the New Age."

"Parliament must adapt itself to the structural changes of society or the whole civilized world will collapse. It is primarily that adjustment that the C.C.F. is trying to bring about. All who are identified with the C.C.F., no matter what their age might be, are the youth of the new age. All who follow the old party system are following the hearse. From now on the party system is decaying and its smell will be the most difficult thing you will have to contend with."

The above quoted remarks were made by William Irvine, M.P. for Wetaskiwin, Alberta, before an audience of approximately two hundred persons at a meeting held in the Legion Hall last evening under auspices of the local branch of the C.C.F. organization.

First of Series.

Peterborough's newly adopted daughter, Dr. Lorna Cotton, the bride of James Everett Thomas, B.Sc., of the Canadian General Electric engineering staff here, presided in the chair. She explained that the meeting was first of a series of fall and winter meetings of an educational nature sponsored by the C.C.F.

Mr. Irvine's address was in the nature of a lecture along sociological lines, rather than a political speech. His main thesis was that society was an organism composed of highly specialized functions, and that the real health and well-being of society therefore depended upon the most complete co-operation among the functional parts. Governmental institutions, he contended, should be modified or adjusted to this fundamental fact. Governments should be co-operative rather than competitive. Such a condition, he said, could only be brought about by the functional groups coming to a realization of the place they occupied within the state and recognized their interdependence.

Used Charts.

The speaker used charts to illustrate the nature and processes of the development of social structures in Canada. He argued that in an organic society functionally interdependent the competitive system was absurd.

"We are coming to a time when we as individuals can only get the best out of society, when each section of society is co-operating with the other. If you put any of the necessary functional groups out of order you disorganize the whole body of society."

Mr. Irvine spoke of the stock exchange as one of the unnecessary appendages of the social and economic structure, which, he felt, should be subject to a surgical operation.

He forecast the time when each of the functional groups of society would elect its own representatives to Parliament. In that day general elections would not be necessary. General elections he defined as being widespread orgies of nonsense during which the people are swept off their feet by emotional foolishness."

The wire was received by N. L. Lesueur, K.C., in response to an inquiry as to the delay in proceeding with the project.

LIFFORD LINE.

Reeve Fred Gray, Mrs. Gray, and the latter's father, Mr. John Sisson, motored to Valentia on Sunday to attend the funeral of the late Ammon P. Mark, brother-in-law of the late Professor Swain, well known ex-teacher of Music in Manvers, and father-in-law of Mrs. William Mark of Kingston, a sister of Mrs. Gray.

Harvest Home Services were held morning and evening at St. Mary's Church on Sunday, September 9th. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with autumn flowers and fruits. The special speaker for both services was Rev. Goldring, of St. Paul's church, Lindsay, who delivered excellent addresses for the annual special day of the church year.

Little Winelda Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kerr, entertained a number of friends at a happy birthday party on Thursday afternoon, it being the ninth anniversary of her birth.

Teachers of the various Manvers schools are busy preparing their pupils for the annual school fairs, which take place during the next two weeks.

Celebrates Diamond Jubilee

WINNIPEG'S JUBILEE MARKS GROWTH FROM TRADING POST

Western Canada's Great Marketing Centre in 60 Years Old

FOUNDERS FUR TRADERS

(By James Montagnes—C.P. Canadian Writer).

Winnipeg, almost 61 years old, is celebrating its diamond jubilee. On November 8, 1873, the little business and residential community which had grown up at the site of the old Hudson's Bay trading post of Fort Garry, was granted incorporation under the name Winnipeg. In 1870 Winnipeg had already been created capital of the newly-organized province of Manitoba. The population was then about 300. According to the census of 1931, Winnipeg now has a population of 218,785, excluding the adjacent city of St. Boniface and the suburbs.

Winnipeg's founders were fur traders who selected the site of the city because of the strategic position for a trading post at the junction of the Red and Assiniboine Rivers. Later when the Canadian Pacific Railway was built, it crossed the Red River at Winnipeg, assuring the city's future as a trading centre for a region stretching westward nearly a thousand miles to the Rocky Mountains. To-day the Canadian National Railway also crosses at Winnipeg, making the city one of the most important railway centres on the continent.

Winnipeg is about 50 miles north of the international boundary. Although considered a northern city, it is actually in a latitude south of the British Isles, far south of Berlin and not much north of Paris. It is in the midst of a fertile farming country and is the gateway to the mining region of northern Manitoba. Winnipeg claims the cheapest electricity in America, and has been a pioneer in municipality-owned development of central heating. It is the financial centre of Western Canada.

Hon. David Croll Opens Dafoe Hospital

PROMISES HYDRO WILL BE STRUNG TO DIONNE FARM

Several Hundred Spectators Gather for Unique Occasion.

70 INVITED GUESTS.

Minister Emphasizes Efforts Being Aimed to Improve Social Conditions.

CALLANDER, Ont., Sept. 14.—(CP)—While the Dionne quintuplets sisters lay ill 100 yards away the hospital built especially for them was opened officially this afternoon by Hon. David A. Croll. In a simple ceremony the Ontario Minister of Welfare threw open the doors of the nine-room structure set in a deeply wooded section of the farm on which the children were born May 28.

Concluding a short address he announced the Ontario government is making arrangements to have a Hydro Electric line strung from Callander to the hospital to "make it perfectly safe from danger of fire."

Several hundred persons gathered before the little hospital, only one of its kind, to witness the opening. Seventy of them were invited guests of the four guardians of the children and the parents.

W. H. Alderson, one of the trustees, first introduced the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, and Oliver Dionne, the grandfather, also a guardian. Then Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the children's physician, Dr. W. A. Dafoe of Toronto, his brother, and Dr. Alan Brown, internationally-known child specialist of Toronto, were introduced followed by the nurses, Madame Louise de Kerilinc, Miss Yvonne Leroux and Miss 'Pat' Mullins.

Dr. Fred W. Routley, Ontario director of the Canadian Red Cross Society, was brought before the guests, followed by the guardians who include Reg Morrison of Callander.

Official Opening

Mr. Croll then spoke and officially opened the building. It was planned to have Bishop H. T. P. Ryan of Pembroke bless the structure but he was unable to attend.

Declaring the ceremony was "unique in history," the minister said he was glad to be present to pay tribute to Dr. A. R. Dafoe for the "remarkable job he is doing under most unusual circumstances." He said it seemed a "splendid thing" that a general practitioner located in the district should have been able to earn the acclaim of his profession through his handling of an unusually difficult problem.

He spoke of the tremendous interest in the progress of the five sisters, Yvonne, Annette, Cecile,

DOOM FORESEEN FOR BLUE SHIRTS

Valera Claims Movement Promises Little But Disorder and Turmoil.

PEOPLE TOO SENSIBLE.

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—(A.P.)—Ireland's blue shirt movement is doomed to failure because it runs counter to Irish common sense, Eamon De Valera, Irish Free State president for the League of Nations session, said in an interview to-day.

His blue-shirted opposition, De Valera said, advocates political experiments which it would be unwise to undertake while the world suffers grave economic distress.

He is especially hostile to the energetic movement, led by Eoin O'Duffy, because, De Valera said, "it promises little but disorder and turmoil and would, if it got well under way, provoke a counter movement perhaps equally violent.

"But the vast majority of our people is endowed with good common sense, and a stunt movement has no attraction for it. The people realize the impracticability and dangers of the Blue Shirt program, and are convinced it can serve no really good purpose."

VICTIM TUMBLES FROM GANG CAR FOILING KIDNAP

Oklahoman Claims He Was Being Held for $50,000 Ransom.

REFUSED TO SIGN NOTES.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 14.—(A.P.).—Abducted for $50,000 ransom, H. D. Snell, wealthy Cordell, Okla., merchant and farmer, accidentally gained his liberty from two kidnappers early to-day when he fell out of the kidnappers' automobile while it was lurching along an unpaved road several miles north of San Antonio.

Snell lay unconscious on the road, but revived sufficiently to stumble along until he reached Alamo Heights here, where J. R. Emrie, special policeman, saw him.

Snell said he was kidnapped early Thursday at his home in Cordell, a town of 1,800 population, 100 miles north-east of Winhita Falls, Tex.

Despite torture by his kidnappers and two confederates who joined them for a time near Wichita Falls, Snell steadfastly refused to sign notes or cheques for $50,000 to gain his freedom, he said.

The policeman brought Snell to police headquarters, and Gus Jones, head of the United States Bureau of Investigation, was called immediately. Jones was one of the Government agents who solved the kidnapping of Charles Urschel, wealthy Oklahoma City oil man.

Sowing Weed Seeds Gets Farmer Jailed

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., Sept. 14 (C.P.).—Charged with sowing noxious weeds on the farm of a neighbor, Shannon Van Elst, Evelyn district farmer, to-day awaited sentence. He was found guilty by a jury here Thursday and remanded to the end of the assizes.

Justice D. C. McDonald remarked the only parallel he could find was in the parable in the 13th chapter of St. Matthew. "Perhaps it will be another 2,000 years before there is nothing new under the sun."

The Crown charged accused's act was prompted by refusal of James Owens, neighbor and returning officer, to allow Van Elst to vote in an election.

SAYS OFFICERS FAILED TO LEAD CREW AT FIRE

Inflammable Cleaning Materials Used on the Morro Castle.

ENQUIRY PROCEEDING.

Passenger Testifies No Evidence of Lack of Discipline.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.— (AP) —Demanding an inquiry into the use of a Coast Guard cutter to bring Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen home from Greenland, Senator Daniel Hastings (R.-Del.) said today "part of the blame for the long Morro Castle death list falls on the head of whoever sent the Champlain to Greenland."

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP) — Charges that officers of the liner Morro Castle did not give necessary orders to the crew when flames swept the ship and that highly inflammable cleaning materials were used on the vessel were made today by William O'Sullivan, a deck storekeeper on the liner.

At a United States Department of Commerce inquiry into the disaster of last Saturday, O'Sullivan testified, in reply to a question concerning the discipline of the crew during the crisis, that "there were not the orders."

"Had there been the orders there should have been, the crew would have responded?" his interrogator continued.

"Ys, sir," O'Sullivan responded.

"Then," he was asked, "these was a deficiency in the officers rather than the crew."

The witness replied in the affirmative.

Dickerson N. Hoover, head of the inquiry board, then questioned O'Sullivan about the use of inflammable cleaning polish on the Morro Caste.

The witness declared such material was used.

CHARGE CHINA USED GRAIN LOAN TO BUY PLANES

Money Obtained From U. S. Also Purchased Guns, Munition Probe Told.

JAPS CLAIM SIMILAR.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Chairman Gerald Nye in an interview today said that the United States Senate Munitions Committee had evidence indicating China used a $10,000,000 wheat loan from the United States last year to purchase guns and aeroplanes.

He made this statement as the committee prepared to conclude its investigation into the activities of the Dupont Company, munitions manufacturers.

Official Japanese circles have contended the wheat actually was converted into munitions. Meanwhile, it was made known at Mexico, D.F., that the Mexican ambassador to Washington had been instructed to protest to this government against bringing the names of President Rodriquez and other Mexican officials into the hearings.

Testimony had been received — and denied on behalf of the president—that he had interested himself in war material sales and purchases.

It was the E. I. Du Pont de Nemurs Corporation, Vice President Irenee Du Pont, testified yesterday, that saved the United States from becoming a German colony during the war, through its assistance to France and England and later to the United States.

Du Pont sharply denied that the war time profits of his company lay outside the field of patriotism, and declared most of them came from sales to the Allies.

40 HOUR WEEK PROPOSED FOR PRINTING INDUSTRY

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 (A.P.).—The United States printing industry was voted on a permanent 40-hour work week to-day.

Breaking a long deadlock, President Charles P. Howard of the International Typographical Union cast his vote in favor of the arrangement whereby the work week may consist of a six-day week of 6 2-3 hours daily, or a five-day week not to exceed eight hours daily.

The plan adopted, but which will later be submitted to a referendum vote, was a substitute for the rejected proposal of the New York local, calling for a six-hour five-day week.

GALESBURG, Ill.—The endurance plane of Jean Larene and Mary Owens was forced down when they ran out of gas near Victoria, Ill., near here, at 8.40 a.m. (C.S.T.), to-day.

JUDGMENT FOR ALIMONY GIVEN MRS. J. A. O'BRIEN

Evidence of Plaintiff Fully Accepted by Mr. Justice Henderson.

NO NEGLECT BY WIFE

Amount of Alimony to be Determined by Local Master.

"I accept the evidence of the plaintiff as to her testimony of treatment from her husband and as to his habits and conduct," stated Mr. Justice Henderson yesterday in delivering judgment in Mrs. Alice A. O'Brien's suit for alimony against her husband, J. A. O'Brien.

Mr. Justice Henderson gave judgment for Mrs. O'Brien, directing that the local master determine the amount of alimony to be paid. Mr. O'Brien will be assessed costs, but costs of the reference will be reserved until after the master has made his report.

In his judgment his lordship said: "As to the defendant's habits and conduct there is ample evidence outside that given by the plaintiff. As to his conduct in the house, it rests on her evidence and other evidence supports it. Where any conflict exists between the evidence of the wife and husband, I accept her evidence.

"I find the parties lived together as man and wife, as she has said, until the spring of 1933, and that the wife performed all the duties of a wife. The evidence of the chief of police, who impressed me favorably as a witness, is explicit as to the defendant's statement, which was that his wife was a virtuous woman, a good wife, as good as in Canada—were the words he used—and an excellent housekeeper."

CRITICAL STAGE OVER FOR BABIES

Dr. Dafoe, However, Keeps Close Watch on Quintuplets —Orders Silence.

ALL LOSE WEIGHT.

CALLANDER, Ont., Sept. 14. (CP).—Mrs. Oliva Dionne's quintuplets to-day passed the critical stage in their illness but Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician of the five little girls, kept close watch over his charges who suffered from intestinal toxæmia. The five girls were still weak from the attacks and silence is the doctor's order when the babies' new home is opened 100 yards from the Dionne farm house this afternoon.

Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Welfare, will open the new home of the quintuplets in a ceremony to be attended by other officials of the province. Bishop P. T. Ryan of Pembroke, Ont., will bless the Dafoe hospital for quintuplets during the ceremonies which will be attended by more than 75 persons.

Visitors will not be allowed to see the five girls who have lost weight since the illness appeared early Wednesday. Yvonn who is the heaviest of the quintuplets, now 109 days old, was the first to contract the ailment and in a short while the toxæmia condition had affected the other babies and Dr. Dafoe plans to confer with Dr. Alan Brown of Toronto, leading child specialist.

Dr. Dafoe described the attacks as "mild" but said they caused loss in weight but because of the smallness of the children he expressed anxiety. Rainy weather and the small quarters where the children dwell were thought by the doctor as possible causes of the sickness.

Previously, the mayor docked himself for two days spent at a New Jersey seaside resort with his family.

TEXTILE UNION BEARING BRUNT IN LABOR FIGHT

Strike Involves More Than One Industry's Claims.

FIGHT TO FINISH.

Struggle Between Labor and Organized Industries Goes On.

(By Donld Cameron, The Associated Press).

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—Labor and capital mobilized their forces to-day as the strife-torn textile belt became the battle ground for what some expected to be a fight to the finish between industry of United States and the American Federation of Labor.

The opinion was expressed by both mill owners and labor that the strike has transcended the bounds of a single industry and became a decisive test of union strength under the National Recovery Act. Mill owners, who have rejected the arbitration services of the President's mediation board, said privately that pressure has been brought upon them from other industries to resist all demands of the united textile workers.

"You know, we know and the union knows," one spokesman said, "that there is far more at stake than the welfare of the textile industry. If we give in, there will be a wave of strikes in all industries; it is a case of determining here and now whether or not organized labor is all-powerful."

Wm. Green's Appeal

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has recognized the present strike as highly significant to the labor movement and has ordered all affiliated groups, state federations, and city central organizations, to provide at once every assistance to the striking textile workers.

"This struggle" he said, "is of such immense importance that all organized labor must do everything possible to assist in now eliminatting the abuses in the nation's textile mills, out of which this tremendous protest has grown."

The strike was interpreted as "a challenge to organized government" by Robert L. Lund, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

PROBE MYSTERY HANGING OF YOUNG ALBERTA GIRL

VERMILION, Alta., Sept. 14. — (C.P.).—Police to-day were probing the mysterious death of Dorothy Shipe, 14, found dead at the end of a 50-foot rope which stretched down into a gully on her father's farm near Claysmore, in this district.

The body, with the rope secured stout her neck, was found by her father, R. W. Shipe, when she did not return after leaving her home on horseback to search for cattle.

Her horse was tied to the tree on which the rope was fastened. The rope had been looped over a branch.

Her father declared the knot in the reins which tied the horse was one his daughter did not know how to make.

A few yards away from the tree rested her dog with its head bruised and one of its feet injured.

MISHAP ON C.N.R. SIDING UNSEEN BY TRAIN CREW

ON TOWNSEND STREET

Mother Briefly Absent From Home Telephoning Wood Order.

At play within sight of his home late yesterday afternoon, little Jimmie Batley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Batley, 283 Townsend street, was struck down by a box car being pushed into the Canadian General Electric Company's private siding in front of a C.N.R. locomotive.

The child died this morning at 8 o'clock at Nicholls Hospital.

Three years old last January, he was injured internally, and to Dr. A. G. Howson his condition appeared to be so serious that the boy was rushed to the hospital. Although no bones were broken, according to the doctor's first examination, the left pelvis was fractured and the little fellow was suffering from shock.

Other members of the train crew were, J. DeFinney described as first brakeman, and Harvey Staunton, second brakeman.

Switching a box car on the tracks that run into the C.G.E. plant at the rear of the porcelain department and diagonally across Townsend street, Engineer Andrew Clegg and other members of the train crew proceeded about their duties after the child had been struck totally unaware that an accident had occurred. The train crew did not learn of the accident until the train was stopped on the return journey from the plant, according to Raymond Pogue, foreman in the porcelain department.

Factory Witnesses.

Mr. Pogue, who resides at 318 King street, interviewed by The Examiner last evening, stated the accident was witnessed by two girl employees at work on the ground floor and by a young man at work on one of the upper floors of the porcelain department.

After learning of the accident, Mr. Pogue hastened from the building to render what assistance he could to the injured child. Meanwhile, he said, Edward Rigby, superintendent of the department, telephoned for Dr. Howson and notified the plant nurse, Miss Mary E. Greer.

HUM YEE MUM ON POOL MONEY

Maybe It Was Hum Who Was Interviewed.

CAUTIOUS CELESTIAL

Inquiries have revealed that "Hum Yee," announced the other day as a winner in the Army and Navy pool, is a Chinaman employed in the Star Laundry on Hunter street. He may have won a lot or maybe only a little. He may take a trip back to China on the stake and he may not. Hum Yee is not talking.

"Is Hum Yee around?" asked the reporter as he entered the little laundry to make his inquiry.

The Chinaman on duty at the counter leaned around a partition and called something in Chinese and, in a minute, a second Chinaman appeared.

"Are you Hum Yee?" the scribe asked.

"What you want of him?"

"I'm a reporter. I'd like to know about the money he won the other day."

"Hum Yee not here."

"Will he be back soon?"

"Maybe he come back."

"Did he win much?"

"Maybe. Maybe no."

"Will he go back to China for a holiday?"

"Maybe."

"He could have a good time in China with one or two thousand dollars, eh? Hahaha!"

"Maybe."

"Well, goodbye!"

"Goodbye!"

And another interview—all in a day's work—was completed. Ho hum!

CHINA'S YELLOW RIVER ON RAMPAGE

THOUSANDS DIE FLOOD VICTIMS AS DYKES FALL

Farmlands Through Valley 2,600 Miles Long Inundated 10 Feet.

MAJOR DISASTER.

Countless Peasants Left Homeless—Damage Toll Mounts Steadily.

By the Associated Press

The Angry waters of China's Yellow River, ripping out dykes with a power man has been unable to restrain, continued their murderous career today in the fertile valley known as the nation's granary.

Dispatches from Sodden Honan province have not yet estimated the loss of life and vast property destruction in the current floods, but reports which have filtered out indicate another major calamity.

Reports from Kaifeng describe as desperate the plight of thousands of farmers in Honan and Southern Hopei, where the river has reached a width of 30 miles. Dykes costing $1,000,000 a year to maintain have been swept aside. Farms were inundated to a depth of 10 feet, and many persons were drowned.

More than 100,000,000 Chinese live on the plain across which the river winds and which according to legend is visited by major floods at 40 year intervals, with smaller ones in between.

The Yellow River has taken millions of lives since 2,000 B.C. in the disastrous flood of 1897 a million, it was estimated, perished. So great was the suffering that unrest among the millions of refugees led to demonstrations against foreigners.

The strangers were charged with China's misfortunes and the armies of the great powers were brought to the gates of Peking (now Peiping) to rescue diplomats besieged by the Boxers.

In 1931 the Yangtze Kiang, to the south, took an estimated 250,000 lives. Two years later, in August, the Yellow River claimed another 50,000.

CHILD STUMBLES IN TRAIN'S PATH

"Everything possible was done for the child," Mr. Pogue remarked. "First aid was rendered by the nurse, and on the arrival of the doctor a few moments later, he was rushed to hospital in a car.

"I didn't know what had happened to the child at first. He was crying when I reached him and was apparently not very badly hurt. I could see no signs of severe injury, but he lapsed into unconscious, I think, as he was being placed in the car for his removal to hospital," Mr. Pogue said.

Apparently Stumbled.

According to the observations of Frances Corey, 61 Crescent street and Dorothy Custance, 292 Wolfe street, they told Mr. Pogue they had seen the child run from a laneway on the east side of some private garages adjacent to the tracks. When in the act of running across the tracks in front of the oncoming train, the girls believed the child stumbled and fell and that he was caught by the west front end of the box car.

Ross Nicholls of R. R. No. 2, Peterborough, who claims to have seen the accident from an upper storey window, is stated to have informed Mr. Pogue that the child was struck by the box car as he tried to catch hold of a portion of the car as it was passing him.

Mr. Nicholls stated according to the police report: "I thought the child was going to be cut in two by the car and I put my hands over my eyes."

Greatly distressed, Mrs. Batley said her husband was at work at the Ovaltine plant at the time of the accident, and she had just left the house to phone for an order of wood. "Jimmie had not been out of the house for more than five minutes when he was knocked down," she exclaimed tearfully.

Mr. and Mrs. Batley have six children, there being three older and two younger children besides the injured child.

After conferring with Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., this forenoon, Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young ordered a post mortem to be held and decided to call an inquest some time during the course of next week.

The remains are resting at Comstock's Funeral Home pending the completion of funeral arrangements.

MISSING CRAFT REACHES PORT WITH ALL SAFE

SEARCH PARTIES OUT.

Food Ran Out Wednesday and Passengers Forced to Go Hungry.

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., Sept. 14 (C.P.)—Fisherfolk of this section of Ontario to-day expressed relief as 13 persons stepped safely ashore at Whitefish Falls from the fishing tug Pearl after spending anxious hours while the craft was stranded 200 yards off Tamarack Point on Manitoulin Island.

For 48 hours the Pearl which left Stokes Bay on Bruce Peninsula Monday night could not be located although search parties covered Georgian Bay and parts of Lake Huron. At 7.45 o'clock (EDT) last night the 40-foot craft, propelled with a 30-horsepower engine, pulled into this harbor with 13 persons aboard, including two women and eight children, all expressing relief to be safe. They spent hours without food, the craft's supplies running out at noon Wednesday.

Before he pulled out of Little Current for Whitefish Falls, Captain Harvey Golden described the mishap that befell the boat. In a dense fog it struck a shoal of Tamarack Point at 9.40 o'clock Tuesday morning. He manoeuvred the craft until it finally was freed at six o'clock Wednesday night when he immediately put into Rattle Snake harbor on Fitzwilliam Island.

No damage was suffered by the little tug and at day break yesterday morning it was headed for Little Current, fighting dense fog all the way. A speed of six miles an hour was all the boat could make on its way here while the passengers fought off hunger.

Food First

On reaching Little Current the crew and passengers were given food and Captain Harvey then headed his craft for Whitefish Falls. Besides the captain those aboard the Pearl were his sister-in-law, Mrs. George Golden and her eight children ranging in age from less than two years to 17 years; Carl Hawse, engineer, and his wife; and John McClay, deckhand. The experience had little affect on them and it appeared to be a thrilling adventure for the children.

Mrs. Golden was taking her household effects to Whitefish Falls where with her husband she plans to make her home when the Pearl went aground. It was brought to the captain's attention on his arrival that he had 13 passengers aboard and he declared he hadn't realized there was an unlucky number on his craft.

"I would have thrown one of them overboard if I had known," declared the jovial skipper.

JUDGMENT FOR ALIMONY GIVEN

Mr. Justice Henderson referred to Mr. O'Brien's own evidence of his misconduct with Miss Margaret Cameron. Speaking of some points of his testimony, the judge said: "His evidence on these points I find incredible, and it indicates a considerable want of discretion on his part that he should expect any court to believe it."

Referring to other evidence of misconduct, his lordship commented: "The housemaid was called as a witness, and I think it is significant that she served during the time when these women were in the O'Brien home and when her mistress returned she did mention these occurrences.

"In my view the defendant, having violated all the obligations he undertook in his marriage vow, is not entitled to expect his wife to live with him and particularly in view of the habits of life he has formed in the past two years," said Mr. Justice Henderson. He referred to Chief Newhall's evidence that Mr. O'Brien had "gone to pieces in the past two years," and commented: "I am unable to see on the evidence where this was due to any neglect on the part of the wife."

Owing to the amount of litigation pending over the O'Brien property, his lordship said it was impossible for a judicial officer to come to any conclusion at the present time as to the amount of alimony that should be fixed.

Toronto Livestock Review

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (C.P.) — Trading on the Toronto Livestock Market was generally steady during the week on all grades, with the exception of hogs and lambs. These divisions shared the spotlight during the latter part of the week. Lambs, after opening at last week's low mark, gained 25 cents on Wednesday. Hogs, after opening steadily at last week's close, dropped 20 cents on Wednesday, and a further drop of 15 cents on Thursday saw that division close 35 cents lower for the week.

Receipts in the cattle division were 1,600 more than for last week, with 300 head of common to medium cattle left at the close. Good and choice quality cattle sold steady during the week, while a large volume of common to medium cattle moved slowly at easier prices. Calf prices were steady to strong on all grades. Sheep were unchanged at last week's close.

Exporters and packers paid $5.50 to $6 for choice weighty steers on Monday, while common to medium steers sold for the balance of the week at $3 to $4.50. Butcher cattle sold mostly between $3 and $4, with tops at $4.50. Common boners were sold from $1 to $2.25. Fed calves were firm during the week, at $6.50 to $7.25 for choice, with mediums downward to $5.

Good butcher cows sold from $2.50 to $2.75 with some up to $3 on Monday. Canners and cutters were steady at $1 to $1.50; Bologna bulls were easier at $1.75 to $2. Good heavy bulls sold for export from $2.50 to $3. Total shipments to Great Britain were some 388 head including some billed through cattle. Trade in stocker cattle was a little more active this week. Light stockers sold from $2.25 to $2.75, with a few bringing $3 to $3.25. Milkers and springers were firm at $45 to $50 for tops.

The run of 2,000 calves was about the same as that of last week. Prices were steady to strong on all grades. Choice vealers sold generally at $6 to $6.50 with about a dozen going at a top of $7. Common vealers sold downward to $3, with heavy calves at $4 to $4.50. Grassers brought $2.25 to $2.75.

After a steady opening of $8.95 off cars for bacons, hogs dropped 20 cents on Wednesda, and 15 cents more on Thursday. The closing prices were at $7.85 f.o.b. for bacons, at $8.25 off trucks and at $8.60 off cars. Packers were still bidding lower at the close. Reports from England indicated a firm market for Canadian bacon.

Lambs opened last week's low mark of $5.50 for good ewes and wethers, and gained to $5.75 on light closing runs, Wednesday. Culls and bucks sold at $4.75. Packers announced a discount of $1 cwt. on heavy lambs over 100 pounds.

Sheep were unchanged at $1 to $3 cwt., with yearlings at $3.50 to $4.

CHARGE LINER TRAGEDY PROBE BEING HINDERED

Facts Blocked by Ward Line and Lawyers Says U.S. Attorney.

CAUSE STILL OBSCURE.

'They'll Get Theirs in Frisco' Says Cleveland's Skipper After Officers' Tales.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (A.P.)—A charge that the inquiry into the Morro Castle disaster is being hindered by operators of the steamer and their attorneys marked the grand jury investigation of the ship fire to-day.

From United States Attorney Martin Conboy came the charge yesterday that the Ward Line and its lawyers "have done all they can to prevent the United States attorney and his aides from learning the facts."

Roscoe H. Hupper, counsel to the Ward Line, replied that no one from his firm had tried to silence witnesses, and accused Conboy of making "some loose talk" about the law firm.

The exchange came during argument on a motion by the Ward Line to quash a subpoena obtained by the Federal Attorney's office calling for the production before the grand jury of all written statements made to the line's counsel by the passengers, officers or members of the crew of the Morro Castle or any other persons with information concerning the burning of the ship. Judge Alfred C. Coxe reserved decision on the motion.

Search For Clues Goes On.

The Department of Commerce, meanwhile, continued its search for clues of the cause of the disaster. In four days of testimony, the investigators have failed to learn how the ship caught fire, but there has been an undercurrent of feeling that there was something unnatural about the blaze.

The Dollar Line President Cleveland sailed last night for San Francisco with its captain and full staff of officers aboard, although during yesterday's Department of Commerce inquiry the liner's subordinate officers had testified they would not sail with Captain Carey again because they considered he had bungled the liner's rescue attempts when the Morro Castle burned last Saturday morning.

"I took it on the chin in New York, but they'll get theirs in 'Frisco," the captain commented as the ship sailed two hours late because of the inquiry.

Investigators from the United States attorney's office again boarded the beached Morro Castle at Asbury Park in search of evidence of the cause of the disaster and also to find more victims. Four bodies were removed from the ruined hulk yesterday.

MACKENZIE KING ENTERS ONTARIO ELECTION DRIVE

Plans Address at Kenora Backing Northern Liberal Candidate.

MANION ACTIVE.

Claims Bennett's Only Sin is That He Hasn't Tooted Own Horn Enough.

(By the Canadian Press)

Campaigning for the five federal by-elections in Ontario found Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader, entering the fray today. He will address a meeting in Kenora in support of the Liberal candidate in the Kenora-Rainy River by-election tonight while Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of Railways and Canals, will plead for support for the Conservative candidate in Toronto East by-election.

Dr. Manion launched the Conservative campaign in the West Elgin by-election when he appeared on the platform at St. Thomas before an audience composed mostly of railroaders. He defended the government's record which he maintained warranted election of Conservatives when the voting in the by-elections is held Sept. 24.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, he declared, should have used publicity in informing the people of what he had done during his term of office but the government head "was big enough to feel that was unnecessary." As a result, Dr. Manion added, his opponent "have taken advantage of him and are subjecting him to all sorts of abuse, calling him a despot and autocrat."

"The only sin Hon. R. B. Bennett has committed is that he has not tooted Bennett's horn as much as he should have," Dr. Manion said. He reviewed the imperial trade agreements that had built up Canada's export markets.

"Bennett is the first Prime Minister in the Dominion of Canada who has had the guts to go to Eng-

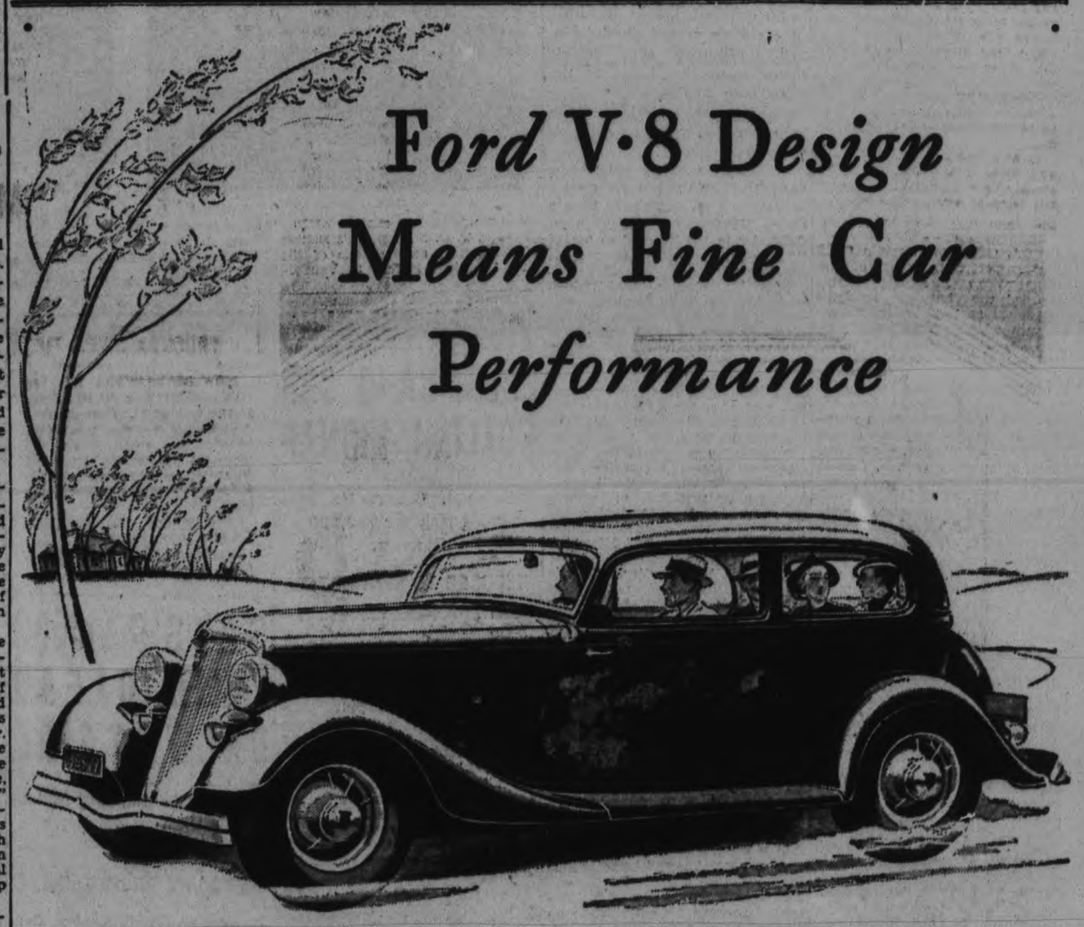
Europeans are two inches taller than those of 70 years ago, say experts.



IT TAKES eight cylinders to give you eight-cylinder performance. If it's less than an eight in cylinders, it's less than an eight in speed, power, smoothness and motoring enjoyment. The Ford V-type eight-cylinder engine has certain definite engineering advantages that increase this margin of superiority.

The real quality of an automobile is invisible—it is hidden beneath the hood. But performance cannot be concealed—it is a definite, demonstrable fact.

The Ford V-8 tells its own story of performance in traffic, on hills—on every road. A half-hour behind the wheel will tell you more about its power, safety and comfort than can be put into any written words. It is not too much to say that you will find it the most satisfying car you have ever driven.

There is an additional feature of the Ford V-8 that is of importance to every motorist. And that is economy. Millions of miles of constant use have proved to hundreds of thousands of Ford V-8 owners that this is the most economical Ford car ever built. It wouldn't be a Ford if it weren't an economical car to own and drive.

BAYONETS, GAS RESTORE PEACE IN RHODE ISLAND

Two Dead, Six Wounded, Scores Injured in Several Days' Rioting.

TROOPS CALLED, REFUSED.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Sept. 14. — (AP).—Peace, restored by bayonets, gas bombs and the combined efforts of police and national guardsmen, returned to Rhode Island's textile centres to-day even as plans were under way to summon aid from the United States army.

Two deaths, six wounded and uncounted scores of injured climaxed yesterday when national guardsmen in Woonsocket were all but beaten in their desperate struggle to restore order, was the total of casualties up to to-day.

Action on the request of Gov. Theodore Francis Greene for authority to seek Federal troops was deferred by the Legislature, but it did authorize the Governor to spend $100,000 for additional police, and to close mills, at his discretion, when emergencies arose.

Last night war veterans, acting as individuals, mobilized at Woonsocket and Pawtucket after the American Legion and the veterans of foreign wars, as organizations, voted not to enter the strike.

At Pawtucket, 35 ex-service men, wearing their war-time "tin hats," were immediately despatched to Central Falls, scene of rioting in the past few days. Wearing the badges of special police and carrying night sticks, these were assigned to areas distant from the strike zone, releasing regular policemen for strike duty.

Guards Patrol Streets.

Woonsocket in, contrast to the previous night, was one of comparative peace. Trucks filled with national guardsmen patrolled the business areas. Other soldiers, on foot, guarded the mills of the Woonsocket Rayon Company. Bayonets protruded from rifles. Meanwhile police cars, each carrying four or more policemen, roamed the outskirts of the city.

The order of the night was: "Not more than three in a gathering." The order was enforced to the letter.

Seven more alleged looters were arrested during the night, bringing to 40 the total taken in during the day.

Twenty-five men from Providence and three girls from Fall River, Mass., were arrested on suspicion but released when police were convinced they were not Communists.

Tense Situation

Putnam, Conn., was tense as a silk mill prepared to reopen in the face of a union ultimatum that the mill must remain closed. Militiamen were on duty.

A "flying squadron" of pickets dispersed hurriedly to-day in Aragon, Ga., as armed cotton mill workers prepared to move against them. Gunfire sounded in the town, but no casualties were reported.

A charge of dynamite exploded near the transformer of a plant in Fayetteville, N.C. No damage was done and the plant continued to operate. The situation generally in North and South Carolina was quiet.

Many mills operated under the protection of national guardsmen. President Roosevelt's strike mediation board, prepared to report to the chief executive and he was expected to take action to settle the walkout. The President will leave to-day to witness the America's Cup races but will keep in touch with the strike developments, especially those in Rhode Island.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

Two Of Morro Castle Crew Wash Ashore

POINT PLEASANT, N.J., Sept. 14 (A.P.).—The bodies of two men, members of the crew of the ill-fated liner Morro Castle, were washed up on the beach here to-day.

Papers in the pockets identified one as Stanley Morris, a seaman, and the other as Guizo Policstro, 20, a bell boy. A third body, that of a man about five feet eight inches tall, and weighing about 150 pounds, later washed up on the beach at Sea Girt. It was badly decomposed, and dressed only in shorts and provided no clues for identification.

WRITES FINAL JESTING VERSE AND KILLS SELF

Andres Selkirk, Radio Humorist, Suicides in Chicago Apartment.

SENDS NOTE TO WIFE

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—When Andres Selkirk was living he made many people laugh with the programs he prepared for the radio.

So, when Andres Selkirk died he saw no reason why he shouldn't add a touch of humor.

Before he put a .38 calibre bullet into his brain at his apartment at 180 E. Delaware Place, he wrote to Mrs. J. B. Blackburn of 501 Washington street, Glencoe:

"Dear Hohney—Since we got into the argument, let's have a lot of fun, shall we? What do you think of this paraphrase for an epitaph:

"Here lies the last work of
Andy Selkirk;
For him life held no terrors.
He lived like a fool and died
like a fool;
No runs, no hits, some errors."

Leaves Note to Wife

To his wife Selkirk was more serious. He wrote.

Terese, Dear—These are the last honest words of a soul in torment for what has happened to us.

"I am entirely to blame. Living, I am no use to anybody, not even myself, so I want you to put all the tangle out of your mind as quickly as possible, and I hope you have long years of happiness and a new and better deal."

Selkirk had sent a bellboy with a note to the apartment manager, I. M. Ryan, asking the latter to come at once. He sent two employees to the apartment and telephoned police. The employees found the body.

A telephone call to the Blackburn home brought the statement, by a maid, that the families had been friends for about seven years and that the Selkirks had spent last week-end at the Blackburn home. Mr. Blackburn is a vice president of the Indiana Limestone Company, 436 N. Michigan avenue., the maid said.

FIND MINISTER HIT-RUN VICTIM

Machine, Believed Death Car, Later Discovered Ablaze in Vacant Lot.

TRUCKER GIVES TIP.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Sept. 14 (A.P.).—Under circumstances that puzzled State police, the Rev. William Cross, 48, of Boston, was killed early to-day while walking on the Brunswick pike in North Brunswick Township, by the driver of an auto who stopped, spoke briefly to a truck driver ahead of him, then fled without identifying himself.

In Mr. Cross' pockets police found a letter mailed by Mrs. Jease Cross, with a return address given as 134 Essex Street, Toronto, Canada.

With a description of the auto and the driver given by the truck operator, Harold Hargrave, of Belleville, police sent out an alarm and a few hours later police reported the discovery of an auto believed used by the fugitive driver, afire in a vacant lot.

In the machine police found a .45 calibre army type revolver, with six empty shells in the chamber. It was thought the bullets were fired by the heat.

Hargrave said he had not seen anybody walking on the highway, and police could not learn how Mr. Cross happened to be there at that hour, about 3 a.m.

SEVERAL FINED IN TWEED COURT

Breaches of Liquor Control Act Cost From $10 Up With Jail Optional.

TWEED, Sept. 14 (Ex. Cor.).—Several cases, involving chiefly breaches of the Liquor Control Act, were heard by Magistrate Casement in Tweed on Tuesday of this week.

Mart Simmons and Edward Renaud were each given fifteen days in the county jail when convicted. John Frederickson paid $10 and costs for a similar offence.

For a breach of the highway traffic law, Franklin O'Coin paid $10 and costs. W. J. Dean failed to answer a charge laid under the highway traffic law. All the arrests were made by Constable Hayes.

Nelson Hill, of Roslin, was convicted under the Indian Act of having illicit liquor and was given one month in jail. Hill was arrested by the R. C. M. P. after an investigation into the alleged manufacture of home-brew beer. The accused man was arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., and, after pleading guilty, was fined the minimum under the law, $25, and was given one month in the common jail in default of payment.

Eddie Blackwell, who was employed by Mr. Herbert McDonald, of Erinsville, died in Hotel Dieu, Kingston, following an automobile accident which occurred on the Arden road near Beaver Lake on Monday evening.

ORCHID HUNTER IN WISCONSIN

PETERBOROUGH TEACHER

An account of the dramatic discovery of the Alaska orchid, one of the rarest of the species, by F. J. A. Morris, Peterborough's widely-known orchid authority, is included in a report of Mr. Morris' recent visit to Milwaukee in the Milwaukee Journal.

"Teacher of Greek, Latin and English by vocation and amateur orchid hunter by avocation, Frank Morris, of Peterborough, Ontario, is visiting in Milwaukee on his summer vacation," the report read. "He and Mrs. Morris, who is an amateur orchid hunter, too, are the guests of George L. Waite, 628 Crescent court, Wauwatosa.

Mr. Morris, with Edward A. Eames, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the author of 'Our Wild Orchids,' an authoritative book.

"In the office of Albert M. Fuller, curator of botany at the public museum, Mr. Morris looked at the museum copy of the volume.

"'Hummm,' he said, 'the cover looks as though it's had some use. I hope the inside looks the same.'

Travel Far For Orchids.

"On horseback, in buggies, on bicycles, in automobiles, on trains and in boats, Mr. Morris has travelled something like 100,000 miles of the United States and Canada in search of various species of orchid. His collaborator, Mr. Eames, once travelled 3,000 miles in search of one orchid.

"Mrs. Morris, accompanying her husband on these sparetime botanical excursions, discovered the Alaska orchid, a rare species which is apt to pop up most any place that the last glacial wave missed. This was on one of a group of islands in Lake Huron. The Morrises approached the island by motorboat, telling the boatman simply to take them to the largest, most primitive and heavily wooded isle.

There It Was.

"'We'd gone about a quarter of a mile through the woods and I was saying, 'We'll never find it,' when Mrs. Morris said, 'What's that?' and there it was, the Alaska orchid,' Mr. Morris relates.

"Mr. Morris' orchid hunting goes back to his boyhood in Scotland, before he had been graduated from Oxford University and had come to Canada in 1894.

"Enthusiastic about conservation, Mr. Morris made several trips in Wisconsin. He was taken to the Cedarburg swamps by Mr. Fuller and went on to Devil's Lake, Wis."

Be Beautiful

According to a well-known Hollywood gossip columnist the famous Mae West, who showed how seductive fullsome curves can be, has taken up tap dancing. Mae, it seems, while an ardent believer of the fact that nothing should deviate so much from a straight line as a woman's curves, also thinks that those curves should be firm. Mae does her tap dancing routines merely for the exercise. And she feels that it's a swell way to ward off flabbiness.

Flabbiness, of course, is one thing that destroys figure beauty. And a good many women complain that when they attempt to reduce, their flesh does lapse into that condition. In such an instance, however, any woman may rest assured that there is something wrong with her reducing method. For no good reducing routine should ever leave the body in a flabby condition.

A perfect course in reduction, such as the one outlined in my "New Figure" booklet, will not leave the flesh soft and flabby—provided, of course, that you follow the instructions to the letter. And if, after following such a reducing course, your flesh shows any flabbiness, there is but one explanation—you haven't exercised as thoroughly and as vigorously as you should.

This tendency to under-exercise is the commonest cause of flabby flesh. For exercises must be done vigorously and systematically, not only to force the muscles to destroy their fatty excesses, but also to fortify the muscular tissues and make them firm and smooth.

Another common cause of flabbiness is the taking of pills, medicines or cathartics for reducing purposes. The majority of such drugs cause a loss of wtight because they upset the processes of digestion and assimilation in the body. As a result, less benefit is derived from the foods eaten. It isn't safe to disturb digestion and assimilation in this manner. And such habits may eventually result in illness and stomach and intestinal disorders. If you wish to reduce, follow a sane dieting routine, rather than a fad diet. And be sure that you do plenty of proper exercising, so that you mold your body on harmonious lines.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Skin

Constant Reader: Correct cleansing methods, the use of a good astringent, and frequent face masks, will help to close the pores and refine the texture of your skin.

Reducing

Laura: The exercises for the lower part of the body listed in my "New Figure" booklet will help to reduce your thighs, hips and buttocks. They are too long to print here. The hot oil treatments are described in the "Beauty culture" booklet.

Nail Biting

Nancy: Nail biting is a habit, and you'll have to break yourself of it through your own perseverance. A bit of tincture of aloes, if used on the fingertips, will help to break you of this habit.

Self-Denial Plan Is Favored By Members

The Women's Missionary Society of St. James' United Church held their September meeting yesterday afternoon with a good attendance of members and visitors.

Mrs. A. E. Moorhouse, the president, presided while the opening devotional service was carried out. A hymn, "Faith of our Fathers," was followed with prayer by Mrs. Buckler, when the meeting was thrown open for business. This included the regular routine, with the reports of the treasurer and the supply secretary bringing much encouragement. The autumn thankoffering envelopes were received and passed on to the October group.

The special feature of this meeting was the self-denial offering, which has become a successful annual event under the efforts of the present president. The idea is that each member will deny herself in some way during the holidays to save any amount up to $1.00, and as she places the amount on the offering plate to tell in what way it was saved. The responses showed considerable genius in the art of economy. After a four-year trial, this system has proved one of the most popular methods used for raising money and has never brought disappointment with the results.

A very interesting synopsis of the study for September was given by Mrs. McAdam, who with the members of her group, were responsible for the splendid program of the day. The scripture lesson, chosen from St. Matthew's Gospel, was read by Mrs. Beavis, and a season of prayer followed, in which several of the group members, including Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Ingham, took part. Special prayer for the two adopted missionaries of the Auxiliary was observed in silence by all the members.

This year being the tenth since Union, an appeal from the Presbyterial president, Mrs. Brown, was given, asking for an increased membership, increased givings, increased interest and prayer.

Familiar missionry hymns were used, adding to the spirit of the meeting, and a delightful sacred duet, "No Disappointment in Heaven," was contributed by Mrs. McNaughton and Mrs. Newson.

The meeting was brought to a conclusion with the Mizpah Benediction.

The October thankoffering meeting will be in charge of Mrs. L. V. Wood and her group.

No Ideal Husband, So Judge Affirms

There's no such thing as an ideal husband. Mr. Justice Henderson of the Supreme Court of Ontario is the authority on this point.

Before Mr. Justice Henderson in court here yesterday, a young lawyer, cross-examining a woman witness, asked, "Eight years ago your husband was an ideal husband, was he not?"

"I don't understand you," the witness replied.

"Well, he was an ideal husband?" insisted the lawyer.

The woman hesitated, and His Lordship interrupted, stating, "There is no such thing as an ideal husband." He added with a smile, "And that's official."

PETERBOROUGH'S GRAND OLD TROUPER.

To his host of friends here the announcement of his sudden death came as a devastating shock.

Only yesterday it seems he was here with us, with his cheery greeting, his Irish wit and his hearty laugh—and now they are bringing him home to lay him at rest in the old home town he loved so well and came back to so faithfully in the holiday period of each year.

It was not the stage side of Danny's career that so especially interested his Peterborough friends—although they were proud of his accomplishments and proud of the fact that this city has sent out such a capable entertainer—but rather the man himself, the genial, smiling, friendly Irish-Canadian who never forgot his old friends at home and whose delight in seeing them again each year was matched only by their pleasure in being able to greet him.

The home-coming of Danny Simons each summer was as regular and as seasonal as the closing of schools for the long vacation, or the return of the birds from the south every spring.

Far and wide he wandered during the winter months, delighting audiences all over the United States with his drollery and fun-making, but when the warm weather came his dapper, short, stout figure would suddenly one day appear down town and a happy smile and a warm hand-shake would say to the hundreds of old friends who knew and loved him that Danny was back once more.

It is sad to think that when the winter's snows melt and the trees and fields are green again Danny Simons will not be coming home as usual.

STILL IMPROVING.

While the increase reported was not as great as in other recent months, the McConnell and Fergusson index of Canadian business conditions on August 1 registered 21.9 per cent. below normal, a gain of one-tenth point over the previous month.

One year before the index stood at 29.4 per cent. below normal, so that the twelve months' increase was a substantial one.

Even more gratifying is the fact that gains in the index have been steady since the low reached in February, 1933.

Two of the four component factors gained and two lost ground during the month under review. Freight loadings for July were off two-tenths of a point, and electric energy output dropped back a similar amount. These losses were slightly more than offset by six-tenths point gain in bank debits and an improvement of one-half point in construction contract awards.

As a matter of comparison, it is interesting to note that business in the United States, according to the most reputable indexes, is just below the eighty per cent. mark.

The following table shows the four component factors and the combined weighted index:

	July, 1934	June, 1934	Last Year
Car loadings	75.8	76.0	64.9
Construction contracts.	62.1	61.6	61.7
Bank debits	94.7	94.1	91.4
Power production	87.8	86.0	76.0
Combined index	76.1	78.0	70.6

A SURPRISING CHANGE.

When a group so representative of the business and industrial forces in the country as is the Canadian Chamber of Commerce passes a resolution favoring trade reciprocity with the United States that undoubtedly is news.

The action of the Chamber indicates a surprising change of opinion because it would have been an impossibility a few years ago to have secured the passage of such a resolution at any gathering of Canadian business men and manufacturers.

It is significant and encouraging to find a group so constituted recognizing the fact that trade barriers and restrictions hamper trade and cause loss of business and ultimately unemployment.

If everywhere in the world there was a similar change of heart, and if there was a common realization of the necessity of removing some of the tariff restrictions, a path to better conditions would soon be open.

Unfortunately, however, the nations seem committed to the reverse policy, to protecting their own industries by high tariffs, and until there is a new spirit abroad there is little that one country can accomplish by its own efforts to clear the channels of trade.

Unless the move to lower tariffs is a concerned one the lone nation that dropped its barriers would simply become the dumping ground for the world's producers.

However, there is hope when the Canadian Chamber of Commerce endorses reciprocity with our neighbors.

ACCIDENT RECORD WORSE.

Increases in accidents, fatalities, non-fatal injuries and property damage are shown in the accident bulletin issued by the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Ontario Department of Highways for the first seven months of this year.

The report shows that accidents numbered 4,674 or 4.7 per cent. more than in the same period last year, fatalities and injuries were 10.9 per cent. and 5.2 per cent. greater, and the estimated property damage was $443,064 or 7.2 per cent. more than in the first seven months of 1933.

The greatest rate of change in total accidents was in collisions involving bicycles with an increase of 14.9 per cent., while collisions between motor cars were 7.1 per cent. more than last year. Pedestrian accidents showed a smaller advance of 6 per cent.

The bulletin declares that the relatively large gain in the number of accidents, deaths, injuries and property damage during the first seven months of the year clearly points to the need of continued and increased co-operation of law enforcement agencies, the press and those organizations interested in the promotion of safety, if the trend of accidents during the remainder of the year is to be reversed.

"Even more necessary," says the bulletin, "is the assumption of responsibility by the average motorist and pedestrian for the rise in accidents, and a more general willingness to practise safe habits of driving and walking."

Certainly we cannot go on killing 324 people, injuring 4,292 more and smashing up motor vehicles to the tune of $443,064 every seven months without doing something about it.

THE FIGHT FOR PURE MILK.

In an address to the Toronto Kiwanis Club, Dr. Gordon Bates, general director, Canadian Social Hygiene Council, pointed out the enormous cost to Canada of diseases in a large measure preventable. The facts are that two per cent. of our people are constantly ill and that notwithstanding an investment of $250,000,000 in hospitals countless thousands are ill in their own homes. It is estimated that the direct cost of illness in Canada is $311,000,000 year after year. Of particular interest to both Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs is disease among children through the use of unpasteurized milk.

Toronto has pasteurized its milk since 1914. During the last twelve years there has not been a single case of bone tuberculosis of bovine origin originating in the city of Toronto. Such cases as have come in have originated outside of Toronto. Similarly gland tuberculosis of bovine origin has, all of it, come from outside Toronto. It is well known that pasteurization of milk will definitely prevent this type of disease. It will also prevent the spread of typhoid and paratyphoid fever, scarlet fever, and septic sore throat and diphtheria. The most notorious typhoid epidemic in the history of this country, that of Montreal with 5,000 cases and 500 deaths, resulted from failure to institute proper pasteurization.

Yet in the face of these known facts a recent very creditable move on the part of the Government to institute pasteurization throughout Ontario is met by the opposition of organized groups actuated entirely by pure selfishness. For some years Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs in Ontario have taken an interest in the rehabilitation of the crippled child. One of the causes of crippling in children is bone tuberculosis caused by a type of tubercle bacillus conveyed by non-pasteurized milk. Dr. Bates suggested that it is neither sensible nor charitable to care for crippling or any of the illnesses which may be transmitted by non-pasteurized milk and at the same time neglect to make every endeavour to see that all milk is pasteurized. Point is added to this comment by the fact that only the other day, in Ontario, he found a large Kiwanis boys' camp supplied with raw milk by well-meaning Kiwanians.

Most of Ontario's milk is still unpasteurized, much of it is dirty and much that masquerades as pasteurized milk is not. This is a situation which uncorrected means unnecessary disease and death. It can be corrected. Dr. Bates urges that Kiwanis Clubs in common with other service clubs, should take an interest in the matter.—Mail and Empire.

WILL U. S. ADOPT THE DOLE?

"Do you remember," asks Arthur Brisbane, celebrated American editorialist, "when Americans used to say, 'Britain may sink as low as the dole system, but none of that for proud America; the American wants nothing that savors of charity'?"

Now Donald R. Richberg, director of the President's executive council, states officially that 5,000,000 families will be on relief lists before February. Proud Americans!

At the present time 400,000 families are in receipt of relief in New York City—about one-fourth of the population. By the end of December the number of families will be 500,000, or some 2,000,000 people. Every time the clock ticks, relief costs $6.37, or nearly $25,000 every hour of the day and night, the larger proportions of which come from the state and federal governments. Before the year is out the total relief expenditure in New York City will be over $200,000,000. These official figures are furnished by the welfare commissioner, William Hodson.

An article by its London correspondent in the Christian Science Monitor on the British unemployment insurance system (miscalled "the dole") states that he used to be one of those who decried it in Hooverian days. Since then he has learned a lot and does not condemn it any more. He thinks it could be applied in the United States—if it can be kept out of politics.

There are no "politics" about the British system. What would happen, he wonders, if an unemployment insurance system got enmeshed in American politics. He continues:

"President Roosevelt is committed to unemployment insurance. As worked out on paper it requires an exact, actuarial system, manned by the highest type of public servants. It gets such public servants in Great Britain. Here, it is free of the slightest scintilla of suspicion of graft.

"Could such a system be instituted in the United States? I believe it could. But only on one condition: that it should be kept out of politics."

There is a lot of controversy and political wire-pulling in Canada over the question of relief grants, from the Dominion Government down to the smallest township. The provinces are all holding out their hands to the federal authority and saying "Gimme." None of them are satisfied with what they are offered, but the federal treasury is not a milch cow. It gets blamed for stinginess, and it is blamed for high expenditures by its political opponents at by-election and general election times. So it "gets it in the neck" both ways.

The present methods of relief are unsatisfactory. Talk about establishing unemployment insurance crops up from time to time. Isn't the time opportune for getting down to brass tacks on the subject?—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Some of the speeches in the Toronto East by-election suggest that the orators' estimate of the intelligence of their audience must be a record low one.

Mr. Odette's statement that the beer regulations are to be thoroughly enforced is satisfactory as far as it goes, but would have been more enthusiastically received had it included a promise that the regulations themselves were to be tightened.

And not long ago Ontario was complaining about the long absence of rain!

The shipping of Canadian apples under the new marketing arrangement has just begun, and already there are complaints because the export of low grade or domestic apples is for the present forbidden. Regulation always means that some individuals suffer.

THE UNITED STATES—THE STRIKE.

(3)

THE National Convention of United Textile Workers' Union assembled from all parts of the nation and held in New York City, brought to the surface conditions that ought to be known. And this for two reasons at least. First, that the wrongs suffered by the industrial workers, represented in the National Convention, should command the attention of the President and all associated with him. Second, that employers in all industries should take notice that a new day has arrived. The day of coercion is old.

Do you wonder that a big strike is on? Read this. It is an affidavit. Some will parry by saying that does not amount to anything. The testimony of a worker has no weight. How otherwise get at the facts if the word of the worker does not count?

Here is an affidavit: A worker from Tennessee cites several cases where men and women were worked as high as ninety hours a week, and received pay for forty-eight hours. In Tennessee employers have adopted a method deducting time from the worker's card called the "Punching Out" system. The idea when once mooted, spread with amazing rapidity throughout the whole Southland. It is a revelation of the slave drudgery that prevails to a high degree in Southern industries. The workers serve faithfully and at the end of the week find themselves docked from five to twenty hours. A protest would mean their dismissal. Do you still wonder at the strike?

Suppose we step over to Salem, North Carolina. Meet R. G. Strickland. He knows his state. Listen to his affidavit testimony. "Six workers are given the job where formerly twenty-three were assigned. Pocks have been speeded up from 136 to 144 per minute. In Columbia, South Caroling, the number of picks have been speeded up from 160 to 175. The speed is killing."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

Gravity Instead of Gayety

REFRESHED in body and mind, President Roosevelt returned from his cruise on the Houston to Washington. The newspapers were given an audience. His wit sparkled. Smiles wreathed his countenance. But in a few days in Washington his face bore a different expression. Troubled concern is hard to hide.

Two of his lieutenants were snarling the procedure of the National Administration Act. A man and a woman put up a better fight than two men. And so, Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, and General Johnson here in the midst of a real scrap when the President reached the White House.

Frances Perkins in disposition is restrained. She is slow to speak. In an appraisal of her personality the mention of lots of fire on occasion is in place. Wrong a worker and the slumbering fire will mount to a flame. That is well. Johnson undertook to tell her. Frances stamped her foot. Her will is as positive as that of Johnson. And she is just as capable. A woman identifies herself more completely with people committed to her care and guidance than does any man. She becomes one with them. The life of Frances Perkins in her present official leadership is sacrificial. Johnson is overbearing. He was piqued when Miss Perkins said "No" to some of his suggestions. Roosevelt sustained the Secretary of Labor.

Then came the consideration of the Richberg plans for recovery. In several fundamental aspects they were in contrast with the original draft of the National Recovery Act. They cut right across that act. When Roosevelt emerged from the conferences he was a care-worn president. Concern was more deeply engraved on his countenance as he took passage for Hyde Park.

SOUTH CAROLINA AND CHATANOOGA.

(4)

REUBEN Lovelace is a cutter at Salem, South Carolina. His affidavit is that the production demanded since the N.R.A. Code was put into operation is much higher in eight hours than it was formerly in ten hours. He says: "When we were working ten hours our production was of bloomers 144 dozen. Now, working eight hours the enforced production is 200. When working ten hours the athletic shirt production was 250 dozen. Now, under the N.R.A. Code, the demand is 250 dozen, or lose your job. Now the cutters dock the knitters. They are forced to do so by the management. The charging girls dock the cutters. The boss told the workers that they would be fired if they did not make the production. Many, to hold their jobs, had to work extra hours to reach the quota." Do you still wonder at the strike?

Have you read about the "Stretch out system"? The pressure is terrific. Thousands have been forced out of the mills in the South just because they could not stand the strain. When men and women are driven beyond human strength, and redress cannot be obtained by even Code processes, there is only one course left by which to secure just rights. The strike in the United States is as justifiable as was the revolution under Cromwell. Human rights were at stake then. They are now, wherever the employee is at work. Not in the United States alone. But in many another nation. Predatory capital is grinding the weak and the poor. This treatment cannot endure. Conflict will not down before justice is meted out to all workers. Investigation has become rather a popular word. Even Canada is taking a questioning look-in at her employees at work in the mills.

A Thought

SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY

It is the urge in the heart of every man which forces him to provide for his own—the feeling of responsibility.

But there is another instinct in man—the desire for present enjoyment. We want to live now. People have long ceased to consider the ideal life as one devoted solely to the purpose of making the future secure, at the sacrifice of present happiness and contentment. We want our share of enjoyment as we pass—and rightly so.

That being true, the problem of the average person is how to have the security that he wants for himself and family in the future, and at the same time permit him to enjoy present happiness and modest luxury. How can he secure the two conditions at once? Life insurance is the answer.

Through life insurance, we rid our minds completely of one great fear that dominates us—the fear that premature death will frustrate our plans for our loved ones. Through life insurance we are able to enjoy part of our earnings now, secure in the thought that we have provided for the necessities if anything happens to us.—Friend and Guide.

LUNDAR, MANITOBA.

This northern Manitoba settlement, which provides the city of Winnipeg with much of its daily milk supply, was named by Henrick Johnson, an Icelander, the first settler at that point.

He sent to Iceland for his betrothed and named the place after the farm in Iceland from which his bride came. The original name was Lundi, but somehow was changed to Lundar by the postal authorities possibly in error.

ALL OF US

DEATH IN THE FAMILY.

Those friends who came with help and comfort are gone. They did what they could, knowing it was pitifully little, but they came and they did things, and they spoke the little words that are so futile but mean so much in memory's book . . . All the busyness, all the sad details are finished. The minister who spoke those rich words of the funeral service has said goodby and gone his way, too . . . Only the family is here in this quiet house. Almost relieved in their numbed bereavement, glad to be alone at last.

It seems so strange that one who was so vital will never walk through these rooms again. There he sat and there he hung his coat when he came in from his work; that's his pipe over there on the desk, and in the front room by the window is the bed where he so serenely died . . . It is better not to be thinking of such things. Better to busy oneself with the necessary demands of the living that remains to be done . . . He would not wish his family to sit here alone and grieve too hopelessly. He was never like that himself. He took life bravely and stood straight against its blows. That man who is gone.

One should eat, perhaps. But no one wishes food. They say it would choke. And yet they MUST eat something. They will feel better if they do . . . So they prepare a meal and sit around the table and say casual things and each tries in his own way to be cheerful and to comfort the others . . . And sitting together like this they do come closer to each other. They are friends as well as members of the same family. Their interests unite, their lives become one. That one whom they have lost has brought them together again . . . They feel stronger, somehow, than they have felt for many a day. And they will do what he told them. He said they must stay together and love each other and remember how much he had loved them and how proud he was of them and how much he expected of them. He did not wish to bind them, he said. He wished to help them but he wished them, too, to be themselves . . . How glad they were that he had not died before he was able to say goodby to them all and clasp their hands. It was a comfort even then, in the bitterness of their grief, to remember how calm he had been, how free from arrogant bravery in his dying . . . They would not weep, they would not display their grief. They would open the doors, pull up the shades, open wide the windows and let the good sun shine into a house where there was no more Death.

Windover Property Destroyed By Fire

WARKWORTH, September 14.—The summer kitchen, containing a winter's supply of wood, and various other articles belonging to Percy Windover, Norham, was completely destroyed by fire about 2 a.m., Wednesday morning. Through the quick response of the neighbors and the aid of the Warkworth fire engine, the other buildings were saved. The origin of the fire is unknown.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

OUR GREATEST LAKE DISASTER.

On this date, in 1882 the greatest disaster in the history of Canadian lake navigation took place in Georgian Bay. The steamer Asia was scheduled to leave Collingwood for north shore ports. A stiff gale was blowing and the sea was running high; there were some doubts as to whether the ship should be allowed to leave; but her captain had faith in his ship and his word went.

The Asia had been built at St. Catharines of Canadian oak; she was 126 feet long, 26 feet beam and drew 12 feet of water; built and rigged with one sail as auxiliary power, but she was equipped with an expansion engine and a wood-burning furnace and was driven by a propeller.

The captain had his way. The Asia left port with 150 on board, passengers and crew. The first leg of the voyage to Owen Sound proved rough, but there was no trouble. At the Sound barrels and boxes of provisions for northern lumber camps were taken aboard, but there was no room below decks and the stuff had to be lashed into position on the hurricane deck.

The Asia held her own during the gale that raged all night; but at dawn it was seen that the position was critical. The deck cargo was jettisoned; the horses and cattle were thrown overboard; but still the ship rolled and pitched. Captain Savage gave the order for the boats to be lowered; but it was too late. Two were smashed as there were lowered; a new lifeboat of modern construction was tossed by the waves; the oars were lost; it capsized; all in it were drowned save Miss Christina Morrison, of Bognor, and Duncan Tinkis, a merchant of Manitowaning. They alone were left to tell the tale. Among the victims of the disaster was William Henry, father of Hon. George S. Henry and his brother, Robert Henry.

BACK TO THE LAND

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir

In that most informing book, "The Political Leaders of Upper Canada", by William Smith, it is pointed out that when the Loyalists hurried as refugees from the U.S. to British territory in 1784 they were absolutely destitute. They were the first real settlers and were given land, seed, grain, food for the winter, clothing, live stock and plows. With this start they within three years became independent farmers. In 1791 on account of this influx Pitt consented to the Act creating Ontario out of the old province of Canada which was then all Quebec.

Sept. 10, 1934

To The Editor:

The property owners of Peterborough, in the writer's opinion, who are taking relief rents are no more than sapps and half witts and should they lose all they have got, have no one to blame but themselves for being such fools to let the Federal and Provincial Governments and City of Peterborough put it over them in such a dirty way. Wake up property owners of Peterborough who are taking relief rents, or you will soon be on relief yourself, and if you prefer to stay asleep continue to do so till you wake up and find yourself on relief or in the poor house. The remedy is in your own hands and you have only yourseves to blame should the above happen to you. From one interested in the property owners and those on relief rents. The writer has done his big bit for the property owner and those on relief.

Thanking you in advance, dear Editor, if you will give the above letter space in your paper to help to make this fair city of Peterborough a better place to live in.

Yours very truly

From one who has lived in Peterborough for over 30 years.

KINSMEN START FALL ACTIVITY

J. H. Bell Guest Speaker at First Meeting of New Season.

AT EMPRESS HOTEL

A vivid word picture of Yorkshire was last night presented to the Kinsmen Club, by J. H. Bell, exporter's agent, who has recently returned to Canada from a three-months' business trip to his native heath.

The speaker who has been closely identified with the textile trade during his entire business career held the attention of the club men, with a striking talk on conditions in the densely-populated manufacturing and industrial areas in the West Riding.

He presented a picture of endless miles of factories and woolen mills that were congested into the areas around Leeds, Halifax, Huddersfield, Bradford and Sheffield. The average worker, he stated, received twelve dollars a week, and generally speaking there was a complete feeling of contentment among the laboring classes.

In Leeds, Mr. Bell remarked, he had been impressed with a gigantic slum clearance scheme that was being contemplated at a cost of $60,000,000. All over England there appeared to be an amazing amount of building construction in progress. Houses were going up by the thousand and the remarkable fact was that all the houses were "spoken for" before being erected.

Mr. Bell declared that bluntness and stubborness were characteristics of the Yorkshireman. He was a born fighter who would struggle to the last ditch. Among some of the prominent Yorkshiremen he mentioned as examples were Wilberforce and Asquith.

He also touched upon some of the facilities which Yorkshire's broad acres provide in the way of health and holiday resorts, drawing a picture of wide open sweeps of moorland with its gorse and wind-swept freshness; and Scarborough and Whitby as its's chief watering places, located on the north east coast. Reference was made by Mr. Bell to Hull as one of the most important seaports in England. Incidentally Hull is the speaker's home town.

A. E. Chalmers provided the club with a report of the Kinsmen National Convention held recently at Victoria. There were a total of thirty-six clubs in the national association, he stated, with a combined membership of 1311.

Alex Sollitt, president of the club was in the chair and extended a vote of thanks to the guest speaker, ably moved by Bob Lundy.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point: Wheat, 92c to 95c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c 86c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 55c to 58c.

MONTREAL GRAIN

Cheese declined slightly in price while other products remained unchanged on the Montral Produce and Dairy Market yesterday

Ontario colored cheese was off ¼ cent at 9¾ to 9¾ cents a pound, while Quebec cheese was also down ¼ cent to 9¾ cents a pound. Receipts totalled 3,286 boxes.

On the butter market, quotations were 20 to 20¼ cents a pound for fresh No. 1 in carlots or less. Small lots to the retail trade brought 21 cents a pound for solids and 22 cents for prints. Arrivals were only two boxes.

Eggs continued to bring the same price as Wednesday. Graded shipments in carlots or less were priced at 31 to 32 cents a dozen for A-arge, 29 to 30 cents for A-medium, 20½ to 21 cents for B, and 19½ cents for C. Receipts were 653 cases.

New Quebec potatoes were quoted at 35 to 45 cents per 80-pound bag of No. 1 grade, and old potatoes sold at 20 to 25 cents per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Disturbed by textile strike developments, wheat prices showed weakness most of the time yesterday, but rallied at the last.

Reports of wintry weather in parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan, where but little wheat has been threshed, tended to bring about late rallies. Trade advices said recent frost damage in Saskatchewan was showing up worse than expected, and that 13 per cent of Saskatchewan wheat was still standing when frost came.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼c lower to ¼c higher, compared with Wednesday's finish; December new, $1.06 to $1.06¼; corn, ½ to 1 cent down, December new, 78⅝c to 78¾c; oats, ¼c to ½c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Snowstorms, accompanied by rain, cooler temperatures, and in some places frost, helped wheat futures mount to higher levels on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Closing prices were ⅝c to ¼c ahead, with the near-by option leading the upturn.

October wheat closed at 84½c, December at 84¾c to 84⅞c, and May at 88⅜c.

It was difficult to determine the source of much of the buying in the pit, but offerings were well absorbed. Export business accounted for 250,000 bushels of the buying power, and commission houses and Chicago interests also purchased wheat.

Heaviest rains fell in southern sections of the Western Provinces, where harvesting is well advanced, but the north and central areas received snow and sleet, and the forecast is unfavorable.

Cash grains trading was dull, while coarse grains held steady with wheat.

MINES SETBACK AFFECTS TRADE

NICKEL ISSUE SOFT.

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (CP).—Volume expanded on the decline on the industrial board of the Toronto Exchange this afternoon, the close showing considerable business in the oil, distillery, and some of the brewery shares as well as in Nickel and Bell Telephone.

Practically the whole board closed lower, New York and the mining department having influenced the decline to some extent.

The board was well spotted with gains around mid-day but these were erased in the afternoon when New York was displaying definite weakness. Nickel closed at 23, down nearly a point while recessions of ¼ to ⅜ were boarded for Ford "A", Brazilian and C.P.R. Consolidated Smelters dropped 2⅛ to 126⅛.

SHARP DECLINE IN TECK HUGHES

Selling in Other Golds Results in Lower Price Level for Group.

BASE METALS FIRM.

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (CP).—Another sharp break in Teck Hughes threw the mining section of the Toronto Exchange into a state of nervousness today and some selling in the other golds resulted bringing about a lower price level for the group. Base metals stocks were firm or a little higher and silvers held steady in slow action.

In the morning session Teck Hughes shot down 90 cents to 4.55 before the price steadied, the decline being attended by heavy trading. A slow afternoon recovery brought the price back to 4.85 where it closed with a net loss of 60 cents showing.

Dome dropped $1 to $40.50 and smaller recessions appeared today for Hollinger, Bralorne, McIntyre and Wright Hargreaves. Lake Shore held unchanged at 54.25.

FRED MARSHALL RE-APPOINTED

Was Resworn To Office By Clerk Of The Peace This Morning.

Inspector Fred Marshall, reinstated as Game and Fisheries Overseer for the County of Peterborough, was this morning formally resworn to office by Clerk of the Peace V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Originally appointed on November 21, 1932, under the Henry administration, Inspector Marshall's services were discontinued at the end of August this year, when the Hepburn Government decided on reorganization of the Game and Fisheries Department.

Representations were made to the government by members of the local Fish and Game Association and others, urging necessity of immediate appointment of a game and fisheries overseer. Inspector Marshall, generally considered to be an efficient officer, was strongly recommended for reappointment.

No definite action was forthcoming, it is learned, so in order to bring the matter to a climax a delegation headed by James Hawthorne waited upon the government at Queen's Park, and the reappointment was made by the Hon. Harry Nixon, provincial secretary.

Alex Weddell, president of Peterborough Fish and Game Association, seen by The Examiner this morning, declined to comment on the visit of the delegation to Toronto.

It was learned from another reliable source, however, that Mr. Weddell was among those who accompanied Mr. Hawthorne. Others comprising the delegation, it is understood, were Dr. Donald Munro of Warsaw, honorary president of Lakefield Fish and Game Association, and Fred L. Roy. Inspector Marshall was also present.

The Examiner learned from an official source that during the period between Inspector Marshall's dismissal and his re-appointment, game and fishery laws throughout the county had been violated to some extent.

TOM MOORE RE-ELECTED UNION LABOR LEADER

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (C.P.)—The 1934 executive council of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada was re-elected to-day. The officers, ruling powers of organized labor in the Dominion are: Tom Moore, Ottawa, president; R. J. Tallon, Calgary, vice-president; James Simpson, Toronto, vice-president; P. R. Bengough, Vancouver, vice-president; P. M. Draper, Ottawa, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Draper is the veteran of the executive, holding office since first elected in 1900. Mr. Moore was chosen president in 1913.

AN ODD ACCIDENT

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 14 (CP)—Charles Mansfield, village blacksmith of West Montrose, was painfully injured in an odd accident at his shop last night.

A pair of hot tongs he was using in loosening a stubborn nut on a supposedly empty gasoline drum were hurled into his mouth when the gasoline fumes exploded.

His lips were badly cut, all his teeth were knocked out, and the roof of his mouth was lacerated.

LONDON, Eng.—A unique experience to-day befell an English parachutist who did not want to reveal his identity. Jumping from a plane over Chessington, Surrey, the wind carried him too near town and he descended into the lions' cage at the local zoo. He descended into the cage almost, but not quite. He was caught on the pronged bars just out of reach of two lords of the jungle who did their best to jump up to him. They couldn't quite reach.

Declare Fire On Ship Was Incendiary

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP).—A moderate selling wave swept stocks 1 to more than 2 points lower today. A number of leading issues dropped to new bottoms for the year or lower, including Allied Chemical, off around 8, U. S. Steel Preferred 2½ lower and U. S. Steel Common down 1. Other losers of 1 to 2 included Case, American Telephone, Du Pont and U. S. Smelting. The late tone was heavy. Transfers approximated 750,000 shares.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Sept. 14 (C.P.) — Prices declined on the Montreal Stock Exchange during to-day's session, lossses outnumbering gains about two to one at the close.

International Nickel lost ⅞ at 23, declining most of the day's losses in the afternoon session after being steady around the mid-session. Montreal Power also suffered in the later trading, being down ⅝ to 22½. Canadian Pacific suffered a setback of ¼ at 12¾. Dominion Textile dipped two points at 82.

FEAR TWO STRATFORD TOTS HAVE PARALYSIS

STRATFORD, Ont., Sept. 14. — (CP)—John and Kathleen Wilkie, aged nine and five respectively are in the Isolation hospital here, suspected of being victims of infantile paralysis. Serum has been administered and the little patients are being watched closely. As a precaution against the disease several rooms in Avon ward school have been fumigated.

At Listowel two infants definitely have the malady and in view of the fact that four children from one of the families affected are attending the school, Listowel public school has been closed at least until Monday. The Listowel victims are the 17-months old son of W. Jewell, whose both legs are paralyzed and the infant son of A. H. C. Hemsworth whose condition was reported as critical, though somewhat improved today.

Guardsman On The U.S. Battle Front

United States national guardsmen, called in to check violence among striking textile workers, take up positions behind a barbette at Kannapolis, N.C., armed with automatic rifles. Many such protective positions have been set up in an effort to keep strikers and pickets from damaging mill property.

BIRRELLL DEVELOPMENTS

A wire from Noranda to the local office of Birrell Gold Mines Limited advises that Birrell Gold is now regarded in Noranda and Rouyn as one of the coming big mines of Quebec. Shaft sinking is now under way and every round is bringing out increasingly richer showings of fine free gold. Over the week end a group of five plane loads from Noranda and elsewhere will inspect the property.

Road building is making rapid headway from the highway and powerline 5 miles to the southend in a week or two it is expected that diesel engine power and compresser equipment will be taken in to speed up shaft sinking.

It is planned to sink to 250 ft. directly and establish levels there and at 125 ft., from both of which drifts will extend east and west in the main ore-body and a crosscut to the south will be made to intersect the rich quartz vein that at surface showed .74 oz. ($25.90) to the ton in the 2400 lb. bulk sample sent to the Dominion Dept. of Mines for assay and milling test purposes. The local office of Birrell Gold Mines is in the Kresge Bldg.

LONDON, Ont.—Clifton G. Vanslyke, Glanworth, former tax collector for Westminster Township, was sentenced to-day to two years in the Ontario Reformatory for theft of "more than $5,000." He pleaded guilty a week ago to theft of money in various amounts from collections over the past four years.

SAYS OFFICERS FAILED TO LEAD

"It was against the law?"

"Supposedly," O'Sullivan said. "It was used commonly by the steward's department."

He added that the cleaning polish was "used commonly" around the bridge—this in response to a question as to whether "those in authority" were cognizant of its use.

Passenger Is Called

The procession of witnesses, now in its fifth day, was headed at the start of to-day's session by M. L. McElheny, of Plainfield, N.J., a passenger.

Testimony was taken by Dickerson N. Hoover, Assistant Director of the Bureau of Navigation, and three district inspectors—Karl C. Nielsen, John L. Croone and James Smith.

Heard Loud Noise

Charles Anglo, an able seaman on the Morro Castle said the first he knew of the fire was when the alarm went off, "at 2.45."

"That was by a clock in the forecastle, not a ship clock?" inquired Nielsen.

"Yes, sir."

Angelo said he thought he heard a "generator blow up."

"Where was this?"

"In the engine room, I imagine."

"Did it make a noise?"

"Yes, sir, it was a loud noise—a 'pouf.'"

McElheny, an elderly man with spare white hair, said he retired to his cabin on "C" deck shortly after midnight and was awakened—"I know not how"—to see a glow in the cabin windows.

He went into the passageway and saw smoke, and upon going forward saw fire on the stairway leading from "C" deck to the next higher deck.

Saw Fire Hose Used

He saw a used fire extinguisher and "a few men" trying to get a hose broken out. McElheny said he helped turn water on the fire, but was driven back when the flame-heated water burned his bare feet. He testified there were other hoses in play, also.

Forced to turn over his hose to "another man," he went aft to "A" deck, but saw no hose in sight, he said. Then on "A" deck he took a hose from a man and held it on the fire.

"I held that hose until the pressure ceased," he testified, "and then I went aft to "B" deck. By that time the fire was coming up between the planking on "A" deck.

"I tried to go forward but was driven back. A lifeboat was being lowered on "A" deck and I climbed in. We were shortly after dropped in the water—about 25 or 30 feet, quite a drop."

He said he had no idea of the time, as he was in his pyjamas and without a watch.

Only Passenger in Boat

"Were there any passengers on your lifeboat?" asked Nielson.

"I was told I was the only passenger."

"Were any efforts made to get any passengers in the lifeboat?"

"I was the only one in sight. I have no recollection of seeing anyone forward except a man trying to lower a boat."

"Could other passengers," asked Hoover, "have been directed to boats?"

"They could," answered McElheny, "if they were directed soon enough."

"Did you observe anything on the part of the crew's action?"

"I understand the crew aft did everything possible to save the passengers."

"The discipline?"

"I have no reason to question it. On the lifeboat the discipline seemed to be all right, but everyone seemed to be sick. It was from smoke, I gathered, from their remarks."

He said he "might explain" the reason why fewer passengers than crew were saved.

Cut Off By Fire

"Those passengers on "A" deck were probably removed to lower decks to a safer position, because "A" was the most dangerous. They were later cut off by the fire."

He said there "seemed to be a fairly good pressure" on the hoses before it ceased altogether on "A" deck.

McElheny said that after he was in the lifeboat a member of the crew—"he was an electrician"—took off his life preserver and gave it to me "because I was a passenger and had none."

ADJT. WARRANDER GUEST OF KIWANIS

Work of Salvation Army Maintained During Depression.

"The Salvation Army has suffered severely from the depression, yet we have withdrawn from no territory and none of our stations in any section of the world has been closed," Adjutant Neil Warrander, newcomer to the Army command in Peterborough, told the Kiwanis Club at luncheon to-day. "We are still zealous in going ahead with our work for humanity and we shall carry on with even greater enthusiasm under our new leader."

Her arrival in Canada as commander for this Dominion took place was 1896. In 1904 she was moved to New York to take over the command of the United States territory—since divided into four territories—and remained in that charge until elected to the supreme command last month.

"A man asked me the other day what would be her wage as General of the Salvation Army," Adjutant Warrander said. "I didn't like to tell him lest mention of the enormous figure would stagger him. She is paid about $2,250 a year."

Choice of delegates to the Kiwanis Ontario-Quebec-Maritimes conference in Halifax this month was announced. President A. B. Gates and Ivan Lillico will make the journey, W. A. Richardson and Al Sharpe having been named as alternates.

The fox fur put up in a special draw at the recent Kiwanis Karnival is still awaiting a claimant, Ivan Lillico of the Karnival committee said. Whoever holds ticket No. 89 is the lucky winner.

NO COWBOY BOOTS

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 14 (CP)—Western drought cattle here for fattening have brought a style problem with them. Cowhands from the wide open spaces employed on a range north of here demand high-heeled boots to keep their feet from slipping through the stirrups. None of the shoe stores hereabouts stock that kind.

PROMISES HYDRO TO DIONNE FARM

Emilie and Marie and declared they would never want for the best of attention and comforts.

He took occasion to speak of child welfare work in Ontario, saying his interest was not so much for children so well-tended as the quintuplets because the thousands in poor circumstances were his special charge as Minister of Welfare.

It was the concern of the Ontario Government that social conditions should be improved insofar as it lies within the administration's power "to the end that the coming generation shall have a happy life."

Guests Tour Building

The guests were led through the hospital after the ceremony and told of the many comforts arranged for the children and nurses who will live in the building. It is not yet furnished but all equipment has been ordered and is expected to be ready in a week or so. The children may be moved in before that, but Dr. Dafoe who will make decision has not yet set a date.

The building, planned by Mr. Alderson, makes every provision for the children'scare and is large enough to house them until they are five years old. Most of its cost, which is estimated at $9,000, was borne by subscription and donations of material by manufacturers. The manufacturerers were thanked in today's ceremony.

Bad Weather Affects Lakefield Fair Attendance

TOD GRATTAN TOPS ENTRIES IN 2.16 TROT

Exhibit of Horses of Unusual High Calibre With All Classes Well Filled.

SPLENDID EXHIBITS

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 14 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Weather Man did not smile on the Lakefield Fair and the attendance was materially affected by the heavy downpour which fell directly after the noon hour and threatened to continue for the whole afternoon, but about three o'clock the weather cleared, but too late to help the attendance. Given good weather a record crowd was expected and the attendance, despite the rain, was very fair. There was a spirit of optimism abroad and people cheerly made the best of things. The afternoon program was rather disorganized because of the weather, but one horse race was run off with four entries all in the 2.16 class. The race, which was in three heats, saw Todd Grattan, owned by J. Sutherland the winner. The results were as follows:

2—Tillie the Great, Mrs. Dunford	2	3	2
3—Murray Direct, W. Sherin	3	2	3
4—Roy Ottawa, M. Dunford	4	4	4

Fine Horse Exhibits

The exhibit of horses was unusually large and fine and the classes were well filled. The heavy horses were magnificent and the beautiful carriage and saddle class groomed to the King's taste were well worth while. The classes were so well filled that competition was keen in every line. The cattle were excellent, with all the classes well filled. The sheep entries were the lowest in years, but the cause was the weather, which held up several truck loads slated for the Lakefield Fair. With the exception of the horses, the swine exhibit rose to premier place. The prize list had completely revoutionized the hogs and the exhibit this year. Bacon hogs, which are so much in demand now, were featured and the entries were good, and a strong effort is being made to comply with the demands of the British market.

Reach High Honors

With hogs rising to a high place in the export trade the boys' swine club, which was organized under the direction of A. D. Runions, Agricultural Representative in the spring and which has been fostered and encouraged by him, until today the triumph came when the entire 24 boys who entered the club were present with their pigs, all in the pink of condition, groomed for the competition and with the weight and development reaching the point desired in practically every case. It was a proud day for the boys and for Mr. Runions, who saw his effort meeting the success he had desired.

A crowd was constantly round the tent and there was much amusement over the careful grooming the boys gave the animals prior to the moment when the pen was opened and under squealing protest the piggies went forth to be judged. One enterprising exhibitor powdered his pair very carefully. The awards were based on the bacon development, the judging competition, questions on care, feeding and management, attendance at meeting and the care and feeding records. No exhibitors was more proud than the boys of the Swine Club which is playing its part in the development of our Empire market for Canadian products.

In the building the exhibits were exceedingly light for various reasons which combined to make the indoor exhibit the smallest in years. The severe winter which brought the orchard class, the only fruit which was up to standard in quantity and quality. The hot, dry summer which so seriously affected the gardens, had a reflection in the scarcity of vegetables and flowers.

A slight increase in the entry fees which affected the ladies' work reduced the fancy work considerably, but the quality was much better, and the percentage of excellent handwork was higher than ever before. The Art was about as usual in regard to quantity but, in the water color class especially, very superior in quality. A water color garden scene was a really exquisite thing and the portrait work was the best for a good many years. In the dairy class the class was fairly well filled and, in the opinion of the judge, the shipping cheese was never more equal in quality.

Institute Exhibits

The Woman's Institute had an exhibit of posters sent from the Department and which gave some useful information in regard to the work and the possibilities of the Institute.

Arrangements had been made to have a representative of the Fall Fairs and Exhibitions present to open the Fair, and Mr. M. C. McPhail was present in that capacity, but his opening of the Fair was done quite informally as the rattle of the heavy rain on the metal roof of the grand stand made it impossible without amplifiers (which were a minus quantity) to make the occupants hear any speaker.

The Lakefield Band was a cheery addition to the afternoon's program and though the bandstand was out of the question Mr. Madill and his merry men quartered themselves in the south corner of the grand stand and gave an excellent program of music.

Sports Program

A race open to pupils in the Lakefield High School brought a disappointingly small entry. Harry Nicholls won the first prize and Robert Nicholls second, and Clifford Hurl third place.

The bicycle race was also limited to a trio of entrants and again Harry Nicholls took the first place, Cliff Hurl was second and George Tanner third. The track was very heavy after the rain, which probably accounted for the lack of enthusiasm for the race among the boys.

Charles Quinlan of Peterborough was present and obligingly and ably filled the post of starter of the horse races.

Mr. Albert Darling, the president, and Mr. Howard Beavis, the secretary, were not discouraged, but are already planning for the 1935 Fair. While the attendance and consequently the receipts were not up to expectations the Swine Club as an entirely new feature and the remarkably fine exhibit of horses lifted the Fair beyond any thought of failure.

A dance was held in the Town Hall in the evening, with Wilson's orchestra in attendance and a good crowd present.

The results of the Boys' Swine Club was as follows; the possible number of points was 1,200.

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples.

Fortunately, you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to help overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

SOURED ON THE WORLD?—THAT'S LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile —No Calomel necessary

Many people who feel sour, sluggish and generally wretched make the mistake of taking salts, oil, mineral water, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage which only move the bowels and ignore the liver.

What you need is to wake up your liver bile. Start your liver pouring the daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels. Get your stomach and intestines working as they should, once more.

Carter's Little Liver Pills will soon fix you up. Purely vegetable. Safe. Sure. Quick. Ask for them by name. Refuse substitutes. 35c. at all druggists. 41

NORWOOD PRESBYTERIAN W.M.S. OBSERVES 70TH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Mr. Hill of Hastings is Guest Speaker at Large Gathering.

PLEASING PROGRAM

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Sept. 14. — On Tuesday evening the members of the W.M.S., Y.W.A., and Mission Band, gathered in the Sunday School Room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, to celebrate the seventieth birthday of the W.M.S.

The school room was tastefully decorated with asters, dahlias and sweet peas.

Mrs. J. W. Rork, president, was in the chair, and in a few well chosen words, expressed her appreciation on the way the ladies had responded to the occasion. The meeting opened with a hymn after which Miss C. Clydesdale led in prayer, and Miss C. C. Calder read the Scripture lesson.

Misses Barbara Ball, Pauline Godin, Eileen Campbell, Lois Rogers and Mary Richmond, members of the Mission Band, recited a recitation entitled "The Other Side of the World." Rev. Mr. A. C. Reeves addressed the societies on the origin of the W.M.S., stressing the point that the work of every church must be evangelical.

Rev. Mr. Barker then led in prayer.

Rev. Mr. Hill of Hastings, the guest speaker, chose for his subject, "Looking Forward," choosing for his text part of the 53rd chapter of Isaiah, "Awake, awake, Oh, God, put on Thy strength, and awake, awake, Oh Zion, put on Thy beautiful garments." Mr. Hill said that we must confess today and to-morrow holds greater things, but poverty rules. He said that there is a scarcity of spiritual life, fervor and enthusiasm, as the world has become so engrossed in material things. The word 'scarcity' is not in the vocabulary of Jesus Christ, and if each one of us gave ourselves up to Christ the task would be complete. The speaker said that the church to-day is in the valley, and what the world needs to-day is increased faith, prayer and courage.

Mrs. Porter favored the societies with a solo, "He Lives, He Reigns." Miss J. Clysdale seconded by Mrs. Robert Tedford, moved a vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. Hill for the inspiring address he delivered, and all those who took part in the program.

After singing the Doxology, sandwiches and birthday cake were served. Mrs. Ackerman and Mrs. H. Beckett poured tea and Mrs. J. W. Rorke cut the cake.

HASTINGS BREAKS EVEN ON GREENS

Home Bowlers Capture First Two Games From Campbellford.

HASTINGS, Sept. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — Hastings and Campbellford broke even in the four scheduled games in the Trent Valley Bowling League on the local greens on Tuesday night. All home games of the local club are being advanced so that work on the greens can get started in the next week.

In the first games Rivard defeated Sheppard 15 to 8. Rivard got the jump on the visitor in the third with a big five and and a three in the fourth. Greig looked to have his game in the bag in the seventh when he was leading 10 to 6. The Hastings quartette mixed matters with a four in the eighth and notched a single in each of the last two ends to win 12 to 10.

Campbellford captured the last two games which were close throughout. For the first seven ends Rivard and Greig would only allow each other one to an end. The latter slipped up in the eighth for a three but Rivard came right back and tied the count going into the last end, when the Campbellford skip got a loner to win 7 to 6. Huycke and Sheppard were all square on the eighth, the latter getting a point in each of the last two ends to win 8 to 6.

WOMAN REVEALS BIGAMY, FACING MOTHER'S VISIT

Desertion by Husband and Second Marriage Was Kept Secret.

WAS ON THE SPOT

Decided to Tell Police Before Her Mother Arrived.

DETROIT, Sept. 14. — (AP) — Twenty-year-old Virginia Savage, of Niagara Falls, Ont., who said she was living with the wrong husband and didn't know what else to do when her mother wrote her that she was coming for a visit, asked the police to arrest her yesterday, for bigamy.

The husband whom she said she married bigamously, Markus Grenville, 19, was with her. They said they were married by a Detroit minister May 26, after the bride had left her first husband.

"I married Lawrence Savage in Port Dalhousie, Ont., Dec. 3 last year," Mrs. Savage confided to a policewoman after her surrender. "We came to Detroit and Lawrence started to neglect me and go around with other women. He got worse and worse. Some times he'd come home and beat me up.

"I met Mark just when things were getting so terrible I couldn't stand it any longer.

"We fell in love and I decided to leave Lawrence. I was all alone in the big city and it made me afraid. So when Mark asked me to marry him, I said yes."

"We were going to get a divorce and no one would be the wiser. Then last week my mother wrote that she was coming to Detroit to visit me. She knew I was married to Lawrence. I was in an awful mess. I had to do something, so Mark and I decided the best thing would be to go to the police and get it all cleared up once and for all." Then she said she and Mark intend to get legally married as soon as we can."

The police turned the case over to the prosecutor's office.

land and say, we want preference for prefrence—and he got what he asked for," the Minister declared.

The government, he added, had cleaned up "the mess" in the Canadian National Railways left by the former Liberal government and the road was now in condition to take advantage of improved business conditions.

Liberal campaign tactics were attacked by Wilfrid Heighington, K. C., Ontario Legislature Conservative for Toronto St. David's in a Toronto by-election address. He described these tactics as similar to the "ravings of Senator Huey Long and his comic, yet potentially tragic opera, in Louisiana." He declared the Liberals had blamed Prime Minister Bennett for everything except the Nazi killings and the Morro Castle disaster.

T. L. Church, K.C., Toronto East Conservative candidate, declared he would introduce a housing program to eradicate slum areas if he obtained the election Sept. 24. He said his plan would be similar to the one implemented in England.

Conservatism must be taken back to the masses, Mr. Church said. "As Conservatives we must live in the present and not in the past," he said. "The British North America Act must be brought up to date."

Trent River Society Holds Quilting Bee

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A quilting bee and hot dinner brought a large number of members of the Ladies' Aid out Tuesday morning at the dining hall of the United Church. The ladies arrived at 11 a.m. A number of the members prepared the quilt for the frame while the others prepared dinner. Each member brought supplies for the table, which was set in the kitchenette, and a variety of all things good to eat tempted the appetites of all who sat down to the mid-day meal. The menu consisted of meat pies, salads of many varieties, mustard pickles, celery hearts, sliced tomatoes, deviled eggs, cinnamon rolls, tea biscuits, pumpkin pie, chocolate pie, maple syrup, chocolate cake, butterscotch tarts, sandwiches and tea. Seventeen were seated at the table.

In the afternoon everybody was busy at the bedspread, the pattern of which was artistically put together of various colored patches to represent a wedding ring. The spread has a fluted border which will be bound with a bright green tapeing, and when completed will present a lovely piece of work. Four more members arrived in the afternoon.

HOUSE AT HAVLOCK DESTROYED BY FIRE

Tenants Absent on Visit to Daughter Last Night.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 14 (Examiner Correspondence). — A fire which broke out shortly after midnight destroyed the two-storey frame dwelling on Concession street, owned by Mrs. Fontaine of Peterborough, and occupied by Mr. Thomas Forsythe, carpenter and market gardener.

The fire was first noticed by George Kennedy and Jack Davidson about 12.20 a.m., as they were returning home from the annual meeting of the Albion Club at the Orange Hall. They turned in an alarm and the apparatus was soon on the scene. The fire gained such headway, however, that nothing could be done except safeguard the nearby dwellings.

Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe were absent visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. William Ketchen, of Belmont. Loss estimated at $3,000, is partly covered by insurance.

The president emphasized the need of personal prayer on the part of the members that the auxiliary might prosper and reach its allocation, this year $350: "An auxiliary on its knees is a necessity; do not think more of the harness than the horse—that is, do not put activity ahead of waiting upon God as of first importance."

Mrs. J. A. Brown took the chair for the program, which this month was a study of the W.M.S. "Blue Book," the ninth issued since Union. Mrs. H. Lang read the "Workers' Prayer," and taking part in the study were Mrs. John Hatherly, who gave the supply work; Mrs. Weston Fallis, who read a most interesting letter from Miss Marian Coon, of Peterborough, whose field is the "big, busy, wealthy, commercial city of Chungking, West China; and Miss Burnham, who gave a message from the Mission School at New Liskeard, Ontario.

RAIN DAMPENS LINDSAY FAIR

Thursday's Races Cancelled Because of Heavy Track.

CONKLIN'S MIDWAY

LINDSAY, Sept. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The weatherman was most unkind to the directorate of the Lindsay Central Fair Thursday. Jupiter Pluvius uncorked the flood gates at an early hour in the morning, and the downpour was a copious one, lasting several hours. The fair grounds was a regular quagmire, and this condition told against the attendance. The program of special attractions in front of the grandstand was carried out, but the bill of races was cancelled as the track was in an impassible condition. Conklin's Shows arrived in town at an early hour in the morning and unloaded during the heavy downpour of rain. The directorate moved the fair dates one week ahead this year in order to escape the rain season. They hope for more favorable weather conditions on the two last days of the Fair.

The death is announced at Glenarm, Fenelon Township, of a well-known resident of that district in the person of John Hewie, aged seventy-six years. His death was tragically sudden and came as a shock to his family. He is survived by two daughters, four brothers and three sisters.

Truck Driver Faces Negligence Charge

A charge of criminal negligence was laid against Frank Driscoll, 29-year-old truck driver, of 496 Driscoll Terrace to-day on the information of Provincial Constable David Silvester.

In effect the information charges criminal negligence in that the driver of the truck in the legal performance of his duties failed to take necessary precaution in proceeding over a railway crossing where the view of an approaching train was obstructed.

Driscoll, who has not yet made formal appearance before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in answer to the charge, was the driver of a Canada Packers Limited motor truck, which was struck by a train on Bennett's Crossing on the 10th Line of North Monaghan Township on the morning of September 5, with fatal results to William Sutherland, a passenger riding on the rear of the vehicle.

Sutherland was almost instantly killed when the body of the truck was demolished by the impact, while Driscoll and John Hickey, 16-year-old youth who sat beside him in the cab of the truck completely escaped serious injury.

Inspector Outlines Gun License Laws

Newly reappointed as game and fisheries overseer for the county, Inspector Fred Marshall wishes to draw attention of all sportsmen and others to the necessity of obtaining gun licenses.

"I wish particularly to stress this point," the Inspector stated, "in view of the official opening of the duck hunting season at sunrise tomorrow."

A farmer or his sons farming their own land, were the only persons exempt from necessity of obtaining a gun license, the inspector said, and then only provided they confined their shooting to their own lands. If a farmer or his sons desired to shoot on any property other than their own, they then became subject to the same regulations governing other residents of the province. Gun licenses are only obtainable by residents of the province. Non-residents are required by the law to take out a hunting permit before being allowed to carry or use a gun.

Some Feat

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—(A.P.)—Three robbers last night achieved a feat often thought impossible—they forced 100 women to remain speechless for several minutes.

Invading a meeting of the Polish Women's Alliance, they demanded the contents of the treasurer's strong box in which reposed more than $300 in monthly dues.

The treasurer handed over the money without a word.

"Give me that ring," said one of the robbers, pointing to the treasurer's diamond ring. Speechless, she gave up her jewelry. No further words were spoken during the hold-up, and the robbers fled.

Then the women made up for lost time.

GUN LICENSES STILL NEEDED

Nixon Denies He Intends to Abolish Law for Fall Hunting Season.

ONLY FARMERS EXEMPT.

TORONTO, Sept. 14—To recent reports that the Hepburn Government might not enforce the resident gun license this season, Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Minister of Game and Fisheries, gave unqualified denial yesterday.

"The gun license is provided for by statute," he said, "and of course it will be enforced. From now on any person picked up without a license who should have one will have his equipment seized. There will be no interference with the ordinary course of the law."

The only persons free from this gun tax are the farmers and the farmers' sons, and they enjoy this immunity only while hunting on their own property.

Hon. Mr. Nixon, while on Opposition member of the Legislature, persistently fought the gradual extension by the former Consevative administration of this form of license. It is possibly this past stand of his that recently has earned for him communications by the hundreds, inquiring if the license were to be done away with this Fall hunting season. Asked if at the next session of the Legislature he would seek to abolish the tax, Mr. Nixon replied: "I'm not commenting on that question at the present time. For the time being we are enforcing the law as it stands."

SHIFTING THE LEAD.

About half the time the opening lead, and what declarer does with it, determines whether or not declarer will go game. Even when senior has made his best opening lead, if he has to shift to another suit, about half the time there is a distinct choice between suits to which he may shift, as there was with the hand shown.

Bidding went: West, 1-heart; North, 1-spade; East, 2-hearts; West, 4-hearts, ending the auction.

The opening lead was the K of spades, followed by the Q. The J was dropped on the second lead by the declarer. As South had not echoed; it was evident that another lead of spades would enable one opponent to discard a loser while the other trumped. It was time to shift the lead, but which minor suit should North lead? A declarer never will lead a suit when one hand holds the Q and the other the J, with the A-K-10-9 missing. North played his declaring hands well, but he was obsessed with the notion of leading through dummy's strength. He saw but did not heed the fact that the A-10-9 of diamonds were in dummy, with the K and Q missing. If South held the K he would make it later on, but if he held the Q and declarer held the K it would hand West a trick he must lose if forced to lead diamonds himself. If a club lead killed anything in South's hand there were plenty of entries in dummy to enable the declarer to make that same killing.

North led the 8 of diamonds. The 9 went up in dummy. South played his Q. The declarer's K won. Back came the 7 through North's J, and West ended by winning 4 tricks in the suit. On the fourth diamond the declarer discarded a losing club, thus enabling him to win 4-odd, on cards entitled only to 3-odd, at the outside.

Had North led his 8 of clubs the story would have been different. The best that West can do is to win 3-odd, and that only by giving the defenders 2 club tricks, then forcing them to lead diamonds. If West wins the first club trick, then leads diamonds, he will lose a total of 2 heart tricks, 2 club tricks and a diamond trick, going down 2 tricks on his contract.

Players are in the habit of thinking of general rules and following them without sufficient thought. I believe that any careful player should decide the club lead safer than the diamond lead.

CHURCH ARMY TO CONDUCT MISSION

Toronto Diocesan Mission Van Arrives Here on Monday Next.

Commencing on Monday next, September 17th, a short Evangelistic Mission is to be held at St. George's Church, Braidwood Ave.

The Toronto Diocesan Mission Van will arrive here on Monday next, moving in from Omemee, and the first service will be held that same evening, in the church, at 8 o'clock.

Capt. H. Gibson, an experienced missioner, will be in charge, he will be assisted in the work by a fellow C.A. Captain.

It was originally planned to hold the mission over a period of two weeks, to commence on Sunday next, the 16th, but owing to circumstances that have arisen in connection with the wider work of the Church Army, the Rev. J. L. Hughes, rector of St. George's Church, has just received word requesting that the Mission be held for one week only. Mission services will be held every evening except Saturday, the final service to be held on Sunday evening, September 23rd.

Conversion, consecration, churchmanship, are the keynotes in the work of the Church Army, and the missioners can be depended upon to sound these notes during their campaign at St. George's. Children's mission services are announced to be held at the hour of 4.15 p.m. It is hoped that the Mission will be enthusiastically attended from the opening night, especially in view of the unexpected curtailing of its duration.

MILLS—EDWARDS

A pretty wedding took place at four o'clock this afternoon at 515 King street, the home of the officiating clergyman, Adjutant Neil Warrender of the Salvation Army, when Cynthia Edwards, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Edwards of 68 James street, was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mills of Glasgow, Scotland.

Attired in China blue crepe, made with puffed sleeves, a white frilled collar and belt buckled with brilliants, the bride wore a hat of blue crepe, and grey shoes and gloves. Her bouquet was of carnations and gypsophila.

The bridesmaid was in rose santon crepe trimmed with cocoa brown, with brown felt hat and matching accessories and bouquet of carnations.

Twenty guests were present, and decorations were in pink and white; the bride's table centered by the cake and done with pink candles in silver holders and a mixed bouquet in a silver flower basket.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a compact, and to the best man a tie clip.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills will live at Apartment 3, Lundy Block.

Grand Jury Laments Youth Of Prisoners

BRANTFORD, Ont., Sept. 14 (CP)—"It is deplorable, however, to note the youth of the prisoners, the majority of whose ages range from 17 to 23 years," was a statement contained in the report of the Grand Jury presented to Mr. Justice McFarland. At the Fall Assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court, which concluded here yesterday.

The statement was made in reference to the inmates of the county jail. It was also stated that there was not one woman incarcerated.

"We would recommend that garnd jurors in future be informed in advance with regard to the nature of their duties and powers when summoned, so that they may have more time to obtain proper information and thus be more fully prepared to make recommendations," the report urged.

MAKE YOUR OWN FALL BLOUSE

It provides for either neckline—draped in soft cowl effect or as in lower sketch in open , with a bow to accent its femininity.

You may prefer your blouse tucked in. Well, you may have it so with today's model, if you like. And note how youthfully it buttons at the back.

Easy-to-make! It has the simple-to-sew raglan sleeves, that even an amateur can tackle.

A fascinating scheme for afternoons is shown in upper sketch in soft satin crepe in chocolate brown. The lower sketch favors metallic taffeta in brown and gold.

Style No. 3209 designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

I was once employed by an insurance company to investigate the health of a woman who said she had a hemorrhage from the lungs, and claimed sick benefits on that account. I found her in bed in a small cottage with blood-stained towels and rags all around her.

The peculiar thing was that when we examined her lungs there was no evidence of any trouble whatever. Hemorrhage of the amount she had usually comes from tuberculosis and should be easy to detect, but we found none in her case. Nor was there anything in the nose or throat to account for the bleeding.

The young doctor who represented the insurance company and I went out on the back porch to talk it over. We were puzzled. Suddenly he pointed out some chickens that were scratching around, running in and out of the woodshed and under the neighboring fences. He said: "I have an idea"—and he went back and gathered up some of the towels with the freshest blood. When we got back to his laboratory he stained some of the blood and under the microscope showed it to me.

The red blood cells had nuclei. Human red blood cells do not have nuclei, but chickens cells do.

Even if the blood had dried so that the corpuscles could not be identified it would be possible, by making use of modern medical tests, to determine whether the blood is human or not. Those who enjoy the Sherlock Holmes stories will remember how, in the first chapter of the first one, Holmes is found perfecting his test for blood. But it applied to any kind of blood. Holmes had no idea of a test which would tell what species of animal, including man, the blood came from. But since his time such a test has been perfected. It is called the precipitin, or serum, test, and depends on the fact that if an animal, a rabbit, for instance, is injected with human blood, its serum will, after a certain time, form a precipitate when mixed with human blood. It will form a precipitate when mixed with any form of human protein whatever, but not when mixed with the serum or protein material of any other animal.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The tomato is particularly helpful in promoting the normal growth of children. However that may be, the Canadian tomato cocktail sprang into popularity of its own volition, both on account of the simplicity of its manufacture and its enticing flavor. The tomato cocktail is made from tomato juice with small amounts of mild spices added according to taste, such as cloves, allspice, cinnamon, and red pepper supplemented by the required amounts of salt and sugar.

* * * * * * *

To make the juice, the tomatoes should be slightly pulped with a potato masher, placed in a covered kettle, and allowed to heat on the stove until almost boiling. After the pulp has reached the boiling point, it is ready to be passed throug a sieve to remove the skin and seeds. It is imperative that no time be lost in the operation because exposure to air will cause a loss of the nutritive value of the juice. The juice after straining should be returned to the kettle and be brought again just to boiling point when it is filled into bottles or sealers which have been kept hot. The sealed bottles are then placed in boiling water for a few minutes—2 minutes for small bottles and 4 or 5 minutes for larger ones.

* * * * * * *

Tomatoes put up by the cold pack method are ideal for making juice during the winter months. For this purpose, place the tomatoes solidly in clean cans or wide-mouthed jars, add 2 level teaspoons of salt, partly seal the containers and immerse in warm water. Bring the water to boiling point and keep it so for 25 minutes. Remove the containers from the water, completely seal, and allow to cool.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

YIP! YIP! WOW! COWBOYS TO APPEAR IN PERSON HERE TODAY AND SATURDAY

Today and Saturday you will see ten gallon hats, boots, loud shirts on the streets of Peterborough. Why? Because Ken Hackley and his Oklahoma Cowboys are appearing in person with their stage show at the Capitol Theatre. You have probably heard this group of novel, wild, western cowboy entertainers from one of the 200 radio station from which they have been featured, or on the networks of the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting system.

They have made themselves very popular by just being natural in offering the public their ideas of entertainment, which are different, unique, as well as novel and comical. They have and are lassoing many new friends to their many radio and record followers, with quaint plainsman fun, music, and songs.

Their home-spun brand of entertainment is the same kind of fun enjoyed among themselves on the ranch. Their instrumental and vocal versions of the folk songs and ballads tell of the cloak of romance that is woven around the lives of these western plainsmen.

The show is very fast, entertaining and is surrounded by plenty of laughs.

RICHARD DIX IN "HIS GREATEST GAMLE"

This is somewhat out of the ordinary, as far as moving pictures go. It illustrates the type of acting which goes in for mental pictures. That is to say, the chief players live out their thoughts, and the star is a person who is able to turn the mundane world topsy-turvy by his habit of doing what other people only think of.

Richard Dix has a part that suits him to perfection in a play that is a human document. At times he resembles Edmund Lowe. A "father fixation" rules the plot. John Eden is a man whose practical wife tires of his hair-brained schemes to make money. She divorces him, and he takes their quaint little dark-haired girl child, Alice, and goes away to gamble at Nice. When a former light of love comes to tell him that his wife is on the way to reclaim the child, he takes an unfortunate mode of silencing the lady, and the episode ends for him in a prison cell. Alice goes with the mother to far-away England, and later, to America.

But the father enters once more into the life of the girl who has yearned for him for many long years. And the manner in which he clears the way for her happiness is unusual and striking.

There are items in the story that arouse the imagination. Why is Alice surrounded with the atmosphere of an invalid if she is not really ill? And why does her unlikeable mother weaken at crucial moments? There is something dream-like and fantastic about the whole affair, and yet it is just the atmosphere that Dix has projected into the story from the beginning, when he sighs for the stars to play with and speaks jestingly of making his fortune on the turn of the wheel. "His Greatest Gamble" has something in its manufacture of the unforgettable fantasy of "Seventh Heaven," but it can't touch that masterpiece of the silent screen in which Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell rose to such glorious heights.

The comedy is one of the merry mixups in which the children predominate and there is another stirring chapter in the serial, "Gordon of Ghost City."—Jeanette.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THORNCLIFFE is sure running into bad weather this week which is quite a contrast to the lovely brand they usually receive from the weather man. No matter what happens now, tomorrow's closing day card will be decided over a drying out track at the best. So of the seven days racing the chart read clear and fast on only two days. In spite of all the adverse track conditions the ponies have been performing pretty much to form with the favorites clicking pretty regularly.

Harry Giddings has a nice prospect for next year's King's Plate in Listare who recently won the Clarendon Plate and has been very consistent in the two-year-old ranks all summer. He will have a few more tests before the snow flies but our guess is that he will go into winter quarters just as hot a favorite as Horometer was last Autumn. It has become a sort of habit with Giddings in winning King's Plates and important stake events. Pat Gaiety came back to life with a bang the other day when he tow roped a nice field. The cool gumbo seemed to suit his hoofs to perfection.

BROOKLYN Tommy McCarthy has Broadway Lights on the shelf these days and his only hope of winning a race is with one called Steel and don't be a bit surprised if he slips this one over when everybody is looking out the window. Woodbine which opens one week from tomorrow have toned down their condition book to suit the cheaper platers and they should have just as big fields as Thorncliffe. A number of jumpers performing now at Belmont Park, New York, will be shipped over to Woodbine who plan to hold about four steeplechase events during the seven-day meeting.

Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight boxing champion has purchased a few horses and in the near future we expect to see his silks go flashing past. Jack will make a welcome addition to the ranks of the owners. We hear that old George De Mar who is now twelve years old has taken on a new lease of life since his winning performance of a few days ago. They say the exercise boys can hardly hold him in his morning workouts he is so full of run. Swaggerstick is expected to take down a purse in the near future and we don't mean maybe. Frank Higgins who trains him won with Powder Monkey on Wednesday and will do the same with Swaggerstick when least expected.

7,000 of the Toronto Faithful See Boonemen Held to Three Hits.

BRUINS SCORE IN FIRST.

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (C.P.)—Full of fight Newark Bears were ready to take the field under floodlights to-night and even their International Baseball League series with Toronto Maple Leafs.

On their home grounds at Newark the Bears were held in check by Leafs and when they journeyed here yesterday for the continuation of their series their task appeared difficult. However, under the bright lights Johnny Laarocca was thrown into the breach and Newark came away with a 6-0 triumph.

Hurling air-tight ball Larocca, former Greenwich Village, N.Y., high school pitcher, held the local forces to three hits, two of them the scratch variety. More than 7,000 fans watched the Bears score three runs in the first two innings add another in the sixth and then put the contest on ice in the ninth with a pair of runs.

Toronto used three pitchers and Fred "Sheriff" Blake, who started, was charged with the defeat. He served for eight innings and was touched for eight bingles. In the ninth Frazier and Pattison were sent to the mound before the Newark bats were silenced.

TANNERS TAKE ONE GAME LEAD

FINAL SCORE 21-14.

HASTINGS, Sept. 14 (Examiner Correspondence)—The first game of the finals in the Hastings and District Softball League was played on Wednesday night before a flock of fans that jammed along the sidelines. The Tanners got the jump on Elgin by a count of 21 to 14 in the first of the two out of three series. The second game will be played on Friday.

With so many disputes with the umpires in recent games, the executive appointed three new ones for finals and their work in the first game was quite satisfactory.

The diamond was very slippery, making base running treacherous and fielding a difficult job. Both teams done remarkable under the conditions.

Elgin jumped into the lead in the first inning with four runs on four hits two of them being circuit drives by M. Scott and G. Richardson. The losers pulled a smart double-play in the second that cut down a dangerous Tannery rally. In the third the hard-hitting winners hit their stride for seven runs and six in each of the fourth and fifth.

Earl Hahn, ace twirler of the winners was the big noise for the winners. He held Elgin to thirteen hits, issued three walks, and struck out four with balls that were wet and greasy and on a mound that was almost impossible to hold your feet on. On the offensive he got three homers and a triple out of five trips to the plate. "Stubby" Scriver, a real veteran who was pressed into service the last few games when the Tanners were crippled through injuries, played bang up ball.

NEW YORKERS LOSE 12 INNINGS STRUGGLE TO DESPERATE CARDS ROWE CHALKS UP VICTORY NO. 23

YANKEES BEAT INDIANS.

Dodgers Avert Shutout at Hands of Chicago by Ninth Frame Runs.

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The well-known ability of the Dean brothers to beat New York Giants was right at its peak today and as a result the Cardinals were only 4½ games behind the National League leaders as the rival clubs entered the second game of their series.

The younger of the Cards' pitching pair, Paul, elbowed through 12 long, hard-fought innings yesterday to win the series opener 2-0, gain his fifth triumph over the world's champions against a single defeat and the 10th in 12 games for the family Dean. Today the other half of the famous combination, was slated for an attempt to duplicate the feat even though he had two turns of relief duty since his last start four days ago.

Hal Schumacher, Dizzy's rival for the league pitching title, who holds one decision over the Cards but has lost to them twice and has been knocked out a couple of other times, was on deck for New York.

Mound Masterpiece

The younger Dean recorded one of the season's pitching masterpieces in yesterday's triumph as he granted only six hits over the marathon route in a duel with fat Freddy Fitzsimmons.

In the 12th Joe Medwick, who had fanned three times, caught hold of one for a single and went to third when Jim Collins connected for a base blow. Bill Delancey's fly to Mel Ott brought the winning run in. Ott made it more certain when he made a wild heave to the plate which allowed Collins to take third and score from there on Leo Durocher's single.

Equals Cards' Gain

The Cubs, the only other club which has a chance to overhaul the Giants, equalled the St. Louis gain with a 4-2 victory over Brooklyn Dodgers. Guy Bush limited Brooklyn to five hits, losing a shutout through Linus Frey's triple in the ninth. Seven timely blows off Van Mungo, three of them being bunched with an error for three runs in the sixth, produced the Chicago tallies.

American Unchanged

The status of the American League race in which the Tigers lead the Yankees by 3½ games, remained unchanged as each of the contenders turned in a victory after a close call.

Lynwood Rowe pitched the Tigers to a 2-0 decision over Washington, winning his 23rd victory of the season with a seven-hit job. Detroit couldn't score off Wally Stewart until the eighth when hits by White, Cochrane and Gehringer, with Rowe's sacrifice, did the trick. Lefty Gomez had to limit the Indians to three hits to give the Yanks a 3-1 victory and incidentally win his 25th triumph as his rival, Oral Hildebrand, granted only six blows. One of the six was a homer by George Selkirk in the sixth which won the ball game.

Only one other game, the Athletics vs. Browns, was on yesterday's schedule and rain caused the game to be postponed until today.

Petes Are Confident Of Win On Saturday

"Three straight" is the slogan of the Petes on the eve of the third game of their C.O.B.L. playoff series for the title. They are ready to meet Belleville at three o'clock tomorrow in Riverside Park and confident that within two hours they will be champions of the league. Knighty Lee has stated that he sees no reason why his team cannot take the Nationals without a loss, even with Williams slated to hurl here Saturday, and his players all feel the same way. The famous cry of Blondy Ryan of the New York Giants, "They can't lick us!" is echoed by every one of the youthful Petes.

A grim Peeney Mills and a determined Belleville bunch will invade Riverside to-morrow ready for the battle of their lives. Mills said after the rained-out game in Belleville Wednesday: "I think the Chief will take Peterborough next time out, and if we get your outfit on the run we can lick them in the series!" However, the Nats face a mighty tough proposition and will find their hands full winning this game, without considering the remaining two. It will likely be a pitchers' duel between Williams and Deyell, and should be as thrilling a playoff tilt here as any since the loop was organized. A record crowd is expected.

Dinty's Inn Wins 15-7 In Millbrook Game

MILLBROOK, Sept. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The heavy rain on Wednesday evening delayed the scheduled lacrosse game between Dinty's Inn and Millbrook in the Inter-County League series until 9.30 p.m., lessening the number of fans present and making the ground at the Cosmos Rink so soft and muddy that the players had a slippery time trying to carry on to a finish.

The homesters took the count by eight goals in a total score of 15-7, E. C. Richards handing out a long list of penalties in his capacity of referee. The line-up was the same as in previous games, and the next contest scheduled is between Dinty's Inn and Port Hope on Friday, September 14. Millbrook at Port Hope on the 18th completes the second half of the schedule, and the play-off will then begin.

REDWINGS TAKE SECOND TUSSLE

Timely Hitting by Johnny Mize Wins 4-2 Decision for Wings.

CRABTREE HITS HOMER.

ALBANY, N.Y., Sept. 14. (AP)—Two down and five to go, Albany Senators returned to their home grounds to-day hopeful of overturning Rochester Redwings in the next three games of their International League playoffs series.

A duel of right-handers was in prospect for the third game to-night with Ed Chapman serving them up for the Senators and Ray Harrell for the Redwings. The fourth game will be played to-morrow night and the fifth Sunday afternoon after which the last two contests, if that many are required, will be played at Rochester. Victory goes to club first winning four games.

Rochester made it two straight in the series yesterday, beating the Senators 4-2 behind Johnny Michaels' effective pitching. Michaels allowed only seven hits, fanned six and would have had a shutout with perfect support. Albany's runs, in the fifth, were unearned. With one out, McGee and Finney singled and each advanced a base on Bill Harris' infield out. Benny Borgmann knocked down Alvin Powell's high bounder but could not hold it and as he and Tommy Carey scrambled for the ball, both runners came home.

Albany threatened again in the seventh, filling the bases with two out, but Michaels extricated himself from the jam by whiffing Del Bissonette.

Rochester got only five hits off Harris and Dick Barrett but a home run by Estil Crabtree gave the Wings one run in the first; Johnny Mize's double scored two in the third, and another two-base knock by the same player drove the final counter across in the eighth.

TWO ALL-EASTERN BACKFIELDERS OF 1933 REMAIN WITH SCULLERS IN TOMMY BURNS AND ABBIE BOX

Silent Lou Couples This Pair With Taylor and Munro to Run the Ends.

DEFENDING TITLE.

Oarsmen's Coach Worries for 1934 Fighting Squad Centres Around Defensive.

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (C.P.)—Regardless of a certain hesitant feeling about its own defensive qualities, Toronto Argonauts will sail into the Interprovincial Union Football campaign in two weeks with an eye to a second straight title. Whatever 1934 holds for the Scullers can't be any more disheartening than 1933's early-season setbacks.

Two all-eastern backfielders of 1933 are still with the Argos, the matchless Tommy Burns is warming up his plunging artillery and Ab Box, the country's ranking punter, has signed a Sculler contract. So Silent Lou Hayman, a casual, enthusiastic boss at any time, can scarcely be as downhearted as he sometimes looks.

Taylor-Munro For Ends

He has Jack Taylor and Armour Munro to run the ends, Burns, Teddy Morris and Frank Tindall to power the line-plunging machine. Burns and Morris were the most successful plungers in the east last season. Burns was the most acurate placement kicker. In fact the giant midle was football's outstanding individual.

It was he and Taylor and Morris who went to the rescue last fall when Box was injured in the first game of the season. They kept the Scullers in Big Four running until Box and Tindall, also injured, returned in time to play major parts in the Argonaut rush to the Canadian championship.

Worry Over Defensive

Hayman's worries are all defensive. He has lost Joe Wright, veteran snapback and oarsman whose competitive days seem to be over. Wright was seriously ill last spring and his absence leaves a gap in the centre of the line that is unlikely to be adequately filled. His 1933 understudy, youthful Jack Taylor, has signed with Balmy Beach of the O.R.F.U.

Moore With Sarnia

Teddy Moore, star outside wing, will perform with Sarnia Imperials of the O.R.F.U. and Hayman must find a capable partner for Wes Cutler, all-eastern end of last fall. Leading candidates are Charlie Box, younger brother of Ab, and Jack Bryers from University of Toronto's intercollegiate champions. Box starred last season with Balmy Beach.

The secondary defence has lost quarterback Andy Mullan and flying wing Jack Smith. Mullan, former University of Syracuse player, returned to the United States after last season and did not come back. Another American Bob Clark of Niagara Falls University, is being groomed for his place. Munro may fill Smith's shoes.

Front Wall Unchanged

The front wall will line-up virtually unchanged with Jim Palmer, Bas McNichol, Jim Ferris, Jim Staunton and Tuffy Griffiths available for inside duty and the mighty Burns-Tindall combination at middle. Red Vail, a lineman, may be given a trial at snap. Mills, Ontario Agricultural College snap of last season, is also a candidate.

A squad of juniors are trying out for positions and some of them may replace such 1933 reserves as Art Upper, Mike Valeriote and Mike Chepesuik, Upper is back at Varsity, having missed a season with the intercollegiate team because of scholastic troubles. Valeriote moved to Ottawa but is not expected to play this season and the drop-kicking Chepesuik has retired.

WIN ODDS DROP ON BARNEY ROSS

McLarnin's Final Workouts Before Saturday's Fight Turns Tide.

DROP TO 6 TO 5.

(By Sam Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (CP) — Clear through 16-ounce pillows of leather and padding, lethal lightning struck from the fists of Jimmy McLarnin and caught New York's bookmaking gentry flush on the back of the neck to-day.

The shock caused the smitten bookies to chop down the odds they have been laying on the changes of Welterweight Champion Barney Ross to whip the challenging Irishman from Vancouver.

The lightning didn't really hit the bet-collectors. Calvin Reed, dusky Philadelphian, who has been doing his best to stay out of McLarnin's way in the training ring, was the inoffensive victim.

Calvin forgot to duck a couple of times yesterday and, although Jimmy's fists were mercifully cushioned in heavy gloves—each of them ten ounces heavier than those he will wear against Ross—the negro was dejectedly draped over the ropes, listening to the birdies and other ethereal sounds, after three torrid rounds.

Once word of that got abroad the odds plummeted from 9 to 5 down to 6 to 5 on Ross to beat McLarnin tomorrow night, the Weatherman permitting.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

By C. J. P.

It comes about that we again have a bet on the Belleville-Petes' playoff game here tomorrow. We will be doubly interested in this fixture as it will be championship for the Petes if they win tomorrow and it will also be two more fish swimming around in our jeans. We do not expect to be able to get any coin down on this number except for a peculiar occurrence. We are sitting at our desk yesterday slugging out this and that thing on the machine when the guy that loses to us in the first playoff fixture ankles in. He tells us he has a proposition and it is as follows: He will go out on the street with us and play us some one-in-ten, taking the tough side of the bets, and for two bits a throw till he loses his half a dollar william.

* * * * * *

Now this looks like a very fair proposition to us and we go along. His bet is that there will be one U.S. car in the next ten that roll by the spot we are standing on. Well, we just nicely get located when a Yankee buggy rolls by and he collects a shilling. That is okay but he puts the collar on another when an American bus rolls by once more, this time in eighth position. "I will give you a chance," he says, "to get that half a potato back by laying you four bits the same way." We nods and doggone if a car from Roosevelt's land doesn't again roll by in fifth place. Well we go along for another four-bitter and lose again.

* * * * * *

As anyone who has had any experience around a school at all can see, we are now on the wrong side of the ledger to the tune of one buck fifty. But we have noticed something the last twice. It is this: A car that is carrying a Michigan license at least twice loses us a bet, and it is a car driven by a young guy with a white cap—no one else being present in it. Well, we go to town for one more half-a-berry plunge and watches hard. Yeah, we finnaly tumble to the raw deal when a young guy with a white cap rolls by in sixth position in a Michigan carriage. "Okay", we says to our partner, "you win; now tell your Yankee boy friend to lay off circling the block!"

* * * * * *

The wise guy doesn't even bluff. He just grins and says, "It wasn't a bad idea, was it? I make myself a fin so far today and I gives my friend there from Flint the price of a Johnny Walker. I should put the collar on a few more before evening." We finally consent to kick in what we owe for the lesson on condition that he backs up his pet team, Belleville, for a couple of slugs Saturday. He does this at two and a half to two, so we ought to get that back. But it just goes to show that it does not pay to gamble, nor does it pay to let people know what your favorite sport is—especially if that sport is one-in-ten.

* * * * * *

Our Cogs are due in Kingston this afternoon where they will play their return game with the Hawks of that burg. Since Mister Davis' boys won themselves a nice 11-4 win here the other p.m., they ought to pretty nearly core through and slap Kingston's ears again this eve. Lefty Billingsley or Casey Masterson will do the flinging. We will take a great deal of pleasure if another one of our teams, besides the Petes, knock off a Limestone outfit, and so will the sporting citizens in general here. It stars at 4.15 if the rain holds off for a change—and even the farmers have had enough!

* * * * * *

Kiwanis lacrosse players had a smart drill last night and will workout again Saturday, just keeping in the pink for the next round. They play the North Toronto-Scarboro Grads' winner here next Wednesday. It may turn out to be the O.A.L.A. semi-finals, as it is uncertain yet if Cornwall's intermediate team will play. North Toronto is the smart crew that played the Petes to a tie here in the spring, and as the Grads took the first game from the North Toronto crew, 9-5, the other eve, it looks as if Kiwanis have a tough task ahead. But they'll be bolstered with Bovin for this series. Meantime, the team generally rated the pick of the provinces in intermediate competition, Burlington, will meet our squad if the locals come through with a win.

* * * * * *

We see in a morning paper where Group No. 6 of the O.R.F.U. is a tentative one consisting of Belleville, Peterborough, Lindsay and Cobourg. And a Belleville despatch says: "This city will have a new entrant in O.R.F.U. rugby this season with the formation of an intermediate squad by the Aajmaa Club. The first practise was held last evening in the Belleville Arena with Coach Scotty Cockburn and Billy Fry putting the aspirants, composed mostly of former collegiate grid stars, through their paces . . . . It was decided to enter with Oshawa, Peterborough and Cobourg." Nothing official has reached us on the subject yet, but a workout has been called here for tonight at 5.30 in the Exhibition Grounds at which all fellows wanting a rugby tryout are invited.

* * * * * *

Meantime, our P.C.I. teams are getting squared away and will workout regularly next week under Coaches Bamforth and Legon. In Belleville, Coach Les Shields had some forty boys out the other day for the first drill, while nearly that many are plugging away now in cobourg under Coach Don Clarke. The same is true of Lindsay—but they are slower starting in Oshawa. We understand there will be a meeting in Lindsay Monday night of the various coaches of this district when arrangements will be made for the '34 season and schedules drawn up.

* * * * * *

Grab-bag: Westclox and C.G.E. gals are slated to tangle at 5.30 tonight in the Bowl, with the winner meeting Omemee at five there tomorrow . . . . Our bantam baseballers are billed to go to Toronto tomorrow for their O.B.A.A. semi-final series . . . . Cobourg ball players had a good financial season and will not only have new windbreakers all around, but will stow a neat chunk of mazuma away in the bank . . . . Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin are reported in fine condition for their brawl in N'Yawk tomorrow p.m. . . . . Work will start on the foundation of the new Lindsay rink, within ten days . . . . The T.A.B.A. cannot order the C.O.B.I. winner to play the Toronto winner in any floodlight games as we come under the O.B.A.A. not the Toronto Association.

Huntsville's George Selkirk Big Noise In Yankees' Drive For American Pennant

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (CP)—When George Selkirk disturbed the quiet of Huntsville, Ont., with a raucous wail the day of his birth 25 years ago, you couldn't have foretold he would be such a big noise to-day in the determined drive of New York Yankees toward the American League pennant.

Yet there he is, banging the ball as though he'd been born in a baseball uniform, helping the hopeful Yanks try to overhaul Detroit's league-leading Tigers.

The Ontario youth was given his chance in the majors a month ago. The Yanks needed someone to fill the big shoes Earle Combs left vacant when he cracked his skull against a fence trying to field a ball out of the clouds.

In the garrison drive to catch Detroit—now 3½ games in front with 16 more to play against 15 for the Yanks—this is the batting spark Selkirk has provided to keep New York hopes aflame:

He has scored 11 times in 31 games and batted in 26 other runs. In 113 trips to the plate he has hit the apple safely 35 times for a tall average of .309.

His heavy bat-work is no flash in the pan, for he left a .356 average behind him in the International League.

PACIFIC COAST GOLFER CAST IN LEADING ROLE FOR TITLE

Little, Goldman, Smith and Armstrong in U. S. Amateur Semi-finals.

FORMER FAVORED.

(By Bob Cavagnaro, Associated Press Sports Writer)

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 14.—(A.P.) The United States amateur golf championship was a four-man show to-day with William Lawson Little, Jr., the competitively hard-boiled shotmaker from the Pacific coast, cast in the leading role.

Little Favored

Little, the lone widely known contender for the untenanted throng, drew the stellar role on the strength of his record-smashing triumph in the British amateur championship last May, and on the merits of his sub-par conquest of Wee Willie Turnesa, who eliminated Jack Nash of London, Ont., uncrowned champion George Dunlap and paved the way for a new deal in golf.

A rugged, impassioned campaigner along the lines of the Gene Sarazen of a few years back, little apparently is headed for admission to the golf hall of fame.

Only two players in the years gone by—Bobby Jones and Harold Hilton of England—have ever won the British and American crowns in the same year. Hilton turned the trick in 1911 and the great Georgian did it in 1930 when he swept the board of all major championships.

Since the start of the week's match-play, Little has been the betting odds favorite. In his first four matches his stock dropped several points, yielding to the peerless performances of Detroit's Bobby Jones, Bobby Jacobson of Deal, N.J., and young Turnesa.

Eliminates Turnesa

Little was furnished with unformidable opposition in his first four tests. Yesterday afternoon they fed him young Turnesa, who had turned in a four-under-par display in the morning in his 5 and 3 rout of Charley Yates, inter-collegiate champion.

The Turnesa heat wave melted against the cool and calculating Californian. Little hoisted his stock several notches when he cooled off Wee Willie with a sub-par score for the 16-holes played.

Business Manager

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14. — (CP)—No bouquets passed between Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brunetti, joint owners of a flower shop, after she brought him into court because she objected to being merely a "business wife."

She said Brunetti took the lion's share of the profits.

"He doesn't want me for a wife," she added, "he only wants me to run the business."

Judge Theodore Rosen ordered Brunetti to pay his wife $7.50 weekly.

CHAPTER 39

But Giles stopped smiling when he heard Joan's name. That she had come to the shop one morning, had asked for him, had wanted to leave her address . . . "I told her you were away . . ."

"I was, of course. But why have you kept all this from me, Scripps?"

"Because . . . I told her something else."

"Yes?" Giles was leaning forward, intent, puzzled.

"I told her . . . that Amelie was sick . . . that you were taking care of her . . . that she was—your wife . . ."

Dead silence. Then, "You told her —that?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"I was afraid to have you—love her. I was afraid she might take you away from—Amelie and me . . ."

"You knew me so little . . ."

"Oh . . . you can't know such fear as I had of your caring for her. You are my life, Giles. I knew that I had lost Amelie, and it seemed if I lost—you . . ." He struck his hand against his forehead, then leaned on it, the figure of despair.

There was no word from Giles. He sat there with a stern look on his face, his eyes on the fire.

"When you were ill," Scripps went on desperately, "you called her—called and called."

Giles turned at that, "I called—Joan?"

"Yes. It was dreadful. I wanted to write to her. To tell her what I had done . . . to beg her to come to your bedside. But the doctor wouldn't let me."

"I am glad," Giles said, "that you waited. It is I who must tell her." He drew in his breath and stood up.

Scripps, too, got to his feet, waiting with hanging head, like a prisoner at the bar. Then he felt Giles' hand on his shoulder: "My dear fellow, you did it because you loved me."

Scripps broke down, sobbing.

"Stop it," Giles said, "you must not. It isn't as if I couldn't tell her . . . you don't know how glad I am . . . this explains things I haven't understood."

"You'll write to her?"

"Yes."

Giles wrote that night, dealing gently with Scripps. "We must not blame him. He has not been himself since the war. May I come to you, Joan? I shall have so much to say. Things I cannot put on paper."

He addressed the letter to the house in Baltimore, and gave it to Jose to mail. Then he waited for an answer. But none came. So January passed, and February was on the way, and still he had no word from Joan.

"Do you think," young John Briggs asked his mother anxiously, "that she will come for Christmas?"

"I am sure she will."

"But she hasn't written."

"Dear child, she has a thousand things to think of."

"I want her to think of this."

"We must have patience."

But young John had no such word as "patience" in his lexicon. He talked about it with Priscilla. "If anybody has asked me to Christmas dinner I'd think it was important."

"Maybe she has more important things than just us."

"Why aren't we more important?"

"Well, she has a lot of friends. And now she's rich."

Her brother stared. "Who's rich?"

"Joan. I heard mother telling grandfather . . . she's going to have all of her aunt's money. It was in the paper."

Young John considered that. He and his sister were in the barn. It was bitter cold, but they were wrapped up warmly. They were getting corn for the chickens, and presently they would go across a stretch of snowy ground to the chicken house and shell the corn, and feed it to the waiting fowls. Young John, laying yellow ears in a basket, said, "Now that she's rich she can have all the oysters she wants. I'm not going to save my pennies."

"Oh, John . . ."

He flung out, frowning, "And she'll be different."

"How different?"

"Oh, she'll have diamonds all over her, and hold her head in the air . . ."

"I don't believe it."

"Well, you ask mother."

After they had fed the chickens, the children went into the big kitchen and put the question up to Evelyn. "Will Joan be different?"

"Why should she be?"

"Because she's rich. And John says she'll hold her head in the air . . . and he says he isn't going to save his pennies, because she can have all the oysters she wants without ours."

Evelyn breaking eggs into a bowl, said, "I'm ashamed of you, John."

"Why, mother?"

"To think that money will change Joan Dudley."

"But it will change her," he insisted, with almost uncanny prescience, "you'll see when she comes, mother."

But when she came over on Christmas morning, she seemed just the same, holding out her arms to them and saying, "You darlings, how glad I am to see you." And when she took off her coat there were no diamonds, but just a black dress and a long string of pearls.

And she tied on one of Evelyn's big white aprons and went out into the kitchen to help, sending Penelope in to talk to old John and his wife. And the children hanging about, entranced and eager, showed her the oysters, cool in a blue pitcher set in the pantry window, and waiting to be made into soup, and Priscilla said, triumphantly, "We bought them," and young John rebuked her, "You shouldn't say so much about it."

"I want you to say it," Joan insisted, "and say that you love me, both of you."

"We do—we do . ." they threw themselves upon her. But young John, presently, voiced an almost vanished skepticism, "Do you love us, Joan?"

"Of course."

"As much as ever?"

"Yes, why not?"

"Mother says you're rich."

There was a startled silence, then Joan asked slowly, "What if I am?"

"Well, it might make a difference," young John told her.

"What kind of difference?"

"Well, you might be stuck up."

Cilla broke in, "He said that to mother, and she said he ought to be ashamed of himself."

"He ought . . . oh, Johnnie-boy, don't you know that I'm the same?" She bent on him her earnest gaze.

"You want to be the same. But can you?"

She flamed at that. "I can be. Why not?"

"Oh, well. I wondered."

She wondered, too. Was still wondering as she helped Evelyn serve the dinner. Her mind went over and over the old ground. What did it mean, after all, this inheritance? It had for her as yet no reality. She had no sense of adventure in it. The adventure she had wanted was that of high romance. The thought of affluence had for her no enchantment. Without fulfillment of her dreams it would be a weight upon her.

Evelyn was saying, "My dear, I can't imagine the heiress of millions beating up mashed potatoes. But I am letting you do it because I know you'd hate me if I didn't."

"I should. Oh, Evelyn, the children were afraid I might be changed."

"Yes. I rather think they expected to see you draped in jewels and drawn by ostriches like Rosamund in the fairy tale."

The two women smiled at each other. Joan's smile was wistful: "I'm terribly afraid of it all, Evelyn."

Evelyn understood. "I know. But you mustn't be. Ever. Things can be so beautiful for you, my dear. You must think of that."

Beautiful? With Drew? Without him? Which? Oh, it was all such a —muddle!

As she went finally into the dining room, the clicking of her pearls against the buckle on her black dress reminded her of the night when she had gone down the stairs to meet her lover. He had called . . . and she had obeyed.

But Giles' call had been stronger . . . coming through the storm . . . She had found strength to leave Drew because Giles had called . . .

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 15

Great activity and enterprise, with much opportunity for real constructive work in many directions, is predicted from the force of the prevailing planetary influences. Business, writings, publishing, publicity and promotion as well as many practical and solid projects are spurred to fine accomplishment under the high stimulus of all the energies, forces and faculties. It is a good time to tackle large things in a large way, but be keen to duplicity. Private affairs also gratify, though they may develop intrigue.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very active and successful year, with the energies and initiative under high stimuli for achievement. Guard against a menace of deception and fraud. Business, all pertaining to writing, promotions and new projects should be aggressively and confidently tackled. In domestic, social or romantic affairs there may be pleasure, but a hint of intrigue.

A child born on this day should be talented, brilliant, practical and energetic and should be assured success. Its personal life may be intriguing.

DOCTOR'S WIFE REDUCED 28 lbs.

And Tells You How She Did It

SIMPLE METHOD THAT ANYONE CAN FOLLOW

The wife of a London (England) West End physician weighed 35 lbs. more than she should for her height and age. How did she banish this load of ugly, dangerous fat? She took Kruschen Salts! Read her letter:—

"I had been putting on flesh alarmingly until I was weighing 35 lbs. more than I should for my height and age. Ten weeks ago I commenced taking a teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts on rising in a glass of hot water as directed, with the result that I am already 14 lbs. lighter (without any alteration in diet), and above all I feel at least ten years younger. I have not felt so well for 20 years. I have persuaded several of my friends to take Kruschen, which was not a difficult matter when they saw what benefit I am receiving. I shall continue the treatment until I lose another 14 lbs."—(Mrs.) R. R., London, W. 1.

Three months later this doctor's wife was able to report further progress. She then wrote:—"I have now lost altogether 28 lbs., and am now normal for my height and age—height 5 ft. 7 ins., weight 154 lbs.—previous weight 182 lbs."—(Mrs.) R. R., London, W. 1.

The six salts in Kruschen assist the internal organs to throw off each day the wastage and poisons that encumber the system. Then, little by little, that ugly fat goes—slowly, yes, but surely.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

DEED OF HOUSE GIVEN BY WIFE TO J. A. O'BRIEN

Husband Promised Not to Register the Transferring Document.

ALDERMANIC CANDIDATE.

Evidence that Joseph A. O'Brien on May 15 this year endeavoured to have two stenographers draw a quit claim deed giving his property at 245 Engleburn avenue, valued at $10,000, to Miss Margaret Cameron for voluntary considerations and payment of one dollar was given yesterday during the hearing of Mrs. O'Brien's suit against her husband and his sister, Miss May F. O'Brien of Windsor on behalf of herself and all other creditors of Joseph A. O'Brien.

Two witnesses, brought forward by the plaintiff, Miss Genevieve O'Brien and Miss Helen Buchanan testified that on May 15, Mr. O'Brien asked them to draw such a deed. Miss O'Brien, stenographer for some years in Mr. O'Brien's office, said she refused and two hours later left her employment with Mr. O'Brien. Miss Buchanan, stenographer in another law office also said she refused to draw the deed.

Cross-examined by G. N. Gordon, K.C., counsel for Mrs. O'Brien, Mr. O'Brien on the witness stand admitted that he had so endeavoured to get the quit claim deed draw, giving his home to Miss Cameron. She was to keep it in her name for sometime and then give it back to me. But this agreement was not completed," Mr. O'Brien testified.

Hearing of all evidence in the case was completed at 2 a.m. this morning. Mr. Justice Henderson directed Mr. Gordon and E. F. Sheehy, counsel for defendants, to prepare written argument on the case. Judgment will be delivered at some later date.

Purchased in 1922

Fred Morrow, county registrar, produced records from his office showing that the property known as 245 Engleburn avenue was purchased by J. A. O'Brien from Sidney Crowe in 1922. On August 10, 1922, records showed this property was conveyed by Mr. O'Brien to his wife.

Records also disclosed that in May, 1927, Mrs. O'Brien executed a short form of conveyance, deeding the property to her husband. This deed was not registered until May 15, 1934.

George Sherry, local registrar of the Supreme Court, produced records of the Menzies' estate. These showed that Mr. O'Brien made application for administration of the estate on March 23, 1933, which totalled $6,906.65 in value. Mrs. Alice A. O'Brien and J. H. Johnston gave the surety bond totalling $18,000.

Orders of Judge McGibbon and the passing of accounts before him were produced, showing that there existed a shortage in the funds of the estate of approximately $4,800.

Mrs. O'Brien, next witness, stated she married her husband in Toronto on January 10, 1921, and just previous to the wedding her husband gave her a bill of sale for a large quantity of furniture as a wedding present. This furniture was first placed in the Crown Apartments where witness and her husband lived and later in their Engleburn Avenue home. For the Engleburn Avenue home, she said there was some additional furniture purchased.

Mrs. O'Brien stated that she was the owner of the house at 245 Engleburn avenue. Money from the small mortgages on the place was used to purchase cars by Mr. O'Brien.

Wife Gave Deed

In May, 1927, Mrs. O'Brien said her husband told her he was considering standing as an aldermanic candidate and in order to qualify he must have an interest in some property. "In order to give him an interest in the property he asked me to sign some papers," she said. "I did not read the papers. He said he would never file them in the registrar's office. He was a lawyer and I never considered he would do anything wrong in that way toward me. I trusted him.

"I did not know that the papers I signed were deeds giving him the property, goods and chattels until an interview I had with my husband last May in Chief Newhall's office. Mr. O'Brien produced a document to show the Chief that he owned the property."

Witness said that on that occasion she exclaimed that the document was no good and was never to have been registered and she tore it up. Mr. O'Brien gathered up the pieces. He then said that he had registered it and I had signed away all my rights in the property and furniture.

"Before that he would say that the house was mine, but he could do a dirty trick on me but he would not," witness stated.

When her husband asked her to sign his bond for $10,000 as administrator of the Menzies' estate, witness said "I told him I was not worth that much. He said, 'Of course you are, you own the house, furniture and car'."

Sister in Peterborough

Witness said that her husband's sister, Miss May F. O'Brien, came to Peterborough in December, 1933, because of the manner in which Mr. O'Brien had been acting. At the Engleburn house witness and Miss O'Brien discussed Mr. O'Brien's alleged misconduct.

Under cross-examination, witness said she and Miss O'Brien were quite friendly and Miss O'Brien said it was unfortunate the way things were going. She said that Miss O'Brien told her that she and her brother were going to divide the Stratford property—three houses and a store left in Stratford in the death of Mrs. O'Brien, Mr. O'Brien's mother.

Miss Genevieve O'Brien employed at Mr. O'Brien's office, testified that the deeds to the Stratford property was seen by her in his office. In December, 1933, when Mr. O'Brien's sister came to Peterborough, witness told her that "Mr. O'Brien's affairs were not in good condition." That same day witness drew a deed conveying part of the Stratford property from Miss O'Brien to her brother, Mr. O'Brien.

Refused to Draw Deed

Witness testified that on May 15, 1934, Mr. O'Brien ordered her to draw up a quit claim deed transferring his Engleburn house to Miss Margaret Cameron. "I refused and two hours later left the office for good" she said.

Miss Helen Buchanan testified that on May 15, 1934, Mr. O'Brien asked her to draw a deed transferring the Engleburn house to Miss Margaret Cameron and she said she was too busy to do so. Later she telephoned him and said she would not draw the deed.

This concluded the plaintiff's case.

Miss May O'Brien, sister of Mr. O'Brien and teacher at Windsor, stated that in December, 1927, her mother died without a will. It had always been understood, she said, that owing to the fact that some years previous she had been ill with tuberculosis, the property in Stratford should go to her.

Her brother, Joseph A. O'Brien, was administrator of her mother's estate and a few days after her mother's death sent her the deeds of the Stratford property in her name, which she did not register. She stated she did not understand business, so she returned the deeds and other papers in connection with the Stratford property to him at Peterborough. All management of the estate was in his hands and he forwarded her an allowance from the rents of $75 a month. This continued until 1933, when, due to the falling off in rents, the monthly allowance was $50. "The arrangement was that he should send me so much a month and I was quite satisfied," she said. "Anything that may have been left over from the allowance after expenses were paid I was satisfied for my brother to keep."

During her visit to Peterborough in December she said there were deeds drawn up in her brother's office dividing the Stratford property, but on return to Stratford she tore them up, registering the original 1926 deed of all the property in her name. From that time on she managed the estate herself.

Joseph O'Brien stated that he gave the Engleburn avenue property and furniture to his wife, but with the agreement between them that she should always return it to him at his request.

In regard to the Stratford property he had deeded it to his sister in 1926, but managed the estate for her. At one time yearly rents amounted to $1800 to $1900 but since the depression they had fallen off greatly.

Under cross-examination he admitted that he did not read the conveyance he had his wife sign in 1927 conveying the Engleburn avenue property to him.

He admitted his effort to have a deed drawn transferring ownership of the Engleburn avenue home to Miss Cameron.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., acted for the prosecution and E. F. Sheehy for the defence.

HOLD INVITATION BEST INTERESTS OF WORLD PEACE

Formalities of Procedure Expected Under Way Tuesday or Wednesday.

PLEDGES SOUGHT.

Hope to Obtain Promise of Religious Liberty in Union of States.

GENEVA, Sept. 15.—(CP Cable)—The League of Nations to day despatched a formal invitation to the Soviet to become a member of the League Assembly.

The invitation stated simply that "it is desirable in the interest of world peace that the U.S.S.R. become a member of the League of Nations."

Russia's reply, the terms of which have already been checked over, was expected without delay, and the formalities of procedure will be begun to get Russia into the League Tuesday or Wednesday.

A move was taking form however to obtain a pledge for establishment of religious liberty in the Soviet states before Russia is finally admitted. Such a guarantee was suggested before the League Assembly by President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Free State during the week.

Also, the Assembly today received a memorial from the Ukrainian group of the Polish parliament protesting against admission of Russia until the Soviet extends to the Ukraine the right of self-determination. From Georgia came a demand that Russia evacuate that region.

Despite these developments and the continuing opposition of certain states, notably Switzerland, Russia's entry was deemed inevitable. In this connection the newspaper organ of Geneva Conservatives asserted the fight against "International Communism" must be continued.

Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet foreign commissar; Edouard Benes, Czechoslovak foreign minister, and Rene Massigli of the French foreign office completed the preliminaries at Litvinoff's lake retreat. From this interview Benes and Massigli went to confer with Captain Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy Seal, and then Richard Sandler, president of the league assembly. Italian and Scandinavian delegates were finally consulted and it was afterwards stated all difficulties facing Russia's entry had been surmounted.

Meantime statesmen of many nations were industriously at work weaving a network of alliances to preserve the peace and order of Europe.

The little entente — Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania—contributed what was hailed a constructive move by adopting a resolution expressing satisfaction in the Franco-Italian rapprochement. It was intimated the little entente itself would like to "do business with Italy. Benes is aid planning to vist Mussolini to suggest the little entente be tied up with the Italo-Austrian-Hungarian pact.

JOHN E. RUSSELL FOURTH VICTIM OF HARBOR FIRE

TORONTO CONTRACTOR.

President of Russell Construction Company—Was Badly Burned.

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (C.P.) — Seriously injured in the oil barge explosion on July 23, which took the lives of three of Toronto's firefighters, John E. Russell, 62, head of the Russel Construction Co., and owner of the barge, died to-day in St. Michael's Hospital.

Mr. Russell, notified that the En-ar-co was on fire, had just boarded the boat, the fire apparently being under control, when an explosion killed three of the firemen and blew Mr. Russell of the deck, injured and burned. Since that time he had been in a serious condition in the hospital. The burns he suffered resulted in a toxic condition that caused sleeping sickness. Pneumonia developed, and proved fatal.

Born in Toronto, Mr Russell was a son of William and Jane Sample Russell. His father was a pioneer brick manufacturer. He was educated in the public schools here.

Many Business Interests

Mr. Russell, besides being president of the Russell Construction Co. Limited, was also a director of Arrow Steamship Co., Limited; Consolidated Sand and Gravel, Limited; Standard Paving and Materials, Limited; Chairman of Board, North American Elevators, Limited; Vice-president and Director, Sin-Mac Lines, Limited; International Waterways Navigation Co., Limited; the Red Barge Line, Limited; Director of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co., and Vice-President of Standard Pacing, Limited.

He was a member of the Toronto Board of Trade, an associate member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, and a member of the Engineers' Club. In 1894 he married Martha Agnes Morrison, who, with four daughters and four sons, survives.

Mr. Russell was a member of the contracting firm of Russell-Townsend Company, who built the Hunter street bridge in Peterborough.

DYNAMITE ROCKS TEXTILE PLANT

Terrific Explosion in Carolina Town is Felt for Blocks.

SCENE OF RIOTING.

BURLINGTON, N.C., Sept. 15 (C.P.)—A massive dynamite bomb directed at the E. M. Holt Plaid Mills, scene of yesterday's rioting, shook Burlington early to-day.

Riding in an automobile, several persons drove past the plant, which is located on a highway, and threw the bomb into the mill yard.

The explosion was terrific, and the concussion felt for blocks, but little damage was done. Windows in the mill were shattered along a 50-foot front, but the machinery was untouched.

Residents described the blast as "like an earthquake," and officers estimated at least 10 sticks of the explosive were used in making the bomb.

The Holt plant was the scene of rioting yesterday when national guardsmen used bayonets and tear gas to clear away the large crowd of pickets. Five strikers received slight bayonet wounds.

DUCK SHOOTING SEASON OPENS

Guns Bark Around Feeding Grounds in Lakes and Bays.

SUMMARY OF LAW.

Marshes and rice beds in the district bristled with guns as Old Sol peeped over the horizon this morning. It was the opening of the annual duck shooting season.

Many parties from Peterborough were established in blinds in the Rice Lake and the upper Kawartha Lake areas to usher in the important occasion. Rumors of fair bags had begun to filter back to the city before noon. Purveyors of gun licenses about the city report that the demand for authorities was decidedly brisk during the past few days in anticipation of the event.

Circulars reminding hunter of the regulations governing the shooting of game birds have been sent out from the Department of the Interior at Ottawa during the past week. In the Peterborough region the open season for ducks, geese, brant, rails, coots and jack-snipe will continue until December 15. Bags limits are as follows: Ducks, 15; geese, 15; brant, 15; rails, coots, gallinules 25 in the aggregate, Wilson's or jack-snipe, 25; woodcock, 8; and not more than 150 ducks or 125 woodcock in one season.

The use of automatic, swivel or machine guns or any gun larger than number 10 guage is prohibited, and the use of any airplane, power boat, sail boat, wounded live birds as decoys, night light, and shooting from any horse-drawn or motor vehicle is also forbidden.

Shooting of migratory birds before sunrise or after sunset is outside the law. With the re-appointment of Game Inspector Fred Marshall to his post, an official to enforce these regulations in this district will be available.

Peterborough Man Said Hit-Run Victim

HULL, Que., Sept. 15. (CP).—A coroner's jury last night found that Joseph O'Brien, 31-year-old electrical worker from Peterborough, was killed here July 23 by a hit-and-run motorist and his body tossed over a bridge to a log boom below on the Ottawa River. The jury recommended that police continue their efforts to locate the driver.

YORK CHILDREN'S AID SHAKE-UP SEEN IN OFFING

Croll Promises Long-Overdue and Thorough House-cleaning of Society.

HENRY MAY LOSE POST

Ex-Premier States He Will Not Resign Office Unless Compelled.

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—An immediate re-organization of the York Children's Aid Society, involving, it is reported the dismissal of former Premier George S. Henry, the society's president, and other prominent officials, will, as a result of Judge Parker's commission inquiry report of yesterday, follow the ret urn from Northern Ontario this weekend of Hon. David A. Croll, minister of welfare and municipal affairs.

"I shall take whatever action I believe necessary in this case," Mr. Croll said, last night, "when I get back. You can rest assured that there will be a thorough and long-overdue house-cleaning of this society."

Mr. Croll refused to comment further on the situation other than to declare that Superintendent George Little had been under suspension from the department for some time, and "will not be reinstated."

Judge Parker's indictment of the directors of the York Children's Aid, as revealed yesterday afternoon at the wind-up of his investigation—an indictment in which he found that the society had discharged its functions in "a negligent, incompetent and inefficient manner"—produced, last evening, a sharp cleavage of opinion among the directors as to their responsibility in the case.

Denies Resigning

The ex-prime minister of the province, Mr. Henry, denied having tendered his resignation as president, and intimated that no resignation would be forthcoming unless he was compelled to give it. Shortage of finances he held responsible for the inability of the society, which he had organised in 1910, to handle adequately the situation with which it had been faced. After salaries and other expenses had been paid by the society, Mr. Henry stated, only $8,000 remained annually to look after the children. In his capacity as president he had made, he said, repeated requests to York County Council for additional funds.

Mr. Henry denied claims that he had ignored complaints brought to his attention in April, 1933, by Mrs. Cody. "I asked the Welfare Department," he said, "to report late in the Summer. I went away and during my absence the Child Welfare Council went to the coun-

TRADE UNIONS WIND UP PARLEY HONOR MARTYRS

Strong Opposition to Communism Fascism is Pronounced During Convention.

URGE 5-HOUR, 6-DAY WEEK.

By Harold J. Fair
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP).—Trade unionists from all parts of the Dominion to-day were ready to depart for their respective homes. They had just concluded the golden jubilee convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and completed a comprehensive program of legislation for the next year.

Before the gathering definitely dispersed, however, the delegates had a mission to perform. They were going to Siloam Cemetery, near London, Ontario, to pay tribute to the memory of George Loveless, leader of the Tolpuddle martyrs whose persecution of a century ago is regarded as an important milestone in trade unionism's fight for recognition.

The convention which ended late yesterday was important in many respects. It was the largest since 1921, and in striking coincidence it saw the first change in constitution since that year. A new set-up was provided in a recommendation making it possible for Federal unions to issue charters to industries which wished to form one big union instead of a set-up along craft lines.

For speedy response to Labor's demands, the most significant event of the week-long session was the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission's lifting of the ban on political activity among its employees.

Girl Found Killed Sweetheart Is Held

FUND DO LAC, Wis., Sept. 15. (AP).—Lawrence Kilmer, 29, was held without bail to-day for the death of his sweetheart, 22-year-old Agatha Ernold, who apparently was run over and killed by a tireless automobile wheel.

The girl was found lying in a highway yesterday after authorities said she and Kilmer had quarrelled and left a roadhouse. She died later in a hospital.

Cowering in a farm field, Kilmer was taken by a posse which surrounded him. He pleaded innocence to a charge of murder, insisting the girl was fatally hurt when 'she fell out of the car." His preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 27.

RAINBOW TAKES LEAD IN EARLY PHASE OF RACE

Air and Water Craft Provides Spectacle as Vessels Start.

YACHTS WELL MATCHED.

Light Air and Smooth Sea—Result in Doubt at 2 p.m.

BY TOM HORGAN
A. P. Staff Correspondent

Aboard U. S. C. G. Cutter Argo off Newport, R.I., Sept. 15. —(AP)— Rainbow, the United States defender was leading the British challenger Endeavour by two minutes, 40 seconds as they rounded the half-way mark in the first of their series for the America's Cup.

Rainbow Starts Fast.

The American yacht had better way on at the preparatory signal, Rainbow was out at the buoy while Endeavour was close under the stern of the committee boat.

Rainbow was carrying mainsail and Genoa jib, while Endeavour had mainsail, Greta Garbo jib and staysail. About two minutes before the start at 10.40 E.S.T., Endeavour shifted from a double rig to a large Genoa jib, losing much of her way. Vanderbilt took the Rainbow over on the port tack with much greater way on than his opponent.

Sopwith crossed the line on the starboard tack but was forced to pinch Endeavour to clear the committee boat.

A few minutes after the start Vanderbilt brought Rainbow about on the starboard tack to keep his opponent covered.

The northerly flank of the excursion fleet was patrolled by coast-guard craft, while destroyers controlled the southerly flank and the great armada was kept in perfect control. Eight aeroplanes hovered over the excursion fleet.

Endeavour Gaining.

Half an hour after the start Endeavour had improved her position to such an extent that it appeared she might be able to cross Rainbow's bow. Endeavour's Genoa jib was drawing better than the defender's, and she was footing faster although still somewhat to leeward.

At 11.30 p.m. (E.S.T.) the yachts were well over toward Cuttyhunk Island, with it still a question whether Endeavour could cross Rainbow's bow. Both remained on the starboard task virtually from the start.

Rain had begun to fall and the wind freshened slightly. Rainbow came about on the port tack at 11.32, and Endeavour almost immediately followed suit. The manoeuvre furnished no proof of which yacht was ahead.

INSPECTOR OF BEER PARLORS

Report Circulating That C. H. Curtis of Warkworth, is District Supervisor.

REEVE OF PERCY.

Appointment of C. H. Curtis of Warkworth, as inspector of beverage rooms in six counties of Central Ontario was reported to The Examiner this afternoon, although the information was not given as official. The district extends from Frontenac to Victoria, but it was not positively known whether Peterborough county was included in the group.

Mr. Curtis is Reeve of Percy township, is a farmer living between Warkworth and Norham, and was a candidate for the Liberal nomination in Northumberland for the provincial elections. He was defeated on the final ballot by Mayor Carr of Campbellford who subsequently won the riding from Fred J. McArthur of Cobourg. It was rumored after the elections that friends of Mr. Curtis intended to appeal to the Liberal Association in regard to the result of the nomination, but this sentiment apparently was confined to a few personal and ardent friends of Mr. Curtis at Warkworth. During the campaign he was an active supporter of Mayor Carr, devoting a great deal of his time in the spade work of organization.

KING DEMANDS GENERAL VOTE AT KENORA MEET

Charges Gov't Lacks Confidence of Country, Itself and Other Nations.

GOES AFTER STEVENS.

By Ray Brown
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

KENORA, Ont., Sept. 15 (C.P.).—At the outset of his "miniature general election" campaign, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader, here threw down the gauntlet to the Government. Forcibly he demanded a general election on the triple ground that the Government lacked the confidence of the country, of itself, and finally other nations with which Canada must trade if it is to exist and prosper.

Coupled with this demand was a caustic criticism of the Stevens pamphlet incident, which Mr. King declared must have brought the Prime Minister and the Minister of Trade and Commerce either into direct opposition or "collusion," if the former Mr. Stevens' resignation should have been demanded, he said, and should have been tendered. The British system held no place for a divided Cabinet. If the latter, it was just another "humbug," were the people prepared to support another humbug? he queried.

Ottawa-Bound.

To-day the Liberal leader was speeding eastward to Ottawa after travelling 1,000 miles to fire his opening shot in the constituency formerly held by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor in the King administration. The seat became vacant when Mr. Heenan accepted a portfolio in the government of Premier Mitchell Hepburn. It is now being contested in the Liberal interests by another railwayman, Hugh B. McKinnon, who, like Mr. Heenan, is an engine driver. Mr. McKinnon spoke briefly at the meeting last night.

Next week Mr. King continues his campaign with meetings at Enterprise, in the constituency of Frontenac-Addington, Markham in North York, St. Thomas in West Elgin, and East Toronto. He will conclude with a meeting in the City of Montreal.

Mr. Stevens had not offered his resignation, Mr. King said, with reference to the pamphlet episode. He referred to the fact that when an administration retained power after it had lost the confidence of the people, abuses were likely to creep in. There was an element of "intrigue" in the Stevens matter, he felt, which was partly attributable to the Government's retention of office after it had lost its position in the country.

How It Stands

Had Mr. Stevens taken his prime minister or colleagues into his confidence when he issued the pamphlet? He had issued it and then gone out to Vancouver, and Mr. Bennett had suppressed it and gone to Geneva. That was the way the matter stood now. "I think the people of Canada will believe that Mr. Stevens thought Mr. Bennett was done as a leader, and he saw as a leader the man whom he regards as the champion of the people" remarked Mr. King.

He protested forcibly against the government holding a conference with the provinces on social and constitutional questions. Such a conference should only be held, he maintained, by an administration with the full confidence of the people.

He did not believe, Mr. King asserted, that the present government could negotiate trade agreements with other countries. He referred to this in connection with the recent resolution of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce advocating reciprocity with the United States. If the country waited too long before choosing a government which could negotiate with other countries, it might be too late, he warned. As for the Liberal party, it advocated trade with all countries which would trade with Canada on a fair basis.

"While my wife had many rendezvous, I occupied the chicken house," the pastor said. "The neglect shown me by my wife injured my reputation and damaged me in the community."

WEST IS READY FOR CONFERENCE

Will Co-operate for General Advantage Says Premier Pattullo of B.C.

We'll Be There—Hepburn.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15 (C.P.) — Western Canada to-day was obviously willing to co-operate with the Dominion Government to set a date for a Dominion-Provincial conference at Ottawa and send delegates to discuss constitutional and other questions.

Without having received official copies of a letter proposing an agenda, drafted by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett before departing for Geneva where he is attending the League of Nations assembly, Premier T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia and Premier R. G. Reid of Alberta, from press reports, declared their intention of submitting suggestions for such a conference.

Unemployment insurance and steps to be adopted if it is deemed advisable to amend the British North America Act are topics on the agenda.

"The matters quoted in new despatches are obviously questions of joint Provincial and Dominion interest," said Mr. Pattullo. "British Columbia will be glad to co-operate for the general advantage."

Mr. Reid said he would attend the conference with one or more of his ministers if fuller representation was desired. Some of the questions on the agenda are points which Alberta has long desired a more definite and satisfactory understanding, such in particular as the taxation question, he said.

"We'll be there," was the only comment Premier Mitchell Hepburn would make at Toronto.

Several important business matters will be discussed and the "Home and County" distributed.

John Lennox Barn Destroyed By Fire

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15. — Struck by lightning, during an electric storm, a spectacular barn fire, which lit up the country for miles around, and lasted fully three hours, caused some excitement here in the early hours of Friday morning, while actual details of loss were not available. The building was stocked with the entire season's crop of hay and grain and was located on the 9th concession Murray township, said to be the John Lennox property.

TENNESSEE GIRL HAS CHILD AT 11

American Medical Records Show Only One Other Case at Younger Age.

"BOTH DOING WELL."

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—American medical history records only one case of motherhood in a girl under 11 years of age, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said yesterday in commenting on a report that a Jefferson City, Tenn., girl had become a mother at the age of 11.

A similar case, he said, was reported 18 months ago, the mother being an 11-year-old Oklahoma Indian. About 25 such cases are on record in the United States.

A ten-year-old girl who became a mother is the youngest on record, he said. Motherhood at that age in India, where child marriage is practized, is not unusual, Dr. Fishbein said.

The Jefferson City baby was reported to have weighed 7½ pounds, with black hair and blue eyes, normal in all respects. Hospital authorities, who reported mother and child "doing fine," were informed the father was a 14-year-old boy. The children are from Sevier County, Tennessee, in the foothills of the great Smoky Mountain National Park section.

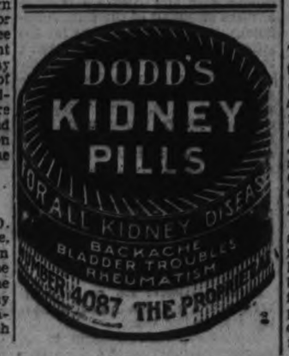
Constable Blucher's patrol was formerly from Newtonville to Grafton, but he will now cover from Port Hope to Trenton, a distance of 37 miles, and from Brighton to Campbellford, a stretch of 22 miles.



GRAPE PRICE WAR PUSHES UP HEAD ALONG FRONTIER

Charges Made Ontario Liquor Board "Dominated" by Whiskey Interests.

GROWERS ASK PROBE.

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP)—A grape-price war pushed up its head to-day along a frontier extending from Queen's Park to the drooping vineyards of Niagara. There was a charge that the Ontario Liquor Board, which a few days ago decided wineries would pay from $40 to $50 a ton for grapes, is "dominated" by the whiskey interests.

Speakers at a meeting last night of the Winona and Stoney Creek locals of the Niagara Grape Growers' Association went a step further and declared the liquor interests were also in control of the wine industry. There was widespread dissatisfaction over commission-established wholesale grape prices.

The Winona-Stoney Creek meeting recommended the entire grape and wine industry be investigated by the Stevens Mass Buying Commission with a view to establishing costs and profits. But the growers were chiefly concerned with what they regarded as a too-low set price.

Offer Lowered $10

J. J. Smith declared at Grimsby that an independent winery offering $50 a ton had told him they must reduce the offer to $40 for Concord grapes in accordance with the Liquor Commission edict. The Commission had notified the winery to lower its offer.

Mayor Frederick Avery of St. Catharines, on the edge of the grape belt, declared here he would "fight the thing through to the finish." Government member of the Legislature, the Mayor said he was prepared to place the interest of growers "above party."

When Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn returns from by-election campaigning, Mayor Avery said he would have him meet the same growers' representatives who earlier in the week discussed the price-fixing scheme with Liquor Commissioner Edmund Odette. "And," he added, "we'll have a showdown, that's certain."

HAMILTON FOG FATAL TO DRIVER

Two Others Seriously Hurt as Car Crashes Into Gas Station.

WRECKS BUILDING.

HAMILTON, Sept. 15. (CP).—Two men were in the hospital here to-day seriously injured and a third man was dead as the result of an accident which occurred on the Niagara highway, just outside the city limits at midnight. Joseph C. Carroll, Toronto, died shortly after the accident, and Court Thomson, Hamilton, and Charles Scott, Toronto are the injured.

The accident occurred when the automobile in which they were riding was approaching the city limits. The driver was evidently baffled by the blanket of white fog which enveloped the road, and ploughed into the canopy in front of a gas station. Car and building were badly wrecked.

IN ST. CLAIR RIVER.

CORUNNA, Ont., Sept. 15.—(CP) —The young Ulrich sisters—Marion, aged ten, and Helen, eight—owe their lives today to the heroism of Donna Sutton ,11-year-old daughter of Harvey Sutton, who recently arrived here from Stratford to teach school.

The three girls were playing in an oarless boat on the St. Clair River Thursday evening when it drifted out into the current. Frightened the younger Ulrich girl jumped overboard. Donna dived after her, brought her to the surface and swam 30 yards to the shore.

Meanwhile the boat continued to drift and the other Ulrich girl jumped into the water. The plucky Donna immediately went to her assistance and after an exhausting struggle brought her to safety.

The Sutton girl collapsed after her second rescue and artificial respiration had to be applied to restore her to consciousness.

AMERICA'S CUP RACING YACHTS STRAIN TO GO

Sopwith's Challenger, Endeavor and Vanderbilt's Rain Clash First Time To-day.

30 MILE CONTEST.

By ANDREW MERKEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 15 (A.P.)—All Newport was astir early this morning in anticipation of the opening race of the series to determine possession of the America's Cup, the "ashes" of international yachting.

Thomas Octave Murdock Sopwith's British challenger, Endeavour, flying the burgee of the Royal Yacht Squadron, and Harold Vanderbilt's defender Rainbow, representing the New York Yacht Club, were straining at their moorings off Brenton's Cove. Members of the rival crews busied themselves about the decks in last minute preparations for the business of the day.

Shortly after nine o'clock, it is anticipated, they will make a start for the line, 13 miles off Newport.

Early weather reports indicated an eight to 10 knot breeze from the southwest, with occasional rain squalls. If this wind holds, it is anticipated the committee in charge of the race will signal a 15-mile course to windward and return. This will mean a tack to the outer mark and a run to the finish line.

4 Wins Necessary

The series will be determined when one boat has won four races.

A start will be made each weekday, weather permitting, unless one of the skippers asks for a postponement. The series should be concluded, barring accidents, and given normal weather conditions, within a week.

Members of the Rainbow's crew were happy this morning because Zenas Bliss, professor of applied mechanics at Brown University and an officer in the Rhode Island National Buard, would resume his post as navigator aboard the defender. He had been called out on strike duty and for a time it was doubtful whether or not he could be permitted to sail. Last night he was relieved of his militia duties for the duration of the series.

Aboard the towering blue-hulled British challenger there was a quiet confidence that augured well for the return to the old country of the battered silverware after a stay of 83 years on this side of the Atlantic. Boat and crew are at top form and can be depended upon to make a gallant showing.

A WIDER CHOICE OF DESIGNS IN AUTOS

General Motors' Policy is to Consult Motorists Themselves on Car Building.

The prospect of motor cars being produced at a "deal level" of sameness in years to come is very remote indeed, as far as General Motors of Canada is concerned. The Company has been seeing through the eyes of the public long enough to make it certain that the public prefers a wider and not a narrowed choice of design and engineering. Executives today place this brief interpretation on the recent series of institutional advertisements based upon the General Motors policy of consulting motorists themselves on car-building programs from year to year.

Free exchange of opinion with more than 60,000 Canadian car owners has confirmed the Company's belief that the public likes to make its own choice of new ideas, providing that these new ideas are all sound in an engineering sense. The public expresses its desires and the automotive engineers produce more than one solution to the engineering problem involved. Both solutions are sound and both are offered to the public in different lines of cars and trucks. The effect, executives point out, is to encourage engineering progress and to provide a wider choice of proved designs for the public to select from.

The policy is neatly summed up by the heading of one advertisement of the series: "Not What One Man Thinks But What the Public Wants."

Industrial activity in the Irish Free State is expected to increase.

"It's funny, Molly — Peggy's always loved the ride before. But she's been acting just this way for a whole week!"

"She's not hungry either. I've found, Nan, that these symptoms mean it's time for a laxative. Give Peggy Castoria tonight."

"We want to report that Peggy's fine today — a perfect lamb! We both can't thank you enough for suggesting Castoria."

"A good laxative was all the child needed, Nan. And Castoria is made especially for children. It's the best first-aid treatment for a cold that I know, too. And children never mind taking it because it tastes so good. Then, it hasn't any of the strong drugs in it that make some grown-up laxatives so unpleasant, and sometimes so harmful for children to take."

Montreal Industrialist Urges an Understanding of the Golden Rule.

OLD ORDER CHANGING.

By SAM ROSS.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15.—(C.P.) — Recognition of changing social conditions stood out to-day as delegates to the ninth annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce were back in their homes to implement a score of changes and prevent strict government codes on business activties.

A. O. Dawson, Montreal industrialist who was elected the new president, crystalized the recognition of altered conditions. There was no need of strikes or lockouts, he said. An understanding of the golden rule would make capital and labor partners and comrades. Successful business must recognize welfare of workers as a major factor.

Reading of 'socialism' into speeches recognizing welfare of employees as vital to the nation and deferment of return on invested capital until new social conditions become stabilised was refuted. The old order was changing, but it was still based on liberty, equality, social justice and age-old British principles.

Opposition to strict government regulation of business came from a score of sources.

MRS. RENAUD SOLOIST.

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—The inclement weather of Wednesday afternoon did not prevent a large representative of the W.M.S. Auxiliary of the United Church, of Norwood, gathering at the beautiful home of Mrs. W. G. Barrie, "Trent River Uplands," when there was forty ladies in attendance.

Mrs. Laura Beeck, president, was in charge of the meeting. The secretary and treasurer read their reports.

A missionary rally is to be held Thursday, Sept. 20th, in Cottesloe Church, with the first session opening at 10 o'clock a.m. Miss Mitchell, travelling secretary, will be the guest speaker.

The program in charge of Mrs. Thomas J. Buck's group, was as follows: Prayer by Mrs. Buck; Mrs. Gerald Baker conducted the devotional reading; Mrs. J. A. Knox read the 5th chapter of the Study Book. A vocal solo was rendered efficiently by Mrs. Charles Renaud. Mrs. W. G. Barrie gave a helpful talk on Temperance. Mrs. (Rev.) Cleland led in closing prayer. A hearty vote of thanks was expressed to the hostess, Mrs. Barrie, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Way to Ease Headaches, Pain Almost Instantly

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Watchman, What of the Night—Of Youth
A Message For the Shut-Ins and Troubled

By REV. CHAS. D. DANIEL.

I WOULD like to make this a very personal message to you this week, to you who are shut-in and troubled, you who through sickness or because of the toll of years are unable to be about, to see and hear how life out in the work-a-day world is progressing; and especially is my message to those of you who are looking out on a troubled world, a world in which there are so many demands on body and soul, so many temptations, and possibly you are fearing for youth to-day. Just how can they stand up under these trying conditions? Having prepared themselves for work, they find themselves thrown out into a world that by its system seems to offer very little opportunity for them to work, but it does offer them much leisure time. And yet the tragedy of it is, that so much of this leisure time is filled with temptation, not because of their choice, but because of our system of things to-day. And so you are troubled for youth.

May I give you a word of cheer for youth? I have just finished another summer spent in directing boys' camps and young people's summer schools held across the province, to which the youth of our province come for a summer holiday, youth from the public school, youth from the high school, youth from college, from the farm, from the counter, from the shop, youth the type of which young Apps of the British Empire games fame is a sample, youth good, youth bad, youth of every description. What do I find in these gatherings that encourage me?

Let us stop and look in on one of these groups as 125 of such youth sit around a closing camp-fire, tumbling about in the rythm and joy of their cherrio camp-fire songs. They have been there for a week, playing, swimming, hiking, studying such things as leathercraft, radio mechanics, camperaft, the Bible with its philosophy of life. And now the hour has come to close. The cars of the parents are already in the offing to take them home—but they will not be denied this last hour together. Finally, they realize they must go, but before doing so they try to put into words those strange emotions of mind and heart—and what do we hear?

"God has become very real to me this week. I have found Jesus as a friend who really helps. Yes, we have enjoyed the games, the hikes, the studies, etc., but best of all, we have enjoyed most these moments spent in the twilight of the setting sun, up on 'Vesper Hilltop' where God in His presence has become very read to us." And as I turn to leave them, I wonder if we should be troubled, should we despair of such youth.

The flight of time and space take me to the closing day of another camp up on the shores of a large western lake, where for a week 80 young men and women have been holidaying together and studying how to best fit themselves for life, the life of our troubled day. We find them assembled in the "Cathedral of the Trees," believing if they can catch something of the significance of His broken body and spilt blood they will be helped. So they are engaged, as a parting gesture, in the partaking of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, from which go out 12 young people whose lives have been definitely changed for Christ and a host of others rededicated and reconsecrated to His service.

We pass quickly to another section of the province where for 10 days 130 young people have been holidaying by living and studying in a school of Christian fellowship and spiritual leadership. Yes, they have had fun—and what fun!—but as I listen to the editorials in their paper of an "Appreciation" of the young men to the young women and on the following day of the young women to the young men, I know at least of one group where ideals of purity and honor for womanhood and manhood are still reigning. Then I watch their ceasing campfire and listen in at their final fellowship circle: "We have come to believe most really in the daily friendship of years, of His transforming friendship. By practice, this week we have found the morning watch most valuable in preparation for the day's work. We purpose to continue its use in our lives each day during the year. We understand now the more serious task of life, and realizing now what Jesus should mean in our lives, we consecrate them afresh to Him and to the work of His kingdom, believing that we are only Christian as we help to change unchristian lives and the unchristian condition of our times." Then I listen to their closing hymn;

"Lead on, O King Eternal, the day of march has come.
Lead on, O King Eternal, till sin's fierce war shall cease,
Lead on, O King Eternal, we follow, not with fears;
Thy cross is lifted o'er us, we journey in its light."

But maybe I have transgressed too much time and space. Yet in closing, I remember that such camps as these, congregating to the extent of thousands of our young people, have been held over our fair Dominion this summer.

At least for me, though I am concerned for youth to-day, I am not troubled. No, my hope and my faith is in them and their coming generation that they will bring us much closer to the Kingdom of God in their day than we have ever been before.

Psalm 24:4—"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? And who shall stand in His holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart."

A PRAYER

Unite us in one family, O Christ. Guide us in Thy wisdom and save us by Thy grace, from all that is little, and selfish and mean. Lead young and old together in the way of life until we find our final rest in Thee.

May God give us the waiting heart, deepening our knowledge, cleansing our lives, lifting our hopes to Him, teaching us the true way to His peace, through the love we learn in the Upper Room of Faith, where we remember Christ.

Lord, Grant unto us that ours may be the stillness, the vision, and the love which Thou givest to those who seek Thee truly, believing that the world's unrest and the passions that distract us shall pass to silence overcome by Thee.—Dr. Lauchlan MacLean Watt.

The Imagination

(By Dean O'Sullivan)

Imagination may be defined as the faculty by which we see in the mind's eye, as it were, objects that are absent. By it we call up visions of the past. This is what is called by schoolmen the reproductive imagination, that is, forming a mental picture of something we have already experienced. Then there is the creative imagination which links together the pictures or impressions received through the external sense, so as to form a new picture. For example, we can imagine a winged horse or a snow-capped mountain. It is interesting to note that we cannot form a picture in the mind of something that we have not seen, at least in its component parts. We have not seen a winged horse, but we have seen a horse and we have seen wings, and the imagination unites the two. Being a sensuous, and not an intellectual faculty, it is very dependent upon physical conditions. It is much more active in children than in older people. This is especially true of the constructive imagination. "The young men see visions and the old men dream dreams."

The imagination plays a very important part in the fine arts, in mechanical science, and in poetry and oratory. The painter, by the aid of his reproductive, and then of his constructive imagination, first forms the subjective image, the mental picture of his masterpiece, before he places it upon the canvas. The architect sees in his mind the gothic edifice that later takes on solid shape in stone and mortar. The inventor holds in their places the airy creations of his brain until the last piece of intricate machinery is fitted into his design. The poet or the orator holds the mirror up to nature, or carrying us on flights of fancy, delights us with the figments of his imagination.

Day dreams afford a very delightful exercise of this faculty. We all know how pleasant it is to watch at evening the glowing coals in the grate as "fancy casts her anchor in the harbour of a dream." In order to enjoy this luxury we must close the gates of the external senses. As the poet puts it:

"I close my eye and see the place where I was born;
I close my ear and listen to the music of the horn."

Night dreams offer an example of the imagination run riot. The external senses do not intrude to interrupt the airy flights, and the dormant mind exercises no censorship over the moving picture scene. I must add, however, to this latter statement the qualification that while the mind, then and there places no constraint, yet even in sleep the imagination is, in a measure at least, regulated by acquired habits contracted during waking hours under the direction of the human will to which it is subject. While dreams may seem incoherent, yet there is often found to be some connecting link, some association, between one phantasm or series of phantasms and those that follow. Unrestrained by the will, the imagination rushes on with such headlong speed that experiences which would require a day to realize, flash through the mind in a few seconds.

An abnormal exercise of the imagination is found in hallucinations and illusions. The fever patient who imagines that his room is crowded with people is suffering from an hallucination due to the internal irritation of the nerves, produced by the disease, which causes them to convey false messages to the brain. Illusions, which are a mild and transient form of hallucination, are often the effect of some emotion such as joyful expectancy or fear. I remember, as a boy, starting out eagerly in quest of partridge. Returning at dusk, I noticed on the limb of a tree what seemed to be a partridge with its neck stretched out ready to fly. The more I looked the more convinced I was that it was a partridge. I fired—and then it appeared to be what it actually was, a pine root that boys had thrown up to knock down beech nuts. Here was a case of joyful expectancy, causing not only an illusion, but also a delusion. The same is true of fear. Every boy and girl has experienced at some time or other the truth of Shakespeare's couplet:

"In the night, imagining some fear,
How easily is a bush supposed a bear?"

We should allow our minds to dwell only on what is useful, good and beautiful, and shut out the dark miasma of the sordid and the sensual, so that our imagination may be an aid and not a hindrance to virtue. Like fire, it is a good servant but a cruel master. It can raise us up on the wings of fancy to the abode of those heavenly spirits, whom it clothes with brilliant light, with airy pinions and with garments white as snow, or it can drag us down to the nether depths. Corruptis optimi pessima—the corruption of the best is the worst—may well be applied to it, for:

"The lunatic, the lover and the poet
Are of imagination all compact."

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

THERE comes a time to almost every man when looking back over the years one asks oneself, "Has it been worth while?" And then one looks ahead and asks whether it is better to go on as before or to blaze a new pathway.

Of course, there are some so unfortunate in their concept of the purpose of life that they make the means of living, the bare mechanics of life, the sole aim and object of their effort. It is not to them that we speak, for they are not yet weakened. But there are others who in all sincerity seek to grasp the purpose of life. The sincere they are in the quest, the more are they faithful to the highest they know or can conceive of. The more eager they are to add to their knowledge, the more they question themselves, the more they search their hearts. This is their highest tribute to Truth, a tribute that is higher by far than belief. This self-questioning, this hunger of eternal seeking, is not weakness based on an absence of real conviction, rather is it strength, the strength of an integrity which really believes that "there is no religion higher than Truth." It is an integrity such as that of the martyrs of all ages who unhesitatingly and fearlessly faced death and things worse than death rather than be false to themselves.

It does not really matter that to us, everything in the world is relative so that "truth" is relative to other "truths." Absolute Truth is an aspect of Absolute God, unknowable. If we really seek the highest, we will be ready to cast off comparative truths when they have served their purpose in leading us into realization of higher truths. By such using of "truths" as a stairway to God we grow in spiritual wisdom. We are not fettered by outworn shibboletts because we begin to see that they are not true in themselves, there is no need they should be true, but that they are true only as they express the higher truth that He's behind them. The form is not material, it is only a form, but Truth is eternal.—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

Your Problems

Are the Jews to-day the elect people of God the same as they were before the coming of Christ?—L. E.

This is a question on which there is much difference of opinion. Some say "Yes" and some say "No."

The Jews at the time of Christ believed they were an elect people and they still believe they are. Many Christians believe that the Jews are still God's chosen people and around them and through them will come the future history of the world. On the other hand, it is held that when the apostles turned from the Jews and gave the gospel of Christ to the Gentiles, then the Jews lost their election and their place was taken by those who believed in the Crucified and Risen Christ.

Dr. Wylie Clark

For those who get interested in this problem there is much to fascinate, but it sometimes seems that there is a lot of mental energy wasted upon it which would give greater assistance if applied to the solution of the present difficulties which which the whole human race is faced.

Are we seeking God or is He seeking us?—S. K.

In the parable of the lost sheep the shepherd is the seeker. The sheep does no seeking. In its stupid sheep way it may have longed for the shelter and safety of the fold, and in its wanderings it may have hoped to win back to the shepherd, but surely it was the shepherd who did the seeking.

God has always been seeking. As our Father in Heaven He has ever sought to reach us that through His salvation our souls might know the peace and the joy of being found of Him.

The story of the prodigal son seems to say that the boy came to himself and then started to seek the father. Not so, the son knew where the father was. The father was not lost and it was the father seeking the son through memory that decided the lad to turn homewards and leave the far country.

That seeking of God is the great beauty and strength of the gospel. It is the unseen power which draws us home.

Where is the situation of the Fields of Blood bought by the betrayed money which Judas gave back to the high priest?—D. R. S.

Tradition names Hakk ed-Dumm (meaning price of blood) southwest of Siloam as the place. One thing seems against this. It was originally a potter's field and there is no clay there.

The exact piece of land cannot now be located with any certainty.

I have been told that there are two places which claim to be the exact spot where Jesus was crucified. Can you tell me which is the right one?—J. H.

The place named by tradition is the spot covered by the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in the northwest quarter of Jerusalem as it is to-day.

The other place is outside the wall which runs from the Jaffa gate to the Damascus gate and was held by General Gordon to be the real site. Many believe that this is the true place. I have seen this knoll and the tomb discovered by Gordon. The church covers up the other place so that the nature of the ground cannot be seen, and therefore there is no chance of comparing the two.

The Gospels say that Christ was put to death outside the city walls. The question of this north wall is still in dispute, and until it is settled there will be some doubt as to which site is the real one.

An ounce of praise is worth a ton of blame.

Isaiah Contrasts False and True Worship

Scripture—Isaiah 1:1-31.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Isaiah was the greatest of all the Old Testament prophets, a statesman as well as a prophet. His ministry ran through the reigns of four kings, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah. While Hosea and Amos were preaching to Israel, Isaiah and Micah were preaching to Judah.

Isaiah received his call through a vision in the temple at the time of the death of the leper king Uzziah. He saw angelic beings flying and singing, "Holy, Holy, Holy", and heard the voice of God calling, to which he replied, "Here am I, send me."

Isaiah rebuked the people for their worship which was empty of true devotion. Their numerous feasts and offerings were an abomination in God's sight because their hearts were not in them and their lives were full of sins they did not care to give up.

Isaiah has been called the "evangelical prophet" because there is so much of the grace of God in his message such as this: "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though red like crimson, they shall be as wool".

GETTING DOWN TO WORK.

It is intimated that the new Canadian Travel Bureau, organized to promote tourist traffic, plans to publish as its first piece of printed matter a complete generous-sized booklet, fully illustrated with photographs and maps, on Canada and her attractions.

This publication, which will be issued before early spring, will give as detailed a picture of the Dominion as possible, with sections dealing with the national parks, rail steamship and hotel facilities, resorts, highways, customs and immigration regulations, fish and game laws, etc.

There will also be descriptions of each province and what it has to offer visitors.

Such a booklet will prove of distinct value to tourists, who at the present time cannot obtain such information in unified and complete form.

Its preparation is an evidence that the Travel Bureau is taking hold of its responsible duties with enthusiasm and vision, and that is a matter for general satisfaction, inasmuch as the success of this drive for more tourists will benefit the whole country.

In initiating a campaign for visitors this fall the Bureau has made a good start, and it is following up with a booklet of the type that has been very much needed and the circulation of which in the right quarters early next year should awaken a widespread interest in Canada and her possibilities from a tourist viewpoint.

MONTREAL'S PREDICAMENT.

Had Mayor Houde's so-called "brain trust," the committee of citizens which Montreal's chief magistrate commissioned to prepare a plan by which the city could escape from its financial difficulties, had its way Montrealers would soon begin to appreciate what high taxation really is.

The committee—whose members by the way have been dismissed by Mayor Houde—recommended some new and drastic levies as a means of raising municipal revenues.

Not only did they demand complete control over the city's finances but they wanted the right to clap a tax of $3 a year on every user of gas and electric power, $5 a year on every telephone, a similar tax for every piano, phonograph and radio receiving set in use, a special tax of 5 per cent. on public utilities using city streets, and a sales tax of 2 per cent. on all retail transactions.

This was certainly a formidable program, and it is no wonder that Mayor Houde declined to accept the committee's recommendations.

At the same time the city is just a jump ahead of the bailiff with bills continuing to pile up, and only new loans from time to time enabling the authorities to carry on and meet the civic pay-roll.

The cure proposed has been decided as worse than the disease; now it would seem to be up to Mayor Houde himself to diagnose the case and prescribe the treatment most likely to succeed.

MR. MARSHALL RE-APPOINTED

The Ontario Government is to be congratulated upon its decision to reinstate Fred. Marshall as fish and game overseer for Peterborough County, and in this action will win the approval of the whole district.

The Examiner, which ever since the dismissal of the outside service of the Department of Game and Fisheries was first mooted has been protesting that it would be a fatal mistake to apply that policy to a county in which fish and game play such an important part as they do in Peterborough, is delighted that the Government has reconsidered its decision and will retain the services of Mr. Marshall.

It is safe to say that every sportsman in this part of the country as well as every other citizen who realizes the importance of protecting our fish and game will hail with joy the announcement that an official who had demonstrated his zeal and ability from the first day of his appointment is back on the job again.

The best proof of the high estimate the people of this district placed upon the efficacy of Mr. Marshall's service is the fact that citizens of all shades of politics have been protesting against his removal, and many of them have made representations to the Government.

The new administration has shown that it is big enough to admit that it made a mistake, and that attitude will commend itself to popular approval; Governments which are willing to correct errors in judgment usually get along better than the other kind which stick to a bad policy even when its weakness has been demonstrated.

THE CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS.

One record that is given prominence in the latest accident bulletin issued by the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Ontario Department of Highways is the fact that during the month of July 1,026 persons were injured in motor car accidents in Ontario, a total greater than for any previous month in the history of the motor vehicle in this province, and, as the bulletin says, giving "very tangible proof of the seriousness of the present situation."

There is an attempt in some quarters to attribute this sharp rise in the accident total to an increase in the number of drunken drivers caused by the sale of beer by the glass, but as the new liquor law was in effect only during the last few days of the month, this explanation will not hold good.

On the contrary, it was, in the opinion of the Highway Department officials, the average motorist, the average pedestrian, who carelessly commits what he considers minor violations, who was responsible for the majority of these injuries.

The bulletin sound this timely note of warning:

"If drivers who insist upon operating a vehicle at the same speed regardless of traffic and road conditions," it says, "would regulate their speed to conform with these conditions; if inattentive drivers would recognize the need for everlasting vigilance, and if those who confuse others because of their indecision could be taught to clearly indicate their intentions, the majority of accidents could be averted. Such behaviour, which too many drivers consider of minor importance, proves the greatest obstacle in the promotion of greater safety."

HITLER AT OBERAMMERGAU.

We are told in the news that Hitler has gone down to Oberammergau and has been attending performances of the famous Passion Play.

We trust it has not been embarrassing to him.

For unless the Fuehrer has visited Oberammergau in the capacity of censor to take out these bits in the life of our Lord that do not redound to the greater glory of the Fatherland and the greater exaltation of Adolf Hitler, the presentation must have made him just a little uncomfortable.

For instance, no one ever heard of Jesus ordering a general massacre of those who disagreed with him.

As a matter of fact, when Peter cut off the centurion's ear in the Garden of Gethesemane, Jesus picked it up and fastened it back on again.

To one who has so avidly seized power in Germany, it surely will not be pleasant to see Christ rejecting the crown of Jerusalem.

Nor can we exactly picture Herr Hitler offering himself as a subject for crucifixion for the sake of the salvation of mankind.

The Fuehrer will hear in Oberammergau that "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven."

Hitler is not exactly "poor in spirit." But then he doesn't want the Kingdom of Heaven anyway. He wants Germany—and afterwards the Kingdom of Odin.

He will hear, too, that "Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth."

That one should hit him a bit hard. For if it is the meek who are to inherit the earth, Hitler would not inherit enough earth to cover his dead bones.

Perhaps, after all, the Fuehrer will just burn Oberammergau down.—Vancouver Sun.

BECAUSE THEY THINK EVERY MAN "HAS HIS PRICE."

Among the disclosures at the Washington inquiry into the manufacture and sale of war munitions there was one thing a lot of business men who have dealings with Governments might note with profit. It was the revelation of how money was thrown away to lobbyists who, with the usual effrontery, claimed to have got two friendly representatives placed upon the Rules Committee of the House, to have secured passage of a naval deficiency bill, and to have wielded large influence with the War and Navy Departments and with the Department of State. These boastful tales, stated by evidence, were completely riddled, shown to be fantastic, but the lobbyists, unfortunately, had pocketed their money.

This sort of thing goes on at every seat of Government. The reason for its existence is the belief, held by a large section of the public, and by business men in particular, that politicians "have their price," that money and political and social influence can buy favors from Governments.

The classic example of this, so far as Canada is concerned, was what happened in the case of Beauharnois. The people behind that enterprise thought that before they could get anything done here in Ottawa there were countless hands to be "greased." As a consequence, they set about pitching around hundreds of thousands of dollars with the greatest of abandon, got to the point where it was almost impossible to throw a stone on Parliament Hill without hitting a Beauharnois lobbyist. And it was all dead loss. In all of what was said and found about Beauharnois, it was never found or suggested that anything which the promoters of the enterprise got from the Government or Parliament had the remotest connection with what it paid to the so-called "key" men who were supposed to be "working on" Ottawa. Everything that was done, whether good or bad, wise or otherwise, would have been done just as readily with 99 per cent. less expenditure.

Yet business men go on being gullible. Probably due to our vicious electioneering habit or practice of assailing one another's honesty, the belief is prevalent that the way to get anything done in Ottawa is to pay somebody to pay somebody else to get it done, or to use some "pull" or influence, or penetrate some mysterious circle that controls such things.

It is the stupidest of delusions. Any business concern or enterprise in Canada may sensibly and profitably keep a representative in Ottawa to represent its legitimate interests. Hundreds of such representatives exist. But the idea of a lobbyist, of a "behind the scenes" man here who has access to ministers and high officials, who is in a position to influence the decisions of the Government or of Parliament in any respect whatever, is just grotesque. It is a "racket" of the worst kind.

Yet the "racket" goes on. The business man one meets outside of Ottawa, or in a Pullman car, is convinced that politicians "have their price," that there is an inner circle at Ottawa which can be "got to," that there are lots of people around Parliament Hill who have the ears of Ministers, and who use those ears most profitably. So he goes on paying.

The truth, known to all who know Ottawa, is that the influence of the lobbyist upon the decisions of Government and Parliament is just about nil. Here and there may be found a politician who can be influenced, but the great bulk of them, and 100 per cent. of officials, are absolutely beyond such a thing. Ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, what is done is done on the advice of the technical and professional officers of the various department, or as a matter of Government policy. This holds true of all Governments Canada has had, regardless of party.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Anyway those by-election campaigns have only another week to run.

As the Border Cities Star helpfully points out, take care of the pennies and the tax collector will take care of the dollars.

It looks as if the Ontario Government and the growers of the Niagara Peninsula are going to come to grips over grapes.

Huey Long has for the moment at least triumphed—another proof that a good showman can fool a lot of people.

Ontario is fortunate in the fact that the banging of guns this morning meant only the beginning of the duck-shooting season and not the start of an industrial strike.

Monday is the day all the punctured tires come home to roost.—Border Cities Star.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY
By Fred Williams

A ROMANCE OF NEW FRANCE.

On this date in 1738 the then young Quebec had a sensation. There appeared before the marine commissioner a young girl, who had given her name as Esther Brandeau, about 20 years of age. She had arrived at Quebec on the vessel St. Michel (commanded by an ancestor of the great deSalaberry, who saved Canada at the battle of Chateauguay in 1813), dressed as a boy and given the name Jacques LaFarge. "He" had been permitted to land and had for a while been quite a figure with "his" stories of the latest goings-on at Paris, but one day it was discovered that "he" was a girl, and it was not long before the gay male habilments were exchanged for more sombre petticoats and gown.

She told a remarkable story of her wanderings and was handed over to the nuns of the general hospital to be cared for until her fate was decided. It was bad enough that she should have deceived by her male disguise, but it was anathema that a Jewess should haSe been allowed to land in Catholic Quebec!

According to her tale she had been masquerading as a boy for five years; she had been through several shipwrecks, had many strange adventures in various countries and had decided to go home when she was forced one day to eat pork and, then ashamed to face her parents, determined to cross to America.

Many efforts were made by the clergy and the nuns to convert Esther to Christianity, but she refused and just a year after her arrival was sent back to France as a woman passenger and duly landed at LaRochelle. After that all trace of her is lost. No one knows what happened to her after her return to France.

The Browser has never reviewed a dictionary and he doesn't quite know how to go about the business of describing and praising the Webster's New International Dictionary. . . . If it were a novel, he could tell you its plot. If it were a poem, he could describe it in terms of the impression it makes on him. If it were a snake he could call it long and slithery. If it were anything but a dictionary he could find words, somehow to make it plain that the Browser liked it. . . . Of course he can labor a whimsey and praise the publishers for their excellent choice of words and that would be an undisputed fact, because they boast that their "most notable publishing event of the century" contains 600,000 entries, 12,000 illustrated terms, thousands of new words, 5,000 abbreviations, 3,300 pages, 13,000 biographical entries, 35,000 geographical entries, and it cost $1,300,000. . . . Whatever it cost, it is worth the money. . . . The Browser has been running back and forth all morning looking up trick words and he hasn't stumped the dictionary yet. . . . He found "sygysy", which is his favorite word to use on individuals who boast that they can spell. He found "making whoopee". He learned that "raising the Dickens" has nothing to do with Charles Dickens, but that William Shakespeare used it and that "dickens" really means "Dickon" or the "old nick" or the devil. He looked up "yegg" and discovered that it probably comes from the German word "jager" and not from the Chinese word "yenk", or beggar man. . . . He discovered that "bradygraphia" means writing slowly, that the mistletoe is the state flower of Oklahoma, that the maypop, state flower of Tennessee, is actually the old passion flower from which very fine jam can be made, and that the word "mary" is pigeon English in Australia for a girl or woman. . . . In fact, after browsing through the new Webster dictionary, the Browser is bulging with new facts and sooner or later he'll find a way to work them into his conversation. . . . Wait and see. . . . But no big words, he promises you.

Frieda is the villainess of most of the other books written about Lawrence, usually by women, and she deserves a little kindness at her own hands. NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

Our ball team and the Bellevilles, east of us, has been trying to play a ball game for a week, but all the rain what didn't fall early in the Summer come along to upset the doings. Never mind, lads, the country needed it, say we.

None of the village golfers took part in the U.S. championships held south of the international boundary line, this week, but mebbe next year some of our future greats may be among them present.

Weiner roasts is quite a favorite pastime in these parts at the present time, although the wet weather aint been exactly conducive to the same, regret we.

The neighbors up at Lindsay held their fall fair this week and many of the folks hiked up No. 7 Highway to get a look at the prize stock, etc. Hot dogs was the best seller, our scribe reports.

The new judge in this district is Sheldon Smoke of Paris, west of here, and the Hall of Wisdom philosopher sez that with the Hepburn Govt. doing so much firing, it was up to the Ottawa Govt. to come through with some Smoke.

Peeney Mills of Belleville, east of us, has been appointed to the new Athletic Commission for this fair province, and if he goes after some of them professional promoters like he does after baseball empires sometimes, many predict lively times when the Commission gets going.

A lot of the villagers has been took for the pictures this week and their tintypes is going to be shown at the Main St. cinema. Jack Stewart, however, better not bill it as a comedy-feature, think we.

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

BIRD'S HILL, MANITOBA.

Dr. Bird was one of the early pioneers of the district, about 12 miles north of Winnipeg. He acquired a large tract of land in the district on which a large hill was located. Known principally to Winnipeggers because of the location of a very fine golf course there.

A Thought

COMPENSATION

When the first venturous blossom pushes its way out in the early spring, tempted by a rare warmth, there often comes a sudden chilling of the air. How alone, bereft, and deserted this little messenger of life must seem! But if there should insinuate itself into its little heart a belief that it has come to serve a purpose—to cheer and bless, and make life serene and more abundant, would it not be comforted? What a snug feeling would come of it when it knew that it was a messenger not of the cold wintry winds, but of the warmth of the sun, bringing brightness and cheer to a desolate world! And so it is with man. Through tribulation and many hard things, if there dwell within a man the thought of a will to do and a purpose to serve, how courageous are his battlements, and how hopefully he bears his burdens, knowing that he is the messenger of usefulness and contentment.—Author Unknown.

THE UNITED STATES

A SYSTEM of "Docks and Fines" has been in operation in the mills of both North and South. Could you out-do this injustice if you worked at it by day and dreamed about it by night? Deductions are made in the work report. The men and women seldom know why. That would anger a normal Canadian, just listening to a similar wrong done a friend or fellow citizen. Investigators have brought to light some rather nasty treatment of Canadian workers. When will Canada put an end to the oppression of the workers who have not the courage to voice their own wrongs? When will the strong in Canada take the part of the weak? Does the church care? You tell me. Does the church know? Tell me about that, also. You wronged men and women let it be known. Many wrongs have not been corrected simply because the public has not been informed by those who know. There are workers in Canada who dare not lift their voices in complaint. Canada will never become what she ought to be until men and women in all walks of life, and the ministers of the pulpit speak out.

An Alabama worker in one of the mills made affidavit to the following: At the end of a full week's work a woman worker was handed her pay envelope. When she opened it, she almost fainted. There was no money in the envelope. My God, listen to this. Instead of money she found a typewritten note saying that she owed the mill ninety cents. That she could not understand. But she is a heroine. No system, nor employer can trample her into the dust without stout resistance. She worked another week to make up the deficit. Then there had to be an accounting. The employer came across. In that mill the system gets some justice since that day. Under similar circumstances what would many a worker have done? Some would have sulked. Some would have been sore. Secretly, they would have denounced the employer. But that would have done more harm than good.

THE UNITED STATES
Selling Jobs to Workers

DO YOU think the workers in the United States should compromise to reach an agreement with the employers? This writer says "No". Get denied just rights. Settle the argument for all time. The workers have outlined their just rights. Peace never comes with imperfectly just agreement. Industry is as much in need of settled peace as the contending nations are. Right is the only foundation of peace. Peace in industry and peace in international relationships come to stay only through heart rightness.

Where is there a sign of godliness in the practice of selling jobs to workers? The textile unions are fighting the system. Bosses have refused steadfastly to drop the pernicious system. The employers back the bosses. From $25.00 to $200.00 are permitted the bosses to charge a prospective worker for the right to work in a mill. Each week after being employed, the worker MUST contribute for months, and some for years, from 50 cents to $1.00 to his overseer. This sort of chiselling is not to be known to owners, or to the officials. If this system is not abominable, please tell me what is. Have the workers just cause to strike when such damnable conditions cannot be righted otherwise? Why do such conditions exist? In large part because the church has not kept close contact with the mills. If the church cannot master industrial conditions, it has no place in our modern civilization. How many ministers keep in close contact with industries? Industry at work is a world within itself. Accurate information about industrial life can be gained alone by close contact. Many defend the church on the score of what the church has done in the past. But what is the church doing where it is needed most now? Industries in the home land are as completely foreign mission fields as are fields in China. Ministers are just as far removed from home industrial fields as they are from African.

THE UNITED STATES
Shacks—For Homes

DESOLATE are the buildings in which at least 65 per cent. of the employees in the industries of the Americas live. This is pitiable. Think of the mothers and the children in shacks, and tumbledown thrown-togethers. These so-called homes are an indictment against our civilization. Who can live in comfortable homes and be indifferent about how millions are compelled to spend all their years? To so many Christian people the worker scene does not bring even one concern.

The shacks or barracks in which thousands of American mill workers live are company owned. Until, yes, until the N.R.A., there usually was no rental charge. This has been changed. The weekly rental is often deducted from the meager wage. It is deducted weekly. Take note of that. The cost of repairing leaky roofs, or broken window-panes, or the repairing of holes in the floor is charged directly against the worker and deducted from his pay.

John B. Goins, a delegate to the New York gathering, reported some almost unbelievable facts. He is president of the Alabama State Textile Council. He told how one of the larger plants in Huntsville erected two-room concrete barracks, a long row of them, for the workers. Tin roofs were placed on them. During the summer months the workers had to sleep outside for most of the night, on the ground. Flies were a pest. To get rid of them all the workers had to do was to fasten the doors and the windows before going to work. Returning home they were sure to find the flies all dead. The heat in the barracks home killed them.

Men, to do good work, must have sanitary food and of good quality. They must have rest. That means a restful bed. Cheerful surroundings are as essential. A few years going from a barracks home to work, and from work to a barracks home without a touch of beauty or cheer is enough to break a man's spirit. Strike conditions when permitted to ripen bring on violent strikes.

INCREASED DEMAND STUDEBAKER CARS
Factory Shipments in August 33 1-3 Above Same Month Last Year.

Keeping pace with the trend for the entire year, factory shipments of Studebaker passenger cars in August were 33 1-3 per cent above August, 1933, according to a report released today by D. R. Grossman, Vice-President and General Manager of The Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Limited, at Walkerville.

"This sizeable increase in volume in a season of the year notoriously quiet in the automobile industry," said Mr. Grossman, "is due to the immediate popularity gained by the "Year-Ahead" Studebakers which were introduced early in July. These "Year-Ahead" Studebakers feature new Skyway beauty and Bendix Power Brakes on all models."

"An even more impressive gain is registered by the Studebaker trucks, of which 333 1-3 per cent more were shipped this August than in the same month of 1933. This remarkable record is not particularly surprising to us here in the Studebaker offices, as we have been watching Studebaker truck sales greatly exceeding 1933 figures month after month this year."

In conclusion, Mr. Grossman stated, "The outlook for Fall business is reassuring. Conditions in the West generally seem vastly improved over last year and we feel that the Eastern Provinces will continue to uphold the business gain that has been very evident this year to date."

One-Minute Pulpit

The Lord is high above all nations, and his glory above the heavens.—Psalm 113:4.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 92c to 95c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 55c to 58c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were quoted at 31 cents a dozen for A-large, down 1 cent; 29 cents a dozen for A-medium, down 1 cent; 20 to 21 cents for B, and 19 to 19½ cents for C. Receipts totalled 1,300 cases.

The butter market remained steady, fresh No. 1 being 20 to 20¼ cents a pound in carlots or less. Small lots to the retail trade brought 21 cents a pound for solids and 22 cents for prints. Arrivals were 651 boxes.

Ontario colored cheese continued to bring 9¾ to 9¾ cents a pound, while Quebec cheese held steady at 9¾ cents a pound. Receipts were 5,232 boxes.

New Quebec potatoes were 40 to 50 cents per 80-pound bag of No. 1 grade and old potatoes were priced at 20 to 25 cents per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Notable unsettlement of confidence among holders of all grain futures led to general price tumbles yesterday to low levels not reached before in many months.

Fear of enlarged imports of foreign grain into the United States was a conspicuous disturbing factor, and so too was weakness of securities at New York. Numerous assertions were voiced by traders that the Washington Administration would be unlikely to take any measures to prevent foreign grain from flowing into the United States over the tariff wall.

Wheat closed unsteady at about the day's bottom quoations, 2⅛c to 2¾c under Thursday's finish, December new, $1.03⅝ to $1.03⅝; rye showing 3⅜ to 4c decline; corn, 1¾c to 2⅜c down; December new, 76c to 76¼c; oats, 2c to 2¾c off, and provisions varying from 12 cents setback to 17 cents gain.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Downturns in outside grain and stock markets Saturday lowered wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, where losses of 1⅝ cents to ⅝ cent were sustained at the close.

Values touched the day's low points in late stages, and failed to rally. October closed at 82¾ cents, December at 83½ cents, and May at 87¾ cents.

Farmers' wheat deliveries fell off a little, but reached the substantial figure of 3,080,000 bushels on Thursday, resulting in another day of fairly heavy hedging pressures.

Speculative interest was disturbed by the absence of export buying.

Combined exports of Australia and Argentina this week amounted to 5,500,000 bushels, about 500,000 bushels short of last week's clearances.

VISITING MINING COUNTRY

Dr. A. J. Preston and Howard T. Fallis and party, left Thursday on a motor trip through the mining country of Ontario and Quebec. This will include Noranda, Rouyn and Kirkland Lake. They will visit particularly some of the younger properties, including Arntfield which is at present installing the first 250-ton unit of a one thousand ton per day milling plant, and Birrell Gold Mines property, one of the outstanding developments of the Noranda section of Quebec. The Arntfield property is located 9 miles west of Noranda and the Birrell property 5 miles to the north. The trip will also include a trip through some of the big gold producers of Kirkland Lake.

FARM MARKET BUYING HEAVY

Eggs Register Rise, Hit 30 Cents, Potatoes 90 Cents Bag—Chickens 18-22.

HORSES SELL WELL.

The farmers' market overflowed with produce this morning but buying was slow and prices, according to some of the patrons, were kept at a fairly high rate.

Eggs registered a sharp rise over quotations of a week ago. They had a range all the way from 17 to 30 cents a dozen. The high price was for choice, large specimens, but the low was for regular-sized eggs. Pullets' eggs at another counter sold for 20 cents a dozen.

Cream was selling at 25 and 30 cents a pint, butter was priced from 20 to 23 cents a pound and chickens from 18 to 22 cents a pound, with hens at 15 cents.

Potatoes were 15 and 20 cents a peck and 90 cents a bag. One man had the Early Rose brand, with red coloring under the skin of the spuds which their owner described as being very tasty.

Tomatoes were 20 and 25 cents a basket and 60 cents a bushel; green tomatoes 15 cents a basket; cauliflower, 5 and 10 cents apiece; broccoli and endive 5 cents a bunch; little white pickling onions 15 cts. a quart; small melons, 5 and 10 cts. each; white winter radish a nickel each; Golden Bantam corn, 15 cts. a dozen; Brussels sprouts, 3 quarts for 25 cents.

Sweet eating apples and Alexandras were 25 cents a peck and Wealthies 30 cents.

Unusual offerings were slender 'long green' cucumbers, selling at 60 cents a basket; little 'second-growth' cabbages that resembled tiny head lettuce, butternuts, offered at 5 cents in quart boxes, and striped 'banana' or 'potato' squash at 5 cents each.

The lower entrance was filled this morning with the pungent, winey smell of grapes. And other accessories to the making of winter wines were elderberries, wild grapes and chokecherries, although the wine-making properties of the latter are obscured to a certain extent recently by their use as a foundation for jelly.

Crabapples were 15 cents a basket and a large truck from Wooller was packed with oblong watermelons, selling anywhere from a nickel to a quarter apiece. Late red raspberries were 15 cents a quart.

In the basket section, pure goose down was $1 a pound.

Flowers were plentiful everywhere. Lovely bouquets of gladioli, dahlias, zinnias, cosmos and helenium could be bought from a nickel to 20 cents. A pure combination of color that was beautiful was noticed in the loveliness of a mass of yellow gladioli and purple Michaelmas daisies.

The auctioneer had a crowd for his sale of horses. A big, good-looking bay brought $79, two blacks sold at $76 and $85 each, and a fine grey horse was sold at $117. Not so long ago on the market, it was practically impossible to get a bid in a horse sale.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—(C.P.)—In the usual light trading of a short Saturday session, prices remained in lower territory on the Montreal stock exchange at the close to-day.

Canadian Pacific was steady at 12¾. International Nickel gained ¼ at 23¾. Dominion Coal Preferred reversed its upward trend of the past week and dipped three points from yesterday's high, closing to-day at 91. Consolidated Smelting was off ⅛ at 125½. Dominion Textile preferred, in its first board lot appearance in some months, lost five points at 125.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—(CP)—Industrial shares exhibited a little more buoyancy in the closing session of the week with trading however in the same slow action that has marked them for some days. Two of the oil stocks, Imperial and International Petroleum along with International Nickel were in some demand at slightly higher prices but quietness ruled over the rest of the board.

Ford 'A' strengthened a half point to 19 on small turnover and Consolidated Smelters added a fraction while C.P.R. and Brazilian closed unchanged.

Distillery issues slowed down only Distillers Seagrams showing anything like normal business. It closed ¾ point higher at 14 while Walkers also added ½ and Canadian Industrial Alcohol at ½.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(A.P.)—Signs of resistance appeared in today's brief stock market session, but most rallying efforts were a bit feeble. The list was aided by some week-end short covering. Further weakness of a few leaders clouded sentiment. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 330,000 shares.

TORONTO MINING

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (C.P.) — A mild rally developed in the mining section of the Toronto Exchange today with buying active in the golds. Selling of Teck Hughes appears to have dried up to a considerable extent and the price was able to stage a moderate recovery, closing at 4.95 for a net gain of 15 cents.

The bulk of the morning turnover was in the cheaper golds including Central Patricia, Read Authier, McKenzie and Sylvanite and these all came through at steady or slightly higher prices.

The big gold group ws higher on slow trading, Dome adding $1, Lake Shore 75 cents and Wright Hargreaves 15 cents, Hollinger 35. Pioneer lost about $1.

MEN OF TO-DAY UGLIEST EVER

Worship Sport But Fail to Maintain Own Vitality.

VIEW OF EDUCATIONIST.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — A visiting educationist, M. Rousseau, at a conference here, declared that men of to-day are about the ugliest they have ever been. He wanted the learned men before him to give 10 or 15 minutes of their day to physical exercise—best of all by themselves—under some pine tree commanding, perhaps, the most glorious view in the world as they greet the rising sun.

"I am no nature doctor, no physical culturist, and no nudist, though I have done my daily dozen for years now and I believe in their inclusion in our daily lives as a habit as essential to well being as washing ourselves or cleaning our teeth.

"Take a look at an average crowd of city workers pouring out from a railway station or the crowds that gather to see our football gladiators. There is hardly a good-looking, vital, alive man among them. They worship sport, many of them, but their worship is conducted along the wrong ideals.

"The rest do not know what it is to extend their bodies to tune them to their full power and zest. They have never known the grace to which their bodies are capable. The slouch, the indifferent carriage, the hang-dog expression are the heritage of men too long now absorbed with the brain's development. That, and the drab stereotyped clothing men confine their bodies in, has helped to destroy the physical magnificence of man. We can save it, yet if we can recapture the old ideals of those Greek athletes."

EXPERT SHOWS HOW TO SMOKE

FORM CARBON RING

By GUY E. RHOADES.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP).—Roy Brigham has been making and repairing pipes for 29 years and he says only about one man in 100 knows how to smoke correctly. The rest spoil their pipes almost as fast as they buy them.

Most men, says Brigham, are "wet smokers," that is they get their pipes in such a state they will not dry out the moisture in the tobacco, but permit it to get into the stem of the pipe through vaporization. The pipe-maker's recipe for successful and consistently pleasaurable smoking makes that accomplishment a considerable art.

Any pipe, Brigham declares, can be burned on the inside in five or six smokes by a person who overheats the bowl the first few times. His method of avoiding this burning is to fill the pipe only about one-third full the first few times it is smoked and start a carbon ring forming inside the bowl from the bottom. After that, he says, the smoker should gradually fill the bowl more fully till the tobacco reaches the top. By that time a carbon ring has formed evenly all the way up the bowl.

The carbon ring, Brigham says, conducts the heat evenly down the pipe and dries out the tobacco so that "wet smoking" is avoided. Before a pipe is smoked at all, though, Brigham thinks, it is a good idea to "grease" the inside with honey.

Foul pipes, he says, are caused by gradual seepage of condensation into the stem until it reaches the mouthpiece of the pipe when it flows easily to the orifice and into the smoker's mouth. The remedy is to blow backward into the pipe at the end of each smoke, forcing the condensation into the bowl where it can be cleaned out.

The part of the pipe that fouls is between the bowl and the mouthpiece where the condensation collects and ferments making a "filthy mess". That can be cleaned out with a small application of chloroform.

Getting Cool Smoke

Brigham's pride is an inner tube for a pipe that he claims will enable a smoker to use the same pipe a lifetime without having it become foul. It works on this principle. The coolness of a smoke is governed by the dsitance the smoke travels from the bowl through wood, not through hard rubber mouthpieces, amber or any other such substance.

Brigham's inner tube is of aluminum alloy with a core of Austrian cherry. It fits into the pipe and slides back to the bowl and almost to the end of the mouthpiece, adding two inches or so to the length of wood through which the smoke can travel. It can be thrown away when it become foul.

One pipe, equipped with such a tube and used in accordance with his rules, Brigham says, will last a man as long as he lives.

RAINBOW TAKES AN EARLY LEAD

Breeze Favors Rainbow

At 11:45 a.m. E.S.T. Rinbow, apparently favored by a two-point shift in the breeze to eastward appeared to have recovered the lead as they left the Vineyard Sound Lightship to port.

However, they were still a long way from the mark and it appeared doubtful if either could fetch it without taking another tack at least. At this time the breeze had freshened to about nine knots.

The slight shift of wind seemed to help Rainbow immensely for at 12:10 p.m. E.S.T. after coming on the starboard tack and crossing Endeavour's bow, the defender tacked again and took up a position directly ahead of Endeavour and six length in the lead. From that point it appeared that both yachts could fetch the turning point at the halfway mark of their 30-mile windward and leeward course without another tack.

Rainbow and Endeavour were standing in close to Cuttyhunk Island on the starboard tack at 12:30 p.m. E.S.T. Rainbow was improving her lead over Endeavour in addition to being comfortably ahead. She had worked considerably to windward of the challenger. The breeze had lightened somewhat.

The committee's tug which put out to the turning mark was standing by the mark about six miles away sending up puffs of smoke but under the mild conditions prevailing the yachts should require nearly an hour to reach it.

Spectators Follow

At 12.37 p.m. E.S.T. both yachts tacked off Cutty-Hunk Island. They came about almost simultaneously and began a broad reach away from Elizabeth Islands. They should make the turning mark on this tack unless the tide set them down. The great spectator fleet circled the horison and apparently few, if any, of the boats that put from Newport had quit the fleet. The weather conditions were ideal for small craft, light air and a smooth sea. Many small yachts were intermingled among the palatial yachts of millionaires.

At 12:50 p.m. E.S.T. Endeavour doused her Genoa jib and set a double head rig quadrilateral or Garbo and stay-sail. That was the rig in which she approached the starting line but abandoned about one minute before crossing the line. She continued trailing the defender by about eight boat lengths.

Quiet Contest

Even from the start the race was not an exciting contest. Many of the preliminary races furnished better sailing exhibitions. This was largely due to the fact that the contenders to-day held on long boards and seldom tacked close enough together to demonstrate their relative positions.

At 12:53 p.m., E.S.T., the boats came about again, going over on the starboard tack. Apparently they were encountering trouble from the tide and light air for they were failing to make good their course to any great degree and both were headed back toward Cuttyhunk again.

At 1:02 p.m., E.S.T., both came about again, returning to the port tack but it remained questionable if they would be able to fetch the mark up to this point. The boats appeared nearly evenly matched for Rainbow's lead approximated Endeavours disadvantage at the start.

NICHOLS ALIMONY ACTION DEFERRED

Temporary Settlement Removes Case From Court.

Temporary settlement of Mrs. Irean Nichols' alimony action against her husband, Gordon C. Nichols, was agreed upon yesterday following a consultation of counsel in the case with Mr. Justice Henderson.

All the evidence in the plaintiff's case had been heard when G. N. Gordon, K.C., acting for Mrs. Nichols, suggested that some arrangement might be made. "There is no use widening the breach, although any effort at reconciliation is hopeless," he said.

W. J. Arthur Fair, counsel for the defendant, agreed to a consultation with His Lordship.

The Examiner was informed by the counsel that the alimony action was shelved temporarily, the father to obtain custody of his son, Calvin aged 11, and to finance the supervision and maintenance of his two daughters.

TRAILED BY MISFORTUNE, FAMOUS CANADIAN AUTHOR CREATOR OF "ANNE OF GREEN GABLES" CONTINUES WORK

M. Montgomery Gets Nothing for Movie Rights—Husband Has Recovered From Accidental Poisoning

By ARTHUR B. HARPAM
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

NORVAL, Ont., Sept. 15.—Seventeen books from the virile pen of Mrs. Ewan MacDonald, world famous as L. M. Montgomery, creator of 'Anne of Green Gables," have thrilled more than two million reader. But it was not until a few days ago that she herself became the central figure in a poignant drama.

An almost tragic mishap occurred when her husband, Rev. Ewan Macdonald, was accidentally poisoned. Fortunately he is now completely recovered.

Sold Dramatic Rights

At the R.K.O. studios in Hollywood, her famous novel "Anne of Green Gables,' 'the story that has thrilled countless thousands the world over, the book that has been translated into many different languages, is being filmed. Doubtless the profits from its production will be great.

L. M. Montgomery, the author, will not receive a red cent for it. In 1919, before the motion picture industry had achieved its present greatness, she sold out the dramatic rights to the book.

Though she will receive no remuneration, Mrs. MacDonald treasures an autographed picture she received from 16-year-old Anne Shirley, who plays the leading role. Mrs. MacDonald thinks the charming girl actress is well chosen to play the part of the red-haired child whom Mark Twain called "the most delightful creation of child life since the immortal Alice.

"Anne" has made Mrs. MacDonald as dear to the hearts of girls as was Louisa May Alcott and the delightful freshness and simplicity of her books giveh them a never-failing charm. Sixteen are set in Prince Edward Island, but one, "The Blue Castle," in which her favorite cat Good Luck, is depicted, has its location in Muskoka.

Rejected Five Times

Incredible though it may seem, publishers five times rejected the book that was to make her famous, and for four years the manuscript collected dust in the attic of the McNeil homestead at Cavendish, Prince Edward Island, where she lived with her grandmother. One day while spring cleaning she found it in a corner and became so interested in the story that she completely forgot the work she had come to do. For the sixth time she submitted the book, sending it to a Boston publisher. Fortunately one of his readers was from Prince Edward Island, and she became so interested in the vivid portrayal of the homesteads and country schools woods and orchards, wild rose hedges, the song of the salt sea air, long red roads and fieldstone dykes of one of the loveliest islands in the world that she persuaded him to "take a chance." And on June 29, 1908, "Anne of Green Gables" made her debut.

"Writing a book and making love are alike in that you don't know how it is done," smiled Mrs. MacDonald when asked if she had any "formula" for successful writing. "I just allow the story to grow in my mind, and I am always sorry when I finish a book. Making your characters live is the secret of writing a successful book," she commented.

The day of horrible realism is over," Mrs. MacDonald continued. "People are finding a few fairy tales. There is just as much realism in a rose garden as in a pile of manure."

Started at Age of Nine

A firm believer in "happy endings," Mrs. MacDonald, whose kindly face still retains a fair share of her youthful loveliness, started her career by writing verse at the age of nine. There was so little paper available for her ideas that she used the letter bills from the mail bags which went through the post-office kept by her grandfather. As a reward for her first literary effort, a magazine allowed her to pick seeds to the value of 50 cents!

She has just signed a contract for the dramatization of her only love story, "The Blue Castle," and is now working on a sequel to "Pat of Silver Bush." After she broke with her original publishers in 1919 she successfully sued them for publishing some of her writings, carrying the case, which lasted nine years, to the supreme court of the United States.

Married 21 years ago and mother of two handsome sons, Chester, who is studying law in Toronto, and Stuart, junior gymnastic champion of Canada, who is in his first year in medicine at Toronto University, Mrs. MacDonald thinks the modern girl is "very much like she used to be; perhaps today she says the things we always thought." In every age, she remarked, there is a certain proportion of "high fliers, but present-day girls, generally speaking, will ultimately settle down to the responsibilities of marriages," she felt.

Mrs. MacDonald confessed that when she was a girl she always read boys' books. "I can't stick the pure and simple love story," she exclaimed. "I like to read about adventure."

Criticizes Canadian Authors

The reason Canada appears to neglect some of her native authors is because their books are not interesting enough, she declared. "Too many books are being turned out without any special appeal, but the Canadian public is quick to appreciate a good book."

Mrs. MacDonald worked hard to achieve international renown. Most of her books have been translated into Danish, Swedish, Dutch, Polish, French and Braille. Australia shows as much enthusiasm as Canada and the United States over her work. There is a mother superior in an Australian convent who is so impressed with her books that every night she kneels in the chapel and prays that some day she may become a Roman Catholic. "Her letter touched me deeply," said Mrs. MacDonald.

One of the first of the hundreds of letters received which Mrs. MacDonald received after "Anne of Green Gables" was first published was from a Roman Catholic priest who wrote that he was taking the book with him to a retreat for nuns in the south of England. He explained the nuns were not supposed to read secular books, but thinking they would enjoy "Anne," he had secured a special dispensation in order that he might give it to them.

Children Hardest to Please

Children are the hardest readers in the world to write for, in the opinion of Canada's most famous woman novelist. "They are not the kindest of critics, and you can't put things over them," she remarked. "Stories must ring true if they are going to attract children."

Mrs. MacDonald was 15 when her first story was published in a competition run by the Montreal Witness. After attending Prince of Wales college, Charlottetown, she taught school and taught music for three years, and then began writing in real earnest following a year's course in English at Dalhousie College, Halifax. Boarding in a very cold farmhouse, she managed to get up at 6 a.m. and with fingers blue with cold would struggle to write her quota for the day. After the death of her grandfather in 1898 she went to stay with her grandmother, and by 1901 was carving out a niche for herself in the literary world.

Those who interview Mrs. MacDonlad feel something of the bright, imaginative spirit of "Anne of Green Gables," who also inspired her to write "Anne's House of Dreams," "Rainbow Valley," and "Rilla of Ingleside." "Emily" was another lovable character created in "Emily of the New Moon," the first of a series including "Emily Climbs," and "Emily's Quest." "Magic of Marigold," "The Tangled Web," "Pat of Silver Bush" and "The Blue Castle" followed.

In the successes of Mrs. MacDonald, Good Luck, her 11-year-old cat, has had his full share. "I couldn't keep house without him, and he occasionally rewards me with a rat," she said.

Probably no Canadian ever wrote a book no created a character more famous than "Anne of Green Gables," by L. M. Montgomery, who in private life is Mrs. Ewan MacDonald (CENTRE). Mrs. MacDonald is now living in Norval, Ont., where she is busy on a new novel. Hollywood is producing "Anne of Green Gables", starring 16-year-old Anne Shirley (LEFT). For the movie production the author receives nothing, having sold dramatic rights to her book to the publishers in 1919. Mrs. Montgomery is, however, pleased with the choice of Anne Shirley to play the leading role and treasures an autographed photo of Miss Shirley. The note written by Miss Shirley is shown above. O. P. Heggie, another actor in the cast (LOWER RIGHT), also sends his regards to the author. Rev. Ewan MacDonald, husband of author (LOWER CENTRE). He was recently accidentally poisoned, but is now recovered. Mrs. MacDonald is seen again at RIGHT with her favorite cat "Good Luck".

Diphtheria Control

(By T. P. McCULLOUGH, M.D.)

Diphtheria is the major health problem of the child under ten years old. In the last thirty years the mortality from this affection has dropped about 38 per cent. In spite of this reduction there are about 13,500 cases and 1200 deaths from diphtheria every year in Canada. If the modern methods for its control were adequately applied the disease would disappear in a few years or at least its incidence and evil consequences would soon become negligible.

Up to 1855 diphtheria and 'croup', its laryngeal form, were called "synanche maligne or synanche trachealis." The lessening of its ravages dates from the introduction of antitoxin in 1894. It is more prevalent in the colder climates, and in the months from November to January, commonest in children under ten years of age and most fatal in those under five, city children being in greater danger than those in rural areas.

Cause of Diphtheria

Diphtheria occurs only as the result of infection with a germ called the diphtheria bacillus, a parasite of man, whose life outside the human body is a matter only of a few hours or days. Every case of diphtheria then represents the transference of the diphtheria bacillus to the infected individual from some other person. This other person need not actually be ill of diphtheria, the fact is that "carriers" of virulent diphtheria are about ten times as numerous as are clinical cases of diphtheria, and besides this, carriers of non-virulent diphtheria are about three times as numerous as virulent carriers.

What Protects Carriers

If the germ is a virulent one it is obvious that the individual must possess some kind of immunity to the disease—something that either restrains the growth of the germ or overcomes its effect. In most cases the existence of such immunity can be proven by demonstrating the presence in the blood of diphtheria antitoxin in sufficient quantity to neutralize the toxin or poison of the disease. This procedure is called the Schick Test, and by this test those children susceptible to diphtheria can readily be picked out. If the test is positive the child is liable to contract diphtheria, if negative he is practically secure against an attack of diphtheria. New-born infants usually have an immunity to diphtheria, which gradually disappears. At six months to a year nearly 100 per cent are susceptible and from this age the proportion of immunes increases steadily with age, reaching 70 to 80 per cent in adults.

Diphtheria Infection.

The infection of diphtheria from an actual case or from a virulent carrier is rather direct, the usual period of incubation being from one to six days. The lodging place is the nose or throat and the fever, rapid pulse, sore throat with membrane and other symptoms are due to a toxin or poison which develops from the activity of the germ itself. "Carriers" that is, well persons who carry the germs, are rather common among young children, particularly in the schools of large cities, it being estimated that from 1-4 to 1-3 of such children harbour virulent diphtheria bacilli during the course of a single year. It is estimated also that in large cities more than 50 per cent of children have acquired the infection before reaching the age of 10 years. For the most part the result of this infection is the development, not of the disease, but of immunity without symptoms. Perhaps only about one in ten actually have diphtheria.

Why Do Some Children and Not Others Acquire Immunity?

It may be that some children are deficient in the power of producing antitoxin, others may have received a large dose of bacilli or it may be that the germs acquired are less virulent in some instances. Susceptibility, dosage, and virulence are probably the determining factors in causing the disease.

There is less diphtheria in tropical countries, among negroes and in rural areas. In the country there is less opportunity for contact than in cities, and in hot countries the inhabitants either possess a higher degree of natural immunity, or the vacillus loses its virulence because of the heat.

The Diphtheria Bacillus, Toxin and Antitoxin

The germs of diphtheria was discovered in 1883 by Edward Klebs, who with Loeffler demonstrated in the following year that it was the cause of diphtheria. Because of this discovery the germs is called the Klebs-Loeffler bacilus. The toxin is the poison excreted by the bacillus. This was discovered by Roux and Yersin in 1888 and 1889 diphtheria antitoxin was discovered by Behring. Both the toxin and antitoxin can readily be separated in the blood, measured and standardized. Both are expressed in units—a unit of toxin being the amount necessary to kill a guinea pig of standard weight in three or four days. This is called the minimum lethal dose. Having found this we may begin the preparation of antitoxin.

In the preparation of antitoxin the horse is used because this animal when injected with toxin develops large amounts of antitoxin. Horses are given, by injections under the skin, increasing doses of diphtheria toxin. The first dose is very small and at the same time to guard against too severe a reaction, antitoxin is also given. At each dose the amount of toxin is increased. The rapidity of increase is guaged by the temperature, reaction, a febrile condition demanding slower progress. The final doses of toxin are from 400 to 800 times as large as the first. These cause little or disturbance because the animal has protected itself by the elaboration of antitoxin. Some horses form antitoxin more rapidly than others.

AIRFLOW CAR WINS A BEAUTY CONTEST

Competing against 75 cars of the world's leading makes, a Chrysler Airflow Sedan, driven by Mrs. Margretta S. Dietrich of 519 Canyon Road, Santa Fe, New Mexico, recently won first prize in an automobile show held in Czecho-Slovakia.

The Airflow Sedan was purchased through the Poe Motor Company, Santa Fe Chrysler dealer, and Mrs. Dietrich took delivery on it at the factory in May. With Miss Alice Brook, also of Santa Fe, she shipped it to Europe for a tour of the Continent.

It so happened that the American women tourists were in Czechoslovakia when the automobile show was scheduled, so with no more preparation than a wash and polish they entered their Airflow. The judgment of the committee on awards was unanimous that the Airflow car was entitled to first prize for appearance.

Incidentaly, in announcing the award the "Pestry Tyden" described the Americans as from Santa Fe, "Argentine". However, in view of the scrambling that has come to European geography in the last 20 years one hardly can blame the editor for missing a locality by a few thousand miles.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Olive Tedford, Lindsay, Ont.

Your handwriting shows a very charming nature. You are pleasant and friendly, generous and sympathetic. You seem to have an excellent understanding of human nature.

You are sensitive about expressing your opinions. Yet your intelligent ideas are worth listening to.

When you once really make up your mind about anything, you see it through.

The dotting of your 'i's' reflect a positive characteristic. Your capitals suggest interest in artistic talents. Your own hands are clever and should afford you much pleasure in the creation of objects of charm.

Your birthsign is Aquarius the Man, which governs all those who are born between January 21st and February 18th. You are ruled by Uranus. April and August are your lucky months. Saturday your most fortunate day.

Jean Weir,
215 Dublin St., City.

Your handwriting reveals you as intelligent, thoughtful, refined, gracious and well poised.

You are gifted with a fine imagination which is of the instructive type.

You are decided and quite ambitious, but your ambitions are not selfish. You seem to desire success for those who are near and dear to you, more than you wish it for yourself.

You are given to fits of generosity which should endear you to numerous friends.

You are above all else genuine, openhearted and honest. Firm in your convictions. Loyal in love and sincere in friendship.

231 Dublin St., City.

The handwriting which you have submitted for analysis discernes you as most discreet. You are logical, yet lively. You enjoy, fun, but you also enjoy quiet. You are not argumentative, but still you do like to make your point of view clear, and have it accepted as fact.

The very small letter formations indicate a desire to keep personal affairs to yourself. You can keep a confidence to perfection.

The manner in which your letters seem to lean too far forward is a significant reflection, for it bespeaks the brain of a rapid thinker, and it also denotes an ability to undertake work of literary nature, should you so desire.

You are quite choice in your friendship, and want your acquaintances to measure up to a certain standard before you accept them as true friends.

Sonja Bremner,
23 Macgregor Ave.,
Toronto, Ontario.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample illustrates that you have a very refined and genteel nature. You are well poised and distinguished. You abhor strife of any nature and you are quite artistic. You seem to enjoy travel for the mental recreation which it brings and to desire to learn all that you possibly can as you progress from day to day.

You are reserved and can be secretive. Your capital letter 'B' describes art, so no doubt you are interested in one line of artistic endeavour, perhaps as a hobby. You are discriminating in manner of dress and speech. You should be easily able to comprehend the science of languages.

If you have not thought of this, up to the present date, it would be a very interesting study for the future. Your general character is most enchanting.

Catherine Byers, 617 George St., City.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis represents you as a rather youthful person, not quite set in your mannerisms or your ambitions.

You seem to be a little too hasty at times when making decisions, yet you are truthful and honestly desire to do the right thing.

You are a nervous person, and no doubt this tendency has a lot to do with the way you hurry over things that you have to do. However, although you are changeable, you are agreeable and can adapt yourself to the will of others.

One of your type should try to cultivate flowers, it would give you something about which to think definitely from day to day. You would know that their very sustenance depended upon your capacity to remember to water them, lift the soil, keep them free from undue cold, etc.

Your large capital letters show that you might let yourself become too generous sometimes, so try to guard against this tendency as you grow older.

In order to answer your other questions I should have to see you personally. It is not wise to present your intimate problems to the world at large.

Gordon R. Farthing, 816 Water St., City.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample reveals tender characteristics and a loving, honest nature. You are inclined to be led too easily by others who are more dominating than you are. This is because you do not wish to cause strife, and so permit decisions whatsoever in preference to disturbances.

You are a little too modest in your own estimation sometimes it repays one for one's efforts to bring forward as it were a 'pet hobby' and nuture it, for in this age, 'Seeing is Believing'.

The last formation in your surname creates an impression that you often (almost) divulge your secret ambition, then become reserved, and put it off till another time.

The letters with their long strokes and curved crossings show that you have imagination, but not enough determination with which to carry out the dictates of that imagination.

The manner in which your letters lean forward in some of the words depicts impulse and enthusiasm.

Your disposition is fairly even, but you do like to do your own thinking.

Your handwriting shows that you are versatile and undecided.

There is a tendency which leads me to believe that you like mechanics, but I am afraid that you would find it necessary to settle down to one special line of endeavour if you really want to make a success of your life. You see, your 't' bar crossings are so different in size and pressure that it reflects undetermined will power. You are too prone to listen to the foolish advice of others who wish to meddle in your affairs.

Don't do it. Live your own life. You can. And you will be successful, too!

You forgot to give me your birth date, so I am unable to give you a number or horoscope.

The answer to the other questions in your letter is a matter of adjustment which only you can determine. I think I have answered you as logically as possible in the first half of this delineation.

Suzanne Hilton, 600 Harvey St., City.

Your handwriting associates you with the business world, as one belonging to the executive type, one who can plan agreeably for others to execute, but who will not allow unnecessary interference in the attainment thereof. It is imperative that your work be carried out in meticulous order and detail. You have a propensity to furnish admonition when essential, with the utmost perspicacity, therefore, the temperament noted in the formation of some letters is expressive of keen, quick decision, if at times a trifle sharp.

You are logical and understand how to manage your own affairs, and you are not aggressive or arrogant but you do like a little praise for work well done.

You have every symbol of success in your writing and should make rapid strides in that direction, from day to day. The fact that you loop your capitals is expressive of a keen desire to be understood at all times.

The very small letter formations in the first name tells of a reserve and secretiveness peculiar to one of your type.

WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS BABIES NOW HAVE PRIVATE HOSPITAL ALL TO THEMSELVES

Here is the new Dafoe hospital for the Dionne quintuplets all ready for the most talked of babies in the world, and a picture of Annette, one of the healthiest of the babies, with Nurse Yvonne Leroux tenderly placing her in the specially built crib. Shortly, all five babies will be enjoying the comfort of their new airy room in the hospital.

By E. M. GUNDY
(Central Press Canadian Staff Writer).

CALLANDER, Ont., Sept. 15.—The most talked of babies in the world to-day have a new home—a private hospital constructed through donations received from all parts of the globe.

The news of the birth of quintuplet baby girls to Elzira Dionne at 4.00 a.m., May 28, electrified the world. The fact that they are living and thriving to-day is causing increasing attention to be focussed upon the little Northern Ontario farmhouse. Donations have poured in, the Ontario government has appointed official guardians to take charge of the babies' welfare—and the result is the Dafoe hospital for the Dionne quintuplets, named after Dr. A. R. Dafoe, Callander practitioner who has doctored the babies from birth.

The hospital, standing just opposite the Dionne home, is snugly constructed with electric light, steam heating, and all modern conveniences. It is built strongly with basement walls three feet thick, house walls well insulated, rooms for nurses, kitchen, bathroom, and best of all, with windows on three sides—a large room for the babies themselves.

The babies' room faces the east, at the front of the hospital where light and sun can pour in to do its life-giving work, all day long. A glass partition separates the large room so that the nurse can take care of one of the babies at a time, while, on the other side of the partition the four other babies sleep. A sun porch opens to the east off the babies' room, where they can have their daily sun baths undisturbed, and within easy reach of the nurse on duty inside.

The public which has made the hospital possible, has not been forgotten. From the entrance hall at the side of the building a large glass window has been constructed, looking right into the large nursery room. All authorized visitors in future will be able to see the babies as they sleep and play in the nursery.

Dr. Dafoe has frequently declared that the reason for the continued life and good health of the babies has been the location of the Dionne farm, miles from civilisation with its smoke and soot and germs. The Dafoe hospital has been constructed on the scene of the babies' birth for this reason, despite the fact that the doctor may have to struggle in the long winter days ahead to make his daily visit.

The hospital is complete, but the babies will not be transferred until the end of September at the earliest, allowing plenty of time for the plaster to dry and their new home made snug and comfortable for them.

PLANS ARE LAID NORWOOD FAIR

$2,250 Offered in Premiums, Also $350 in Special Prizes.

OCTOBER 9TH AND 10TH.

NORWOOD, Sept. 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—The directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society met Friday afternoon, Sept. 7, to make arrangements for the annual Exhibition to be held in Norwood October 9 and 10. There was a good attendance, with the president, Gilbert J. Elmhurst, presiding. This is the society's 66th annual fair, and with the favor of the weatherman, the management hopes it will live up to its past reputation as one of the best county fairs in Eastern Ontario.

Twenty-two hundred and fifty dollars are offered in premiums, with special cash prizes cup and goods to the value of approximately $350.00. The society in conjunction with the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, are sponsoring a Boys' Calf Club this year, to which $60 in prizes are offered also a special prize to the Boys' Swine Club of 1933.

With the usual full list of entries in all classes of livestock and agricultural products, together with three trotting races, a horse-shoe pitching tournament, a better babies' competition and other specials, the board hopes to have a very successful 1934 fair.

A representative of the A. E. Wilson Insurance Company was present and addressed the meeting re accident insurance, and after some discussion a policy was accepted for the two days of the fair, which also gave protection to the board one day previous and one day following the fair.

A letter from Mr. Runions re some suggestions in regard to the exhibit of the Calf Club. Mr. W. G. Barrie was appointed to assist Mr. Runions in carrying out his program.

A communication from the Norwood Citizens' Band, offering their services for fair day was left in the hands of Messrs. Grover Bailey and the secretary to deal with the same. Judges for the various classes were decided on as follows:

Light horses, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough; heavy horses, A. E. Webster, Oakwood; beef cattle, Chas. Westlake, Peterborough; dairy cattle, Alex. Hume Campbellford; sheep and swine, J. R. Kelsey; poultry, Mr. Crosby; domestic products, Mrs. Clarence Mann, Peterborough; dairy products, G. A. Gillespie, Peterborough; Roots and vegetables, A. Parker, Hastings; grains, Mr. Johnston; fruit, Walter Smith, Brighton; ladies' work, Miss E. Hopkins, Lindsay; house plants, C. H. Williamson, Peterborough; better babies, Dr. McDonald and Mrs. Breckenridge; horse races, Arthur Blade; alternative, Fred Stade.

It was decided to use the same kind of advertising bills as last year and also use cards to indicate 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes.

Committees were appointed to look after the supply of water and straw for the stock and arrange for midway. Mr. Tedford was appointed to interview the road foreman on No. 7 highway, between Norwood and Peterborough and endeavour to have the second day of the fair a holiday, which would also leave a better road condition for visitors attending the fair.

The directors are holding an old-time bee on Monday, October 1, to make ready the grounds and sheds and attend to other details. For any information regarding the fair communicate with Miss Jean F. Roxburgh, Secretary-Treasurer, Norwood, Ont.

GEORGE HENRY MAY LOSE POST

ty council and asked for an investigation. The council referred the matter to the directors. Members of the Welfare Council appeared before us twice and before we made our report went to the Provincial Welfare Department and asked for an investigation. It was granted shortly after."

From R. O. Stiver, of Unionville, a director for the past five years, came the following comment; "All the members of the board shouldn't be tarred with the same stick. The charges against the society when first presented were virtually taken away from the directors. We didn't know such conditions existed. When the charges were made Mr. Henry said he would investigate them himself and I believe, consulted with Col. Little. Of course our finances were delorably insufficient."

Had No Chance

Both Douglas Webster of Weston and Dr. W. J. Stephenson of Aurora, two other directors of the society, stressed the point that they had been appointed only this year, after the charges had been made, and that they had not been in a position to deal with them. Both concurred in Mr. Henry's claim that the society's chief difficulty lay in its lack of finances.

The investigation has been under way sporadically for the last six months. The presentation of evidence was completed Thursday and Judge Parker announced that if Col. Little, who had not testified wished to to so he would be granted the opportunity the following day. When the court met yesterday morning and Col. Little, is holidaying at Stoney Lake, had not appeared, an adjournment was made until 2.30 p.m. Col. Little failed to arrive for the afternoon session and the arguments were presented by the counsel, J. M. Godfrey, K.C., for the commission; R. L. Kellock for the Toronto Child Welfare Council, and J. D. Lucas for Col. Little.

MARTHA CHARD, HAVELOCK CAR VICTIM, IMPROVES

HAVELOCK, Sept. 15.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The condition of little nine-year old Martha Chard who was seriously injured when hit by an automobile on Ottawa street on Tuesday evening this week is reported as being improved and when she regained consciousness yesterday afternoon she wanted to know what it was all about. It was at first feared the skull was fractured.

TRADE UNIONS WIND UP PARLEY

day. The following day on the invitation of Ontario's labor minister, Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck, P. M. Draper, secretary-treasure of the congress, and a committee conferred with the Hydro Commission with the result that a settlement was reached.

Two other features of the convention were labor's new policy of a shorter work week. Instead of the former demand for a 40-hour week it substituted a six-day week with a five-hour-day working period. Then it urged an interprovincial conference to arrange for uniformity of laws in attaining the desired end.

Labors stand on industrial codes was the other notable event. At the opening of the convention on Monday Mr. Roebuck forecasted codes for Ontario. A report to the convention on the minimum wage and codes approved of the idea providing trade unionism's right to collective bargaining remained intact.

The convention dealt with 122 resolutions covering the entire field of Canadian economic life. Among these were demands for the abolition of one-man street cars, prohibition of immigration and revision of Canada's alien labor law. Labor also strongly reiterated its stand in favor of contributory unemployment insurance.

Opposition to both communism and fascism was pronounced and an alleged communist from Montreal was refused recognition as a delegate.

"East Is East, And West Is West"

Kipling said, "And never the twain shall meet." Mala, Arctic-born star of the films, shatters the oft-quoted saying. The Alaskan who was once a guide and companion to Knut-Rasmussen, Arctic explorer, met the turtle-necked woman of Burma at a circus in Los Angeles, to bring east and west together. While Mala has travelled far and wide, these ladies seldom step beyond the limits of their tiny village in Padaung, Burma. Left to right, the three shown are Mu Ba, Mala, and Mu Prao.

Island—Something Surrounded By Water

When a deluge of rain assuming torrential proportions descended on Central Ontario, cities found their sewers overloaded and unable to carry off the surplus water. Puddles grew into small lakes in some city streets. Above is shown a "casualty" at Brantford, Ontario, where a motorist misjudged the depth of water gathered in the hollow under the railway bridge and found himself stranded halfway across.

Stephen Haboush At St. Paul's

A native Galilean shepherd will speak at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Sunday at 11 a.m. On the following Wednesday, September 19, at 8 p.m., under the auspices of the Fraser Auxiliary of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, he and Madam Haboush with two young men assistants will present the Musical Travelogue, "The Seven Wonders of Jerusalem and Galilee.'

It is a far cry from the ancient hills of Galilee, and the pastoral life of the people there, to the dynamic days of the modern present in civilized North America, but those two extremes are covered in the span of life of Stephen A. Haboush, a shepherd from Galilee, who has brough to the West the story of Galilee and Palestine, told as only one who was born there can tell it.

Mr. Habousch is a native Galilean and North American citizen. He was born on the hills about the Sea of Galilee and in his youth tended his father's flock of sheep, just as every Galilean boy has done since the days when the Master walked among men. He came to North America and worked his way through an American University. Recently he returned to the land of his birth, and there personally took a marvellous motion picture of the scenes of people of Galilee. He has written for magazines and newspapers and spoken before grat audiences in many of the famous churches and schools in America and Canada.

He is the author of "My Shepherd Life in Galilee," and in the book review of The Boston Transcript appeared this statement, "He enters into the feeling of the most famous bit of the world's devotional literature with insight and charm."

Mr. Habousch's Travelogues on Galilee and Palestine are a distinct contribution to North American letters and to modern thought. They breathe the very life and mysticism of the ancient East. Part of it is delivered in native costume, the same costume worn by native Galileans in the days of the Bible story.

MRS. ALEXANDER SMITH.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 15.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— The funeral of the late Mrs. Alexander Smith was held from her late home on Ottawa street to the Maple Grove cemetery on Friday and was largely attended by sorrowing friends and relatives from the district. Mrs. Smith died suddenly on Tuesday evening after only three days' illness. Born in Rawdon township in 1863 her parents were John Burkitt and Elizabeth Wellman, pioneers of that district. While still quite young she moved with her parents to Lemrick township. She left Lemrick fifty-six years ago when she married Alexander Smith. Residence was then taken up here, where Mr. Smith followed the life of a railroader for many years.

Besides her sorrowing husband she leaves to mourn her loss, Thomas Henry of Madoc, John Robert of Madoc, George Francis of Lemrick, David Adam of Stirling, Mrs. M. Mabee (Lucy) of Carrying Place, Ont., Mrs. S. Solmes, and a niece, Mrs. Joe Douglas of Jerome street, Peterborough, who Mrs. Smith raised, and Mrs. M. Sargent of Campbellford, daughter of Mrs. Douglas, who Mrs. Smith cared for after the death of her father.

Rev. P. M. Colquhoun officiated at the services. Beautiful floral tributes testified admirably the high esteem in which Mrs. Smith was held.

The pallbearers were: R. Sanderson, E. W. Seeney, J. Kinnaird, of town, R. J. G. Sutherland, J. Edwards and W. Armstrong of Peterborough.

TWEEDS HYDRO RATES TO JUMP

Extra $5 Per Horsepower May Mean Reduction in Staff Salaries Also.

DISSATISFACTION SHOWN.

TWEED, Sept. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—Fred Hindle, chairman of the Tweed Hydro Commission, has expressed himself as being dissatisfied with a recent announcement from the Ontario Hydro Commission, that an increase in horsepower costs will become effective in the near future, insofar as Tweed Hydro-Electric System is concerned.

A communication from the parent body states that the rates will be increased to $63 per h.p.

This automatically means that the rates to local consumers will be increased, with a possibility of a cut in salaries in the ranks of the local Hydro employees. When the system was obsorbed by the municipality in May, 1931, the rate was $46 per h.p. and subsequently it was increased to $56. The new announcement means another addition of $5.

"Even at the rate of $56 the Commission showed a profit," said Mr. Hindle, "and we have been able to pay off six debentures. This year, with increased consumption, the Commission recently communicated with the Ontario Hydro asking for a cut in rates, but, instead, we have been advised that there will be an increase in h.p. rates. This will mean,"o bserved the chairman, "that we will have to increase our local rates from 5½ to 6c per k.w.h. with the alternative of reducing the local staff or cutting the salaries."

The chairman points out that it is no encouragement for municipalities to acquire their own systems if the Ontario body does not co-operate.

"The new Hepburn-appointed Hydro board is certainly not giving us any degree of co-operation here," says Mr. Hindle.

BLAZE DESTROYS BIG STRAW STACK

TWEED, Sept. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—Fire, started by a threshing machine, destroyed a large straw stack on the farm of Wesley Badgely, one mile west of the village of Tweed on Friday morning. Prompt action on the part of the threshers and volunteers from the village prevented the flames from entering and destroying the large steel barn situated near the stack.

It was approximately two years ago that Mr. Badgely had his barn and its contents completely destroyed by fire.

Police made no arrest after investigating an accident on Highway No. 14, north of Springbrook, in which Mrs. Cora Demille of Trenton, driving an automobile owned by George Labrash of Trenton, collided with an auto driven by Burton McMillan of Stirling.

Two crumpled fenders and two disturbed tempers reculted from a collision on the 8th Concession of Rawdon Township between two Toronto cars. D. M. Jones of 40 Latimer Ave., and Harold Baker of 415 Walmer Road; both drivers kept too close to the centre of the road.

LINDY HAS FORCED LANDING

WOODWARD, Okla., Sept. 14 (AP)—The Colonel and his lady are having a "grand time"—in the words of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh on their impromptu visit in an Oklahoma farmhouse. Colonel Lindbergh, "that fellow" to his host, dodged crowds, even in the country 23 miles north of here, while his wife put on an apron and helped her hostess, Mrs. Homer Aitkens, prepare a meal featuring roast beef, mashed potatoes and grits.

"We're just fine and having a grand time," Mrs. Lindbergh beamed after their forced landing in the Aitkens' cornfield.

WEATHER HITS LINDSAY FAIR

Thursday Night's Rain Affected Crowd for Friday Program.

HIGHWAY ACCIDENT.

LINDSAY, Sept. 15. (By Examiner Correspondent). — Threatening skies told against the attendance at the Central Fair yesterday, the crowd not being as large as on the third day last year. Following Thursday night's downpour of rain, the grounds were in a muddy condition. The directorate are looking for more favorable weather conditions on Saturday as well as a record crowd. The race track was in bad shape for the speeding events, but the directors decided to go ahead with the day's card although the horses took considerable risk owing to the soggy condition of the track.

Fred Chambers, of Fenelon Falls, paid the sum of $15.90 in the police court to-day when he pleaded guilty to the charge of reckless driving. He was on his way to Lindsay when he crashed into a steam roller on the highway, damaging it somewhat.

Mossom Junkin and Miss A. Smith, of Verulam township, were admitted to Ross Hospital last night suffering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident. The accident occurred on Fenelon Road about a mile from Lindsay. Junkin was proceeding to Fenelon Falls when something went wrong with the steering gear of the car and it took to the ditch. Miss Smith was cut about the wrist and sustained severe body bruises, while Junkin was cut about the face and was badly shaken up. The car was badly damaged.

S. Traviss, of Mount Albert, had a narrow escape from being fatal-lf burned on Thursday. Gasoline fumes had exploded in the Plummerfeldt garage, setting it on fire. Mr. Traviss' clothing took fire and his face and arms were burned. With presence of mind he raced to a nearby pond and plunged in. One truck was badly damaged before the fire was extinguished at the garage.

The electrical storm which passed over Fenelon Falls on Thursday created considerable excitement in the village. A bolt of lightning struck "Brandonhurst" a large brick house owned by Mrs. T. M. McEachern, of Chicago. The glass was blown out in three windows and the interior furnishings damaged. Lightning also struck the brick residence of Arthur Goodfellow. Telephone wires were torn out, plaster dislodged in several rooms and other damage done.

Mrs. Rose Lewis, forelady at Knitters Limited, was the recipient of a presentation, Thursday, prior to her departure for Peterborough. She was presented with an address, a beautifully engraved wrist watch and a silver service.

SPRINGVILLE W.M.S. WILL PACK BALE

Plans Are Also Laid for Sectional Rally on Tuesday, September 18.

SPRINGVILLE, Sept. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—Springville W.M.S. held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. M. Johnston on Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. A. Hunter, in the chair.

The Scripture lesson found in Matthew 6, was read by Mrs. Dunford. This was followed by the opening address by the president, having for its theme, "How to give good gifts." Mrs. Hunter chose her subject in keeping with the day, this particular meeting being for the purpose of packing the bale.

Business brought forward included the laying of plans for the Sectional Rally, to be held on Tuesday, Sept. 18, in Springville United Church.

Announcement was made that Miss Mitchell will speak at the special Sunday night service. Mrs. V. Whittington will be the soloist.

A letter received by Mrs. William Whitfield (Strangers' Secretary), from Mrs. Gibson, was read, expressing thanks for kindness shown during her recent illness. Mrs. Geo. Whitfield invited the ladies to her home for the October meeting—Mrs. M. Johnston to be in charge of the program. The lunch committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. J. Grandy, Mrs. A. Hunter and Mrs. M. Johnston.

The program consisted of interesting readings by Mrs. Douglas and Mrs. Grandy, telling of conditions in the Missions of Athabaska and Saskatoon. A reading to be given by Miss J. Schaffer was carried over until the next meeting. Mrs. William Whitfield, who has a birthday this month, was requested to give an address on her trip to Regina this summer. Through illness, she was unable to attend the meeting, but sent her paper, which was read by Mrs. George Whitfield.

The meeting was brought to a close by prayer. Lunch was served by the lunch committee assisted by the hostess. To these ladies a hearty vote of thanks was extended.

Where Textile Workers Leave Strikes Strictly Alone

Here are scenes from North Dighton, Mass., which is said to be one to wn where textile strike organizers in the United States can make no headway. Milk workers have armed themselves and erected barricades against invasion of organisers, and search automobiles entering the city. The 1,400 workers in the Mount Hope mill regard its owner, Joseph K. Milliken, as their benefactor. Attractive houses are rented to the employees at $2 to $5 a week, the latter class being houses that couldn't be built under $7,500. Milliken and his family live in a communal centre with the workers. A sand barricade at North Dighton, and workers and police searching an automobile are pictured.

Heiress Loses Fortune With Smile

She left the French Riviera after losing a fortune of $500,000 at the gaming tables. She carried away the name of the world's best loser, bestowed on her by hardened gamblers of the Cannes resort. She is Lady Adrian Baillie, shown with her husband, Lord Baillie. She is the daughter of England's Lord Queensboro and a granddaughter of the late W. C. Whitney of New York. Residents gathered to cheer her when she left Cannes, as the symbol of returned prosperity. As she left the Casino one night a man asked her for a loan of 500 francs—about $30. She pressed 5,000 in his hands. He said he was a gambler, down and

ALLEGE WOOER KILLED WOMAN

Estranged Wife of Canadian Slain at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

SEARCH FOR PAINTER.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A middle-aged married man, Lawrence Spohr, who had been pressing his attentions on Mrs. Eileen Latta, 27, for months, is being hunted in her murder. She was the estranged wife of a former Canadian.

Police said they were certain Spohr was the man who shot her to death in the bedroom of her home here sometime Thursday.

The pretty titian-haired matron was quoted by police as having told friends Spohr, a painter and paperhanger, had threatened her with a revolver several weeks ago.

Mrs. Latta, whose mother willed her considerable property at her death some years ago, lived in her own home with her father. He found her body Thursday afternoon. Overturned furniture indicated there had been a struggle before the slayer fired a bullet through her heart. Spohr, 45, met the woman while doing repair work on houses she owned. Police said he had a wife and two children in Batavia.

Are You Slipping?

It may be the Nerves

Is your daily task a worry to you?
Are sleepless nights robbing you of mental vitality?
Are you irritable and grouchy with your wife and family?
It is time for a check up.
There may be some organic disease,
But the chances are that it is the nerves.
Consulting physicians say that now
60% of their patients have nervous disorders.
Worn out by worry and anxiety,
The vital organs fail in their functions.
The vital nerve force is lacking.
You can put new nerve force into the system
By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
This treatment supplies the ingredients,
From which new, rich blood is created.
It feeds the nerves back to health and vigor.
It makes you feel fit and look well.

"Tight buttoned"

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy . . . to save . . . to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels . . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes . . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

UNITED CHURCH PENSIONS LIST SHOWS INCREASE

Income From Capital Funds Yielding Lower Interest.

OPPOSITE TRENDS.

Publishing House Reports Profit $6,746 Last Year.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 14. — (C.P.) — Trends in opposite directions were noted in the report of the Pension Fund of the United Church of Canada to the general council in session here yesterday.

A steady increase in the number of persons receiving benefits from pensions was recorded. In 1929 the regular annuitants numbered 1,421, a total which had increased to 1,483 for the latest year. The ministers were being retired earlier from active service and thus received pensions throughout a longer period. An increase in the amounts of payments for benefits had also occurred. In 1929 the total benefits disbursed by the board were $639,729; this increased to $675,593 in the latest year.

Income Decrease

On the other hand there was noted a decrease in the interest earning power of the capital funds of the board owing to the recent decline in interest rates. In 1933, the sum of $65,976 had been transferred from current surplus to capital funds, marking a lower rate of increase than in recent years.

A decline in income from assessments on ministers from the Missionary and Maintenance Fund and from the Publishing House, tended to prevent any large growth in capital funds. The board had, however, continued to pay on the same standard of benefits to annuitants as in previous years, and to make a number of emergency grants. Some special grants have been reduced or cut off, and the board urged that conferences of the church reduce to the minimum all recommendations for special grants.

A membership of 2,826 persons existed in the Pension Fund. Receipts in 1932 totalled $835,285.31. Receipts in 1933 totalled $835,285.83.

Book Steward's Report.

The church as a producer and distributor of educational periodicals and other publications, was outlined by the Book Steward in the report of the Board of Publication. The Publishing House was also the benefactor of the Pensions Fund of the church, voting $5000 from the profits to that object during the latest year. The turnover for the year ending Feb. 28th last amounted to $1,446,849.74, leaving a net profit of $6,746, after the payment to the Pension Fund.

Expect a Surplus

Confidence that the small deficit resulting from the operations of the church during the past year would be converted into a surplus at the end of 1934, was expressed by Rev. Robert Laird, D.D., general treasurer, in presenting the financial statement. Total revenue from all sources in the year 1933 for the department of the church participating in the Missionary and Maintenance Fund was $2,570,595. The total disbursements were $2,613,003, leaving a deficit of $33,408.

"We have done our work under the deep shadow of economic distress," Dr. Laird told the 300 commissioners. "But with a comradeship that has been simply magnificent and under the inspiration of a multitude of loyal and generous givers."

"The total disbursements of $2,613,003 were $444,337 less than in 1931," the treasurer stated in his report.

"These reductions reveal the severity of the strain on the administrative boards. When adverse conditions were making their responsibilities not less, but greater, in the vast mission fields, and when emergency appeals were coming to them with heart-breaking persistence, they were constrained by the very necessities of the case to cut, and to cut again."

Dr. Laird declared he felt the limit had been reached and the church's great spiritual enterprises should no longer be imperilled.

Staff Reduced

The official staff of the church had been reduced in line with the general retrenchment policy during the past few years, and at present 70 per cent. are doing the work that was done eight years ago by 100 per cent., he said.

"This should be borne in mind when the general council examines its official staff as to their record," Dr. Laird declared.

One of the bright spots in the financial position of the church was the fact that while givings had declined, revenue from other sources had been steadily maintained. That revenue, he said, was becoming a most important factor in the carrying on of the work.

The treasurer stated the accumulated deficit of the church was a little less than $1,500,000. One of the great problems being faced at the present time was the decline in interest rates, and this was having a very material effect.

The loss of the Rupert's Land endowment funds of the Church of England, he said, had led the General Assembly to authorize a check of all securities in the trust of the United Church. This has been done, Dr. Laird said, and all were found in order.

Weddings

SEYMOUR—BLACK.

At one o'clock this afternoon, at Trinity United church, the marriage was solemnized of Isabella Gourley Black, youngest daughter of Mrs. Helen T. Black of Rubidge street, and the late Alexander Black of Glasgow, Scotland, to Mr. Harry Irvin Seymour, B.S.A., of Guelph, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Seymour of Ida, Ontario.

The pastor, the Rev. F. M. Wootton, officiated.

The bride wore a pretty dress of cinnamon brown crepe, lace-trimmed, with brown felt hat, brown shoes, hose and gloves, and corsage bouquet of Talisman roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Mary Morton, the bridesmaid, was also in brown, with matching hat and accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. Fred Jerome of Guelph, was best man.

After the ceremony, a reception to the immediate relatives and friends was held at the home of the bride's mother, where decorations were carried out in pink and white.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour left by motor for a trip to Hamilton and western points, prior to taking up resident in Guelph. The bride travelled in a brown suit with collar and cuffs of white crepe trimmed with gold, and brown hat, shoes, purse and gloves.

YOUNG—COLLISON

The house at 168 Lock street which will be their future home was the scene at three o'clock this afternoon of a pretty wedding, when Gladys E. Collison, R.N., eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer Collison of R.R. No. 6, Peterborough, was married to Mr. Gordon R. Young, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Young of 50 Ware street. The Rev. G. K. Tyler, pastor of Park street Baptist Church, was the officiating clergyman for a quiet ceremony attended by about thirty-five of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was attended by Miss Rae McEacheren, R.N., of Woodville, wore a smart swagger suit of brown lightweight tweed, with collar of brown fur, blouse of orange taffeta, brown hat and matching accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of Talisman roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss McEachern, was in a blue swagger suit with blue hat and accessories and corsage of Premier roses.

Mr. Herbert Tranter was best man.

After the ceremony, refreshments were served to the guests from a table done in pink and white and centered by the bride's cake. Flowers were in silver vases and pink candles in silver holders.

Later, Mr. Young and his bride motored to Loon Lake, to spend a week's honeymoon.

The gift of the bride to the bridegroom was a desk set, while he presented her with a set of green pearl and amber dresser ware. The bridesmaid received a compact and the groomsman a silver belt buckle and tie clip.

Miss Gourlay Gives Address On Panama

The first fall meeting of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United Church, was held on Monday evening, at the home of Miss Mary Morton, 602 Chamberlain Street, with the president, Mrs. Howard Clegg in the chair.

The meeting opened with the playing of quiet music, which was followed by the Worship Period. Mrs. Clegg led in prayer, and the Scripture lesson, Psalm 103, was read by Miss Morton.

At the conclusion of the business period, a very excellent talk was given on Panama, by Mrs. Gourlay, with the use of a map. In her very informative talk Mrs. Gourlay explained the work of missions in David, in the Province of Chiriqui, where she spent some time as a teacher in a Mission School there Mrs. Ross Williamson rendered a very delightful solo, in Spanish, which was a favorite hymn with the children, in the Mission School at David.

The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn, and the benediction. A social half hour followed.

Y.M.C.A. PRAISED BY "ACE" BAILEY

Importance of Clean Living Stressed by Hockey Star.

VISITS PETERBORO.

His first appearance in the hockey world as a youngster of very tender years garbed in a full-length overcoat belonging to his father, was related by 'Ace' Bailey, famed hockey star, in a talk to the boys of the Y.M.C.A. at a membership campaign gathering last night. 'Ace' was tending goal that day and his father's coat covered so much territory that he had only to stand still to do a 100-percent job. Right then and there he decided hockey was his racket.

One hundred boys enrolled on campaign teams heard the retired hockey player's talk. He stressed the importance of clean living, clean athletics and team spirit in the world of sport speaking particularly of the part unselfishness plays in the making of a star. The Y. M. C. A. makes a greater contribution to sport than any other individual institution in the world, he declared.

Rev. C. D. Daniel addressed the boys ,endorsing whole-heartedly the words of Bailey. He spoke of the fine work the junior department of the 'Y' is doing and recommended its activities to every growing youngster. The present membership in the junior department is 275 and the campaign objective is 300, he pointed out. He praised the institution of the new 'Pioneers'' class for boys 8 and 9 years of age.

Two hundred boys gathered at the swimming pool later for the treasure hunt. Treasure hunt candidates were divided into three sections—beginners, juniors and intermediates—and for each section two gold fish were released in the pool. Among the beginners, Bruce Kimmond retrieved the first gold fish after a ten minute chase in the pool but the second escaped all searchers. John Clyde was the first junior to catch a gold fish. Fred Brown getting the second. Gordon Johnston and Dave Rogers got the fish in the intermediate section.

The lad first catching a fish in each section was awarded a one-year membership. Those making second catches got one-half a year's membership.

Munitions Probe Recalls Zaharoff's Fantastic Career

Born in Asia Minor in 1849 of Greek parents, Sir Basil studied at an English high school in Constantinople, afterwards visiting Great Britain several times before settling in Greece.

A prominent Greek politician recommended young Zaharoff to a large Scandinavian munitions firm. He ran his salesmen competitors "off the map". He landed a $25,000,000 order in Spain and fell in love with the Duchessa of Marchena, whom he married 54 years later.

He united with Hiram Maxim, American machine gun inventor, and their success pushed them into Vickers, in 1888, the most powerful British munitions firm. Gradually Zaharoff spun his web, and at the outbreak of the World war he had plants in England, France, Austria-Hungary, Germany, Russia and Turkey, besides having an interest in most of the independent cannon works.

His only rebuff occurred when Sir Basil's attempt to recreate a greater Greece in the tradition of Alexander's empire flopped before the fighting Turks, when the Greeks tried to seize some Ottoman land. Sir Basil financed the "war" out of his own pocket to the tune of $20,000,000. Since the Armistice, he has lived in Monte Carlo where he controls the gambling casino.

Sir Basil Zaharoff

During the war his power reached its peak, and it was reported he made money on both sides, so far flung were his enterprises. More than $7,000,000,000 flowed into the coffers of his companies, with reported profits of $1,000,000,000.

Shadow Of European Mystery Man Falls Over U.S. Probe

Nye (CENTRE) into relationship of American armament firms and European munition combines. H. H. Zaharoff engineered submarine business for the government with foreign governments.

YOUR OWN FALL COAT-LIKE DRESS

For those who like the dressed feeling of a coat when they sally forth, here is a nice model. It has the complete effect desired, yet is only a dress, and as such, is so essentially smart for those warm September and October days. It's an especially lovely model for school and college girls.

Fashion it of one of the new rayon novelties that look like wool, sheer wool, soft angora woolen, canton crepe or silk and wool mixture. It will slip easily under a coat when the cold weather arrives.

It's so simple to cut it out and put it together. Think of the saving in cost. How it will stretch your budget for you.

Style No. 3283 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19 years.

Size 15 requires 2⅞ yards 54-inch material with ⅝ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

The recipes given here make perfect relishes, and there is no overnight soaking, strong brine solution, nor long cooking period to destroy the flavor and color of the fully ripe vegetable. Any of these delicacies can be made and bottled in twenty minutes, and cost only a few cents a jar.

PEPPER RELISH

2 cups (14 oz.) prepared pepper, 6½ cups (2¾ lbs.) sugar, 1½ cups cider vinegar, 1 up bottled fruit pectin.

To prepare peppers, cut open about 1 dozen medium peppers and discard seeds. For best color, use equal amounts green and red sweet peppers. Put through food chopped twice, using finest knife. Drain pulp in sieve.

Measure sugar and vinegar into large kettle. Add prepared pepper, packing it solidly into cup until juice comes to top. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 2 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating vegetables. Pour quickly. Paraffin and cover at once. Makes about 9 six-ounce jars.

For rolled or open sandwiches with a decidedly "different" flavor, this tomato relish is excellent.

TOMATO RELISH

3 cups (1½ lbs.) prepared tomota, 6½ cups (2¾ lbs.) sugar, 1 cup bottled fruit pectin.

To prepare tomatoes, scald, peel, and crush about 2½ lbs. fully ripe tomatoes or use canned tomatoes. Boil 4 cups crushed tomatoes about 10 minutes, uncovered, stirring occasionally. Add ¼ cup lemon juice and grated rind of 1 lemon. (For use with meats, add ½ teaspoon each ground cloves, allspice, and cinnamon, or Worcestershire sauce to taste).

Measure sugar into large kettle. Add prepared tomato, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove kettle from fire and stir in pectin. Skim; pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes 9 six-ounce jars.

ILLUSTRATING AN IMPORTANT FACT.

The hand today illustrates an important fact which rarely is mentioned in text-books. No book can do justice to the great variety of important situations arising constantly. Text-books are needed to teach fundamental truths about the principles of valuing hands, what constitutes average strength, what is required to bid, leads, conventions and a multitude of facts relating to the happenings. No text-book can do justice to the play of hands, for which reason I have never written one relating solely to play. That must be acquired at the table. Daily articles are the best printed medium to show the strategy and technique of play.

Bidding went: South, 1 heart, when he really should have bid 1 club; North, 2 diamonds; South, 2 no trumps; North, 3 hearts; South, 3 no trumps, ending bidding.

The opening lead was the 6 of clubs. Dummy's 8. East's Q and declarer's K went on the trick. Of course, South led his lone 9 of diamonds, overtook with dummy's 10, and lost to East's ace, as that player could see that the declarer held no more of the suit. Back came the 5 of clubs, and South was in with his J. The 3 of spades was led. It was covered with the Q, and dummy's K lost to East's ace. Back came the 8 of spades. South's 9 won the trick. Still trying to gain entry to dummy, the 5 of hearts was led. West's 8 forced dummy's Q. The K won the trick.

The 2 of spades was led back by East. South's 10 won the trick. Having lost all possible chance to enter dummy, the declarer strove to lose as few tricks as possible, eyen if he did not do very well. He led his 7 of hearts at the eighth trick, and West was in with his 10. Of course, that player led a clearing club, that South won with his ace. The declarer took his two good hearts, then he had to give West a spade trick and a club trick, going down 2 tricks on his contract, without knowing how it all happened, or how it might have been avoided.

Before Monday study the hand, to see if the declarer could have made game against the 6 of clubs opening lead.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

By GLADYS GLAD

BEAUTY LIKE PEGGY'S NOT WON IF TOES ACHE

Peggy Feare

The famous Cinderella, who won herself a prince merely by slipping her tootsie into a glass slipper, certainly must have been quite a wise damsel. Cinderella, if you remember your fairy tales, was the only lass in town who could put her foot into that glass slipper with ease. And I'll bet that that wasn't only because her feet were small, but also because she knew how to keep them healthy and comfortable.

It's too bad that all women do not realize how closely allied foot comfort and true physical beauty really are. I don't think that you can show me any woman who can appear at ease and at her loveliest when her feet feel tired and hot, damp and full of aches. It simply can't be done!

In the summertime, especially, feet are likely to prove troublesome. But any discomfort can really be alleviated during this season if the feet are properly treated. Absolute cleanliness is the first essential. The feet should be given morning and nightly scrubbings, and fresh stockings should be put on at least once a day. If the feet perspire excessively, there are several good remedies that may be used. A 25 per cent. solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water, however, is, in my opinion, the most efficacious. This should be applied to the feet for three successive nights, and then should be used once a week.

Foot powders are excellent aids in keeping the feet comfortable during the warm months. Dusting a good foot powder in the shoes will help to prevent too much moistness of the skin, and also aid in keeping the feet from swelling. Baking soda, or powdered alum even can be used for this purpose, in a pinch.

If the feet ache, and feel tired and sore, the best thing to do is to soak them in a tub of warm water in which a cup of Epsom salts has been dissolved. After this soaking, cold water should be sprayed or run over the feet. Another good procedure is to rub the feet with alcohol after the soaking, and then powder them with boric acid. Both these practices are extremely soothing to the feet, and tend to chase away all bothersome aches and pains.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Gooseflesh

Lillian: When taking your nightly bath, scrub your legs with a bland soap, using a small flesh brush. After the bath, massage your legs well with cold cream or pure olive oil.

Standard Weight

Robert L.: I think that a man 5 feet 7 inches tall and 25 years of age should weigh about 145 pounds.

Thin Face

Genevieve: Coco butter is used for fattening purposes. Massage your face nightly with warmed coco butter to help nourish the tissues and round out the facial contours.

Place two strips of bacon on each piece, then a teaspoon each of minced onion and parsley, seasoning all with paprika, salt and a dash of pepper. Roll up the strips, fastening with toothpicks or tie with clean string, and sear on both sides in a little bacon fat. Add one cup of water and allow to simmer over very low heat in a covered utensil for about one and one-half hours, or until tender Add more water if needed.

Coconut Coffee Frosting.—One cup sugar, one-half cup brown sugar, one-half cup strong coffee, two egg whites, dash salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup coconut. Put sugar and coffee into a saucepan, heat slowly and stir constantly until sugar is dissolved and boiling point is reached. Boil until the syrup will spin a long thread, eight to ten inches, or 238 degrees Fahrenheit. Pour gradually while beating constantly into the egg whites, beaten stiff. Beat until cool. Set saucepan containing the frosting into a larger pan containing hot water and cook until mixture becomes slightly granular on the sides, stirring gently the while. Remove from pan and beat, using a spoon until the mixture will hold its shape. Add vanilla and coconut and spread on cakes. Use additional coconut for garnish.

FACTS AND FANCIES

To Repair a Leak in Lead Drain

The old-fashioned lead drain pipe underneath the kitchen sink sprung a big leak and was repaired by binding it with friction tape (very tightly) and then covering this with strong string. A coat of glue was put over this and allowed to dry before painting the whole thing to match the woodwork. I was able to use the sink as usual during this procedure and, although this "first-aid" was applied more than a year ago, it is still holding satisfactorily.

Cleanliness

Youthful skins do not require rich creams or frequent massage. Cleanliness is the keynote to a good complexion. Warm water and a pure toilet soap, supplemented by a light cleansing cream, and a foundation cream which does not clog the pores, are sufficient.

DUBLIN CASTLE OPEN TO PUBLIC

Small Fee Enables Curious Visitor to Enter Historic Edifice.

INSPECT APARTMENTS

By JOSEPH DENNIGAN.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

DUBLIN, Sept. 15 (CP).—For the small sum of sixpence a visitor may now inspect the state apartments of Dublin Castle, sit on the throne in the gorgeous presence chamber, kneel in the royal pew in the chapel royal, and have as guide a descendant of a notable Irish family, Mrs. Margaret Burke-Sheridan.

All this is due to President Eamon de Valera himself, who takes a great interest in the historic old pile until now closed to the public except during state receptions. Shortly after he took office, the castle was the first of the old properties of the government he inspected.

At his wish St. Patrick's Hall has been restored so that it is now virtually the same as when the Knights of St. Patrick held their meetings there. The shields, casques and flags have been replaced and the corridors painted white and gold. On the ceiling can be seen George III., supported by Liberty and Justice, St. Patrick teaching Christianity to the Irish and Henry II. receiving the homage of Irish chieftains.

The beautiful brass chandeliers constructed to hold a few score candles each, now have cunningly designed electric bulbs. Buried in a mysterious attic of the castle one of the most elaborate was discovered and one of the sconces contained four inches of wax candle, the stem of which was wrapped around with a fragment of a Dublin newspaper bearing a date in 1790.

From the tower from which Red Hugh O'Donnell of Ulster and the two sons of Shane O'Neill escaped long ago, the visitor is conducted to the other tower from which the crown jewels disappeared so mysteriously in 1907 and thence to the Chapel Royal completed in 1814, with "its abominable cast-iron tracery" and Lord Whitworth's beautiful painted window representing Christ before Pilate.

Built as a fortress in the reign of King John, Dublin castle was the seat of British rule in Ireland until the Treaty and in the Republican mind is even yet the chief symbol of "alien tyranny". Since the treaty, many of the ramshackle buildings in the Castle yard have been converted into government offices but the towers and state apartments remained closed to the public and the apparent secrecy is expected to draw many sightseers now that access is available.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

We are going to inquire into the virtues of the natural foods an ordinary person would naturally eat in the course of the day. We want to know what place they have in contributing to our health and bodily economy. We want to know how they act, how they are digested. To investigate what harm they do, if any, and if they do no harm, to understand why, so that we can cast off any fear of them and be emancipated.

The natural place to start is breakfast, and the natural beginning is fruit. It does not make much difference what fruit. A half an orange is about the same from the nutritional standpoint as half a grapefruit. Indeed, as half a cantaloupe. Grapes, an apple, sliced peaches, melon, even prunes, are not so very different. How different we will also try to find out. But fruit is an essential part of a natural diet on account of its vitamins—especially vitamin C—content, and for its roughage—and "buffer" value—and its role in stimulating the appetite.

To begin with, let us put up a scoreboard for all our natural foods. The scoreboard has a place for all the necessary parts of a diet. The three basic food elements first. The energizers, starch and fat, the tissue builder protein. Second, the minerals—sodium, iron, phosphoris and calcium; and the vitamins. Water, of course. And then some requirements for digestion—roughage and general digestibility.

How do we score the orange? The whole fruit is a little better than orange juice because the pulp is good roughage and promotes evacuation. If you are one of those individuals with an irritable digestive tube stick to the juice. The main contribution of the orange to nutrition is in the form of carbohydrate—its fruit sugar. In an average orange there are about 15 grams of carbohydrate; so in one-half orange 7 1-2 grams, making about 30 calories of the 2,000 we need for the day. But it is economical energy, quickly absorbed, quickly used. All the breakfast fruits do this, grapes and apples having somewhat more carbohydrate than the others.

Of protein or fat the orange has almost none.

Its second great contribution to nutrition is its vitamin C content—good for the teeth, the skin, the blood, prevents scurvy. All of the fruits mentioned above have some of this, except the prunes.

The orange, like most fruits, has a good supply of minerals—mostly in the form of vegetable acids. But as these are broken down by digestion and reduced to alkaline ions, the general effect of the orange is to prevent an acid reaction in the blood—combat acid, as the saying is.

So our score on the orange is:

Protein, 0; carbohydrate, plus; fat, 0; energy, 30; salts, plus; vitamin, plus C; H-2-O; plus; roughage, plus; digestibility, plus.

Basic, not acid in reaction.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

WHEN Thorncliffe closes tonight there will be one week's lay-off and Woodbine will open its gates one week from today. All the horses quartered at the Leaside course will move down to Woodbine over the week-end, to augment the already large colony that have been resting there for some time. The Maple Leaf Stakes and the Coronation Handicap are the two big events of the week. Eddie Seagram's Candy Feast is the favorite for the former and The McLaughlin Stables Listaro looks to have the latter event in the bag.

Conny Smythe has shipped his good two-year-old, Shoeless Joe to New York, where he will be a starter today in the rich Belmont Futurity at Belmont Park. The winner of this race will take down $98,000 cash. Which is some purse in any man's language. Colonel E. R. Bradley's Balladier is a strong favorite but here's hoping that Connie's juvenile upsets the old apple cart. It costs one thousand dollars to enter a horse in this race and this is the first time since 1913 that a Canadian owner has taken a shot at this rich prize. It was won once by a Canadian owner in the year 1896 when Martimas owned by W. Hendrie of Hamilton, Ont. defeated a large field.

THE TWO Watson brothers and Frankie Mann are still staging a great race for riding honors at Thorncliffe. The race is so close the winner will not be definitely known until after today's last race. Over at Lincoln Fields, Chicago is a horse called Free Trade who is going to win very shortly at a good price, and at the same track they have one called White Legs who is all primed for a winning effort. Down at Rockingham we figure Baboo is going to do the needful any day now, while Gay Banner is just waiting for the proper spot.

Over at Detroit they have our old friend Stop Gap in fine fettle and just waiting for a sloppy racing strip to see him at his best. Projectile at the same place will win about the next time out, and don't be one bit surprised if Memphis Lass goes over and pays off in box car figures. Yesterday was the last of the Ladies' days at Thorncliffe and today the fair sex will have to come through with the regular fare if they wish to attend the closing exercises. Next week we will endeavor to keep you posted as to the workouts at Woodbine as we have an idea there are a few sleepers down there which we might be able to uncover.

LITTLE-GOLDMAN IN AMATEUR FINAL

San Francisco Golfer Favored to Take U. S. Golf Honors.

By BOB CAVAGNARO
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 15. (AP). — A couple of youths who glare as they golf—W. Lawson Little, Jr., of San Francisco and Davis (Spec) Goldman of Dallas—fight it out to-day at 36 holes over the run-sodden links of the Country Club for the 38th United States amateur championship.

Goldman, who has never won a title, can give the burly British amateur titleholder glare for glare, but unless Little meets with a debacle, either in form or luck, his name seemed sure to be the next engraved on the $10,000 gold Havemeyer Trophy—emblematic of amateur supremacy in this country.

Lucas Plays Hero Role in Leafs' 7-4 Victory

TORONTO HOLDS 2-GAME LEAD NEWARK SERIES

"Steamer" Lucas Checks Bears While Team-mates Slug Way to Victory.

VISITORS HIT FREELY.

TORONTO, Sept. 15—Superlative relief pitching by Toronto's own "Steamer" Lucas, a lashing attack by the Maple Leafs that wiped out a three-run Newark margin and built up a healthy lead, and an enthusiastic crowd of 7,200 spectators that yelled itself hoarse and went home still shouting the praises of the Boonemen, featured last night's 7 to 4 triumph which the Leafs handed the pennant-winning Bears in the fourth game of the play-off series. This victory gave the battling Boonemen a 3 to 1 edge in the series, and they have only to win one more game to end it.

Leafs Get 14 Hits

No longer can the Leafs be dubbed the "hitless wonders" of the play-offs. They came out of their batting slump with a vengeance last night and base hits rattled off the fences under the power of their attack on three Newark pitchers. The Leafs had 14 to the Bears 5.

Southpaw Marvin Duke, who started for the visitors, was charged with the defeat. He lasted only four and one-third innings. Charley Devens, who succeeded him, gave up a two-base blast to Bill Regan, one of the feature hits of the game, that drove in two runs, and Hank McDonald, big right-hander, who worked the last three innings, was shown no mercy, as the Leafs combed his offerings for five hits that netted them two runs.

Off to a one-run lead in the second innings, the Leafs were forced to relinquish it under a three-hit assault made by the Bears on "Whitey" Hilcher in the third. Two bases on balls paved the way to four runs, Hilcher, who started excellently, seeming to lose control afterward and having to aim his pitches in. The Bears were quick to take advantage and successive hits by Carlyle, Hill and Alexander blasted the Leafs' hurler to cover.

Lucas is Hero of Occasion

Then came Lucas, and what a grand job of pitching he did.

Only one hit was made off him over the rest of the distance, Alexander beating out a light tap in the fifth, although the Leafs disagreed with Umpire Parker's decision at first on the play. Lucas was master of the situation at all times. He issued four passes, but he was great with men on bases and his teammates backed him up by faultless support. Lucas had six strikeouts to his credit. He had the hard-hitting Bears swinging futilely most of the time, nine of them going out on strikes during the game, Hilcher having three to his credit.

CLOCKMAKERS COP LOPSIDED VICTORY

Big Bens Superior in All Departments to Defeat C.G.E. 15-2.

Westclox hammered out a lopsided 15-2 win over the C.G.E. team last night at the Bowl, knocking them out of the second half and finishing them for the season. The Big Ben damsels were superior in all departments, collecting eighteen bingles and fumbling but three. They had one big inning, the second, in which they counted seven tallies and from then on they just breezed in behind the air-tight pitching of Mary Hall.

The Electrics used two pitchers in a vain attempt to halt the barrage of hits from the Clockmakers' bats, but neither Newson or M. Snowden were equal to the task both being hit hard and forced to take the defeat. Mary Hall, hurling for the Westclox, did some swell tossing, allowing but six hits while throwing a third one past nine batters. In addition to that she helped her own cause with three singles out of five appearances at the plate.

The teams:

Westclox: Mortimer, 1b; Ferguson, ss; Webb, c; Hawks, 2b; Merritt, lf; Blade, rf; Crary, cf; Chartren, 3b; Hall, p.

America's Cup Races, 1851-1934

Few craft in yachting history are more famous than the little yacht, America.

The America came into being when Commodore John Stephens and George Schuyler of New York accepted the challenge of English yachtsmen to enter an American yacht in the Hundred Guineas cup race, around the Isle of Wight, on Aug. 22, 1851.

Stephens commissioned George Steers, noted boat builder, to design a yacht. He built the America —a 150-ton vessel, 94 feet overall, with an 8-foot waterline. She had a 22½-foot beam and but an 11½-foot draft.

Competing against fourteen entries form the Royal Yacht squadron, the America won by eight minutes, completing the difficult 60-mile course in ten hours and 34 minutes.

Not knowing their craft was to become one of the most famous in peacetime seafaring history, the owners sold the America to Lord John de Blaquiere for $25,000 (it cost but $30,000 to build) and sailed for home with the Hundred Guineas cup which they promptly renamed the America's cup.

And there's the stiff little pewter pitcher today—proud possession of the New York Yacht club; but the America, the gallant little craft which won it, has vanished from the sea.

The Rainbow-Endeavour races will be the sixteenth in the series of America's cup challenge events. Past races:

One Race Only

1851 — The American schooner America defeats fourteen English yachts in single 60-mile race around the Isle of Wight, England, for Hundred Guineas cup—since renamed the America's cup.

1870 — Twenty-three American yachts compete with the English schooner Cambria (James Ashbury, owner) in 38-mile race, Staten Island to Sandy Hook and back.

Four Out of Seven

Two Out of Three

1871 — The American schooner Madeleine defeats the Canadian Countess of Dufferin (Charles Gifford) in two straight heats.

1881—The American sloop Mischief defeats the Canadian sloop Atlanta (Alexander Cuthbert) in two straight heats.

1885—The American sloop Puritan defeats the English cutter Genesta (Sir Richard Sutton) in two straight heats.

1886—The American sloop Mayflower defeats the English cutter Galatea (Lieutenant William Henn) in two straight heats.

1887—The American sloop Volunteer defeats the Scotch cutter Thistle (Scotch syndicate) in two straight heats.

Three Out of Five Heats

1893—The American sloop Vigilant defeats the English cutter Valkyrie II. (Lord Dunraven) in three straight heats.

1895—The American sloop Defender defeats the English cutter Valkyrie III. (Lord Dunraven) in two heats. Valkyrie III. disqualified in another.

1899—The American sloop Columbia defeats the English sloop Shamrock I. (Sir Thomas Lipton) in three straight heats.

CLUBMEN GET KINGSTON WIN BY A DEFAULT

Score Reverts Back to Sixth Inning, Giving Limestoners 8-7 Lead

GAME CALLED IN 7TH.

Though losing the second game of their Intermediate O.B.A.A. series, technically, in Kingston yesterday, Cogs actually were handed the verdict by default, and thereby eliminated the Hawks from further competition. They had won the first game, 11-4, in Peterborough. The score last night was 8-7 for the Hawks when the score reverted back to the end of the sixth after Cogs had taken the lead, 12 to 8, in the seventh and the Hawks had made a fiasco out of the contest by delaying play and refusing to put the visitors out.

Owing to the fact that, previous to the contest, the Kingston team had proved unable to pay the $13.00 expense money—from a previously defaulted game here—as ordered by the O.B.A.A., and also the fact they were unable to supply balls, besides their delaying tactics which lasted half an hour, the fixture was ordered won by default by Umpire-in-chief Corrigan, and this decision was backed by Ernie Gibbard of the O. B.A.A., who was present.

Peterborough had scored three runs in the second and another in the third and were sailing along nicely when Masterson blew up in the fourth, yielding seven hits on which Kingston scored all their runs. Peterborough came back with two in the fifth and another in the sixth to trail by a single run. In the seventh they pounded Charlton hard and when Smith relieved him, Kingston seemed to stall for time, tossing the ball all over the field and allowing Peterborough to put up the score. Five runs were scored with only one man out when Umpire Corrigan called the game on account of darkness, with the count reverting to the last of the sixth and Kingston winning by 8 to 7.

Protest Lodged Early

But from the third inning the game was played under protest when the Kingston team failed to produce two balls for the game. They started with a used ball and the Cogs tossed another in to keep the game going. Ernie Gibbard, O.B.A.A. representative, of Napanee, was present at the game and the protest was lodged with him.

There was every ground for substantiating the Peterborough protest and it is probable that they will eventually be winners of the series.

Cogs' Scoring

In the second inning a triple by Masterson, Richards' error and Wilson's double accounted for three runs, while a three bagger by Rooke and Masterson's single sent in another in the third. Hits by Wilson, Moore and Masterson accounted for two runs in the fifth and in the sixth Clarke's error at short, a stolen base and a wild pitch allowed Cadd to tally.

Kingston's runs came in a bunch. They smashed out seven hits, five of them in a row and were aided by a couple of errors by Mein as they paraded across the plate for eight runs. Apart from that inning Masterson held them well in hand, allowing only three hits in the other five frames. The game was played on a field that was very muddy and the players had difficulty running the bases, while the fielding was slow as a result of the heavy going. A mere handful of people watched the game which was interesting only in spots.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, old Jupiter Pluvius has been putting it all over our ball team, and when this is being wrote (Thurs. p.m.) that there 3rd game in the serious with the Belleville Nats ain't been played off, although the same was scheduled for our picturesque park last Sat. That day the boys couldn't of played in canoes, and so everybody thought the battle would be staged here about Tues.—that is everybody but the Central loop officials, and they laid down orders the 3rd battle was to be fought out at Belleville on Wed. That idea didn't appear very hot to the home folks, but anyway the boys travelled down to the Quinte town Wed. and old Jupe bust in again and broke up the party for the 2nd time. It was a gloomy scene with some 400 or 500 fans in the grandstand hoping against hope they'd see a ball game, while the rain drops did their stuff on the diamond. All the customers seen was 1 frame, a mighty nice 1 by the way, with the Petes combing Mister Williams for 2 hits, but getting no runs, thanks to a clothesline toss home by Mister Alex. Weir, and with our Mister Deyell shooting down the 1st 3 Nats to face him with a fast ball that left a trail of smoke in the damp air as it flashed in. It was the 1st glimpse the Belleville fans had of Mister Deyell in action, and the fire-ball baby made quite a hit with the Quinte customers on the brief glimpse they got of his wares before Umps Shiner Johnston called the game for 20 mins. to see if the weather improved. At the end of the period he and Mister Colling ploughed their way out to the pitcher's box, kicked at the mud for a moment, and Mister Johnston announced to the folks in the grandstand pews that the doings was officially off. The announcement didn't draw no cheers, the customers hustling to the exits to get their money back before the box-office run outa jack.

That gives the Petes and Jupiter Pluvius 2 wins a piece in the big serious, while the Nats has took 2 losses and 2 rains on the chin.

In other lines of sport, Mac, I notice Mister Fred. Perry has copped the United States tennis championship for the 2nd year in succession. The big Britisher right now is the best amateur in the world, and Canadian sport-lovers was glad to see him come through again and knock off the best Uncle Sam could trot out against him. Mister Perry is a colorful titleholder, clowns a lot and gives the crowd plenty of action, but when it becomes necessary to turn on the heat he burns up the opposition.

Well, Mac, mebbe I'll change my prophecy about the Giants trimming the Detroit Tigers in the world's serious. Perhaps it will be the New York Yanks the Terrymen will trim. Anyway they'll win going away.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

LEETHER HEADS CARPET LEAGUE

Enthusiastic Annual Meeting of City Carpet Ball League Plans Big Season.

NEW CUP RULES.

Dave Leether was re-elected president of the City Carpet Ball League at the annual meeting held in the Sons of England Hall on Thursday. Secretary-treasurer G. E. Groombridge was also returned to office. Some forty-five members attended an enthusiastic session and considerable business was handled in preparation for another big season of this indoor sport.

The slate of officers approved for 1934-'35 are. Immediate Past President, C. Wiggins; president, D. Leether of St. George's; first vice-president, W. Wilson of the L.O.L.; second vice-president, B. Cleghorn, of the K.O.P.; third vice-president, E. Heap of St. Luke's; secretary-treasurer, G. E. Groombridge; auditors, W. G. Shiner and G. Gimblett.

Separate Trophy

It was decided to re-name the Reach Trophy, which will be known in future as the President's Cup, and will be fought for entirely separate of the league games, the winners of which will receive the Hope Cup. The matter of the Bleasdell Memorial Shield was left over till the next meeting.

Only a few suggestions for a change in rules were brought forward. The only one that carried was that there will be no drawn games in future. Should any team finish with scores drawn, two extra ends will be played—or continued in this way—till the draw is broken. It was decided to hold a general meeting on Thursday, September 27th, in the Sons of England Hall at which time all applications for membership must be in.

Many Clubs Present

The president thanked the S.O.E. for their accommodation. The follow clubs were represented: St. George's, All Saints, St. John's, St. Luke's, St. Andrew's Knights of Pythias, Woodmen of the World, Sons of England and Loyal Orange Lodge.

Any church or organization desiring entry of teams for this league are cordially invited to make application at the next general meeting or 'phone the secretary for information at 2535J. A team must register four or five men.

SCHUMACHER HALTS CARDINALS' MARCH FOR NATIONAL PENNANT

Giants Capture Second Game of Series 4-1—Braves Defeat Reds.

TIGERS WIN AGAIN.

Gehringer's Homer in Twelfth Frame Gives Detroit 6-4 Victory.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

A good many of the Giants' worries about the St. Louis threat had disappeared to-day, banished by the strong right arm of young Hal Schumacher.

The husky young alumnus of St. Lawrence University did about all that was necessary to vanquish the Cards and return the New York club to its place 5½ games in front yesterday when he pitched and batted his way to a 4-1 decision while 13,557 fans watched the second game of the highly important series.

Holds Cards to 5 Hits.

Schumacher limited the Cards to five hits and a single unearned run, allowed only two runners to reach third and smacked his sixth home run of the season to help bring about the downfall of Bill Walker. The circuit swap wasn't heeded as the Giants had scored three times in the third inning on four hits and that gave Hal plenty of margin to work on.

With only 14 more games to play, the Giants also picked up a half game on the third place Cubs, whose game in Brooklyn was postponed because of the threatening weather.

The Tigers also took a long step toward clinching their pennant when they gained a full game on the Yankees to make it a 4½ game margin. In a 12-inning thriller, the Tigers turned back Washington 6-4 while the Yanks absorbed a 12-5 beating from the Indians.

Gehringer's Homer Wins.

Three times Tiger errors let the Senators forge ahead, but in the ninth Hank Greenberg tied the score with a homer, and with the count knotted for the fourth time in the 13th, Charley Gehringer hit for the circuit with one on to win. With the Indians hitting hard and often, the only time the Yanks could come close to a tie was when Lou Gehrig's 56th boundary belt started a rally that left them one run short in the seventh.

Wes Ferrell's first-inning wildness forced in a run for the White Sox and gave them a 1-0 victory over Boston behind Milt Gaston.

The Browns and Athletics divided a double header, notable principally because Buck Newsom started both games for St. Louis. He left the first after walking the first four men and the A's won 9-7. St. Louis came back with a 5-2 victory.

Boston Braves conquered an old "jinx" pitcher, So Johnson, to beat the Reds 4-2 behind the seven-hit flinging of Fred Frankhouse. Rain halted the Pirates and Phillies.

Wings And Albany Again Rained Out

ALBANY, N.Y., Sept. 15. (AP) Balked by the weather for the second time in three days, Albany's Senators and Rochester Redwings will seek to get the third game of their International League playoff series into the records to-night.

The second game of the series ran into rain on Wednesday, putting back the series one day, and another shower forced postponement of the third game last night.

Rochester, leading two victories to none, plans to send Ray Harrell to the mound to-night against Albany's Ed Chapman. Both are right-handers.

CLUBS UNABLE TO GET LEASES HOME FIXTURES

Will Have to Abandon Play in 1933-34 Unless Difficulties Overcome.

MOGULS MEET NEXT WEEK.

Boston Club Refuses to Accept Terms of Madison Square Garden Corporation.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15. (AP).—The Chicago Tribune said to-day it had learned from authoritative sources that the National Hockey League may be forced to suspend operations in Chicago and Boston this Winter.

Both the Chicago Black Hawks and the Boston Bruins have been unable to negotiate leases for home games this season and unless the difficulties facing the clubs are overcome a decision to abandon play in 1934-1935 threatens to be the only alternative when the annaual meeting of the league is held in New York one week from to-day, the newspaper said.

Refuse to Accept Terms

The Boston club has declined to accept the terms of the Madison Square Garden Corporation for another year's lease, while in Chicago, the Tribune said uncertainties resulting from the reorganization of the Chicago Stadium Corporation have prevented the Blackhawks from renewing their lease.

ELGINMEN TIE TANNERS CLUB

Winners Take 9 to 8 Decision Although Outhit 16 to 11.

HASTINGS LEAGUE.

HASTINGS, Sept. 15. (Examiner Correspondence).—Although outhit 16 to 11, Elgin defeated the Tanners, 9 to 8, in the second game of the finals in the local softball league on Friday night. The count now stands at a game each with the deciding fixture billed for Monday night.

Friday night's battle was the best played on the local diamond this season and had the crowd in a continuous uproar. The end of the fifth saw both teams on even footing. The Tanners jumped into the lead in their half of the sixth with two runs only to have Elgin get three and a one run lead going into the lucky seventh. 'Curly' Scriver for the Tanners got a break when the usually reliable Fleming dropped his fly to left. "Spook" Scriver brought him in on a scorching single and scored himself when Elgin started to throw the ball all over the diamond. The ruralites showed the fighting spirit that they have shown all season and the Scott brothers put on the winning act in the last inning. After one man had been retired M. Scott singled and was promptly brought in on brother Roy's homer to deep centre to end the game.

R. Scott and "Bud" Richardson were the heavy sluggers for the winners, while J. Richardson on the mound made some smart defensive plays. Turcotte with four hits out of as many times up led the Tannery crew.

NAPANEE WINS ROUND

NAPANEE, Sept. 15.—Gibbard Bees won the second round Intermedite "B" O.B.A.A. playdowns as they downed Westlake, 14 to 2 here yesterday afternoon to take the series in two straight. The winners were best all the way, and combined a 16-hit slugfest with 4-hit pitching by Verne Bishop and Harry Card to gain the one-sided win. Bishop gave up two hits in the first six innings and pitched effectively after the second, setting the visitors back in order for the last four sessions he worked.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Next to the Petes' doings on the diamond, probably the most interesting thing right now to the local ball fans is whether or not Detroit will be in the World Series. If the Tigers are, then quite a few folks here are planning to see the first two games Oct. 3rd and 4th. And a lot of Peterborough people have friends or relatives located in the town Hank Ford put on the map. These facts and the one that the Tigers certainly rate a pennant after a wait of twenty-five years have the fans here pulling for Cochrane's crew. So it will be of interest to lots of our readers to point out the remaining games the Tigers have and those of the Yanks, who seem to be whittling down Detroit's lead.

New York, except for a four-game series at home with Boston Sept. 22-24, are on the road this month. They finish in Cleveland on Sunday and then go to Detroit for a four-game series—which may well prove the crucial series for both teams. After their stop at home, they play two games in Philadelphia and then finish up with two, the 29th and 30th, in Washington. The Tigers are at home from now on, except for four tussles in St. Louis, Sept. 21-24. They wind up with Washington on Sunday, then take on N'Yawk at Navin Field for four, return from St. Louis to play Chicago a game on the 26th and finish with St. Louis the 29th and 30th.

Speaking of a World Series between Detroit and the Giants, Dizzy Dean—colorful St. Louis ace hurler—says: "This Schoolboy Rowe is a cinch to beat the Giants twice in the World Series. All Rowe has to do if he faces Terry's gang is to pitch like I do. You know I don't have any trouble with the Giants, Theyre just apple pie for me. Give them a high fast ball with a little hop and they're dwarfs instead of men with punch and power. Rowe's fast one is almost as good as mine and that's all he needs to knock them off twice." Dizzy isn't bothered any with an inferiority complex, at least.

Dave Leether, secretary of the City Softball League, has been reelected president of the City Carpet Ball League. He is a hard worker and conscientious, besides being popular. This loop is looking for another big season this fall and winter. A general meeting will be held in the Sons of England Hall Sept. 27th, that's a week from next Thursday, and all applications for entry should be in at this session. G. E. Groombridge—phone him at 2535J—is again secretary-treasurer, an office that he fills so capably that he never has any opposition.

Since Belleville won the interscholastic rugby title in this section last year, it might be of interest to know how the champs shape up this fall. Coach Shiels is working out regularly with a big squad. He has Hilton, Ketcheson, Cook, Ostrom, Temple, Watson, Schreider and Johnston of last year's team, and expects Folwell—kicking ace—out soon. Three big holes have been left in the line by the retirement of Morgan, Rigby and Weaver. These positions will be filled by the best and biggest juniors from '33. The backfield is intact and the Quinte Collegiate should again field a powerful football squad.

* * * * * * *

Charlie Carson had a good turnout of rugby aspirants last e'en and they were put through a fairly stiff workout by Gordie Young. With this encouraging start, it is expected that a smart squad will be lined up here, though it is unknown yet what grouping they will get. They practice again today at two, and on Monday at 5.30 in the Exhibition Grounds, with all interested invited to attend. Some of those noticed last night were Banning, Francis, Kirkwood, Vitarelli, Creighton, Whittaker, Newson, Richardson, Bradley, Young, Gerow, Spencely, Dinesen and Reynolds.

Westclox damsels showed their class at the Bowl yester gloaming by shoving C.G.E. out of the '34 picture with a 15-2 push. They outclassed the Electrics all through and killed Ev. Thomas' hopes of having his C.G.E. crew in the second-half playoffs. Westclox now meet the Omemee gals at five this eve in the Bowl, the winner qualifying to meet Keene for the leadership of the second-half. If Westclox wins, they will be in both half playoffs with Keene, as they are in the first-half already. A big crowd saw the fixture last evening.

As the report that came up from the Cogs' game in Kingston last night was incorrect, we gave the wrong info to a lotof fans over the phone, saying Kingston had won by an 8-7 count. They won it all right by that score but lost by default. Seems the score was 8-7 for the Hawks going into the seventh but Cogs tallied five runs then. The Hawks, knowing they were licked, stalled half an hour or so, refusing to put the Clubmen out, and the game was finally called. The score would therefore revert to the sixth, making it an 8-7 win for Hawks, but it was previously lost by default by them when they couldn't supply the balls for the game—as laid down by the rules—and also because they couldn't or wouldn't pay $13 expense money as ordered by the O.B.A.A. when they were too late arriving here to play the first game. These facts and their stalling tactics were enough to ensure Cogs of the win. Umpire Corrigan of Kingston called the game "on account of darkness" but added that Cogs won by default. Ernie Gibbard of the O.B.A.A., who was present, backed up the umps, so we doubt if Kingston will protest. Cogs now enter the next round of the O.B.A.A. intermediate playdowns. Our congrats to them.

This morning's Mail says the North Toronto-Scarboro lacrosse score last night was 7-7, giving North Toronto the round; but all previous reports said Scarboro won the first game, how come? . . . . A despatch from Cobourg says a junior fall lacrosse series will be played by teams in this district . . . . All Cobourg High School rugby games will be played this season at Horse Show Park.

ROUGHRIDERS TO DEPEND ON BEEF IN 1934 SEASON

New Ottawa Brigade, Better Balanced Than Masters Squad of Last November.

OPEN TRAINING TO-DAY.

Backfield Will Centre Around Tommy, Eliowitz and Herb Westmore.

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Sept. 15. (C.P.)—Ottawa's 1934 Roughriders, who open their training schedule here to-day against St. Michael's College, look 100 percent better than last year in the eyes of Coach Walter Masters. The former Pennsylvania University star may change his opinion after to-day but he doesn't expect to.

More beef along the lines, a better set of outsides and a more versatile backfield lead Masters to believe he has the team to beat for the Interprovincial Union Football title. The Riders were unbeaten at the half-way mark last fall, then collapsed and finished in third place behind Argonauts and Montreal.

Better Balanced

This new brigade, better-balanced than the one that was routed last November, is far less likely to collapse at any stage. Masters believes it will hold up defensively while retaining all its 1933 attacking wallop. The squad is already well advanced in training.

It's too early in the season for any definite lineup, but the Riders' backfield probably will be formed with Andy Tommy, the fleet-footed mite who ran 110 yards for a touchdown against Argos last season; Abe Eliowitz, former Michigan state booter and defensive ace, and Herbie Westman, McGill's brilliant kicking half of last season.

The flying wing job will be shared by a six-foot, 210-pound giant from Michigan state, Bernard McNutt, and big Dave Sprague, who won more than his share of ground for Hamilton Tigers before joining Ottawa last year. Sprague, moved from the middle of the line to the backfield, believes the new cross-field interference rule was drafted for his special benefit.

Masters thinks so too and expects Sprague will be able to get into the open under the new rule. Giant that he is, Sprague is one of the greatest broken-field ballcarriers in the country. He is as hard to stop as a Berserk elephant.

Detroiter As Quarterback

Another newcomer to the Canadian game, Chris Schearer of Detroit University, will handle the quarterbacking and play safety. He can forward pass and match punts with either Eliowitz or Westman. Ottawa fans expect him to be another Warren Stevens. The passing will be shared by Schearer and Eliowitz.

The line that needed bolstering will get it from such as Buddy Meiers of Michigan State, a 205-pounder who will play snap, flanked by Tiny Herman and Bunny Wadsworth, insides. Herman is a Royal Canadian Mounted Police constable and Wadsworth a former junior star. Colin Ross, Sprague's understudy last season and Johnny Kowalik, 1933 University of Michigan guard, will plug the middle positions.

Henri Garbarino, who played last year with Monreal and Don Wood, shifted from the backfield, will patrol the ends. Both are experienced seniors and are deadly tacklers.

Masters figured he needed defensive strength after last Fall's failure and he believes he has found it.

Lawn Bowling BY Herb Martin

Glory Hallelujah! And was there a crowd we ask you?

—o—

Never Before in the history of this old bowling club has there been a local tournament that could come anywhere near it. Every available inch of bowling green was in use. If we had had any more we would have had to use the tennis courts. They Came from the north, south, east and west.

—o—

To The Different members of the ladies who worked so hard to help put this over—all we can say is "Thank you." To those who stayed at home—well, they lost out, that's all.

—o—

From One of our members who bowls from the port side we cashed in on an attendance bet. We'll say it was for a box of soap chips and let it go at that.

Some of The Boys were a little late getting down this morning, but you can't blame them; the excitement was awful.

—o—

We Were just wondering if we couldn't jolly the committee into pulling off another one next Friday night. We'll do our share, now let's hear from some of the rest of you.

Last Night's winning rinks were skipped by E. Wall, W. Flannery, B. Chesler, G. Coleman, Sr., and G. Hutchinson.

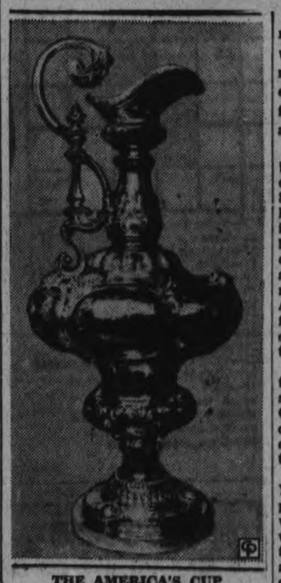
HERE'S MOST FAMOUS SPORT TROPHY-THE AMERICA'S CUP



THE AMERICA'S CUP

Here is the most famous international sporting trophy in the world—the America's cup—once more placed in jeopardy as the American yacht, Rainbow, sails in defence of it against the challenge of a new British yacht, Endeavour.

This cup, designed and paid for by British yachtsmen, has remained in America, without a break, for 83 years. The pewter mug is hardly a beautiful object and of little intrinsic value—it cost originally but $500—yet millions have been expended by British sportsmen in an effort to regain it, and more millions by Americans to keep it in America. More than $80,000,000, in fact, has been spent in building craft to complete for this $500 trophy.

The cup was originally known as the Queen's cup. Later, British sportsmen dubbed it the Hundred Guineas cup, because that's what it cost. When the owners of the America won it they changed its title to its present name.

The cup was deeded to the New York Yacht Club in 1857, in whose possession it has been since and will remain, even if T. O. M. Sopwith succeeds in winning it, for in the terms of the deed the cup is always to be the property of the club.

BAD WEATHER AGAIN THREATENS McLARNIN-ROSS FRACAS TONIGHT

Odds Drop on Champion as Vancouverite Puts in Impressive Week of Workouts.

FIGHT FANS WARY.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Hoping for the best but fearful of another knockout blow by the weather man, fight fans fumbled around today in the pockets of suits they wore last week to find their tickets for Barney Ross' welterweight title defence against Jimmy McLarnin.

They hoped—and so did the principals and the promoters—that the 15-round title battle could be put on, as scheduled, in Madison Square Garden bowl tonight, but the situation has reached the point where most of the prospective customers were wary in the extreme.

Rain, which forced three successive postponements of the fight originally slated to be held Sept. 6, was a distinct threat once more. Mike Jacobs, putting on the show for the New York American Christmas and relief fund, hoped for just enough of a break in the freaky weather to slip the big fight into its place in the record books.

Odds Drop On Champion

Neither Champion Barney nor the hard-hitting Irishman from Vancouver, whom the Hebrew dethroned last May, appear to have lost anything by the long delay. McLarnin, especially, had put in a full week of impressive workouts. So good had he looked that the odds dropped from 9 to 5 to 6 to 5 with the champion still favored.

Ross, likewise, seemed to have held the fine edge of condition remarkably well and a close duel was in prospect.

Jacobs reported $137,000 in advance sales still left in the till and expected gross receipts to pass the $175,000 with any kind of decent weather.

Since there will be no broadcast, the fight will go on not later than 9 p.m. E.S.T., and, in case of threatening weather, may be pushed ahead to 8:30 or even earlier.

NEW RINK FOR LINDSAY

LINDSAY, Sept. 15.—The $15,000 new skating rink for Lindsay was an assured fact yesterday, when Lieut.-Col. R. I. Moore, chairman of the building committee, received a cheque from Col. C. D. P. McAlpine of Toronto, an old Lindsay boy, for $500. Work on the ground has already commenced, and the new rink will be one of the most modern and up-to-date in Eastern Ontario.

SILVER SLIPPERS

CHAPTER 40

The oysters were delicious. . . .

And Joan said to the children, "Do you know why this is the nicest soup in the whole wide world?"

They said together, "No."

"Because it is seasoned with self-sacrifice, and flavored with love . . ."

The children sighed with contentment. Dear Joan was the same . . .!

Old John Leonard carved the turkey. It dropped away in melting slices from his knife. He served first his old wife, for whom his life had been spent. She sat beside him. Now and then she laid her hand on the sleeve of his rough coat in a little gesture of tenderness, and always he would turn to her, "My dear," and would touch the thin white fingers.

Joan, watching, felt a pain at her heart—Would Drew ever be like that—all tenderness? Would he and she grow old together . . . loving? Would he have for her then the look in his eyes, that came into the eyes of old John Leonard when he turned to his wife?

She knew he would not. If she were old and frail and sick Drew would want none of her. Drew liked her youth, her loveliness. Most men were like that . . .!

But not men like old John Leonard . . .!

Not men like young Giles Armiger . . .!

His name leaped in her mind like a flame. Why had she linked him with old John Leonard? What did she know of his tenderness? His constancy? Nothing—except the memory of the things he had said in the dim old bookshop and that dark night of storm in the pavilion . .

And the memory, too, of the verse he had found for her . . . in the time of trouble he shall hide me . . . The words had comforted her in the days of stress and readjustment which had followed the funeral. They had been like a kind voice speaking . . . a kind hand held out . . .

When dinner was over, Joan said, "Now everybody help clear away, and then we'll open all the boxes."

She had brought dozens of parcels when she had arrived, and they were shut in the sitting room, the children having instructions not to look at them. "And really," Joan had told them, "you can't tell anything from the outside. The big ones aren't the most interesting. It's the littlest ones which are the best."

The clearing-away was most exciting. Even old John Leonard went back and forth with dishes. Penelope had pans of hot suds, and Evelyn had relays of fresh towels, and before they knew it the dishes were done, young John had put fresh logs on the sitting room fire, and there they all gathered in a circle.

And Joan said, "Will somebody play Santa Claus?"

And old John Leonard said, "You must play Santa Claus yourself."

And Joan said, "But I haven't a red coat or a white beard."

And Cilla said, with eagerness, "You could have a red wreath," so she and John ran away together, and when they came back, Joan's head was bound with a red ribbon, with a bunch of holly berries at each side, and as young John said, from her neck up she looked like Christmas!

Then the boxes were opened and out from them came books for old John Leonard; a warm light rug of imported plaid for his wife; for Evelyn a beautiful fur to set off her simple suit, and for the children everything that was lovely and gay and that they had wished for all their lives.

"Oh, darling, darling," Cilla said over her wrist watch, and young John, bright-eyed and solemn with happiness laid his cheek against Joan's and said, "You're nicer than a princess."

And Joan was very happy in her wreath of red and in the happiness she was giving to others. And it was not until she was going home with Penelope that she grew afraid again. It was growing dark as they neared the house, and a gray sky hung over a sullen sea. Joan knew that when she entered the house she would have to face her thoughts. To look into the future. To plan—with that awful feeling of doubt. That awful feeling of futility. They had said she was unchanged, but she knew it wasn't true. She would never be the same again—never—never!

They descended from the car, and walked up the path together. They opened the door and went in. Joan moved about the living room, lighting the lamps, while Penelope mended the fire.

Then, suddenly, Joan found herself clinging to Penelope, and crying as if her heart would break.

"My dear, my dear, what has happened?"

"Penelope . . . I'm afraid."

"Of what, my dear?"

"Of life."

Giles' convalescence was slow: "You need a change," the doctor told him, "why don't you go south?"

Giles shook his head. "I must stay by things here."

"You mean, Scripps and his wife?"

"Yes."

Macdonald considered that. "She's no better?"

"Sometimes I think she's worse. Of late she has had a grudge against the old gull, Peter. She flies into a rage when I pet him."

"Better keep him out of her way. She might hurt him."

"Surely not."

"One never knows . . ." he smoked for a moment in silence, then asked: "You're not hard pressed in money matters?"

"No."

"I'd like to try an experiment. But it will be costly."

"I have enough and to spare. My tastes are simple. I don't use half my income."

"And yet you sell books?"

"Why not? It's an ancient and honorable profession. And an outlet for my energies. Since the war I've been tied here Hard work helps to keep me contented."

"Some men would have taken to sports—golf."

"And run with the summer crowd, the country club set? I prefer the townspeople. They are like my forbears—sturdy folk and busy ones."

The doctor leaned back in his chair, his shrewd eyes narrowed in thought. "If you were free—what then?"

"You mean if it were not for Scripps and Amelie?"

"Yes."

"I wouldn't be here."

"Where would you be?"

Giles hesitated, then told the truth, "I'd be fighting for the woman I love."

"Joan?"

"How did you know?"

"You talked about her when you were ill."

"Scripps said that I did. Well . . . it's a long story. There's another man who wants to marry her. He'll get her if he can, and my hands are tied."

Macdonald leaned back in the chair. "Don't be Quixotic. Your life is your own. If this girl belongs to you, you'll be a fool to let Scripps and his wife spoil things for you."

"Scripps would do more for me than I am doing . . ."

"Granted. But why take self-sacrifice as inevitable? There may be a better way out. I've wanted to suggest it for some time. That's why I asked about your finances. What I have in mind is that you should take Amelie to Paris."

"To Paris—why?"

"I'd like to re-create the old scenes for her, and work on that. Have Scripps wear his uniform—take her to the same restaurants, the same places for amusement . . . reconstruct the war atmosphere as much as possible, and watch for evidences of memory."

"Do you think there's the slightest chance?"

"More than a chance."

Giles was eager. "There'd be a new heaven for Scripps and me, if Amelie could be herself again."

"We must be careful not to hold out too much hope. What I want is to find the right nurse to go with you—someone mature and sensible. You could say to Amelie that you felt it best to have a woman companion to travel with her. And the nurse would be always on the alert. She wouldn't seem to watch, but nothing would escape her. A little later my wife and I would come over, and I could note the effect of the experiment. In the meantime there would be wonderful specialists within reach, whom you could consult."

They talked about it for a long time, and when at last the doctor departed, the plans were fixed. "This house is deadly and depressing. You need to get away from it."

Giles knew that he needed it. When the doctor had gone he sat thinking of it all. If Amelie could be cured and he could fight for Joan! He found himself beating his fist on the arm of his chair. Even if Amelie was not cured, he must fight for Joan. Hallam would be after her hot-footed now that she had money. And he must not have her.

When his letter had remained unanswered, Giles had tried to get in touch with Joan by telephone. He had called up the Baltimore house, and Jason had answered guardedly that Miss Dudley was out of town. Giles, hanging up the receiver, had thought with bitterness that the heiress must, of course, be protected. Her address must be given only to those who had the right to know it.

He resolved to write to her again, at Penelope's, and if he had no response to go and find her. He must find her. Rich or poor . . . poor or rich . . . he would seek her and show her his heart.

For Sunday, September 16

Sunday's horoscope, although holding encouraging auguries for the clergy and affairs of church, charity and state, at the same time has signs of complications, involvements and discord.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of good opportunities for advancement, prestige and solid progress, although these may be beset by the abrupt precipitation of thwarting or complicating events.

A child born on this day, while having an industrious, serious and ambitious nature yet may be erratic, changeable and unruly, having many ups and downs.

For Monday, September 17

Monday's astrological forecast holds high promise of activity, excitement, commotion and many and diverse pleasures, interests and benefits of a sudden and surprising nature. In all directions things seem to be flying, and into pleasant, prosperous and happy adventures, but on the way an element of scandal, fraud or misrepresentation may be encountered. Radical change and strange environs are certain.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a truly new year, with a radical change in environs, interests, associates and destiny.

A child born on this day may have great talent and versatility, mainly out of the ordinary in scope—practical, skillful and ingenious, as well as spectacular and original. It may attain high station in social as well as possibly scientific life. It should receive early training in integrity and honesty.

What Next?

For the past few months the popular thing seems to be "tin can" mail, which, without some explanation, certainly doesn't convey very much to the uninitiated. Here is the story:

Down in the South Seas there is a little islet called Naifu, one of the Tonga group of islands. Its single white inhabitant, W. G. Ruensell, is postmaster, storekeeper and copra trader. Until a few months ago the mail averaged about 200 letters per year. But now it's just too bad, and if it keeps up Mr. Ruensell may be glad of half a dozen or more able assistants.

The passenger boats do not dock at Naifu, but merely pull up some little distance from shore to allow the mail to be dropped off. The mail is sealed in tin cans to keep it dry and a native swims out from the island pushing a log, to which the can, or cans, of mail are tied. The trader, having a sense of humor, marked the letters "tin-can mail", and since this has become known to collectors everyone wants a cover with a "tin-can" postmark.

Lately it has become necessary to use a canoe to reach the liners, due to the heavy mail. In San Francisco there were at one time in June 15,000 letters waiting for dispatch on one of the cruise liners; these letters are left at the island and picked up later on by one of the boats running between Australia and the United States.

Illustrated are some of the stamps of the Tonga islands. One illustrates King George II.; the other, Queen Saolte, present 300-pound native ruler. The five-shilling depicts a view of "Vaveau", a town or settlement on one of the larger islands of the group.

The stamps used on these covers may not necessarily be those of Tonga; they may be any one of United States, Phillipines, Australian or those of Tonga. The idea is more to get that "tin-can" postmark than to worry over which stamps are on the envelope.

THE STAMP CORNER.

Questions and Answers

R. Laxton, Chilliwack, B.C.: The stamp to which you refer is doubtless the two-cent value of the 1908 Quebec tercentenary issue of Canada. These stamps are still quite plentiful in used condition and sell at one or two cents each.

S. M. Hinton, Pincher Creek, Alta.: Five-cent McGee stamps, used, sell at one or two cents each. Two-cent Quebecs sell at same prices. One-cent Quebecs, if in good condition, sell at five cents each. The Straits Settlement stamps referred to are doubtless quite plentiful, especially if they are the low values, but it would be necessary to see the stamps before I could give you their definite value.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 15.—Did you hear the latest? Franchot Tone wants to become an opera star. The Cornell university graduate who conquered Broadway with his performance in "Green Grow the Lilacs," stepped in quick movie fame and even into the heart of Joan Crawford is seriously studying in the hopes of an eventual chance on the operatic stage. You'll probably be surprised to hear it but Franchot has an excellent basso voice. He had never taken it seriously until Joan began to study singing under Senor Oliver Morando. Franchot met the teacher who has developed the voices of Bebe Daniels and several other movie celebrities. Soon Franchot was as interested in singing as Joan. He now takes lessons whenever he can get away from the studio, and, oddly enough, is said to have a very good chance of developing a real voice.

THE WORD

goes around again that Charlie Chaplin is ready to start his picture at last. They say his set is almost finished and that he probably will shoot the first scene next week. You also are asked to believe that the script will be photographed exactly as is, with any changes coming at the end under the head of added scenes. Even stranger still, Charlie is said to have arranged for a company manager to see that the picture stays in the budget.

ALL THE ACTION

of "Fog", Columbia production which opens at the Regent Theatre Saturday night, takes place aboard a trans-atlantic steamship immersed in mist—and the result is enough to make even the most stubbornly flat head of hair stand on end!

Three murders occur within 24 hours after the ship leaves its New York dock. All three victims are strangled to death. Two are first-class passengers, the third the ship's doctor.

Fourteen characters, assembled from all walks of life, play important roles in "Fog". They are brought vividly to life by Donald Cook, Mary Brian, Reginald Denny Helen Freeman, Robert McWade, Samuel S. Hinds, G. Pat Collins, Greta Meyer, Maude Eburne, Edwin Maxwell, Wallis Clarke, Montague Shaw and Reginald Barlow.

CHARLOTTE

Bronte's famous novel, "Jane Eyre" comes to the screen of the Regent Theatre Monday in one of the most faithfully portrayed versions of any classic that has been turned out by the Hollywood producers.

Virginia Bruce and Colin Clive play the leading roles in the Monogram feature, and they lend a charming authenticity to their respective literary counterparts, Jane Eyre and Mr. Rochester.

While the work of Miss Bruce in the title role and Clive as Rochester, are the most outstanding performances, every supporting role has been cast with equal care, and we must also credit excellent characterizations to Aileen Pringle, Jameson Thomas, David Torrence, Beryl Mercer, Joan Standing, Lionel Belmore, Jean Darlin Ethel Griffies, Gretta Gould and th many others in the cast.

FOR EVERY 10

The latest sucker was a United Artists writer who brought up the old subject of the comedian's five daughters.

"What are you going to do, Eddie," he asked, "when you have five sons-in-law to support?"

The comedian shrugged. "That is easy," he snapped. "We'll form an act, 'Eddie Cantor and his five happy sons-in-law!' And then, if their wives come to see them, we'll have a good matinee."

KNICK-KNACKS—

Jean Harlow's novel probably will ma ke its first appearance serially, in the December issue of a national magazine. . . . Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller are headed for Mexico on a motoring vacation. They left here with Johnny's surf-board strapped to the top of the car and a back seat full of fishing tackle. . . . Now it's Joan Crawford who'll drive to the studio in a small car of popular make. Many of the celebs are going in for this brand of being inconspicuous. . . . Newest live spot is Frank Sebastian's Cotton club cafe, with twin dance floors. Bea Pollack's orchestra plays in the main dining room and red hot colored music and entertainers are featured in the lounge. Hit of the white show is Jimmy Ray, a limber tap-dancer lately at the Town club in SanFrancisco. Doris Robbins, a red-headed singer, and Ray Mayer, the master of ceremonies, also scored with first nighters. Film celebs at ringside included Arline Judge and Wesley Ruggles, Olive Del Ruth, Henry Wilcoxon, Howard Hawks with Billy Seymour and Joey Ray.

NEW STAGGERING PLAN TESTED IN HAVELOCK PUBLIC SCHOOL

Board Provides Cups For Annual Field Day September 27th.

PUPILS INSURED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 14.—The regular meeting of the village school board was held in the fourth form class-room at 7:30 p.m. last Thursday evening, Chairman Bernard Smith presiding. The following trustees were present: William Bullied, H. W. Roche, Charles Taylor and William Copp. Only a couple of ratepayers were present outside of the board and principals.

Miss Morgan, the new principal of the new grade A. Continuation School, said she had been trying to prepare a workable time-table and schedule that would include all the pupils. The repeaters were as usual to blame for this.

Miss Morgan recommended the purchase of a new teachers' desk for the fourth book class. The board met in this room and they readily saw it was badly needed.

When asked by the board for the enrollment of county pupils, the new principal was as yet unable to supply the full list; but gave the enrollment in the new school as 109 pupils. this is made up as follows: 51 in third and fourth forms, 27 in second form, and 31 in first form. There are eighteen pupils taking Upper School work and in no fourth year class is there less than ten pupils.

On motion of trustees Roche and Bullied the necessary books and equipment will be purchased by Miss Morgan.

Principal Percy Yuill of the public school reported the new "staggering plan" in the school is being put into operation and so far had been operating satisfactorily. He thought they would do just as well as they did in previous years.

The New System.

The staggering system that has been talked about so much for the past two weeks has been made necessary by the crowded condition existing. It means briefly that the junior fourth class taught by Miss R. Marion Inkster and the Senior fourth class taught by Mr. P. Yuill use the one class room. In the study of Nature, Hygiene, Art, Literature and Composition, they are all one. They come at 8:30 and leave at 10:30 in the morning. At noon they come at 1 p.m. and leave at three. According to Mr. Yuill the pupils are keen for the new system. Comparing the present time table with the system in effect when the two classes were in one, the present system gives them slightly more teaching time. The hours he said, were actually very little shorter for the teachers, who had certain duties around the school and more work to prepare in the shorter periods. Mr. Yuill strongly recommended that the board should give the system a fair trial before condemning it. About six books are required to bring the public school supplementary reading up to date.

Field Day on 27th.

Miss Morgan told the board the last Thursday in September had been chosen as the day most suitable for the holding of the annual field day, when track and field events will be run off by the Continuation School. In previous years the board had made a $25.00 grant for trophies. The new principal very kindly offered to purchase medals as second prizes to the silver cup trophies if the board would buy four of the latter for the boys' senior and junior as well as these two classes in the girls' sports.

On motion of trustees Taylor and Roche the principals were voted $30 to spend on trophies for the annual field day competitions in September. It was suggested by some of the board members that the two schools get together on the big day.

Caretaker Robert Buchanan reported that the pump in the town hall supplying the school needed some new piping and also there was a small leak just noticeable in the roof of the fourth form class room.

Mr. Yuill drew the attention of the board to the Teachers' Convention in Norwood early in October and asked about transportation for the Havelock contestants. The board left this matter until the day arrives.

12 Pupils Eligible.

It was said that about a dozen of the public school pupils would be eligible for the competitions, and it has been rumored the singing classes under the direction of Mr. H. C. Renaud may put in an appearance for demonstration purposes. It seemed to be the opinion of the board that they would be in favor of supplying whatever transportation might be necessary.

The following accounts were ordered paid on motion of trustees Roche and Bullied: S. Miles, cutting wood, $5.63; F. B. McAdam, weeds, $2.00; R. Buchanan, salary, $58.33; F. Vincent, work, material, $77.24; G. G. Ames, work and material, $94.20; P. Yuill, work, $12.30; Wm. Brown, work, $25.15; Copp Clark Co., supplies, $10.80; B. Smith, express, $0.65; E. S. Hubbel & Son, account, $54.05; teachers and caretakers, salary for September, $901.70.

A formal consent from the deputy minister of education dealt with the inauguration of the grade "A" school. Slight changes had been deemed necessary in the time tables submitted and these had been corrected.

A letter from Mr. Ellis in charge of provincial unemployment relief expenditures dealt with the supplying of school books for relief recipients. Old text books were to be used where they were necessary and available.

Under unfinished business, it was noted the united townships of Belmont and Methuen had not yet paid their school grant since January, 1934. The amount due the village is $178.30 and on motion of trustees Copp and Taylor they will again be billed with that amount.

A long letter re the importance of carrying public liability insurance on the school was dealt with and finally a policy covering $5,000 for any single person or $10,000 for two or more persons in any one accident was taken out at an annual premium of $30.70; on motion of trustees Taylor and Roche. This covers 205 pupils in public school and 109 in the continuation school.

On motion of trustees Roche and Taylor, chairman Smith was authorized to purchase one clock for the fourth class room at $8.00 and express 75 cents.

A letter was received from Inspector Randle approving of the new continuation school. On motion of trustees Copp and Taylor the meeting adjourned until the third Thursday of October or at the call of the chair.

17 GRANDMOTHERS ARE ENTERTAINED

Warsaw Women's Institute Are Hostesses at Pleasing Social Gathering.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, September 14. — The Warsaw W. I. room was well filled on Thursday afternoon (Sept. 13) when the Institute entertained the grandmothers, seventeen of whom were present. Four living in the village were unable to attend because of old age infirmities.

Mrs. Anderson presided and Mrs. Elsie Thompson acted as secretary in the absence of her mother.

The business was as brief as possible. It was decided to have a booth at the school fair on September 21. Also as Mr. Copp had kindly consented to give a talk, and asked if it would be convenient to have it in the evening of Oct. 11. The subject to be announced later.

Mrs. Anderson read a splendid address of welcome to the grandmothers present. In it she showed that the description of a woman in the last chapter of Proverbs, described a good mother who looked after and taught her children; a good business woman, a church worker, an Institute woman. Mrs. Thomas Cooper gave a graceful reply. Mrs. Henry Clements sang Grandmother's Old Arm Chair, unaccompanied, as she did when a child. Mrs. John Tucker read The Girls of To-day. Mrs. James Greystock was to give a reading, but threshing kept her at home as it did several others. Assembly singing Old Folks at Home. Mrs. J. A.Crowe very feelingly recited Trouble in the Amen Corner, which was appreciated very much, as it was difficult for Mrs. Crowe to get to the gathering.

Mrs. Luther Payne, Mrs. Thomas Borland, Mrs. W. Hamblin and Mrs. Everett Garbutt sang Carry Me Back to Old Virginy, with Mrs. Garbutt at the piano.

Prizes were awarded to the oldest grandmother present, the youngest, and the one with the greatest number of grandchildren. No grandmother present was over 80, only one present owned to being over 70, Mrs. Albert Batten who received a pair of bed-room slippers. No grandmothers were under 45, two sisters, Mrs. Sharp and Mrs. Fred Parcels were under 50. Mrs. Parcels was the younger and received a Japanese flower holder. Mrs. Albert Batten had the most grand-children, 36, and received a pair of stockings. Mrs. Batten also had nine great grand-children.

Regret was expressed that Mrs. Ruben Hamblin, the oldest grandmother in the township, who is able to be around, was unable to be present. Mrs. Jane Clements is the oldest, but she is bed-ridden. Afternoon tea was served.

Mrs. George Weller received the guests.

Jas. Gilgour Grows Beautiful Dahlias

James Gilgour of 360 Water street has a display of dahlias that is well worth seeing. Mr. Gilgour has been a resident of this city for many years, but only recently has he cultivated dahlias on a large scale. His garden, which lies just north of the Sanitary Ice Supply, contains over two hundred dahlias plants, representing over fifty varieties. Each day residents of this part of the city visit his garden in large numbers. Mr. Gilgour can name every variety in his garden from memory and takes much pride in showing any, who are interested in flowers, the plants which extend from Water street to the very bank of the Otonabee.

SAYS ROEBUCK.

TORONTO, Sept. 17 (C.P.) — The Ontario Government will make no effort to seize the sweepstake winnings of John Wiseboard of Orangeville, Ontario, Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney General, announced to-day.

The Orangeville merchant could "bring home his $30,000 prize and hold all the celebration he likes without fear of interference by this department," said Mr. Roebuck.

"The chief thing I had in mind in mentioning this case," said Mr. Roebuck, "was the contest of jurisdiction between the Province and the Dominion. If the money was to be forfeited to His Majesty, as provided for by law, I contend the province should receive the prize.

"To begin with, the principal of 'possum pie' is first catch your possum. The next thing in mind, is the very strong public feeling that this man should not be deprived of his winnings. So until there is a more settled public opinion on the question I don't feel myself called upon to take action."

The Attorney General, however, pointed out this case was not a precedent, "for each case must stand on its own feet."

SWISS OPPOSE SOVIET ENTRY

Russian Communism Seeks to Take Root Everywhere League is Told.

TURKEY ELECTED.

GENEVA, Sept. 17 (C.P.-A.P. Cable).—Switzerland dramatically opposed Russian entry to the League of Nations as the Assembly met again this afternoon, her delegate declaring Russian Communism seeks to take root everywhere, "and its ambition is world revolution."

Enunciation of the Swiss opposition was merely a gesture, for Russia has been invited by a competent majority and has accepted the invitation to join the League, furthermore being afforded a permanent seat on the League Council. Her formal entry is expected before the end of the week.

The Assembly meeting followed rejection of China's claim for re-election to a seat on the Council. Chile, Spain and Turkey were elected to fill the three vacant non-permanent seats, Spain being re-elected. Two permanent seats are vacant by withdrawal of Germany and Japan, and Russia will take one of these.

In addition to Switzerland, Portugal opposed Russia's entry to the League as the Assembly met.

CALLANDER, Ont., Sept. 17.—(CP) — Temperatures of the Dionne quintuplets had returned to normal today and three of the famous girls showed weight increase. Dr. A. R. Dafoe, their physician, was satisfied with their progress despite a weight loss by two of them. "They are still suffering from intestinal toxaemia" said Dr. Dafoe, "but their condition is much improved, especially the functioning of their bowels. I expect the ailment will be with them for a few days yet."

Weather condition in Northern Ont. are still unfavorable and this fact was regarded as having a tendency to hamper the speedy recovery of the babies.

RUMOR GERMANY BUILDING HUGE AIRPLANE FLEET

U. S. Munitions Inquiry to Probe Stores Parts, Motors Bootlegged.

FROM AMERICA.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The United States Senate munitions inquiry delved to-day into reports that Germany has built a potent air fleet out of motors and parts "bootlegged" through North Sea ports.

Determined to keep the vast munitions trade in 'a goldfish bowl,' the investigators promised a wealth of material during this third and last week of the initial hearings.

Officials of the Pratt and Whitney Company and the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation were called to lead off to-day's testimony. Pratt and Whitney are large builders of aeroplane motors.

Indications have come from inside circles that the committee has evidence linking large American shipments of aeroplane motors and parts to North Europe in recent years with reported assembly in Germany of an array of war craft. Data already before the committee purports to show Germany has found ways to keep herself armed despite the prohibitions in the Treaty of Versailles.

LEADER ISSUES STRIKE THREAT

If Strike Not Settled This Week Will Call Out More Workers.

AGAINST JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the United States textile strike committee, issued an ultimatum to-day that if the strike was not settled this week all remaining divisions of the industry would be called out.

At the same time, Gorman disclosed plans to have a resolution adopted by the approaching convention of the American Federation of Labor in San Francisco, demanding the resignation of Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator.

"I think I know how organized labor in general feels about the General. There is scarcely an international union that has not been damaged by his unjustliness in actions," said Gorman.

United States Aided Canton Air School

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Testimony that the United States Department of Commerce aided in recruiting and formation of a military air school for the Canton, China, Government, was laid today before the Senate Munitions Committee.

The matter was described as having been handled "very confidentially" early last year in order that it might not come to the attention of another Oriental power, which might challenge the "impropriety" of the action.

The testimony came out in questioning F. H. Love, director of the company, who said the matter had been handled quietly to avoid arousing suspicion of the other power.

SHELDON SMOKE IS SWORN IN AS COUNTY JUDGE

New Judge Succeeds the Late Judge E. C. S. Huycke.

WELCOMED BY BAR.

Mayor Denne and Warden Ferguson Extend Citizens' Greetings.

The scales of justice in the jurisdiction of the county of Peterborough were placed in the hands of Sheldon L. Smoke by his official induction this morning as Judge of the County Court of Peterborough, immediately succeeding the late Judge E. C. S. Huycke.

His Honour Judge J. A. McGibbon of Lindsay, presided for the ceremony in a formal session of the County Court which was largely attended by members of the Bar of Peterborough and Northumberland counties. Telegrams regretting their inability to be present on account of court duties were read from Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg, and Judge Robert Ruddy of Whitby.

The congratulations of Judge McGibbon to his new associate of the Bench were supplemented by the complimentary greetings of the Bar of Peterborough conveyed by W. F. Huycke, president of the Peterborough Bar, and Archibald Cochrane, K.C., of Cobourg, President of the Northumberland and Durham Bar Association, and by Mayor Denne and Warden Rork Ferguson.

Royal patents announcing the appointment of Sheldon L. Smoke to the judiciary of this province with jurisdiction in this county, and by exchange of duties in the counties of Victoria, Northumberland and Durham, were read by V. J. McElderry as representative of the Crown.

After the Court had been convened by Judge McGibbon, he requested Sheriff Hall to conduct Mr. Smoke from the Judge's private room, into the main court room, where the transfer of the King's trust was immediately proceeded with shortly after 11.30 o'clock. Mr. McElderry slowly read the promulgation of the elevation of Judge Smoke to the County Court, and this was followed by the administering of the oath of allegiance and induction, read by Crown Attorney McElderry and repeated by Judge Smoke, who was then presented with the new Bible, on an

CHURCH CRISIS FACING HITLER

1,500 Lutherans Stage Most Daring Demonstrations Since Nazi Took Office.

WANT BISHOP BACK.

BERLIN, Sept. 17 (C.P.-Havas).—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler to-day faced the gravest threat of internal crisis over religious disturbances since he began his attempts to create a purely Nazi church.

Last evening, while Reich propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels was predicting unified progress on all domestic problems before 25,000 storm troopers here, some 1,500 Lutherans staged a daring anti-Nazi demonstration in front of Munich's brown house, Nazi headquarters, and virtually the symbol of Hitler organization in Germany.

The Lutherans, who adopted a militant attitude and sang Martin Luther's battle song, "A Mighty Fortress is Our Lord," were protesting against the dismissal of Bishop Theophil Wurm of Wuerttemberg by the Reich Church authorities.

Their demonstration caused the gravest concern to Nazi leaders, who conferred this morning on the action to be taken regarding one of the most marked defiances of the regime since it came to power.

MUST DRIVE OUT LIQUOR TRAFFIC MINISTER SAYS

Re-affirms United Church's Opposition to Liquor at General Council.

QUESTION COMPLICATED.

Law Cannot Take Place of Other Factors in Building of Character.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 17. (CP). "We stand opposed to the liquor traffic," declared Rev. D. N. McLachlan, D.D., Toronto secretary of Board of Evangelism and Social Service in presenting his report to the General Council of the United Church to-day.

"The time must come when it will be driven out of our national life".

Dr. McLachlan told 300 commissioners that there never was a time the question of temperance was so complicated. "The law," he said, "could never take the place of the home, the school and the church in the building up of character. Too much had been expected of the law"

The board has initiated studies for its ministers in psychology and psychiatry in co-operation with Ontario Department of health. The board states that such courses had been provided in the Hamilton area, and that similar conferences are being arranged in other parts of Ontario.

From the standpoint of its institutions the board reports a year of financial stringency, together with much effective evangelism in its seven redemptive homes.

In the homes during 1933 there were 147 persons admitted and 121 discharged. At the beginning of the year there were 168 inmates. The results are indicated by the following totals.

Report on Salaries

The report of the Committee on Co-ordination of Ministers' Salaries was presented by Rev. Dr. H. W. Avison of Toronto, the suggestion being made that the committee continue its investigation of the problem and report at the next General Council after considering further information.

Rev. A. E. Baker of Toronto moved that the committee send a remit to the various presbyteries seeking their authority for a plan of ministerial support modelled on a scheme in effect in the Church of Scotland.

Consideration of the Scottish plan had been made by the Presbyterian Church in Canada some years before Union, Rev. Dr. Robert Laird, General Treasurer, said. He added the plan had been considered unworkable in a large and expanding country at that time at least.

Rev. Sa'em Bland of Toronto declared the Canadian church would have to decide whether the minister was a brotherhood. The present plan of ministerial support, he contended, was not much different from methods of world business.

"I am profoundly convinced," he declared, "we shall not make much progress as a church if we ministers do not set the example."

Debate on the report was adjourned.

U. S. DEFENDER IS DEFEATED BY 500 YARDS

Sopwith Wins Race by Two Minutes and Nine Seconds.

DECISIVE DEFEAT.

Coming From Behind British Boat Takes Lead at 15 Mile Mark.

Aboard U. S. C. G. Cutter Argo, off Newport, Sept. 17. —(AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, challenger British yacht "Endeavour" today won the first race of the American Cup series from Harold S. Vanderbilt's "Rainbow", scoring the first British race victory in the yachting classic since the late Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV won the second race from Resolute in 1920.

Fifteen seconds behind on the beat to windward the big British racer fairly ate up the breeze on the run home to administer a decisive defeat to the defender. Endeavour's margin was two minutes, and nine seconds. The race between the two Saturday was declared no contest when time limit of 5½ hours expired.

Endeavour finished at 2.38.01 E. S.T. making her time for the 30 mile windward-leeward course three hours, 43 minutes, 44 seconds. Rainbow's official finishing time was given as 2.40.53.

While Vanderbilt was looking for a breeze on the run home and shifted sail several times, Sopwith bore right in it filling beautifully in a nine knot breeze and shoving the blue hulled challenger through the water to increase the lead achieved shortly after the boats rounded the buoy.

Just before the race was won Sopwith jibed and it appeared his crew was a little slow in breaking out canvas. The Rainbow picked several lengths and it seemed that Massachusetts Boys School Head is Shot While Reading in Study.

MOTIVE UNKNOWN.

NORTHFIELD, Mass., Sept. 17 (AP)—The slaying of Elliott Speer in the study of his home on the campus of Mount Hermon School remained a hystery to-day as State Police sought for clues.

Speer, principal of the boys' school, was shot to death last night as he sat reading.

An assailant fired through a window overlooking a spacious lawn. Several shotgun pellets entered Speer's chest and State Police dug several others from a wall. Two jagged holes in the curtainless closed window remained as evidence of the shooting.

The wife of the 36-year-old headmaster and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Welles of Philadelphia, the only other occupants of Ford Hall, their campus home, heard the gun's discharge. They knew of no motive for the shooting.

Speer, the father of three children, was the son of the Rev. Robert Elliot Speer, secertary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, and a trustee of the school.

PROVINCE NOT SEIZING PRIZE

Only Intended to Act if Dominion Sought Orangeville Man's Sweep Money.

SAYS ROEBUCK.

TORONTO, Sept. 17 (C.P.) — The Ontario Government will make no effort to seize the sweepstake winnings of John Wiseboard of Orangeville, Ontario, Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney General, announced to-day.

The Orangeville merchant could "bring home his $30,000 prize and hold all the celebration he likes without fear of interference by this department," said Mr. Roebuck.

"The chief thing I had in mind in mentioning this case," said Mr. Roebuck, "was the contest of jurisdiction between the Province and the Dominion. If the money was to be forfeited to His Majesty, as provided for by law, I contend the province should receive the prize.

"To begin with, the principal of 'possum pie' is first catch your possum. The next thing in mind, is the very strong public feeling that this man should not be deprived of his winnings. So until there is a more settled public opinion on the question I don't feel myself called upon to take action."

The Attorney General, however, pointed out this case was not a precedent, "for each case must stand on its own feet."

SWISS OPPOSE SOVIET ENTRY

Russian Communism Seeks to Take Root Everywhere League is Told.

TURKEY ELECTED.

GENEVA, Sept. 17 (C.P.-A.P. Cable).—Switzerland dramatically opposed Russian entry to the League of Nations as the Assembly met again this afternoon, her delegate declaring Russian Communism seeks to take root everywhere, "and its ambition is world revolution."

Enunciation of the Swiss opposition was merely a gesture, for Russia has been invited by a competent majority and has accepted the invitation to join the League, furthermore being afforded a permanent seat on the League Council. Her formal entry is expected before the end of the week.

The Assembly meeting followed rejection of China's claim for re-election to a seat on the Council. Chile, Spain and Turkey were elected to fill the three vacant non-permanent seats, Spain being re-elected. Two permanent seats are vacant by withdrawal of Germany and Japan, and Russia will take one of these.

In addition to Switzerland, Portugal opposed Russia's entry to the League as the Assembly met.

U. S. Munitions Inquiry to Probe Stores Parts, Motors Bootlegged.

FROM AMERICA.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The United States Senate munitions inquiry delved to-day into reports that Germany has built a potent air fleet out of motors and parts "bootlegged" through North Sea ports.

Determined to keep the vast munitions trade in 'a goldfish bowl,' the investigators promised a wealth of material during this third and last week of the initial hearings.

Officials of the Pratt and Whitney Company and the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation were called to lead off to-day's testimony. Pratt and Whitney are large builders of aeroplane motors.

Data already before the committee purports to show Germany has found ways to keep herself armed despite the prohibitions in the Treaty of Versailles.

NORTHFIELD, Mass., Sept. 17 (AP)—The slaying of Elliott Speer in the study of his home on the campus of Mount Hermon School remained a mystery to-day as State Police sought for clues.

STIFF BREEZE PROMISES REAL YACHT BATTLE

FIRST RACE TELLS LITTLE.

Termed Drifting Match—Honors to Skipper Most Familiar With Course.

By ANDREW MERKEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 17.—(CP)—Newport was agog again early this morning for a second attempt to argue the issue between Rainbow, representing the New York Yacht Club and Endeavour, representing the Royal Yacht Squadron, for possession of the America's Cup, that ancient example of the silversmith's art that has represented world supremacy in yachting for the past 83 years.

T. O. M. Sopwith, aboard the blue-hulled British challenger, and Harold S. Vanderbilt, aboard the spick and span United States defender, directed preparations for today's contest, as the huge fleet of pleasure craft and excursion steamers made ready to move out to the starting line under charge of the coast guard. Early indications were the yachts would face a moderate to strong northwest wind. This would call for a run to leeward of 15 miles and a dead muzzler back to the finish line.

Noted Spectators

Perhaps the most picturesque craft making for the starting line this morning was the old Boston pilot boat Liberty. On board in addition to the owner, Roscoe Prior of Boston, were a group of former Canadians, including Captain Ben Pine of Thebaud fame, Captain Clayt Morrissey, who skippered Henry Ford in the series with Bluenose, Captains Charles Stewart and Ed Proctor. All sailing out of Gloucester.

They are kee nstudents of yacht racing and agree Saturday's unsatisfactory contest, called off when Rainbow with a lead of a quarter mile was unable to finish within the time limit of 5½ hours, provided no proper basis for comparing the relative merits of the two boats. Moreover they are looking for Skipper Sopwith to make a better showing to-day.

The issue will be decided when either the defending Rainbow or challenging Endeavour has won four races. Contests will be held each week day, weather permitting and barring accidents, until the series is completed.

Saturday's abortive encounter proved little more than a drifting match with the honors going to the skipper and crew more familiar with the course in the weather of the day. With the wind blowing six to eight knots from the south-east, the sailing committee in charge of the race was obliged, under the deed of gift requiring a beat 15 miles to windward and return for the opening contest to signal a course that took the yachts into the tricky tidal waters of Martha's Vineyard.

Sopwith was beaten at the start when he elected to change his headsails two minutes before the gun. He explained after the race that he had been undecided up until the last moment as to whether or not he shouud use a Genoa jib. He finally decided on the single headsail, but the business of dousing forsail and quadralateral and setting the Genoa, killed his way and placed him at the leeward end of the starting line. He crossed almost a full minute after Vanderbilt, at the wheel of Rainbow, and by hard pinching just missed relieving the committee boat of some of its glistening paint.

Sopwith Slips Up

Later in the race he permitted Rainbow to cross his bows before he was in a position to hold a course to weather of the outer mark. This manœuvre killed his wind and before he got Endeavour going again he had lost, it was estimated, a full two minutes.

He made up some of this time by going back to a double headsail rig and by a series of short tacks requiring Vanderbilt who followed religiously the fundamental rule in yachting which ordains that having established a lead over your opponent you must match tacks with him and so keep him continually under your lee, so long as he does not overstand the mark, to lose seconds every time he reset his cumbersome Genoa jib. But at that Vanderbilt had established a lead of two minutes and 46 seconds at the outer mark. He increased this considerably on the run home owing to difficulty experienced aboard the challenger in setting her spinnaker. Again when Vanderbilt jibbed over and researched for the finish line as a result of having drifted to leeward of the course, Sopwith failed to follow suit immediately Until he did follow suit three minutes later, Rainbow literally romped away from Endeavour. Less than an hour later, with the Defender a mile from the finish line the time limit expired and the race was declared no contest.

"They don't give the victim a chance," he said.

Major W. S. Pealer, Columbus safety director, however, found some good in the slot machines. He helped his policemen destroy 75 confiscated machines with axes.

"It gave me some exercise, it got rid of the machines and it helped the police relief fund $265.20 worth," he said, "lacking up nickels, dimes and quarters.

INSPECTOR OF BEER PARLORS

Report Circulating That C. H. Curtis of Warkworth, is District Supervisor.

REEVE OF PERCY.

Appointment of C. H. Curtis of Warkworth, as inspector of beverage rooms in six counties of Central Ontario was reported to The Examiner this afternoon, although the information was not given as official. The district extends from Frontenac to Victoria, but it was not positively known whether Peterborough county was included in the group.

Mr. Curtis is Reeve of Percy township, is a farmer living between Warkworth and Norham, and was a candidate for the Liberal nomination in Northumberland for the provincial elections. He was defeated on the final ballot by Mayor Carr of Campbellford who subsequently won the riding from Fred J. McArthur of Cobourg. It was rumored after the elections that friends of Mr. Curtis intended to appeal to the Liberal Association in regard to the result of the nomination, but this sentiment apparently was confined to a few personal and ardent friends of Mr. Curtis at Warkworth. During the campaign he was an active supporter of Mayor Carr, devoting a great deal of his time in the spade work of organization.

BENNETT RULE MUST BE ENDED SAYS HEPBURN

Ontario Chief Reviews Own Record, Points to $2,000,000 Saving.

3 NOMINATIONS NEAR.

Manion Raps Shallow Demagoguery Because of "Mob Action" Danger.

(By the Canadian Press)

Official nominations will be held today in three of the five federal bye-elections in Ontario. They will be held in Toronto East, York North, and Elgin West. Official nominations already have been held in Kenora-Rainy River and Frontenac-Addington.

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn will appear at the official nomination meeting in St. Thomas for the Elgin West bye-elections to support the Liberal cause. The seat was made vacant by Mr. Hepburn's resignation to enter the provincial political field.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader, will speak at Enterprise in the Frontenac-Addington campaign. Mr. King visited Kenoro-Rainy River last week where he appealed for Liberal support in the five bye-elections which will be staged Sept. 24.

Liberals attended a meeting at Belmont Saturday night when Mr. Hepburn appeared on the platform in the interests of Wilson H. Mills, Liberal candidate in Elgin West. He again declared Liberal victories in the five bye-elections would bring a Dominion general election closer when he hoped to see a Liberal regime at Ottawa. Only with the appearance of a Liberal government he said, would the farmer's lot be made easier.

"The Bennett government with its policies of trade strangulation and high tariffs" must be removed from office, the premier said. He reviewed his government's activities since taking office and declared an annual saving of $2,000,000 had been accomplished.

His government had still more economies to affect as it was "only on the fringe," he said. Full cost of highway construction would be borne by the government but not through "borrowing money." Money saved through reductions in government costs would meet the highway expenditures, he declared.

Manion Sees Much Danger

Shallow demagoguery was to be shunned by Canadians because of the danger of 'mob action' and adherence to real democracy should be the country's aim, Dr. R. J.

SQUIRE BACKHOUSE PASSES.

PORT BURWELL, Ont., Sept. 17 (C.P.).—Funeral arrangements were underway to-day for Port Burwell's grand old man, Squire William Backhouse, who died during the week-end. He was 96 years of age and his death came suddenly Sunday afternoon at his home here.

Known throughout Western Ontario, Mr. Backhouse was connected for years with Port Burwell's municipal and business life and was prominent in fraternal associations.

EFFICIENCY.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 17 (C.P.).—It took a bunch of farmers to put out a fire in a very citified motorcycle.

Officer Howard Luffy was riding the motorcycle when it burst into flames near the farmers' market. Before firemen arrived, the farmers had extinguished the flames with corn husks and burlap sacks.

DON'T BE CONFUSED BY MISLEADING CLAIMS

Be Sure You Get Genuine Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Bran has proved so successful in relieving common constipation that some cereal manufacturers, with products having only a fractional quantity of bran, have claimed that this minimum bran content is sufficient to get results.

You may have tried some of these part-bran products—and have been disappointed! The simple truth is that they do not furnish the amount of bran you need.

It's the "bulk" or fiber in bran that helps correct common constipation. This "bulk" is similar to that in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. It also furnishes vitamin B, as well as iron for the blood. It has won millions of friends because it overcomes common constipation safely and pleasantly.

It is all bran just as the name implies—with nothing added except the flavoring of Malt, Sugar and Salt.

When you buy a bran cereal for the relief of constipation, read the wording on the package. The facts are there! Make sure by getting Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—in the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario, Canada.

Hospital Contract Let At Brockville

BROCKVILLE, Sept. 17. — The contract for the erection of a new heating and power plant in connection with the Ontario Hospital here has been awarded to the Doran Construction Company of Ottawa, it is announced.

The new building will be of brick and stone, and its construction will provide employment for more than 100 men during the fall and part of the winter. Work will commence immediately.

While no official statement as to the expected cost of the structure was forthcoming, it is believed that the Ontario Government will spend in the neighborhood of $100,000.

FRAUD CHARGE FACES BROKER

BARN DESTROYED.

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 17.—Provincial Constable Joseph Nelson, on Saturday afternoon, arrested J. P. Sherin, stock broker, of Toronto, on the charge of converting 1,500 shares of Oil Royalty stock to his own use and with operating without a license under the Security Frauds Provision Act. William J. Hulbert, of Sommerville township, claimed ownership of the stock. Sherin, who is well known in the district, was remanded until Sept. 22nd.

Struck by Lightning

During the fierce electric storm of the week-end the large barn of Mrs. Stuart Taylor of Minden was struck by lightning and completely destroyed together with the season's crop. A number of pigs, four cows and some farm implements. Mrs. Taylor's son was milking in the barn when the bolt struck. It was impossible for him to release the cattle. Clayton McKay who resides north of Minden village, lost his home and practically all his furniture during the storm. No insurance was carried.

Auto Crashes

Traffic Officer Massingham was called to investigate two serious automobile accidents on the highway Saturday night. One accident occurred on the Lindsay-Oakwood highway. A passenger in the Dumond car (R. W. Dunn) of Woodville), aged 73 years, sustained cuts and severe bruises. Both cars were badly damaged. The other accident occurred one mile north of Lindsay on the Fenelon highway. A car driven by Nathan Pearce had stopped on the highway during the heavy downpour of rain and finally became stranded. A truck northbound, driven by William McEllory of Fenelon Falls, in passing the Pearce Car, was crashed into at the rear by a car driven by Ray Wells and having as a passenger Alice Styles, of Fenelon Falls, aged 17 years. The Wells car then collided with the stranded car and was completely wrecked. Miss Styles sustained a broken nose and badly lacerated face, while Ray Wells was badly cut on the right hand.

ANGLICANS WILL NAME PRIMATE

All Bishops Eligible for First Time in History of Church.

VOTING TO-DAY.

MONTREAL, Sept. 17. (CP).—Leadership of the Church of England in Canada, left vacant with the death last month of Most Rev. Clarendon L. Worrell, will be filled to-day when the 13th General Synod chooses a Primate from its host of Bishops. For the first time in the history of the church all bishops are eligible for succession to the Primacy. In other years the senior metropolitan has has automatically taken over the position.

With the Synod enjoying a day off Sunday, nine local churches heard sermons by exalted dignitaries of the church.

Archbishop De Pencier, Archbishop of New Westminster and senior metropolitan, who last week read to delegates the charge of the late Primate, written shortly before his death, spoke at Christ Church Cathedral and Rt. Rev. H. J. Hamilton, retiring Bishop of Mid-Japan, delivered the sermon at St. Jude's Church.

Bishop Hamilton's remarks were centred mainly on the Diocese in Japan in which he was given many years' service and the Japanese people in general for whose ability he showed great admiration. He declared Japan had acquired much of the civilization of the western nations but there was an essential part of that civilization which was definitely lacking still in Japanese life. That was the Christian religion, he said.

Other bishops to speak at the city churches were Rt. Rev. W. R. Adams, Bishop of Kootenay; Rt. Rev. L. W. B. Broughall, Bishop of Niagara; Rt. Rev. C. A. Seagar, Bishop of Huron; Rt. Rev. Rocksborough Smith, Bishop of Algoma; Rt. Rev. L. R. Sherman, Bishop of Calgary; Rt. Rev. A. Sovereign, Bishop of Athabaska, and Archbishop J. C. Roper, of Ottawa.

Suggestions

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.— (C. P.)—The current reading taste of New York newsboys, Magistrate Greenspan learned in West Side court, runs to dice rather than books.

When Rubel Cohen, 22, a newsboy, was charged with playing dice in the Times Square subway, the magistrate suggested that he read Horatio Alger instead of dice. But the young man said he never heard of Alger.

The magistrate's daughter, Sarah, 10, visiting the court, promptly recommended "Tattered Dick," and the bewildered defendant, his sentence suspended fled.

150 U.S. LEADERS GATHER BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Program Would Halt Roosevelt's Social Security Scheme.

NO JOBLESS INSURANCE.

Maintain Wages Too High in Many Lines—Oppose Further Increases.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. —Industry's tentative program for scrapping the New Deal and all its works, discussed during the past two days at a momentous gathering of 150 of the nation's leading industrialists behind closed doors at Hot Springs, Va., was obtained here Saturday.

May Issue Program

The program formulated by a group of economists, statisticians and industrialists connected with George Houston, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works and Chairman of the Durable Goods Industries, may be given out in revised form in a few days.

If the program should go through, every outstanding piece of emergency legislation enacted by the last Congress would have to be abandoned or so modified as to make it worthless.

Among the acts affected would be the Securities Act, the Stock Market Regulation Act and the policy of making direct loans to industry.

The National Industrial Recovery Act would be so changed as to provide for monopolistic control of certain industries in the form of modified cartels under Government supervision.

To Be Self Ruled

Other industries not under the necessity of forming monopolies, would operate under "liberalized anti-trust laws but would have a maximum power of self-regulation and self-administration without Government supervision.

To Be Self Ruled

Other industries not under the necessity of forming monopolies, would operate under "liberalized antitrust laws but would have a maximum power of self-regulation and self-administration without Government supervision.

The program would halt President Roosevelt's social security program as it provides for "abandonment of the use of the taxing power for the facility for the redistribution of wealth for the purpose of compelling the States to adopt legislative policies with respect to matters which are constitutionally excluded from the juridiction of the Federal Government."

Ousts Wagner Bill

The foregoing provision means that bills like Senator Wagner's unemployment insurance measure would be scotched if this plan were adopted. All other measures for Federal old age pensions and for Federal aid to States which provide social security programs would fall by the board.

The tentative program maintains that wages are too high in many lines and it would oppose further wage increases and arrange for wages decreases if possible.

READ YOUR HEALTH IN THE PALM OF YOUR HAND

Stretch the hand out flat and look at the colouring which lies just beneath the outer skin. If you are in good health the flesh will be a mottled rosy pink. Should the pink tones appear pale, the probability is that your blood lacks haemoglobin (red colouring) and red corpuscles. Here is the reason why many people are not exactly well; some are really ill.

The blood carries life force and nutriment to every part of the body. If the blood is low in haemoglobin and red corpuscles, the person is more or less anaemic or "run-down" . . . easily tired . . . lacking in vitality . . . perhaps close to serious sickness.

Fortunately the vitality of the blood can be increased in the majority of cases, as was proved in a special clinic of 40 persons whose haemoglobin and red corpuscles were low. Under a physician's direction these patients took a 30-day treatment of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Blood tests taken before and after treatment demonstrated conclusively in the physician's microscope how this excellent remedy had built up the vitality of the blood and restored health and vigour.

If your palm or your feelings tell you your blood is not up to normal, try a 30-day treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You, too, will probably experience the same pick-up in general health and the same gain in strength and vitality that the physician observed in the persons forming the clinic. Health is precious. Let Dr. Williams' Pink Pills help you keep it. This tested remedy has amply proved its restorative qualities. Full size box for 50c.

EXPLAINING A COMMON ERROR

South played the hand at three no trumps. The opening lead was the six of clubs. The declarer won over East's Q with his K, then he led his only diamond, overtook with dummy's ten, and East was in with his ace. Back came the five of clubs. South's J won the trick, but try as he might, he never was able to put dummy in the lead, to run off the five good diamonds. South ended by going down two tricks. The hand caused considerable talk, but none of the four players knew what was wrong. It was a very common error the declarer made. Look the hand over to see how you would play it.

South was right in his idea that dummy's long suit offered the sole chance to go game, but his technique was bad. Had West held the ace of diamonds, with the major suit holdings as they are, there would have been no hope that dummy ever could be entered, and South's downfall could not have been laid to his bad play. With the ace of diamonds in the East hand there was no possible reason why game, or more, should not have been made.

All South need do is to lead winning clubs until East has no exit in that suit. East cannot hold more than three clubs. Having won the first club trick with his K, South should lead his ace or J of that suit. The fall of West's two will show that East had only two clubs. Then have South lead his lone diamond and keep playing them until the ace is played by East. Having no card of safe exit, what is East to do? If he leads either a heart or a spade, dummy will be in, and run off diamonds, ending by making four odd at no trumps.

Even if West held both the ace of spades and the K of hearts, nothing can prevent dummy from gaining entry. South should have planned all this before he led his diamond.

As a matter of fact, East's best return lead is a diamond, after South renders it impossible for him to exit with a club. Running off five diamond tricks will cause South to strip down to his two aces, and perhaps the J-10-9 of spades. The return lead of a diamond by East after having won with his ace, should not allow South to win more than three odd. Should East try some other lead than a diamond it would not matter much, nor be particularly o his discredit.

Your Health

By DR. LOGAN CLENDENING

Well, we have finished our breakfast orange. What next? Egg and a piece of toast? Or cereal?

It doesn't make very much difference. Both have vitamins A and B, protein, carbohydrate and fat. It's pretty hard to find any foods or food combination that do not contain both protein and carbohydrate. I was sitting next to a lady at luncheon the other day; she explained her selection of foods on the ground that she was a convert to the idea that one should not eat starch and protein at the same meal. I was able to point out to her that every choice she made contained both starch and protein.

For children, perhaps the cereal is better. Because it has more energy—more calories—especially if sugar and milk are used on it. For the same reason it is better for the underweight.

This natural diet we are considering is for healthy people; we are not considering invalids at this time, but it might be said that either the cereal or the egg and toast would be agreeable to the acid dyspeptic or the dyspeptic with an irritable digestive tract. For either, however, the cereal should be well cooked—twice, perhaps—once the night before and again before breakfast; and the toast should be thoroughly toasted.

On the subject of digestibility also, it has been found that the white of egg is more digestible when cooked than when raw, an idea contrary to popular prejudice.

For two reasons, I am inclined to select the egg and toast for adults. Let us get it out of our heads that if we eat the toast and egg, the protein and starch taken together are going to explode inside of us, injuring the neighbors we go to work with as well as ourselves. There are thousands of rations of toast and eggs being eaten right this minute, and not one explosion is going to result.

The first reason I choose the egg is that we can put some extra salt on it. There is a great fear of salt in the minds of many, but it is unfounded. Our blood contains a good amount of salt. We get rid of a good deal every day by way of the kidneys and the perspiration, and we need to replace it at the rate of about 20 grains a day. It is a good buffer, keeping our blood reaction from getting either acid or alkaline. And the idea that it hurts the kidneys, or raises blood pressure, is certainly far from proved, probably far from true.

The second reason for the egg is that it contains some vitamin D. Not enough for a child, but probably enough for an adult. The child needs more vitamin D because it is building bone and teeth, but the adult needs it only to keep them in repair.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW JUDGE.

Peterborough citizens are delighted to welcome the new County Court judge, Sheldon L. Smoke, of Paris, who was formally sworn in to-day.

Judge Smoke, member of a well-known legal firm and son of a Canadian who made his mark in Parliament, comes to Peterborough from Paris and brings with him the best wishes of the citizens of that progressive Ontario town.

The esteem in which he is held by those in whose midst he has lived, and the fact that he has been at the head of that fine service organization, the Lions Club, in his home town, are evidence that Peterborough is not only gaining a new judge but a good citizen who, outside the duties of his responsible office, is likely to interest himself in movements that are in the public interest.

Peterborough has been well served in the past by those upon whom the responsibility of presiding over the County Court had fallen, and there is every reason, in view of Judge Smoke's record as a lawyer and as a citizen, to feel that he will live up to the traditions of the office.

The Examiner on behalf of the community generally is glad to add these few words of welcome to the greetings extended the new judge this morning by representatives of the local bar and of the city and county municipal governments.

COVERING TOO MUCH TERRITORY.

If, as is rumored, inspectors of beverage rooms under the new beer law are to be expected to include six counties in their jurisdiction, there will be grave misgivings as to the efficacy of inspection under such conditions.

If the evils of the system are to be ironed out, and if the sale to minors and to those already under the influence of liquor is to be controlled, something more adequate than one inspector for six counties will be required.

Certainly unless beverage room proprietors as a whole recognize the fact that upon the manner in which they conduct their establishments depends the length of time they will remain in business, and unless they correct the abuses on their own initiative, it will be necessary for the Government, through its Liquor Control Commissioner, to improve the conditions and to do regular and frequent supervision will be necessary.

In a centre like Peterborough it is to be imagined that an inspector who took his duties seriously and made a conscientious effort to see that the law is enforced would have enough to do here along that line without being expected to supervise the beverage rooms in five other counties at the same time.

The sale of beer by the glass has established a new situation, and it must be dealt with firmly if it is not to get out of hand and cause a reaction that will lead to a demand for the abolishing of the system completely.

ADVERTISING AUSTRALIA.

A novel method of inculcating good-will toward Australia by Canadians and of stimulating interest in travel to Australia has been announced by L. R. Macgregor, the Australian Trade Commissioner in Canada.

The Commonwealth of Australia is offering, Mr. Macgregor announces, a free trip to Australia, including rail transportation by C.P.R. from the student's place of residence to Vancouver, return, steamer fare by the Canadian-Australian line from Vancouver and rail transportation in Australia, for the best essay written by a student of a Canadian High School or Collegiate Institute.

In addition, there will be a cash prize of $50 for the best essay from each Canadian province.

These essays should approximate 2,500 words and, in addition to references to Australian history and resources generally, some reference must be made to the relations of Canada and Australia, and at least one Australian product used in the homes of the Canadian people and one Canadian product used in the homes of Australians must be mentioned.

This seems a splendid method by which to arouse interest among young Canadians in the Commonwealth of Australia, for the nature of the essay and the fact that there must be at least 20 essays written in each High School before a competitor is eligible means that large numbers of Canadian pupils will be studying the history and resources of the Commonwealth and giving considerable thought to Canadian-Australian relations, this latter angle being one of great benefit to Canada as well as to Australia.

RELIEF COSTS.

According to Miss Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., executive director of the Canadian Council on Child Welfare, Canada's relief bill in the last four years has exceeded $300,000,000.

This startling figure and many other striking statistics were presented by Miss Whitton in an address before the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at Winnipeg last week, and the facts given by her will be a revelation to the public generally, as they were to the delegates to the convention.

Her report showed that ten per cent. of Canada's population is now on relief at a monthly cost of between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000, and that for the current year the cost of relief will be at least $70,000,000.

At no time since October, 1932, has the number of persons on relief, Miss Whitton declares, dropped below the million mark, the average number of adults being in the neighborhood of 400,000, while the number of single persons assisted has run between 70,000 and 125,000.

Figures of this nature bring home the magnitude of the relief problem, and although there has been a steady improvement over the whole country in regard to relief costs in recent months, there is reason to expect that during the winter that is close at hand the burden will again prove a heavy one.

The worst feature is that apparently nobody has a plan for solving this problem that contains any hope of success; the general election will be fought out on this issue, yet the politicians have seemingly nothing helpful or constructive to offer.

REALITY IN THE T. & N. O.

It was left for a voluntary witness in the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway inquiry to present some figures which help restore a much-needed balance to the long controversy over the affairs of that enterprise.

Mr. E. Lynder Longmore, metallurgist of the Hollinger mines, was the man who performed this useful public service. Construction of the road, he said, had added $746,000,000 to the wealth of the Dominion in the production of gold and silver. Companies responsible for but 47 per cent. of the gold production last year reported pay-rolls of $7,813,000 and an expenditure on supplies of $4,475,000—of this latter item 60 per cent. being spent in Ontario. For the same year the companies included in this 47 per cent. paid $685,000 in Ontario taxes, and all the gold-mining companies in the railway area paid $2,730,000 in Dominion taxes.

Since 1904, added Mr. Longmore, gold and silver mines in the T. & N. O. mineral belt had produced business to the value of more than $350,000,000 for the people of Ontario—and even this huge total does not include pulp and timber products nor agricultural development. "My point is," he summed up, "that the T. & N. O. has a value to the people of Ontario far in excess to the capital investment and its annual deficits."

This is a fair statement of the case, and in any reasoned valuation of the railway's affairs it must be weighed against the comparatively petty issues that have been receiving so much attention in the investigation now closed.

Nobody defends extravagance in the operation of this or any other branch of the public administration. The principles of efficient economy should be applied as rigidly in public business as in private and there can be no toleration of waste, of carelessness. But it will be unfortunate, and distinctly unfair, if the impression is permitted to develop that the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario is nothing but a political railroad of no real value to the province and costing the taxpayers large sums of money. As the Journal pointed out the other day—and on the indisputable facts presented by Mr. Longmore—the building of this line has justified itself a hundredfold, and its importance in the economic and social history of Ontario hardly could be over-emphasized.—Ottawa Journal.

PROTECTING THE INVESTING PUBLIC.

"What is the Government's new policy on investment protection?" is the question asked by John R. Stirrett. Mr. Stirrett is a lawyer who has given much study to the subject of investment and the protection of investors. He charges that a great number of sharpers from United States cities have flocked to Toronto to practice their nefarious arts here and may try other cities. Mr. Stirrett states that investment protection takes on new significance to-day because it is vitally related to business recovery.

While there may be some things in Mr. Stirrett's claims with which all will not agree, the desirability of ridding the city of Toronto and other cities of Canada from investment racketeers from across the border cannot be gainsaid.

Many of these gentlemen have been active in recent months and a large proportion of them have been ousted, but it is evident that there are still plenty of them operating.

A story published in a Toronto morning paper states that efforts are being made by a prominent criminal lawyer to prevent the deportation to the United States of a salesman employed by a stock brokerage firm in Toronto, and who is said to have served a portion of a term in a United States penitentiary on a charge arising from his association with a "bucket shop." The move of the lawyer in making an appeal to the Federal Department of Immigration was not expected to be successful. It was also stated that since February 300 salesmen of securities, principally mining, had been ordered to leave Canada by Federal Government officials, under threat of deportation or deportation proceedings. It was also indicated that there were others whose operations were being scrutinized and against whom action would be taken shortly.

The protection of the public against fraudulent investments is something which requires special abilities. Not everything can be done by the Government in any case. The citizen, in the long run, is the one who must decide whether he will buy a stock or not. He should know that there is no reason to be stampeded into making a purchase. Arguments that the stock will be oversubscribed or that the price will be advanced on a certain day should be given little heed. The really good propositions, as a rule, do not have to be sold under such conditions. Yet, as Mr. Stirrett points out, fraudulent security practices have been reduced to such a science that they might well tax the defensive armor of the average person.

However, the record of the past few months will make it evident that while the Government cannot do everthing to protect the investor, it can do a great deal.—Monetary Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Beat Bennett and hard times," is a by-election war cry. The first part is possible, but it will take more than a slogan to accomplish the second.

It seems a trifle inconsiderate of Stewart Lyon to let down his old paper by announcing that the Hydro ban against political participation by its employees had been rescinded, just after the Globe had finished eulogizing the policy.

They're going back as far as the Winnipeg strike in the by-election campaigns. Surely there are more important issues to discuss.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

YOU CAN'T DO ANYTHING ABOUT IT.

Bill is in trouble and he asked me if I could help him.

It seems that he was invited to a dinner and he accepted. Then he forgot it. He went out of town and never thought of it again. . . . And the dinner was all prepared and the people were waiting for Bill and his wife, but they didn't appear. His wife would have remembered, of course, but he hadn't even told her about the invitation. . . . And after he came back to town again his friends wanted to know what was what, and he didn't have any excuse worth putting into words.

He did say, "I forgot," and that was the literal truth. . . . But what kind of excuse is THAT, anyway? A man's not supposed to forget such things. It's an insult if he does, a slight, an unforgivable affront to be forgetting an invitation to dinner from friends, and it seems to indicate you don't think much of them, after all. . . . You forgot their invitation, but that family will always remember you forgot and the coolness between you will mitigate any hot spell that comes along.

So I didn't give any "advice" to Bill. ((All I did was moan in sympathy with him.) . . . Once a good friend invited me to his wedding, shortly after the war, and I forgot to go. . . . So I blamed it on the war, which was big enough to shoulder the burden. . . . And once, during that same period, I went to a dance and while I was sitting before the fireplace talking to the beautiful and intelligent hostess I fell asleep. . . . And when I woke, she laughed at me, and was kind, and blamed that on the war, too. She had a sense of humor and some proper pride and she knew that if I hadn't been tired and if my nerves hadn't been somewhat frayed, I could never have fallen asleep while talking to HER. . . . But if she hadn't been that sort of person, I'd never have seen her again (and, come to think of it, I DIDN'T see her very often, either).

There's nothing you can do in such a situation, Bill. You can explain. You can apologize. You can crawl. You can eat Humble Pie and choke on it. . . . But, finally, there's nothing for you to do but go put your head in a bucket and crawl in after it. . . . Every so often a man is doomed to do some asinine thing like that and he might as well accept his fate.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE FIRST PARLIAMENT IN ONTARIO.

On this date in 1792 the first "Parliament" of the Province of Upper Canada convened at Niagara (or Newark as Simcoe had called it). There is some difference among the historians as to where the meeting actually took place; one has it that the council met in the Freemasons' Hall (which is still standing, an illustration of the fine masonry of the early craftsmen); William Dummer Power states that the meeting was in the famous canvas house which the Simcoes had brought from England; others that it was held in the open air under tress; still another that it was in a marquee, "one removed from the aboriginal council lodge"; but Mr. Justice Riddell, an authority on Simcoe, concludes that the Council at least met in the Freemasons' Hall and that the House of Assembly gathered in another room whence it was summoned to the council.

The Council consisted of Chief Justice Osgoode, nominated president, and six of Simcoe's nominees, the other two being absent. In the Assembly were John Macdonell of Glengarry and six members. All present were sworn by William Jarvis, provincial secretary, and Macdonell was elected Speaker. Later a number of members of the Assembly who had been delayed took the oath.

The opening proceedings were copied after those at Westminster. There was a military guard, an artillery salute, and all the other ceremony, which has descended down to the present day and is performed at Ottawa and all the provincial capitals. The lieutenant governor in his "speech from the throne", said that he had summoned the Legislature "under the authority of an act of parliament which has established the British Constitution and all the forms which secure and maintain it in this distant country." He hoped that "the blessings of our invaluable constitution thus protected and amplified," would "be extended to the remotest posterity." The House in answer, asserted its determination "to strengthen our union with the present kingdom and add our mite to its splendor and glory." The Legislative Council was equally loyal.

The first act of the first Legislature of Upper Canada enacted that "in all matters of controversy relative to property and civil rights, resort shall be had to the laws of England as the rule for the decision of the same"; but it was not until 1800 that legislation was passed formally introducing the criminal law of England, though as a matter of fact that law applicable to the Province of Quebec (as all Canada was called in 1763) was always in force in Upper Canada.

"No hell will frighten men away from sin; no dread of prospective misery; only goodness can cast hell out of any man, and set up the kingdom of heaven within."—Hugh R. Haweis.

China is transacting more business with Japan than at any time since the Shanghai unpleasantness.

Poland's export trade continues to average about 10 per cent above last year.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 36c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 95c to 98c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 55c to 58c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Eggs were again the feature on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market last week, substantial advances in price being made by the top grades. Butter prices also rose, while cheese quotations were slightly easier.

Graded shipments of eggs in car lots or less at the close of the week were quoted at 21c a dozen for A large, up 3c over the previous week; 20c for A medium, 3c higher; 20c to 21c for B, up 1c, and 19c to 19½c for C, up ½c. Receipts for the week totalled 6,747 cases, against 5,712 cases during the preceding week.

On the butter market, a 1c advance in price was made on the week, fresh No. 1 in car lots or less being 20c to 20½c a pound at the close of the week. To retailers, small lots also brought 1c a pound higher, quotations being 21c a pound for solids and 22c for prints. Arrivals for the week totalled 14,170 boxes, in comparison with 16,469 boxes during the previous week.

Ontario colored cheese ended the week at 9¾c to 9¾c a pound, off ¼c from levels of the previous week, and Quebec cheese was ¼c less, being quoted at 9¾c a pound. Arrivals for the week were 26,913 boxes, as compared with 27,891 the preceding week.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Aggressive speculative buying lifted grain at times Saturday, but late profit-taking sales virtually wiped out advances.

One leading trader was alone credited with purchasing about 1,000,000 bushels of wheat for May delivery. Mills were also said to have been active buyers, and flour demand better.

Predictions of widespread possible frosts were a strengthening factor until corn crop experts here expressed doubts that frosts now would result in serious damage.

Wheat closed irregular, ¾c lower to ¼c higher, compared with Friday's finish; Dec. new, $1.03¾ to $1.03⅝; corn unchanged to ⅛c down, Dec. new, 75¾c to 75⅛c, oats, ⅛c to ¼c up, and provisions showing 5c to 17c advance.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Wheat prices declined fractionally in featureless trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Saturday. A little selling flurry in the late stages pushed values down to the low point, where they closed ⅝c to ⅞c down.

October option ended at 82⅝c, December at 83⅛c and May at 87⅛c.

Export interest was restricted and bulk of the market operations were made up of hedging sales and both buying and selling for Chicago and local account. Trading volume was small, even for a short Saturday session.

Liverpool declined ⅝d to ¾d, while cables reported a continued lull in import interest. Pressure of Argentine wheat proved burdensome to the English market.

Cash grains dragged and coarse grains followed wheat down fractionally.

Teck Hughes Recovers From Another Heavy Selling Wave.

SILVERS WEAKER.

TORONTO, Sept. 17 (C.P.).—The mining section of the Toronto Exchange waded through a raft of selling in the mid-day hours and then developed a show of firmness that held on till the close. The soft spell was apparently the result of a new selling drive against Teck Hughes which developed in the second hour, carrying the price back to 4.65. It almost fully recovered before the close. Base metals and silvers were mildly weak.

The general tone showed some improvement in the late afternoon, following a mid-day exhibition of weakness. Banks were uniformly higher and over the board gains held a margin over losses.

Demand Is Heavy For Bank Shares

OTTAWA, Sept. 17. — (C.P.)— There was a heavy demand for Central Bank shares which went on the market to-day with subscriptions reaching the Minister of Finance by letter, wire and telephone. But only those arriving on the regulation form obtainable at all banks and post offices as well as offices of the Receiver General could be accepted, all others being advised of the necessity of applying in the regular way.

Indications were that the issue of 100,000 shares at $50 each would be oversubscribed and there would be considerable paring down required by the Minister of Finance in an effort to make sure that all subscribers received at least a portion of the stock applied for.

U. S. DEFENDER IS DEFEATED

while she was off her course she might make a race of it at the finish, but as she bore on the Endeavour which had lost way, her Spinnaker split at the bottom.

A perfect bedlam of sound broke out as the big challenger boiled across the finish lines crowds on the yachts, whistles and bells adding to the din. There could be no doubt that Sopwith's sportsmanship had made him a popular figure with the preponderantly American crowd.

The conclusion seems inescapable that Endeavour is the faster boat in a honest breeze.

Came From Behind

Coming from behind at the halfway mark the Endeavor overtook and passed Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow as the 16-mile run home began.

Coming around the buay Vanderbilt slightly increased his lead as he broke out a small parachute spinnaker.

Sopwith followed, hoisting his perforated spinnaker. The Rainbow's sail was full and drawing two minutes before the Endeavor's huge canvas was filled, but immediately thereafter Sopwith closed the gap and began to pull ahead.

The two boats headed out into a 16-knot south-southeasterly breeze at 10.55 a.m. E.S.T., for their second effort to reach a decision.

The race was scheduled to start 10 minutes early but Endeavour fouled her mainsail on the first attempt to set it and was granted a 10-minute prosponement.

When the British challenger finally got the big canvas set it showed a slight tear near the upper edge but it was not believed large enough to threaten the effigiency of the sail.

An 18 Knot Breeze

At 9.30 a.m., E.S.T., over an hour before the schedued start Block Isand reported the wind was blowing 18 knots and freshening.

The smaller yachts in the spectator fleet were pitching and rolling with the rain squalls driving all but the most hardy below decks.

The two racing yachts, underbodies as they felt the swell of the open sea. Endeavour especially appeared to be making heavy weather of it, frequently poking her nose into the seas and throwing great veils of spray.

T. O. M. Sopwith, the British skipper, was at the helm in oilskins.

At 10 o'clock the breeze seemed to have lightened a bit but many of the smaller craft in the spectator fleet found the seas not to their liking and were hurrying back to the shelter of the harbor.

The race committee, answering a hail, said the wind was blowing 16 knots from the south-southeast.

Over Same Course.

At 10.20 a.m., the course signals were hoisted on the committee boat Wilhelmina, setting the course as 15 miles south-southeasterly against the wind and return. This was the same course the big boats travelled Saturday in the first race which was declared no contest when the time ran out with Rainbow leading half a mile from the finish.

Rainbow was the first to set her sails. She had a mainsail and staysails up with another head sail up in stops. Aboard Endeavor her crew seemed to be having some trouble with the mainsail which was run up halfway and then doused.

With only 11 minutes to go before the scheduled start, Endeavour had only a staysail set. Sopwith sent a man aloft to clear whatever it was that was keeping them from setting mainsail and signalled the committee boat for a postponement.

At 10.40 Endeavour finally set her mainsail with a short tear showing near the luff along the upper batten. The tear was very slight, however, and it did not appear to threaten the usefulness of the sail.

The Start

The 10 minute warning signal was set at 10.45. Both yachts were carrying mainsails and staysails with head sails in stops.

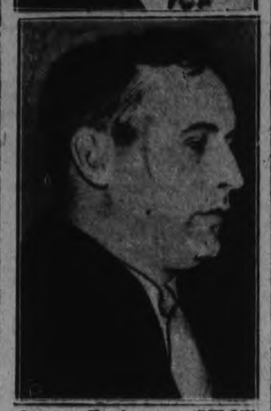
Both also carried quadralateral, or Greta Garbo, jibs.

The starting signal was given at 10.55 a.m.

Harold S. Vanderbilt, at the helm of Rainbow, again tuned his start better, as he had Saturday, and was across the line at full speed. Endeavour had to luff to clear the committee boat, toward which they both were bearing when the starting signal was given, and lost way.

Both went off on a starboard tack with Rainbow in the weather berth, the favored position. Vanderbilt tacked at 11.04, followed immediately by Sopwith and Endeavour.

Captain Accused



James Henderson (BELOW), chief mate of the S.S. President Cleveland, accuses Robert E. Carey (TOP), master of the vessel, of negligence after the ship responded to distress call of liner Morro Castle. Henderson declares Carey waited half an hour after reaching disaster scene before lowering boats to pick up survivors struggling in water. Another officer also accuses Carey, who denies charges.

Trent River

Inclement weather and threatening skies did not interfere with a large attendance at the September meeting of the Women's Institute held Thursday at the home of Mrs. John Armstrong "Hillview Farm", which presents a veritable flower garden at this season of the year; flowers of many varieties surround the house, while many beautiful potted plants adorn the windows in the interior. There were 40 in attendance, including 12 visitors, one new member joined with prospects of more to follow.

The President, Mrs. George Brooks, was in charge of the meeting after an absence for two previous meetings which were taken by the vice-president, Mrs. Earl Greenly. Mrs. H. Mann, secretary, read the roll call, the answer for which was "A Wise Saying", which was responded to by the majority of the members. The motto, "The Doors of Opportunity are Push and Pull", was read by Mrs. Ward Glenn, after discussion was taken up regarding the motto. The secretary gave the financial report of the proceeds from the card party and sale of home cooking held in August at "Whitehall Gardens" the result, $13.23. A number of china dishes which were borrowed for the August meeting of the Institute were broken and others were ordered to replace the same. The members arranged for the storing of the newly-made park tables for the winter. Mrs. A. Wight kindly offered store-room on her premises.

The matter of "Historical Research" was discussed, a book has been purchased and a number of the members have offered to furnish material for the same. Miss B. G. French placed the first notes of earlier days of Trent River, with others to follow. The members ordered fruit and cards for the sick.

The secretary read a communication from Mr. R. W. Umphrey acknowledging $2 for the Oratorical Contest from the Institute. The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Joseph McNeely, when a debate will be heard: "Has the Introduction of Machinery Done More Harm Than Good", with the following taking part: Mesdames Walter Lewis, Harry Mann, R. W. Umphrey and Mrs. Thos. Wight.

The program was in charge of the Misses Doris Scott and B. G. French, the former not being in attendance.

Reading, "Why Worry?" by Mrs. Walter Lewis; community singing, led by Miss B. French. Vocal solo, "Let The Rest of The World Go By" was sweetly sung by little Miss Glenna Brown, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Brown of Trent River. Reading: "An Auction Sale, A Marriage Ceremony and a Confused Editor", by Miss B. French. The National Anthem closed the meeting after which a dainty lunch of tea, sandwiches, jello and cake was served by the following hostesses: Mrs. Ward Glenn, Mrs. R. Carnrite, Mrs. H. Mann, Mrs. Wm. McMillan and Mrs. John Armstrong. The collection amounted to $4.10.

DENIES POLISH INFLAMMABLE

Second Steward Saw Nothing Peculiar About Spread of Fire.

CAPABLE HANDS.

NEW YORK, Sept 17 (A.P.)—James Pond, second steward of the ill-fated liner "Morro Castle," told a federal board of inquiry to-day he saw nothing peculiar about the rapid spread of the fire aboard the liner a week ago last Saturday.

"No sir, I did not," he replied to a direct question. "I would say the wind fanned the fire swiftly through the ship."

Pond was emphatic in a statement that all members of the stewards department were capable and experienced. "I picked them myself," he said.

The second steward said he and several officers took charge of the passengers as they began "streaming up on deck." He said he and the officers pacified the passengers, led them down to C deck and that later when the smoke became so thick he could scarcely see the passengers were told to descend to D deck.

He said he heard a man passenger shout "Come on, let's go over board, what are you waiting for?"

Pond testified he never saw any inflammable polishes on the ship, and said if he had he would have taken them away and discharged those found using them.

Diphtheria Control

(By T. P. McCULLOUGH, M.D.)

At about three months the bleeding is begun, as much as eight to ten litres being taken at a single bleeding. This may be repeated every two weeks. In the interval the animal is given injections of toxin. Thus the horse may respond for many months. Before the antitoxin thus obtained can be used it must be concentrated, standardized, tested for sterility, the reaction the amount of protein adjusted and a preservative added.

The antitoxin is associated in the blood serum with the globulin and chiefly the pseudo-globulin and concentration consists in separating the pseudo-globulin from the remainder of the blood plasm. This is done by precipitation with ammonium sulphate. It is then filtered and the pseudo-globulin thus obtained carries the antitoxin. The ammonium sulphate is removed by dialysis and pressure. It is then put up in quantities containing so many units, the unit of antitoxin being the amount that will protect an animal against a fixed amount of toxin.

How To Prevent and Control Diphtheria.

The control of diphtheria rests upon:
(1) Discovery of those liable to contract diphtheria.
(2) The active immunization of those without sufficient immunity.
(3) The early discovery of cases.
(4) Immediate administration of diphtheria antitoxin.

(1) The discovery of those liable to contract diphtheria. This, as already pointed out, may readily be accomplished by means of the Sshick Test, which consists of the injection into the skin of a few drops of highly diluted toxin. In those susceptible to the disease a red areola forms within 24 hours, which pigments and shows for several weeks. In those with sufficient antitoxin to protect, there is no reaction. This test is simple, painless and harmless. It is very satisfactory in disclosing those susceptible to diphtheria.

(2) The administration to the susceptible cases of three injections of toxoid, sometimes called toxin-antitoxin. This material consists of diphtheria toxin nearly neutralized by antitoxin. One cc. (16 drops) is injected directly under the skin at the interior lower part of the arm just above the bend of the elbow. On the 6th or 7th day the arms are inspected and those who show no skin reaction are given no further injections. Those who show a slight reaction are given two injections. After four months or more the use of the Schick Test will enable us to tell the parents whether or not the child is immune.

In cities like Auburn, N.Y., and New Haven, Conn., in which the great majority of the pre-school as well as school children have been immunized, diphtheria has almost completely disappeared. Among children tested and immunized in New York City, Toronto and Hamilton, the incidence of diphtheria and the mortality therefrom has been reduced to a minimum. These experiences show that the use of the Schick Test and toxoid will go far in the elimination of diphtheria.

(3) The early discovery of actual cases of diphtheria is of the highest importance. It is well-known that cases of diptheria treated with antitoxin the first day, show scarcely any mortality. At a hospital in Philadelphia in over 700 successive cases given antitoxin on the first day of the disease, there was not a single death. Each day that elapses without proper treatment adds to the deathrate. Cousequently parents, teachers, nurses and doctors, should be on the alert in respect to every case of sore throat in a child. Diphtheria is too dangerous a disease for trust in prayer, treatment by irregulars or by any but the best qualified physician. Most of the tragedies in diphtheria are due to delay in making an early diagnosis and the application of prompt treatment.

(4) Diphtheria antitoxin is the only satisfactory form of treatment. It is given by injection into the muscle, into the peritoneal cavity or into the veins. Since the toxin of diphtheria slowly attaches itself to the body cells, antitoxin only will neutralize its ill effects. The case fatality, let it be repeated, increases with each day's delay in administering antitoxin. The quickest method of using antitoxin is by injection into the veins. Given this way there is no delay in waiting for absorption. Until the antitoxin reaches the blood stream it has no opportunity of neutralizing the poison. A sufficient does should be given in a clear case of diphtheria or even in a suspicious one, without waiting for any laboratory test. If the laboratory test shows the case is not diphtheria, so much the better. The use of diphtheria antitoxin harms no one.

(5) Temporary immunity agaiust diphtheria may be afforded to the other children in a household where diphtheria has broken out, by the use of 500 to 1000 units of antitoxin. Such treatment, lasting as it does for three weeks or so, will tide the household over the immediate danger. Later the children may be tested and if necessary given toxoid for permanent protection.

These, then, are an outline of the means whereby diphtheria may be prevented and cured. If these measures were invariably carried out; if all children under ten were tested and the position eves treated with toxoid, if cases of diphtheria were recognized on the first day and promptly treated, diphtheria, which is spread only by the diphtheria bacillus from person to person, would soon be as scarce in this country as yellow fever or the plague.

COUPLE CELEBRATE 59TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Orser Are Most Respected Warkworth Residents.

WARKWORTH, Sept. 17.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Friday, September 14, marked the 59th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Orser, who are among the oldest and most highly respected citizens of this village. They were married September 14, 1875, by the Rev. James Simpson, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Orland, formerly known as Newcombe's Mills. The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents. The late Elizabeth Newcombe, mother of G. N. Gordon, Peterborough, was among the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Orser cannot recall any who are living that attended the wedding. Mrs. Orser is the only daughter of the late James Newcombe and Phoebe Maybe and was born at Orland July 30, 1837.

David Hulbert Orser is a son of the late David Orser and Elizabeth McDonnell and was born November 21, 1856, in Hallowell Township, Prince Edward County. At the age of seven Mr. Orser came with his parents to Brighton Township where his father purchased a four hundred acre farm which is known as the Orser neighborhood. The farm is now owned by Aubrey Woof. The second brick house built in Brighton Township is on this farm. Mr. Orser is very musical. At an early age before he left Prince Edward County he was able to play the first melodian brought into that county. For about thirty years he played the organ in the Mount Olivet Church which they always attended.

After their marriage they went to his father's farm where they resided until coming to Warkworth two and a half years ago.

On Friday they received many congratulations, and also a shower of cards from their old neighbors and friends in the Orser neighborhood.

Two children, a son and daughter, were born from this union. Both died in infancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Orser are enjoying their usual health and are hoping to celebrate their diamond wedding. Mr. Orser states that in Prince Edward County where he was born there is a church and cemetery both bearing the name of Orser, and also an organization known as the Orser Live Circle of Women, who keep the church and cemetery in good shape. Only Sunday school services are held there.

ROCKING CANOE DROWNS THREE

One Girl Survives Prank, Two Lads Second Girl Sink Near Timmins.

BODIES RECOVERED.

TIMMINS, Sept. 17.—Two youths and one girl are dead and another girl is recovering from a shocking experience as a result of a drowning accident in Fulham Creek, near here, Friday night, when the canoe in which the four were paddling capsized.

The dead are Wilfred Shields and Pat Letang, both 19 years of age, and Dorothy "Mickey" Bourke, aged 16 years, all of Timmins.

Stella Kremer, aged 14, the other occupant of the boat, saved herself by swimming to the shore nearby, and gave the alarm. All three bodies were recovered Saturday. Coroner H. E. Montgomery, after interviewing Miss Kremer, stated an inquest was unnecessary.

The lone survivor of the accident told the coroner that a prank of one of the youths, Shields, in rocking the craft to "thrill" her and the other girl, was responsible for the boat being overturned. Letang had attempted to swim ashore with Miss Bourke, she said.

The accident occurred at a point where the stream is only 75 feet wide.

EXTEND WELCOME TO BRIDAL COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wright Receive Gifts at Shower.

YELVERTON, Sept. 17.—(Examiner Correspondence). — About 80 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs R. W. Wright on Tuesday evening to extend good wishes and congratulations to the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wright (nee Ada Found, of Little Britain,) and to present them with a miscellaneous shower of gifts.

Rev. R. W. Paton, pastor of Yelverton United Church, very capably acted as chairman for the occasion, warmly welcoming the bride to the church and community, and voicing his appreciation of the sterling qualities of the groom.

A short program was much enjoyed by all. Bert Carpenter and Omer Capstick rendered a mouth-organ duet. Mrs. Harold Stinson contributed a reading. Mrs. Rae Malcolm and Miss E. Henders gave a duet. A solo by Bert Carpenter was enjoyed. Audrey Stinson played an instrumental. A school chorus, accompanied by the teacher, Miss L. White, was warmly applauded.

The bride and groom were then invited to occupy a prominent position in the gathering, and a huge container filled with beautiful and useful gifts was presented by Bert Carpenter and Reginald Ruskin.

STEPHEN HABOUSH IN CITY CHURCHES

A Shepherd's Story of the Twenty-third Psalm is Galilean's Theme.

Stephen A. Haboush, a native Galilean, who spent twelve years of his life as a shepherd in Galilee, gave the sermon at the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church yesterday morning and spoke in St. James United Church at 3 o'clock, at Trinity United Church at 5 o'clock Vesper Service, and in George St. United Church at the Evening Service at 7 p.m. speaking on "My Shepherd Life in Galilee," with an interpretation of the 23rd Psalm.

Mr. Haboush's discourse was most interesting and revealing, and his descriptions of the life of a shepherd gave those who heard him a different meaning to the passage. He appeared in the flowing robes of his native Galilee.

"The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want", is a statement in which man is compared to sheep under the care of a good shepherd, who makes it his business to see that every want of his flock is cared for. In the passage which refers to "still waters" there is a reference to the fact that sheep will not drink from a turbulent stream. Sheep can not swim and are helpless in water. In Galilee, the river Jordan is a fast flowing stream and sheep will not drink from it in many places. The shepherds have made pools kept filled by water of the Jordan, where the water is quiet and where the sheep can drink without fear.

A shepherd never drives his sheep. He calls them after him. They come to know his voice and his call. In turn, the shepherd learns by the sounds the sheep make, whether or not they are in trouble. The passage in the Psalm in which it is said "He anointeth my head with oil" may have an allusion to the custom of all shepherds who carry vials of olive oil with which to dress wounds, particularly snake bites, sustained by sheep.

The "rod" and "staff" are two pieces of equipment of every shepherd. The rod is a stout oak stick used to defend the flock in case of necessity and the staff is a walking stick used by the shepherd. Mr. Haboush said the staff has no crook on the top.

In concluding his sermon, Mr. Haboush said that the life of a Galilean shepherd leads now, is a simple one and that the 23rd Psalm is a story of his life. It is the same life the shepherd has been living since the Bible days.

Mr. Haboush assisted by Madame Haboush will present the Musical Travelogue "The Seven Wonders of Jerusalem and Galilee" in the following Churches:

Tuesday, Sept. 8th, George Street United Church at 8 p.m.

Wednesday, Sept. 19th, St. Paul's Presbyterian at 8 p.m.

Thursday, Sept. 20th, Trinity United Church at 8 p.m.

Friday, Sept. 21st, St. James United Church at 8 p.m.

RUSSIA TO HAVE ALL TIME SEAT LEAGUE COUNCIL

Little More Than Formalities Remain After Weeks of Negotiation.

CANADA IN FAVOR.

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

GENEVA, Sept. 17 (C.P. Cable).—Russia will have a permanent seat on the Council of the League of Nations.

In a few minutes and without comment the Assembly to-day approved a resolution of its bureau referring the question of Russian membership to a committee, and a resolution of the Council deciding to appoint Russia to a permanent seat on the Council as soon as the Assembly has agreed to Russian membership in the League.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada, who has almost completely recovered from his indisposition, attended meetings of both the Steering Committee and the League Assembly to-day.

The Assembly decided China was not eligible for re-election to its non-permanent members of the Council replacing the expiring terms of Spain, China and Panama.

Russia will enter the League after weeks of negotiation that ended on Saturday. Little more than formalities remain. Russia accepted a formal invitation from 34 states, comprising the necessary two-thirds majority of the Assembly. The invitation and the reply will be studied in the political committee.

Four British Dominions—Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand — with India and Britain herself signed the invitation to Russia.

CREDIT $5,258 TO THE COUNTY

Norwood Subway Was Constructed at a Total Cost of $56,000.

PAYMENT WITHHELD.

Payment of the 1933 Provincial Highway bill of $14,000 was withheld by Peterborough County Council at June sessions mainly in view of the fact that $6,000 was claimed to be owing to the county by the government from the grade crossing fund in connection with construction of Norwood subway.

Since that time Warden Rork Ferguson informs The Examiner, the Department of Highways has received credit from the Railway Board in the amount of $26,290.56. Of that sum the county is to be credited with $5,258.11 at the end of the present year, according to W. L. Saunders, resident engineer at Port Hope.

The subway was constructed at a total cost of $56,000 of which amount $30,000 was to be contributed from the grade crossing fund, with the balance being shared by the province and county. The country's share of the $26,000 balance was 20 per cent.

When the county was billed for 80 per cent of the total cost, the matter was consistently protested in council by Reeve Ferguson of Asphodel. It was his suggestion that led to the county's decision at June sessions to withhold payment of the highway bill pending settlement of the county's claim in respect to the grade crossing fund.

The following is the letter received by the county clerk and treasurer from W. L. Saunders, resident engineer of the Department of Highways at Port Hope: "We have your letter in regard to the Norwood subway account, and we would advise that to date we have received credit from the Railway Board in the amount of $26,290.56, of which the county is credited with $5,258.11. Before the end of the year the Railway Board will probably forward us another credit. The county will not be receiving the credit until the end of the year."

He is charged with causing grievous bodily harm to Mrs. William Jones, Romaine Street, who was a front seat passenger in the car driven by Underwood, when it crashed into the rear of another car driven by Keith Breakwell, 32 Anette Street, Toronto. Missed $609 Double And Liked Both Ends

With his hopes high, his mind full of last minute advice from some horse-wise pals, a local man-about-town entered the inviting portals of the Thorncliffe race track at Toronto last week.

There was purpose in his visit, and he knew just what he was going to "do"—Gaffing in the first and Alcodema in the third. He was sure about this pair of dandies. Had not his pals at home passed it out as a nice long shot. Yes, Gaffing and Alcodema were going to carry his "mega" for the daily double.

But, alas, for doubtful looking long shot selections. At the track the man-about-town and his local friends began to weaken on Gaffing, and before the race started they had talked themselves off it. The atmosphere around the stand was adverse, and they let him go, taking Legionary instead. Gaffing acted badly at the post, so the story goes, and held up the start nesrly twenty minutes. Then when the barrier was sprung he broke away fast into a lead of several lengths, quickly extended it to seven or eight, and was never headed.

And the daily double paid $609. Worst of all the man-about-town was all for Alcodema on the other end of the double.

DANNY SIMONS IS LAID TO REST

Final Tribute is Paid to Veteran Trouper of the Theatrical World.

HUNDREDS ATTEND.

Peterborough citizens said a last farewell this morning to a veteran trouper of the theatrical world whom they were proud to call their own. Hundreds of mourners paid a silent tribute as Daniel Patrick Simons—known simply as "Danny" Simons to the theatre world of America—was borne to his grave in St. Peter's Cemetery.

The solemn procession left the home at 311 Rubidge shortly before nine o'clock. At St. Peter's Cathedral, Father John Finn performed Requiem High Mass and the deeply moved congregation, including a number of boyhood friends of the deceased comedian, centered eyes on the casket as Father Costello, rector of the Cathedral, delivered the sermon.

Father Costello paid a sincere tribute to Danny, pointing to him as a fine Christian who had made a worthy contribution to the happiness of his fellow-men during his life. He spoke of his generosity—typical among the members of his profession—which enabled him to come to the assistance of his community and his church whenever need called. Danny's work kept him far afield during the greater part of his life, but his real home was Peterborough, the reverend father said. It was to Peterborough he returned each year when the summertime approached.

"A Message from the Sacred Heart" was sung by Joseph Minicola as the casket was carried from the Cathedral. On arrival at the cemetery, Father Costello, assisted by Father McCauley of Ennismore, conducted the graveside service.

Among those in attendance were many representatives of the Knights of Columbus, of which Danny Simons was a respected member. Floral tributes bespoke the sympathy of his brothers in the theatrical profession, a fine remembrance from the National Vaudeville Actors' Association in New York being conspicuous in the beautiful profusion. During the days which have passed since his tragic death occurred, messages of sympathy from a wide circle of friends in many different parts of Canada and the United States poured into the city. A card of condolence from Archbishop O'Brien in Kingston was among these.

Pall-bearers were friends of long standing. They were: Thomas Hooper, Charles Lacheur, Gus White, Nagle Phelan, Frank Clark, Fred Morrow, Chris. Graham and Jim Lynch.

Co-incidentally, Danny Simons was to have begun to-day rehearsals for his fall and winter tour through the Eastern United States.

LOCAL WINNERS ARE PROMINENT

Carry Off Many Awards in All Classes at Lindsay Fair.

PARTICULARLY POULTRY.

Exhibitors from Peterborough and its immediate vicinity figured prominently in the various lists of prize awards at the Lindsay Fair last week. Of particular note was the showing made by local poultry exhibitors in all classes of the poultry section.

Mrs. C. Vanallen, R. Brown, H. Lush, A. Mann, all of this district, annexed the majority of ribbons in the nine classes. F. Andrews Norwood; O. Cosh, Bobcaygeon and G. Hutchinson and Sons, Warkworth, were the most prominent sharers of the remaining money.

J. M. Lowes, Peterborough, took eight firsts and four seconds in the fruit classes. In the packed box of winter apples class, Bruce McNevin, Omemee, was awarded a second ribbon.

Among a number of Peterborough winners in the livestock section of the Fair was Dr. J. E. Middleton. His saddle mare 'Manton Lady' took first money in her class against heavy competition. It was the fourth first ribbon the mare has annexted at three different fairs in the district this season.

Miss Ellie A. Bogue, Lakefield, proved the leading exhibitor in the arts and crafts show. She carried off all firsts in water color work, an award for the best single work unclassified, and a ribbon in the oil painting classes. Miss Patricia Harris of Omemee was also the recipient of several prizes. In the domestic science exhibits, Miss Bogue took several firsts and seconds. Among other winners were Mrs. J. M. Lowes, Peterborough; Mrs. Kenneth Thorn, Omemee; and Mrs. Harry Hickson, Reaboro. Mrs. W. A. McColl, Wooler; Miss Bogue, Mrs. Lloyd Sutton, Fraserville, and Miss Patricia Harris figured outstandingly in the women's handiwork section.

Important contenders in the carriage horse classes were A. Mann, R. Scott and Sons, Beatty and Nattrass, all local exhibitors.

UNITED AUSTRALIAN PARTY SHORT 3 SEATS INDEPENDENT MAJORITY

Premier Lyons Still Requires Country Party Support in Coalition Gov't.

LABOR TRAILS.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 17 (CP Cable via Reuters).—Completion of the count of results in the Australian general elections to-day increased the Government party's total, but still failed to give it an independent majority.

A coalition government, much as in the past, will be institution, Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons still needing the support of the Country Party against the Labor opposition. The United Australia party, of which Lyons is head, is three seats short of an independent majority, but with the allies of the Country party the ministry still commands a majority of 22 seats.

United Australia Party	35
Country Party	13
Federal Labor	16
Extreme Labor	8
Total	74

Three Seats Lower

In the last House the U.A.P. had 38 seats; Country Party 16, Federal Labor 14, Extreme Labor 5, Independents 2.

The result of the voting for the vacant half of the Senate will not be known for some time, the polling being through state-wide electorates instead of in individual seats as in the House of Representatives' voting.

There was no doubt of continued Government support in the Senate, however. Lyons candidates were leading on first preferences—voting is on the proportional representation system—in New South Wales, South Australia and Tasmania. Labor was ahead in Victoria and Queensland. In the remaining state, Western Australia, the combine U.A.P.-Country Party candidates were leading. Labor would have needed to take 16 of the 18 vacant seats to gain command in the Upper House.

ZIONIST CAUSE IS ASSAILED BY GALILEAN

Stephen A. Haboush Declares That British Pledge to Atheists Should be Recalled.

MOSLEMS OPPOSED.

Palestine is Capable to Absorbing Millions of Jews Speaker Informs Rotary.

That the British pledge of a National home for Jews in Palestine should be recalled and that a Palestinian government should be set up in that country with which the Zionist movement might negotiate was the argument advanced before the Peterborough Rotary club today by Stephen A. Houbush, a native Galilean and world-famed lecturer.

Speaking on the subject of the British mandate in Palestine Mr. Haboush who was introduced by Rotaria James Dutton presented the anti-Zionist side of the question in most eloquent and lucid style. Lord Balfour he said had been in a most generous frame of mind when he wrote his famous declaration to Rothschild. Palestine was not his to give to the Jews, the speaker pointed out and the number of Christians and Mussulmans in the country far outnumbered the Jewish population. Under the harsh domination of Turkey for 400 years the Palestinians had looked forward to working out their own destiny after their liberation but instead they found the Zionist movement loaded upon them. There were fifteen million Jews in the world and it was ridiculous to think that Palestine was capable of absorbing such numbers of new people. The country was small, not extremely fertile and in the natural products it produced had to face competition from much more fertile countries. Industrially there was not a great deal of hope for development for raw materials were missing and the country was off the main trade routes. As a matter of fact Palestine could not be expected to take care of a much greater population than the natural growth of her present population would encompass.

The speaker who stressed the fact that the whole Moslem world was opposed to the Zionist movement wondered how long Great Britain, in the face of unrest in her own Eastern colonies would continue to provide protection for the Zionist prospects in Palestine. He thought that the time had come for the Balfour policy to be recalled and the people of Palestine given a chance to set up their own government. If that were done the Jews could negotiate with the new administration and establish the Zionest movement on a solid basis.

Rotarian A. Mowat expressed the thanks of the club to Mr. Haboush for his informative address.

Everett L. Sackville was introduced to the club by President J. Fred Reed as Rotary's baby member.

President Reed also gave a report upon the visit of the local club's delegation to the ceremonies at the Bowmanville Boys' School last Wednesday.

NEW BANK STAFF TOTAL ABOUT 210

140 Will be Transferred Civil Servants, Headquarters in Ottawa.

TOWERS OFF TO EUROPE.

QUEBEC, Sept. 17 (C.P.) — Graham F. Towers, head of Canada's new central bank. The Bank of Canada, stated just before he sailed for Europe in the liner Empress of Britain Saturday that intimations the bank would be subservient to British financial interests have no foundation. "I suppose all central banks try to co-operate with each other on information," he said

Accompanied by Mrs. Towers, the young financier will spend about six weeks visiting European banking establishments to study the workings of central banks. Paris, Amsterdam, Stockholm and London are the focal points of the itinerary.

"We must be back as soon as we can," Mr. Towers said, "as the bank is to start functioning reasonably soon after the first of next year."

As yet Canada's bank has neither organization nor staff. He said that the staff will not be a large one. It will total, he expects, about 210, of whom 140 will be civil servants transferred from the Department of the Assistant Receiver-General. Headquarters will be in Ottawa.

Mr. Towers will return to Canada in November.

Some misapprehension about the selection of directors has resulted in numerous letters of advice reaching the government as to who should be placed on the board. The bank will be a privately owned institution, and while officers of the Finance Department will act as provisional directors at first, the shareholders will be called upon to select their permanent directors in the customary manner before the bank starts operations on January 2.

SHELDON SMOKE IS SWORN IN AS COUNTY JUDGE

Expressions of Welcome

The official ceremonial was followed by the greetings from the Bench, Bar and Civic representatives, and included a touching paternal incident in the remarks of F. L. Smoke, K. C., of Paris, Member of Parliament for Brant county, and father of the young man whose assumption of the important responsibility of administering the King's law and justice he had just witnessed.

It was a natural and very human note in the dignified proceedings.

"The position in which I find myself to-day is a difficult one," said the father of Judge Smoke in an unsteady voice that betrayed his emotion. "The new Judge is the only remaining child of his mother and myself."

After a momentary pause, Mr. Smoke continued, "I felt it was due to him that I could not stay away from this ceremony. While I hope and trust and firmly believe that your Judge will carry on the bench in the best possible way, I cannot escape the personal aspect of this occasion. He lived with us up to the time of his marriage, and since his marriage he has lived in the same town with us. For us, this is the great separation.

I apologize to the Court and to you gentlemen, but I am so full of the personal aspect that I cannot refrain from doing so. His mother and I are well advanced in years. Peterborough is one hundred and sixty miles away. It is not just next door. His mother and I feel very keenly this separation, which in the course of human life must occur. I thank you, Judge McGibbon, and the other gentlemen of the Bar and of the municipalities for their very kind reception, and I hope that the new Judge will live up to the high traditions which the bench has always, or nearly always, maintained. I hope that this city and county will never regret the appointment of my son as Judge of this county".

Judge McGibbon, briefly replying to Mr. Smoke, said that his associates appreciated the position in which he was placed by severance of the close associations which had existed between father and son. He expressed the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Smoke would be long spared to enjoy the evening of life and to see the attainment of their hopes in the success of their son in Peterborough.

His Honor then called upon Judge Smoke in reply to the welcome and congratulations which had been extended to him.

Judge Smoke's Reply

Judge Smoke said that after the ceremony that had just taken place he found it difficult to express himself as he wished.

"As a barrister, one realizes more than the general public perhaps, the responsibility that is cast on a Judge," His Honour continued, "but, I had no idea that I would feel the responsibility so deeply as I do this morning. I am conscious of the fine traditions that have been established by my predecessors on this Bench, and it shall be my endeavour to keep reasonably near the high standard which they have set and the honor which they have brought to this county. It shall be my endeavour to interpret the law to the best of my ability, and in hewing to the line to temper justice with mercy.

I assure you that it is my desire always to co-operate with the members of the Bar and with others in my jurisdiction. I come to you as a stranger, and it will be my first duty as a citizen to adjust myself in my new home and to find a place where I may assist in some small way as I tried to do in the municipality from which I have come. And I hope that our associations will be of benefit both to you and to me."

Barristers Present

Attending members of the Bar were; A. E. Peck, K.C., M.P.; R. R. Hall, K.C.; Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.; F. D. Kerr, K.C.; J. F. Strickland, K.C.; Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.; W. F. Huycke; George J. Sherry, K.C.; John R. Corkery; V. J. McElderry, K.C., Crown Attorney; Osias de Laplante; J. A. Harstone; A. L. Elliott; T. J. Carley; B. F. Park; Jacob Low; W. J. A. Fair; J. W. Stevenson.

Also M. A. O'Shea, Hastings; Archibald Cochrane, K.C.; Fred C. Richardson and A. J. Skeans of Cobourg, and F. L. Smoke, K.C., M.P., of Paris, father of Peterborough's new Judge.

Others present were Warden Rork Ferguson, Mayor R. Denne, Alderman Walter Stocker, Reeve Robert Tedford of Norwood, Sheriff F. J. A. Hall, W. F. Morrow, county registrar; Chas. J. Seymour, clerk of the Division Court; Chief Constable Samuel Newhall; Provincial Constable David Silvester, and other officials and citizens.

W. A. BREYFOGLE WRITES FOR HOME

Short Story Appearing In October Issue Entitled "The Clock Strikes Seven."

The October issue of the Home magazine, published by Tower Magazines, Incorporated, of Chicago and New York, with home offices at Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, contains an entertaining short story from the pen of W. A. Breyfogle of Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle of Weller street.

Entitled "The Clock Strikes Seven," it is a tale of the newer type of modern writing that leaves the reader with something to think about. The obvious is not stressed, and an interrogation persists in the mind as one turns the last page to find what else happened. The sub-title gives a hint of this element in the words: "A strange story that will give you plenty to think about and you'll find yourself asking, "Which one was really mad?"."

Grace Barker and Geoffrey, her husband, are the main actors in a short piece which revolves around the vagaries of an old clock and the effect of its mal-adjustment on the sensitive minds of its owners. The style of the writing impresses the reader. Mildly analytical, smoothly-flowing, attractive, it is an easy tale to read, but not at all easy to figure out. The realm of the mind, rather than that of the senses, is taking up the attention of the newer class of writers, in what might be termed a school of metaphysical fiction.

Mr. Breyfogle has lready had several stories published in the North American Review and work from his pen has appeared in the Atlantic Monthly and other American publications. This story is the first to be published in what is known to the trade as the "smooth paper" group of popular magazines.

SYNOD DECIDES ELECT PRIMATE

Election to Take Place Tomorrow Following Service at Cathedral.

PRIMACY IS VACANT.

By A. J. McKenna
Canadian Press Staff).

MONTREAL, Sept. 17 (C.P.). — Decision was made to-day by the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada that election of a Primate will take place to-morrow following divine service at Chester Church Cathedral.

The lower house to-day discussed questions of procedure involved in the election. Suggestions were offered that the upper house of bishops should send to the electorial college more candidates than at present.

The procedure has been that the upper house provides a choice between two bishops, if neither is acceptable to the electorial college, which is made up of clergymen and laymen, two more names are sent down, and so on until an election is completed. All candidates who have been named at each ballot.

The primacy was made vacant by the death a few weeks ago of Most Rev. Clarendon L. Worrill, Archbishop of Nova Scotia.

Rev. A. H. Moore, Halifax, moved that the number of names sent down by the upper house for the first ballot be raised from two to four.

Chancellor R. V. Harris, Halifax, declared he and Chancellor F. H. Gisborne, Ottawa, had consulted with the upper house on that subject and the Bishop desired to have the procedure remain as it is.

Dr. Moore withdrew his motion after Rev. Canon W. H. Davidson, Montreal, declared against depriving the Upper House of what he described as its 'episcopal prerogative."

The question was finally settled at a joint session of the upper and lower houses when the bishops indicated they would send three nominations for the first ballot, but desired that three names be definitely voted on before any further nominations were offered.

CHINA LOSES LEAGUE SEAT

Japan Expresses Elation—See Neighbor More Ready to Deal Peacefully.

REPLACED BY TURKEY.

GENEVA, Sept. 17 (C.P.-A.P. Cable)—Japanese influence in the far east and continued influence in league circles despite her withdrawal was revealed as decidedly strong to-day, when China lost the privilege of eligibility for re-election to her seat in the league council. The assembly gave her only 21 votes out of the 34 necessary.

Japanese observers did not conceal their elation over the vote. One Japanese spokesman said "We are greatly pleased because now that China has been virtually cast out of the council, she will be more disposed to carry on amicable relations with Japan."

Guo Tai-Chi, head of the Chinese delegation, was keenly disappointed, especially since the much publicized league plan for the economic reconstruction of China has been temporarily shelved with few leaders showing any desire to bring it up again.

The refusal to re-elect China meant that Turkey will receive a non-permanent seat succeeding her.

BELLEVILLE GAINS WIN COLUMN IN C.O.B.L. FINALS

PETES' HITTING PUNCH ABSENT AS NATIONALS WIN THIRD GAME

Winners Bunch Their Hits, While Lee Crew Fail in Pinches.

5-1 SETBACK

By defeating the Petes, 5-1, here Saturday, Belleville dashed the locals' hopes of winning the C.O.B.L. title in three straight games. Having dropped two in a row in the titular series, the Nats came to town imbued with do-or-die sprit and handed the Petes a neat setback before nearly sixteen hundred rooters. It was a smart encounter with the visitors bunching hits to win out while the homesters were unable to punch home fourteen runners who died on base.

Knotty Lee selected Russ Kitchen to do the Petes' hurling, and Russ made a good job of it. Though he struck out none, he held the Mills' squad to seven hits, but three were bunched in the fifth with some poor defensive work to give Belleville three runs. Chief Williams went the distance for the winners, although he had little on the ball the last half. He fanned three, walked four and was nicked for nine hits, but good support saved him. Both sides turned in nice fielding efforts.

The Big Hitters

Weir led the victors at bat with two for three, while Kitchen got two in four for the Petes, and Batten hit safely twice in five trips. The whole Belleville outfield, and the Petes' infield starred defensively with a flock of putouts and assists. The locals were robbed of several hits by neat catches deep in the garden, with Darrah pulling off a spectacular one-hand grab in the sixth on Ash's high one.

It started off like a real championship game, neither side scoring till the fifth, though the Petes repeatedly threatened. Green singled for Belleville with two out in the first but was out trying to stretch it. Foley beat out a roller and Calladine walked in the local half but they died on base. With the Nats going out in order in the second, Whatley and Kitchen singled with two out for the homesters, but Konopka fanned. Ford walked in the third and moved up twice on outs but could not tally. Batten singled and took second on a passed ball, stopping there. Both sides went out one-two-three in the fourth.

Nats Three in Fifth.

The Nats got three runs in the fifth. Weir singled and took second when Smith was safe on a fielder's choice to Kitchen. Weir stole third and raced in on Ford's sacrifice, Smith going to second. He tallied when Burton misjudged and muffed Williams' fly. Utronki's single off Foley's glove sent Williams to third and he scored when Kerr hit safely, the latter being thrown out at second. Despite hits by Konopka and Batten, and Calladine's walk, the Petes could do nothing in their half.

With two out in Belleville's sixth, Weir walked, moved up on a wild pitch and counted on Smith's single, the latter being caught going to second. The Lee crew got a run in their end when Burton walked, took another on a wild pitch, went to third on an out and scored when Utronki dropped Konopka's fly. Darrah hit safely in the seventh but got no farther, and Calladine's walk in the seventh was wasted. Belleville got their last marker in the eighth, Kerr being hit by a pitched ball, moving ahead on a sacrifice, third on an out and home on Weir's single. Hits by Ash and Kitchen in the eighth and one by Murray in the ninth failed to produce a run for the homesters.

OSHAWA WINS CRICKET GAME

Whitaker's Drop Low-Scoring Exhibition Tussle in Motor City.

SCORE 61-44

(By C. H. Ireson)

After a couple of weeks compulsory rest owing to the difficulty in arranging fixtures and the defections of a visiting team, Peterborough cricketers got busy again on Saturday, when Whitaker's traveled to Oshawa to play their return game against that club.

Whitaker's won the first game here on August 11, but Oshawa turned the tables on Saturday; the final score being Whitaker's 44, and Oshawa 61 for 6 wickets.

Whitaker's batter first and found the bowling of Mann (5 for 13) and Dewsbury (5 for 21) hard to play; no one got double figures. On Oshawa going to bat, Moore 25 and Anthony 13 soon put the issue beyond doubt—the later batsmen failed, and at call of time the total had reached 61 for 6 wickets. Hamilton had 3 wickets for 15 runs.

Next Saturday, Sept. 22, the Peterborough C.C. are due to go to Oshawa, and Whitaker's receive Toronto Beaches at the Oval. That will be the finale for the season.

72 Women Golfers Start Open Play

TORONTO, Sept. 17, —(C.P.)— Over hazard-dotted Toronto Golf Club course, rendered soggy by a heavy week-end rain, 72 players, representing four countries, teed off this morning in the qualifying round of 18 holes for the Canadian ladies' open championship.

When the smoke of battle has brought the opening skirmish to a close to-night, many will have fallen by the wayside, but the 32 who are able to solve the difficult layout with the best gross scores, will advance to the championship fight.

Match play which will lead to the title will prevail over the 18-hole route for the rest of the week, except in the final on Saturday which is slated to go 36 holes. Those failing to qualify will drop into lower flights with the right to compete for lesser awards.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THORNCLIFFE wound up in a blaze of glory on Saturday after suffering all week from inclement weather, the weather was fine but the track was still very heavy and there were over twelve thousand fans in attendance. Chastity accounted for the feature offering of the day when he got down in front of Live One and the highly regarded Shady Well, Deedie made it a double for the week when he annexed the fourth event. The amount of money passing through mutual machines was some two hundred thousand dollars less on the week than at last year's autumn session but this was due to the rainy weather early in the week. Manager Woollat was entirely satisfied with the week's business so when he is contented, we are not going to raise any fuss about it.

Chance Sun an outsider in the wagering won the one hundred thousand dollar futurity stakes, one of the world's richest turf prizes, over a muddy racing strip, before thirty thousand spectators on closing day at Belmont Park, New York, Saturday afternoon. The Widener colt whipped thirteen of the turf's leading two-year-olds in the 45th running of this annual event. Colonel E. R. Bradley's Balladier was second and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Pixieye was third. Among the also rans was Conny Smythe's highly regarded Shoeless Joe, who was shipped to New York especially for this event. The winner paid off at 8 to 1. And won easily being 4 open lengths in front of the second horse at the finish.

HAVRE DE GRAC opened the Maryland fall season on Saturday and got away to a nice start, with some nice prices being hung up. One horse, who should click at this track before long is Dogmata who is all set to cop a sprinting event. Jockey Nick Wall the contract rider for the Seagram stable who was seriously injured at the first Hamilton meeting last June is still unable to resume riding. Advices tell us he is almost well again and we are hoping to see him in action before our fall racing comes to an end.

Sunday was a day of activity around Woodbine and Thorncliffe with all the stables moving their horses from the Leaside course down to the spacious east end track. The ever popular Dude Foden who admits that he has been riding horses for twenty-eight years, but will not divulge his age, is riding in grand form these days and his services are much in demand among the horsemen. His smashing victory on Carylon the other day was a master piece. The old boy can ride yet at a hundred and four pounds which shows he is not bothered with increasing weight which is the bug-bear of most riders. We hear that Herowin is all set for a winning effort at the coming Woodbine meeting. If this fellow is back in the same form he showed in Florida last winter, he will run away and hide on them all up here.

SOUTHAMPTON CHAMPS SEEK FURTHER LAURELS

In Intermediate "A" company for the first time, Southampton Fishermen to-day cast eyes at the "A" championship to add to their two successive Intermediate "B" titles.

On the strength of Lefty Goldsmith's pitching, the Fishermen made the first move in their advancement through the second round Saturday by defeating Aylmer Hambridges, 4-2. Goldsmith, ace of Southampton's team, limited the Aylmer outfit to five hits and whiffed 13. Lefty Scruton kept pace with the Southampton star most of the way but his mates couldn't bunch enough hits in one spot to do any damage.

Stratford Nationals pulled a surprise by taking Hamilton Moodie Tigers, 5-1 on Hamilton's home grounds. The win evened their first-round senior O.B.A.A. play-off series at one apiece and forced a third and deciding contest.

8 to 1, Chance Sun Wins Rich Futurity

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Joseph E. Widener's Chance Sun won the 45th Futurity, richest thoroughbred race in world, before a large and brilliant crowd the final day of Belmont Park's Fall meeting Saturday. The sturdy son of Chance Shot—Sunalbi, which had beaten the best of his age at six furlongs in the Grand Union Hotel Stakes at Saratoga, again beat eleven of the best colts and two of the best fillies in the most-prized of all juvenile stakes.

LEAFS' DEFEAT FORCES SERIES TO FINAL GAME

Dale Alexander's Homer With One On Gives Newark 3-2 Victory.

ALBANY WINS.

NEWARK, Sept. 17.—Dale Alexander, who once held down the initial cushion for Toronto, proved the Nemesis of the Maple Leafs yesterday as Newark Bears won the sixth game of the International League play-off series by 3 to 2. By their victory the Bruins carried the series to the seventh and deciding game, which will be played to-night in Newark.

Alexander the Great, as far as Newark fans are concerned, drilled one of Don Brennan's side-arm curves into the right field pasture for a home run in the third inning with Jess Hill on base, which accounted for two runs and the margin of victory. It was the big first-sacker's second homer in as many days.

Fine Relief Pitching

Brennan started on the firing line for Toronto, and after going three innings Al Hollingsworth was inserted on the slab. Brennan had allowed only two hits in the short time that he occupied the hillock, but there were three vicious line drives caught by the outfielders. During the five innings that Hollingsworth pitched he allowed only two hits and was never in danger.

The Leafs met up with the portside delivery of Vito Tamulis, and the diminutive twirler was deadly with men on the paths. The Leafs reached him in only one inning, and they could have won the ball game with anything resembling a base hit.

Home Runs Feature

ALBANY, N.Y., Sept. 17 (AP)—Albany Senators nosed out Rochester, 3—2, in a thrilling third game of their International League play-off series under cloudy skies yesterday. It was their first victory, the Red Wings having won the first two contests in Rochester.

Home runs by Johnny Mize and Tommy Carey accounted for both Rochester runs, while another homer by Gus. Dugas provided one of Albany's tallies.

Sensational fielding and tight pitching marked the game with catches by Estal Crabtree, Rochester centre fielder, featuring the defensive play.

Ed Chapman, Albany, and Kleinke, Rochester, engaged in a splendid pitching duel before they were lifted, Chapman in the eighth inning before a man was out and Kleinke in the seventh before a Senator was retired.

Bill Harris replaced Chapman and retired six batters in a row to protect Albany's one-run lead, while Ira Smith, who went to Kleinke's relief, was nicked for the run which gave Albany the victory. The defeat, however, was charged to Kleinke, who beat the Senators in the series opener.

DEAN BROTHERS HUMBLE GIANTS TO REDUCE LEAD

Yankees Advance on Detroit For Another Crucial Series With Hopes High.

CLOUD OF DEANS.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr. (Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Cardinals took their triumphant leave of New York today with a record of three victories in four games with the league leading Giants and only a 3½ game margin to make up in the National League pennant race. And at the same time the Yankees advanced on Detroit for another "crucial" four-game tilt with the realization that they would have to do at least as well as the Cards to get back into the American League scrap.

After dividing the first two games, the Cards swept the boards yesterday while a crowd of 62,573, the largest the Polo Grounds has ever held, looked on. Manager Frank Frisch carried out his threat to make the Giants think there was a cloud of Deans around them by sending Dizzy in to gain his 20th victory, 5-3, in the opener, then following with brother Paul, who gave only six hits in an 11-inning duel with Carl Hubbell to win 3-1.

Come From Behind

The Cards had to come from behind each time to win, taking the opener on a four-run rally in the seventh after homers by Gus Mancuso and Mel Ott had put the Giants ahead. Jim Collins' 33rd circuit swat tied the second game in the seventh and pepper Martin started the winning rally with a four-bagger.

The Dodgers kept things from becoming worse for the Giants when they hampered the third-place Cubs into submission twice, 11-6 and 5-4, with an attack that netted 30 hits. Chicago remained 6½ games behind.

Meanwhile the Tigers increased their lead to 5½ games with a brilliant 2-1 victory over Washington, while the Yanks yielded 5-2 to the Indians and Mel Harder, who granted only five hits. The Tigers couldn't do any real hitting, touching Monte Weaver for just three blows. But they got the odd run to sweep the series with daring base running. After Ray Hayworth reached second on a hit and an error in the eighth, Herman Clifton ran for him and raced all the way home while Jo-Jo White was being tossed out at first.

Low Cubs Win

On three other bargain bills on the day's program resulted in clean sweeps for three of the season's low-ranking clubs. The cellar-holding Reds and White Sox triumphed at the expense of two Boston clubs. The Reds beat the Braves 2-1 and 5-2 when Paul Derringer allowed four hits and Rookie Beryl Richmond and Si Johnson five. George Earnshaw's two-hit elbowing gave the White Sox a 2-1 triumph over the Red Hose and they went on to belt out a second decision 12-10

The seventh-place Athletics got good pitching to turn back the Browns twice, 2-1 and 3-0 behind Sugar Cain and Johnny Marcum although they secured only three blows off Dick Coffman and Paul Andrews in the afterpiece. The Pittsburgh-Phillies double bill was permanently rained out.

Chance Sun's victory was worth $77,930 of the $92,330 this running of the Futurity grossed, but more important to Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, was the victory itself.

Unknown Runner Gives Finn Scare

LONDON, Sept. 17 (CP)—Dave Komonen, Sudbury Finn, first prize winner of The Free Press Marathon, became permanent holder of the trophy as he triumphed for a third time in the event Saturday.

Two hundred yards behind him came Jimmie Bartlett of Oshawa, the dark horse of the race. The Oshawan travelled neck-and-neck with Komonen for 22 miles, and it was not until the last few miles that the Finn could shake off the dogged blonde boy to open up a 100-yard lead.

DELORO LOSES 10-INNING GAME TO NAPANEE 3-2

Bishop on Winner's Mound Whiffs Twelve Batters and Allows Four Hits.

CROWD GOES WILD.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MARMORA, Sep. 17.—In one of the most thrilling games ever seen on the Deloro diamond the home team lost a ten inning game to Napanee 'B' team by a 3-2 score. It was the first meeting of the teams in the O.B.A.A. play-offs and it was marked with excellent pitching and fielding until the tenth when errors by Deloro cost them the game.

Napanee relied on their southpaw, Bishop who struck out twelve and only allowed four hits. V. Callery on the mound for Deloro who kept the hits down to six, gave one of his best displays.

Six Scoreless Frames

After six scoreless innings, Deloro obtained a run in the seventh when Stewart who had obtained a fine triple came home on M. Calley's double. In the eighth Napanee evened the score as Johnson tripled to score Lucas. Errors paved the way for the runs obtained by both teams in the tenth. Napanee had one double play. The second game will be played in Napanee on Wednesday afternoon.

WESTCLOX WIN WAY TO FINALS

Championship Series With Keene Begins This Evening at Bowl.

SMOTHER OMEMEE

Beautiful pitching by Barbara Blade, and errorless support by her teammates gave the Westclox Girls a play-off berth in the second half of the Ladies City and District Softball Loop, on Saturday evening at the Ashburnham Bowl, when the Clockmakers smothered the Omemee nine under a splurge of base hits to win 22 to 3, in seven innings. The Westclox and Keene are now both in the play-offs in the two halves, and the first of the three out of five series for the championship will be played at the Bowl on Monday night starting at five.

Blade turned in her best hurling performance of the year, fanning eleven batters, and held the opposition to eight scattered hits, one of these a double by Mary Pickett. Hickson started on the slab for the visitors but ran into difficulty almost from the start and when she retired at the end of the second the score stood 9 to 0 for the Clockers. Ev. Morcombe then took over the pitching but was hit just as hard and failed to even slow up the Westclox batting parade. Dot Webb led the winners in the hitting, slapping the horsehide for two triples and four singles in seven trips.

King Edward Bantams Lose O.B.A.A. Playdown Game in Queen City.

SUPERB PITCHING

King Edward bantams bowed to Columbus Boys by the one-sided score of 15-1 in the first game of the bantam play-downs on Saturday afternoon at Stanley Park in Toronto. The Peterborough team, not being used to the hard diamond at the King street park, had not less than eight fumbles and the Queen City gang taking advantage of these together with the aid of some lusty slugging piled up an early lead and went on to win handily.

Tester on the mound for the winners pitched great ball allowing but four hits while striking out fifteen. Todd started for the Petes but was hit hard from the first and finally forced to retire in the seventh in favor of Mortimer who twirled fine relief ball during the last two frames. Stasszewski, with a home run and triple, led the Toronto team's attack while Todd helped his own cause and the King Edward team by scoring their only run in the fourth inning.

Despite the loose fielding two double plays were made, one by each team, Todd-to-Berwick in the third stanza for the Lift-lock boys, while Stukus-to-MacDowell-to-Crawford was the order of the twin-killing in the final inning.

BALLIEBORO WINS TOURNEY.

BALLIEBORO, Sept. 17. — (Examiner Correspondence.)—The girls' softball tournament played here on Saturday, was won by the Ballieboro team, which defeated Maple Leafs of Peterborough in the finals by 10 to 9. The final game was one of the best seen here in years. Millbrook, Precious Corners and Gore's Landing sent teams in the big tourney.

FEATURES THORNCLIFFE CLOSE.

TORONTO, Sept. 16. — With more than 9,000 in attendance, Thorncliffe Park came to a close on Saturday. The track was again on the slow side, but was drying out rapidly and as the result the spectators were treated to the best racing of the week, but it remained for the final event to furnish the outstanding surprise of the seven days when Phil R., at nearly 32 to 1, beat Gift o' Gab by a neck. The Oneto on this yielded $661.80 to the nine lucky holders.

TRICOLOR SQUAD ADDS STRENGTH UNDER REEVE FOR RUGBY WARS

Much Promising Material Turns Out for Workouts at Stadium.

STAR KICKER.

KINGSTON Ont. Sept. 17. (C.P.) Minus only seven members of the Tricolor squad that tied for the Intercollegiate Union title last Fall and lost in a playoff to Toronto, the 1934 football men of Queen's have high hopes of landing the championship in their second year under Coach Ted Reeve.

From the team that went into the 1933 playoff have been lost Bob Ralph, outside wing; Ralph Miller and Freeman Waugh, middles; Bud Gorman and Jerry Byrne, insides; Dune McIntosh, quarter and Jim Davis, halfback and ace placement kicker. Ralph was injured and played only part of the season Miller and McIntosh were second-stringers.

Coach Reeve discovered Richardson Stadium held much promising fresh material when he looked over the new squad. There were replacements for the graduates and so many high-grade candidates that the old guard will have to fight hard for their jobs. Reeve is likely to do some shifting of strongmen.

Munro A Candidate

Replacing Davis will be Johnny Munro, star kicker last season of the Toronto Argonaut juniors, eastern champions. Munro has impressed observers as being every bit as good as Davis and should team up well with Johnny Wing and Curly Krug on the rear division. Wing is also a fine punter and Krug was the team's most effective ball-carrier in 1933.

To fill the hole caused by the loss of Jerry Bryne, the Tricolor may stick with the family and call on Jerry's brother, 'Taff,' who was a result two years ago. He was out of the game last season. Jack Kostuik, captain and all-star snap last season, may be moved back to the pivot position, leaving centre to Reg. Barker—former Hamilton Tiger regular.

Reeve is still undecided about quarter. Kostuik, a great defensive player, is untried on the attack. But Barker is capable of doing an adequate job at centre and the tall mentor may develop Captain Jack. Red McNicholl also is available and may see much duty at quarter.

Backfield Additions.

The backfield will be helped by Archie Kirkland, star kicker of the 1933 intermediates and perhaps Bob Elliott who was a running-mate of Howie Carter a few years ago. Carter may return to Queen's for an arts degree. One of the finest tacklers the Tricolor has had in 10 years, he would almost certainly fit in. Elliott is a son of the late 'Chaucer' Elliott, one of Canada's greatest footballers.

On the line 'Mucker' Macpherson and Harry Sonshine of last year's intermediates are looked upon as certain to make good. The regular middles will be 'How' Hamlin and Abe Zvonkin, perhaps the outstanding front-liners in the inter-collegiate circuit last Fall. Both are tremendous plungers and defensive players.

Merve Peever, former intercollegiate boxing champion, will not play but the outside wing positions will be filled by 1933 regulars, Glass and Earle. Coach Reeve needs only to find wingline reserve strength to have a comfortable feeling about the Tricolor's defensive ability.

Mrs. Sopwith Times Endeavour In Races

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 17 (A.P.) —The timekeeper of the British challenger for the America's Cup, Endeavour, believes learning the lingo is the hardest part of sailing.

The timekeeper is Mrs. T. O. M. Sopwith, wife of the owner of the sloop with which Great Britain hopes to regain the famous trophy. She is the first woman to tread the deck as a bonafide member of the crew of a sloop sailing for the international cup.

"Timekeeping is an important part of sailing but I'm not the least bit nervous about it," she said to-day. "I have been racing in sloops the size of Endeavour and smaller ones for the last five years. It is really much easier to sail large boats than the small ones in which the boom comes about so fast and you must act with lightning speed.

"Timing for the America's Cup races is also much easier than some timing jobs I have held in England. At home I have had to watch five other contestants at a time. Here, I have only Rainbow to watch.

OVERTIME FAILS TO BREAK COUNT IN STIFF BATTLE

Bolton for C.G.E. and Evans of Packers Are Big Scorers of Match.

SCORE IS 4-4.

After battling for 90 minutes in the final of the E. A. Peck Cup, on Saturday afternoon, in ideal weather, the Canadian General and Canadian Packers' players decided that thy had completed the game when the score stood at four goals apiece, whereas it is customary to finish the match until a winner is decided after playing the stipulated overtime. This will necessitate a third encounter unless the executive decide otherwise.

McCracken Opens Scoring

Right from the kick-off, the Packers carried the attack against the C.G.E. defence to find the Mitchell Brothers intercepting many dangerous rushes. Finally Buchan sent his right winger along the wing with the ball, who compelled the C.G.E. custodian to throw himself up into the corner of the upright to save his charge, but Evans connected to climax the play. The Electric team kept swinging the ball from wing to wing in an endeavor to split the Packers' defence. Quickly Ross punted the ball over to his left wingers to make progress along the line, as George Downer evaded the full back nicely to leave Foster in possession a few yards out from goal, but he sent the ball skyward. Bolton, at outside right, C.G.E., made his presence known immediately by his first-timer that beat Chamberlain all the way for the equaliser, from a well-organized effort by Quinn. For a long period, the C.G.E. front rank dominated the play in every department, while the Packers' defensive tactics lacked finish.

Post broke away down the wing to centre the ball over to Bolton, who brought the Packer goalie to his knees to clear. Then the same method of attack prevail'ed in the C.G.E. area with Curtis, goalie, making spectacular saves from the foot of G. Downer and McCracken. Within three minutes of the interval, the Packers' left winger dribbled his way towards his opponents' goal to centre the ball into goal where Evans breasted the ball into the net. Half time: Canada Packers, 2; Canadian General 1.

Plenty of Scoring

On resuming, N. Downer resumed playing at outside right, after being injured in the first period. Play ran from end to end with the forwards initiating many beautiful movements to test out the custodians, Curtis, goalie, was kept busy for the next five minutes holding his goal intact. Exchanges continued even until ten minutes to go, when Bolton accepted a nice pass from Quinn to culminate his clever dribbling by beating the Packers' goalie at short range for the equalizer. Then a long punt by Bolam let Burgess break through his opposing full backs to put the C.G.E. ahead. But this success did not last long, for G. Downer registered the fourth with an unsaveable drive. The Packers kept up a steady barrage to meet a stubborn defence whenever they became dangerous. Buchan tried to force the issue and C.G.E. transferred the ball to the other end where scrimmage after scrimmage took place until Earl found the opening to make the teams even again. Canadian General, 4; Canada Packers 4.

President Takes Big Hand In Race

As the two yachts rounded the weather mark Saturday, several vessels, notably the destroyer Manley, carrying newspaper camera men, made too close to the challenger so as to interfere with her wind.

President Roosevelt, who was following the race from a vantage point aboard Vincent Astor's yacht, Nourmahal, promptly wirelessed a terse order to the Manley to get out of the way.

The President's cryptic message said: "Are you challenging the Endeavour?"

Our ball teams didn't go so well Saturday, both the seniors and bantams taking it where the chicken took the axe. The King Edward Bantams went to Stanley Park and dropped a 16-1 decision to the Columbus Boys, finding the flinty ground tough onions and booting the ball around plenty. They faced a smart hurler in Tester, but Mortimer, in a relief role, held Toronto in check the last part. They have a fair chance of pulling out a verdict in the return game here on Wednesday, as they'll be on better ground and in home surroundings.

Westclox gals showed their class Saturday eve at the Bowl by smothering Omemee under a 22-3 blanket of runs. Barbara Blade held the O's to eight hits and fanned eleven, while getting errorless support. The visitors booted the ball hither and yon before a fair crowd and were clearly outclassed. These Alarm Maidens sure come through when they need the wins. They and Keene now meet in a five-game final series for the loop title, first game this eve at five in the Bowl.

Charlie Carson had a big turnout of footballers Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds, some forty being on deck. A few of the better known fellows—that we haven't mentioned before—who were spotted there included Cadd, Gardner, Weir, Magee and Weldon. They drill again tonight down there at 5.15, and have a heavy workout there on Tuesday. All interested, whether they've had experience or not, are invited—including oldtimers—and Charlie would like particularly to have some heavy linemen show up. A good rugby squad should be rounded up here in a short time, and we hope they get a good grouping.

Belleville broke through to cop a C.O.B.L. playoff win here Saturday from the Petes, 5 to 1. They had to spoil things for a big crowd of fans, and force the locals to go to Peeney Mills' town for another one. It wasn't a bad ball game, but the Petes proved helpless at bat. Old Chief Williams hadn't a thing but an Indian prayer on the spalding the last four or five frames, but that was all he needed. The homesters could fill up the sacks nearly every inning, but they couldn't punch 'em home.

• • • • • • •

Russ Kitchen pitched pretty fair ball—Deyell being a bit wild in the pre-game warmup and spoiling his chance at the selection. Russ had a nice hook working and allowed but seven hits, although three were bunched with some sloppy Petes' playing in one frame to account for three runs. With both sides doing some mighty nice fielding, three runs meant quite a bit. Williams was pretty wobbly, complaining himself of a lack of "stuff" the last half, and Smith was kept warmed up, but the Chief managed to totter through. The Petes either couldn't hit him at all, or they'd fly into someone's mitt. They might have done better by waiting him out, as Jawn was plenty at times. The fielding of Batten, Konopka, Murray and Ash—the latter especially—was a home feature.

Next C.O.B.L. titular tussle is slated for Belleville at three on Wednesday, with a fifth if necessary being staged here next Saturday. The league got in touch with the O.B.A.A. secretary to find out definitely just when this loop needed a winner declared. They were informed that they could have until a week from Wednesday—that is, the Central League champs must be ready to play the T.A.B.A. winner in the first game on September 26th. It will be the Ontario semi-final series, and the finals will be played while the World Series is on.

Irvin (Ace) Bailey who was here on a weekend visit is looking pretty good again and apparently quite recovered from the serious injuries that put him out of hockey last winter. The Toronto star, who has a host of friends here from the time he captained the Petes to a senior O.H.A. title, says he will not play any more hockey. No use taking chances after the close squeak he had last winter. The Ace took part as a guest in the afternoon sweepstake competition at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club Saturday and took the high gross score in 83, with a 21 handicap.

The Church Softball League is coming to life again after a two-month layoff, and Mark St. Seniors will play St. James Juniors—both being champs in their divisions this summer—just to see which is the better team. The first game is tomorrow evening at 5.30 in King Edward Park. Players' vacations, and the fact that a number of the boys took part in the Southend Softball Loop playoffs, held off this series until now. As the teams appear to be pretty well matched and both feel confident of copping the series, the games might be worth giving the once over as a sort of windup to the season's softball.

FANS KEEN FOR TITLE CONTEST

Many Postponements Fails to Dampen Eagerness for Big Bout.

SET FOR TO-NIGHT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—It seems there were two men—Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin—whose attempt to settle their world's welterweight championship argument, developed into an astounding series of postponements

Timidly, Mike Jacobs, promoting the fight for the New York American Christmas and relief fund, announced it will be held to-night—15 rounds in Madison Square Garden bowl—but what the customers want to know is whether Mike has been able to do anything with the weather.

Chronologically, rain forced a postponement on September 6th. Again on September 7, and for the third time on September 8. In desperation, Jacobs decided to give the skies a full week in which to clear, and re-set the bout for last Saturday. It was a poor guess for Saturday turned out to be as damp and disagreeable a day as ever irked a fight promoter's heart.

Weather Unsettled.

Overnight weather reports were not entirely reassuring but there was a straw to which the promoter could cling. Early morning showers were predicted with a definite clearing up later in the day.

One of the most surprising features of the situation has been the comparatively few ticket cancellations Jacobs had $147,000 in hand when the postponements really settled down to earnest business and he still has about $135,000. He hopes to get up to $175,000 with the usual last-minute rush for seats, but his main problem is to get the fight off the books and the fighters out of their hotel rooms.

Both Ross and McLarnin have taken the long series of delays philosophically, but whether either will be at his best now is open to question.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

OTTAWA PROVES GREAT STRENGTH IN INITIAL GAME

Smother St. Mike's By 23-7 Score to Surprise Critical Followers.

PASSING PERFECT.

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Roughriders, the surprise team of the 1933 football season from first to last, held up convincing proof that Coach Walter Masters has another fast-scoring team under his wing. It took only one practice game to show that. Now the Riders have only to show they possess defensive strength to go along with the attack.

Before a critical home crowd Saturday, the Roughriders swamped St. Michael's College of the Senior O.R.F.U. by 23-7. The heavy inexperienced Irish tested only the forward-pass defences of the Interprovincial Union squad and these they found nearly flawless. It was a fine workout for both teams.

Eliowitz Prominent

The Ottawa-St. Michael's College affair permitted big Abe Eliowitz, the versatile Michigan State graduate, to get in a smashing opening performance. He scored three touchdowns and converted each of them. The slippery Andy Tommy scored the other Ottawa touchdown after completing a 40-yard pass from Eliowitz.

The Irish collegians made no attempt to test the Roughrider front wall. Coach Bill Storken was obviously anxious to give his forward pass a real workout at the expense of other departments. As it turned out the Toronto team made little headway via the aerial route.

Ken McKernan, Irish backfield, kept his team in the running in the second quarter, intercepting an Eliowitz pass and running unmolested for a touchdown. Charlie Peck converted the major count and McKernan booted a single for the other Toronto point.

Balmy Beach held the big Montreal machine well in check after the opening play resulted in a Wheeler touchdown. Johnny Bennett returned the Beach kick-off, the ball striking a Beach player and rolling into the open. Outside wing Len Hutton scooped it up and ran 50 yards for a touchdown. Huck Welsh converted.

Two forward passes sent the Beachers into scoring position late in the first quart and Ross Lipsett plunged over for a touchdown. Syd Reynolds converted, leaving the score deadlocked. Welsh kicked a field goal in the second quarter and each team scored a single point in the last half.

A Rather Rare coincident happened during these games: Sedgewick and Sedgewick (father and son) were drawn against Gardiner and Gardiner (father and son). In the second draw Sedgewick and Sedgewick were drawn against McDougall and McDougall (father and son). This may never happen again in one hundred years; it is just the luck of the draw. In both games the Peterborough pair were victorious.

PRESENT TROPHIES AT ANNUAL DINNER

Peterborough Golf Club Concludes Regular Organized Tourneys.

At the annual closing dinner and field day at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club Saturday, at which sixty members and guests were present, the yearly competition trophies were presented to winners by President Fred Hills. The club championship was awarded to Dr. J. C. Green, the Stratton Trophy going to H. C. Scotcheran, J. W. McDermid winning the Hall Trophy, the Tombstone Trophy being taken by T. A. Hall, and the Macdonald Trophy going to H. Tudhope.

In the afternoon sweepstake competition, Dr. J. C. Green went around in 75. Irvin (Ace) Bailey, with a 21 handicap, took the gross score with an 83. The high net score went to Fred Hills, and the high gross mark to George Richmond. In the obstacle golf play in the evening, G. N. Howson was first, W. A. Elliott second, and M. Ruiter third. This concludes the regular organized competition at the club for the year.

SILVER SLIPPERS BY Temple Bailey

CHAPTER 41

The house was wrapped in silence. Amelie and Scripps had gone upstairs. Jose was taking the doctor home across the moonlighted seas. Margarida was asleep in her room above the kitchen. There was no sound in the serene night except the soft swish of lazy breakers on the beach and the clear musical clang of a bell-buoy as the waves rocked it.

Then suddenly across the silence came an astounding clamour . . . cries that were not human . . . cries of a bird in distress!

Old Peter!

The lame gull spent most of his time in the kitchen. Margarida had made a great pet of him, and he had a warm corner to himself. It was from the kitchen that the cries now came. Giles covering swiftly the intervening space, flung open the door to face an incredible scene. Margarida had left a faint light burning for Jose's return, and by that light Giles saw Amelie, a wild figure in a flame-colored negligee, with old Peter flapping and screaming in her arms.

Her fingers were at his neck, and Giles when he reached her had to use all of his strength to release the frightened bird. He held Amelie while she struggled, and at last she relaxed, sobbing: "I don't like him, Giles. I don't like him. He is lame. And Scripps is lame. And I want things that can fly and run. I want to run away with you, Giles . . . and leave all this behind me . . ."

"Hush," he said, as he saw Scripps in the door and Margarida.

He made no explanation. Why lie when they knew the truth? But he sent Margarida up with Amelie, and took Scripps with him into the living room.

"My God," Scripps said, when they were alone together, "she was trying to kill him, Giles."

"Yes. The doctor warned me."

"You didn't tell me."

"You had enough to bear."

Scripps dropped into a chair and covered his face with his hands. Giles' arm went about his friend's shoulders: "Shall I tell you what Macdonald said?"

"Yes."

Giles was cautious: "Of course we can't be sure of anything," but when he had finished, he asked, "Are you willing to go through with it?"

"I'd go through hell if I might have her back."

For a long time they talked about it. When Giles went upstairs Amelie was asleep. Old Margarida sat by the bed. The old woman was a tower of strength. "I will lie on the couch tonight," she whispered, "I gave her something to keep her quiet."

That night old Peter slept in Giles' room, and the next day Jose took him over to stay with Dilly. "You'd better get away at once," Macdonald advised, "the monotony is bad for her, and a change may work wonders."

A nurse was found and she and Amelie went back and forth to Boston, buying things. Amelie would come home gay and interested, and when the boxes arrived would open them and show their contents to the two men. "I'm leaving a lot to buy in Paris. But I adore my traveling outfit and my lovely shoes . . . I have six pairs of them. Am I too extravagant, Giles?"

"Get what you like," he said, smiling.

"You're a darling."

Later when she was alone with him, she sighed: "I wish Scripps were not going."

"Why?"

"Oh, if it could be just you and I."

"We must not think of ourselves. And Scripps is lonely."

It had been decided that the two shops were to be closed indefinitely. And it was in settling up his own affairs that Giles found business to take him to Portland. He had written to Joan at Penelope's, and had had no word. Well, he would seek Penelope himself. He would tell her the truth, frankly He found himself keen to talk to the wise and gracious woman, to have her counsel.

Before he went, however, he found himself confiding in Dilly. "You remember Joan Dudley?"

"Yes. Where is she?"

"I can't find her. I've written and had no answer. And now I'm going up to Maine to see the woman she stayed with before she got her money."

"I read of her aunt's death. Is Joan very rich?"

"Too rich for her own happiness, perhaps."

There was a moment's silence, then Dilly asked, softly, "You love her?"

"Yes."

"And you will find her and tell her so?"

"Sometimes I wonder if I should. What have I to give a woman like that? She has everything."

"A woman has nothing who hasn't love. And, oh, Giles, tell it to her. So many men don't tell their love, and they let a woman weary for it. They think her so far above them . . . a star in the skies . . . and they let her go . . . because they are proud . . . and don't understand. And the woman's heart aches to the end of the world."

There were tears in her eyes. Giles said: "Dilly, how do you know so much about it?"

"Because there was a time when William didn't tell me. He was afraid . . . and I waited and waited . . ." And at last, I had to tell William . . ." she was trying to smile through her tears, "he had loved me all the time and I knew it . . . but I had to do the telling. It wasn't easy, Giles. And some women would have been too proud . . . but I couldn't be proud—with William . . ."

He reached out a hand to her, "Dear child . . . he adores you."

She nodded. "I know. And perhaps I shouldn't have told you this. But men are so—stupid . . . and I didn't want you to be stupid, Giles."

When a few days later, Giles motored along the North Shore, Dilly's words kept coming back to him. "They let her go . . . because they are proud . . . and a woman's heart aches to the end of the world."

Would Joan's heart ever ache that way for him? Well, please God it should not ache for any word unsaid.

He came to Penelope's house at noon. He had left his car in the town and had walked through the woods. It was mid-February and warm for the season, so that the snow had melted in spots, and there were clear brown patches of dead needles ringed round with white, with a soft dampness in the atmosphere which spoke of spring. The slight heat brought out the aromatic fragrance of the pines, and beyond the woods the clouds floated like pale galleons on an azure sea.

The house as he approached it was lighted up and glowing with the sunshine which washed over it. Yet as he ascended the steps, he saw that it was deserted. The windows were shuttered, dry leaves were in high drifts on the porch, and there was snow in the colder corners. He saw no signs of life except where the pigeons preened themselves on the barn roof, and the squirrels showed like fleeting shadows as they sought their hiding places.

In spite of the sunshine, Giles felt the chill of desolation. He took the path to the barn and came upon an old cat who pattered on quick feet towards him, her tail waving.

He greeted her, "Where are your people, Pusscat?"

She answered with an eager cry, and as he went on into the wood she followed him.

And so it happened, that when young John Briggs and his sister, Priscilla, walked in the wood, they saw a man standing by a tree, with a gray cat curled comfortably in the crook of his arm. He was looking down at her and did not see the children until they were upon him.

They said, "Hello," and stopped.

"Oh, hello . . ." he smiled at them, "I came to see Mrs. Sears."

"She's away," young John stated, "and the cat is the barn cat. We are keeping Muffet and her kittens at our house. But this cat lives in the hay loft and likes it, and we come over every day and feed her and feed the pigeons and feed the squirrels, and Joan gives us each a dollar a week for doing it."

Giles' voice thrilled: "Joan? Do you mean Miss Dudley?"

"Yes. She lives with Mrs. Sears. And she's got more money than the president."

Priscilla rebuked her brother, "John, you mustn't say such things."

"Well, she has got more money."

"But mother says we are not to talk about it."

"If you don't mind," Giles said, "I'd like to talk about Miss Dudley. I know her, and I came to see her."

"Well, you can't see her," young John said, "she isn't coming back."

"When did she go away?"

"In January."

"And Mrs. Sears is with her?"

"No. Aunt Penelope's uncle is sick. He lives in the south. And his wife died. So she went. And Joan stayed here. And she didn't like it. So one day she came over and told us 'Good-bye.' And she isn't coming back for a long time . . . and she took her maid with her . . . and a lot of trunks . . . and . . ."

But Giles was not interested in extraneous details. "Where did she go?"

"To Spain."

THE TUTTS By Crawford Young

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 18

A day of what is known astrologically as one of "mixed influences" is forecast from the predominant lunar and mutual configurations. While employment and labor, industry and application are in line for substantial recognition and reward, yet with counter-currents or trends toward speculation, extravagance, personal indulgence, or the pursuit of singular hobbies may nullify or dissipate the gains.

Those whose birthday it is have the augury of a year of much solid progress, through industry, diligence, employment and preferment.

A child born on this day may be versatile, industrious and successful in employment but may have tendencies toward extravagance, indulgences and peculiar pursuits detrimental to its finest success.

Hunted For Murder Man Found Slain

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Sept. 17 The body of Lawrence Spohr, 46, who has been sought since yesterday morning in the murder of Mrs. Eileen Latta at her home here, was found this morning in tall grass on Second Sister Island, above the Horseshoe Falls. He had been shot through the mouth. A pistol was under his right knee.

Mrs. Latta, 27, estranged wife of a Canadian from near Toronto, was found shot to death in her bedroom on Thursday by her father, who lived at her home. Spohr, a house painter and paper hanger, had been pressing his attentions on the woman for some time, police said.

Police asked nearby cities to watch for Spohr, whom they blamed for the shooting.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

Centreville

The annual thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Centreville Presbyterian Church was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Sunday school hall. There was a good attendance of ladies from Millbrook, Bensfort and Bailieboro. The president, Mrs. D. N. Dodds, presided, and the meeting opened by singing hymn 374, after which Mrs. D. A. McKenzie offered prayer, and Mrs. Robert Deyell gave the Bible reading. This was followed by special prayer repeated in unison, giving thanks to God for his goodness and mercy, during the 70 years since the W. M. S. was organized.

Mrs. Skitch gave a reading on Prayer, after which Mrs. O. B. Johnson and Miss Allie Berry sang a duet. Miss Darling gave a reading on Service.

Mrs. Ewart, of Cobourg, president of the Peterborough Presbyterial, gave a splendid missionary address, sketching some of the essential features of the W. M. S. since its organization 70 years ago. In an interesting and impressive way she narrated the achievements of the society in the home and foreign mission fields, and urged all the members to go forward to greater service for Christ and the Kingdom of Heaven.

The members of the Mission Band were present and the following address was read by Miss Robena Tate:

"To the ladies of the W. M. S.:

"We, the members of the Mission Band and coworkers with you, are very glad to help your society in any way we can. We ask you to accept $15, with the hope that by the end of the year we shall have as much again to give you.

"We're only a part of God's great plan,
But we'll cheerfully do the best we can."

Miss Doris Falls presented the money.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Ewart for her interesting and instructive address, after which a hymn was sung and Mrs. Ewart closed the meeting with prayer.

Refreshments were served and a very pleasant social hour was spent.

Rev. Mr. Walker, of Janetville, will occupy the pulpit of Centreville church next Sunday.

Mrs. Clegg and her son, of Montreal, are visiting her sister, Mrs. Russell Bonner.

Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., and Rev. S. A. McKenzie, B.A., attended a meeting of Peterborough Presbytery in Havelock, on Tuesday.

WARKWORTH.

Mr. John Covert, Hastings, a former resident of this village, has purchased the residence of Andrew Thompson.

Mrs. Tom Somers left Thursday for London, Eng., where she will visit her father and sisters.

Miss Mary Phillips is visiting friends in Lanark.

Mrs. W. J. Harper is visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Cryderman and other relatives in Toronto.

Mr. Andrew Thompson has purchased the residence on Front street owned by Harry L. Walker, Belleville.

"Dear Miss Glad: I recently read in some magazine that the lovely Diana Wynyard always pats honey into her skin to keep it perfect. Does honey really have skin beautifying properties? LOIS."

It is indeed true that honey possesses skin beautifying properties. This product, however, can best be utilized as a face mask for refining and softening the skin. To make this mask, add enough honey to half a cup of almond meal to form a thick, smooth paste. Cleanse the face well with a good cleansing cream and then remove the grease and dirt with cleansing tissues. Put a bit of nourishing cream around your eyes and mouth, and after this spread the paste generously over your face. Allow this pack to remain on your face for at least half an hour. Then remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. And you'll be delighted with the resultant softness and smoothness of your skin.

"Dear Miss Glad: I want to congratulate you on the excellence of your 'New Figure' booklet. I've been following the reducing course in this book and have lost 30 pounds. And I certainly look years younger. However, I now wish to employ that dandruff remedy—the sulphur and vaseline—described in your 'Beauty Culture' booklet, but do not know how. Could you tell me the exact process of application? JENNY."

The sulphur and vaseline mixture described in my "Beauty Culture" booklet is a most effective dandruff remedy. Before applying it, first brush your hair briskly and scratch your scalp gently with a blunt comb, in order to loosen the dandruff. Then part your hair at close intervals and rub a quantity of the mixture into the scalp at each part. After the mixture has been applied to your entire scalp massage it in with your finger tips. Allow it to remain on as long as possible—overnight, if you can. And shampoo your hair the next morning with a bland soap and tepid water.

"Dear Miss Glad: I have a slight natural wave in my hair and the waves near the top of my head are very deep and lovely. The ends of my hair always look so straight, however, and I'd like to have ringlets. Could I possibly have the ends of my hair permanently waved? Would it take the natural wave out of my hair?

CATHERINE."

A permanent wave, if correctly administered, will not take the natural wave out of the hair. Only the outgrown hair is affected by the waving process, you know. It is perfectly harmless to have the ends of the hair permanently waved in order to procure ringlet ends, if the hair is in good condition and the ends aren't too dry and brittle. Only the hair ends will be submitted to the waving, and the new hair that grows out at the roots will be just as naturally curly as it previously was. Of course, if your hair is naturally curly, you could easily train the ends to curl up. But if you prefer to have them permanently waved you may do so with perfect safety.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

C.G.I.T. MEETING AT MILLBROOK

Wide Awakes Decide to Organize for New Season.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 17.—Seventeen were present at the initial meeting of the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. Group, held at the leader's home on Thursday at 7:30 p.m., discussion as to whether to organize a group for this year taking up the first part of the business session.

The majority being in favor of having C.G.I.T. activities, the election of officers, with attendant business, will feature the next regular gathering which will be on Wednesday evenings throughout the season, promptly at 7:30, the leader promising to start however few might be on time. This decision was arrived at because of the request of parents that the meetings be over not later than 9:30 p.m., and that obligates punctual beginning each week.

Next week's gathering will take the form of the annual hot bacon supper, at the Mansion grounds, the girls to come immediately from school; after the outing adjournment will be made to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. McDowell for the business and devotional session. The matter of an age limit for membership in the group was discussed at some length, and on motion, it was decided to make this from twelve to seventeen years, older girls who have graduated from the Wide Awakes to be retained on an "Honor List", and used for leadership purposes whenever possible. The new pass word, and the new motto will be in readiness for the next meeting, when new members will also be received.

Girls were appointed to look after the making of the fire, Madeline and Beatrice McDowell; for bringing water for coffee, Marjorie McDowell, Eleanor Bigelow and Joan Deyell; for the cooking of bacon and beans, Mary Burnham, Jean Burnham and Bernice Smith, while others who arrive early will be used for setting out the tables, and whatever else remains to be done.

The devotional period, following the business session, opened with all reading in unison the C.G.I.T. Camp Hymn, "God Who Crownest Earth With Beauty", and a prayer also in unison. The reading of Psalm 91, "The Christian's Dwelling-place", was taken alternately and the leader gave a talk on having Christ as an intimate friend based on the verse, "Apart from Me Ye Can Do Nothing".

A sing-song from the C.G.I.T. song sheet, with the service of grapes and home-made candy, brought the meeting to a close.

Miss Phyllis Kidd is holidaying at Indian River with her grandfather and aunt, Mr. J. and Miss Francis Pallis.

Three car-loads of members of St. Andrew's Young People's Society motored to Bethany and attended the Demonstration Evening conducted by officers of the Peterborough Presbyterial Y.P.S., under the auspices of the young people's organization of that community.

The many friends of Miss Annie Armstrong, who but recently returned from a visit of some length in Toronto, will regret to learn that she had the misfortune to fall down stairs at the home of her sister, Mrs. T. B. Collins, last Tuesday, and is at present a patient in Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital, suffering from severe shock and bruises. Fortunately no bones were broken, and good progress is being made toward recovery.

BENNETT RULE MUST BE ENDED

Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, told a North York campaign meeting. Speaking in support of Captain C. H. Breuls, Conservative candidate, Dr. Manion declared Canada led all nations on the road to recovery largely through the government's efforts.

Canadians should recognize this before they decided "to swat the government that sticks its head up first when an election arrives." Elect Conservatives in the five bye-elections, he appealed, and thus vote confidence in the work of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett "the greatest leader Canada ever had."

The people had overthrown four provincial governments but conditions had not improved because of this, Dr. Manion added. The government had spent $175,000,000 to fight the depression and supply work, a large sum but there had been no starvation in Canada while in Russia and other countries people had been without food, the minister said. The Empire trade agreements had changed an adverse trade balance to a $200,000,000 favorable balance.

Attacks Hepburn

Premier Hepburn was taken to task by Wilfrid Heightington, K.C., Conservative member in the Ontario legislature for Toronto St. Davids, for what the member said was government by orders-in-council. He told the Windsor Young Conservative Club the Liberal government was following a policy of "to the victor belongs the spoils." Civil servants who had given the best years of their life to government service were being dismissed while Mr. Hepburn "strutted up and down the corridors of Queens Park spouting instructions on matters which, according to all the principles of responsible government should be placed before the legislature," he declared.

Prime Minister Bennett's policy of expending sums on airports and armories was committing the government to "a war policy," declared Graham Spry, C.C.F. candidate in Toronto East. He declared he was as loyal to the empire as anyone but he "unalterably opposed any war fought for aggrandizement."

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, will take the platform in support of T. L. Church, K.C., Conservative candidate in Toronto east, when he speaks in the Ontario capital tomorrow night.

Fire Guts Famous Alaskan City Of Gold

TWO LOSE LIVES 2,000,000 LOSS AS NOME BURNS

Hundreds Left Homeless Facing Grim Arctic Winter.

MANY ARE INJURED.

NOME, Alaska, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Alaska's famous city of gold lay in smoking ruins today with two dead and a property loss estimated as high as $2,000,000.

Faced by a definite food shortage and an early winter which will lock the city's roads with ice, Nome's homeless citizens pleaded for immediate aid.

"We must have help from outside, speedily," said Dr. Rex M. Swartz, the city's physician-mayor.

The United States government Red Cross and American Companies promptly promised to rush aid in an effort to beat the winter's ice into the harbor.

Starting from a spark on the roof of the Golden Gate Hotel yesterday, flames roared through the wooden town, leaping from building to building, and then from block to block. Efforts of firemen, aided by men, women and children were futile.

Federal buildings, the Miners and Merchants Bank, every grocery store and restaurant, all of the hotels but one fell before the flames.

Two Eskimos were trapped by the flames. They burned to death.

Buildings were dynamited as the blaze raced to-day toward Front street. A number of white persons were injured. At the hospital—one of the few buildings to escape the fire—physicians said several were in a serious condition.

Food Supplies Low

Most of the city's food supply was consumed by the fire—dire predicament for a city as isolated as

NORMAL SCHOOL HAS 144 PUPILS

Big Decrease in Number Attending Peterborough Normal School.

100 FIRST CLASS.

A sharp drop in the enrolment, aside from the absence of second year students this year, was noted as the Peterborough Normal School threw open its doors for a new term this morning. A registration of 144 students, showing a decrease of 62 students over the 1933 registration of first year students, was recorded.

Dr. J. A. Bannister, principal, was inclined to attribute the decrease to the saturated condition prevailing in the teaching profession. "Many of the students graduated from Normal schools in the past couple of years have not yet got positions," he said. "Apparently the boys and girls coming out of the high schools are looking to other fields while the present uninviting outlook prevails."

100 First Class Students

Of the 144, about 100 students, Upper School graduates, will seek first class certificates. The remaining 44 will take the course leading to the second class certificate. The abolition of the second year course by Premier Hepburn early this sum-

ARMS MAKERS WARNED BY U.S. TO UPHOLD PACT

Over $1,000,000 Worth of Planes and Parts Sold to Germany This Year.

FOR MILITARY USE.

[By STANLEY P. RICHARDSON]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. (AP). A tacit warning by the United States government against violations of the Versailles Treaty in the sale of aircraft equipment to Germany received the attention of the senatorial munitions inquiry to-day.

The State Department, investigators heard, moved to prevent any circumvention by American concerns of the treaty provisions designed to restrict the re-armament of the Reich. The department circulated to all American aircraft companies doing foreign business a definition of the treaty provisions.

The disclosure came soon after revelations that the United Aircraft Export Corporation has sold more than $1,000,000 worth of aeroplanes, engines and equipment to the Reich so far in 1934. Against the contentions of committeemen that the materials were destined for a place in the vast re-armament plans attributed to the Hitler regime, company officials insisted the equipment was sold for commercial purposes.

Proof in Letters

Chairman Gerald Nye, (R., N.D.) asserted:

"There was proof offered in evidence here yesterday in the form of letters found in the files of the company that these people knew their engines were going for military purposes.

Another new development to-day was an announcement that the armament business of United States Steel and Bethlehem Steel Corporation will be scrutinized by the Senate committee. Officials of these firms will be summoned to testify late in the Fall.

Delving further into the United Aircraft export concern's business with Germany, the committee recalled Donald L. Brown to the stand to-day. He is president of Pratt and Whitney Company, United's engine manufacturing subsidiary. C. W. Deeds, treasurer of the concern, also was called.

Evidence was heard yesterday that United export not only sold large quantities of aircraft equipment to Germany but that its Pratt and Whitney subsidiary had a license agreement with a firm there permitting it to manufacture Pratt and Whitney motors.

LEAGUE ELECTS SOVIET RUSSIA TO MEMBERSHIP

Closely Packed Assembly Hall Takes Gala Atmosphere For Occasion.

ALL HEAVILY GUARDED.

Vote on Admission Was 39 in Favor, 3 Opposition, Seven Not Balloting.

GENEVA, Sept. 18. (A.P.).—The assembly of the League of Nations to-day elected Soviet Russia into membership.

The election took place before a packed assembly hall which had taken on a gala atmosphere for the occasion. For an hour prior to the election, spectators had poured into the meeting place. A crowd formed outside.

Prior to the admittance of the public, Swiss detectives and under officials of the League scrupulously examined the building, then took up posts where they could scan all the entrances into the hall.

Another big crowd assembled at the Quai Mont Blanc, before the hotel where Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign commissar, was expected to stay. Detectives there kept the crowd moving along the sidewalk although they did not interfere with the masses along the lake close by. Many of the spectators there sat patiently on camp chairs requisition for the occasion.

By a coincidence, the Soviet representatives had selected for their headquarters the hotel in which former Foreign Minister Gueguetchko of Georgia lives. Georgia recently petitioned the League to induce Russia to restore her independence

The vote on the admission of Russia was 39 in favor, three in opposition, and seven not voting.

STORM TROOPER CONFESSES FIRE

OTHER AIDES DEAD.

NICE, France, Sept. 18 (C.P.-Havas).—A letter by Ernst Kruse (Storm Trooper No. 134,523) to the late President Hindenburg, making a clean breast of activities in the Reichstag fire, was published today by the Eclaireur de Nice.

Kruse, who fled to Switzerland from Germany following the June 30 coup, declares in the letter that, with other storm troopers, he obeyed orders emanating from Dr. Goebbels, propaganda Minister, and General Goering, Prussian Premier, by setting the fire.

All other participants, including Captain Ernst Roehm, who was shot on July 1, are now dead, he contends.

Kruse will testify in October before the American Inquiry Commission into the Reichstag fire.

War Service Ordered For All Italians Boys Start Training At 8, Continue To 33

By Andrew Berding, Associated Press Foreign Staff

ROME, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Compulsory military service for Italians, beginning at the age of eight and continuing to the age of 33, was decreed today by the council of ministers in probably the most sweeping military law ever passed in history.

Declaring "the functions of a citizen and of a soldier are not separable in the Fascist state," the council created the three following categories of compulsory military training:

(1) Preliminary—Beginning at the age of eight years;

(2) Military—Beginning at the age of 21 years;

(3) Post-military—Continuing for 10 years after the military phase is concluded.

JOHN DOUGALL NOTED EDITOR TAKEN BY DEATH

Doyen of Canadian Newsmen Had Edited Montreal Witness Since 1870.

73 YEARS, NO SALARY.

Held Unswerving Allegiance to Principles—Embraced Cause Free Trade.

MONTREAL, Sept. 18. (CP). — Doyen of Canadian newspaper editors, John Redpath Dougall, 93, died at his home here to-day after long months of illness. On the staff of the Montreal Witness since he graduated from McGill University in 1860, Mr. Dougall had been editor of the paper since 1870.

A strong man who maintained an unswerving allegiance to his principles, J. R. Dougall as an editor embraced the cause of free trade, advocated Liberalism, preached uncompromising temperance, upheld the rights of Protestantism, opposed barriers among Christians and steadfastly campaigned for complete civil and religious equality. Mr. Dougall served his paper 73 years without accepting salary or dividends.

His paper, originally a daily, became a weekly in 1913 after many reversals of fortune. Mr. Dougall espoused no political party and was militantly independent. He clung to his editorial policies despite all opposition and pressure.

Son of John D. Dougall, Montreal merchant and fur trader, John Redpath Dougall was born in Montreal in 1841. His father founded the Witness in 1860, the year J. R. Dougall completed his studies at McGill University as a Bachelor of Arts. He joined the paper at once but continued his studies till he gained his Master's degree in Arts in 1867.

Takes Editorship

In 1870 J. R. Dougall became editor of the paper, his father going to New York where he founded the New York Daily Witness with offices on city hall square near the old Sun building. After seven years of struggle, the New York Daily Witness became a weekly. It disap-

EXAMINE PRISONER.

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP) — George Lindsay, former teller in a Dufferin street branch of the Dominion Bank of Canada, pleaded guilty to-day to a charge of stealing $4,800 from the bank, and was remanded till Sept. 25 for sentence.

Lindsay was arrested last week after telling police he had been held up and robbed of the money, some of which was located subsequently at his home.

Before sentence is delivered Lindsay will be subjected to a mental examination, a court order decreed.

Lindsay was taken yesterday from hospital where he had been confined, recovering from an allegedly self-inflicted wound. On the suggestion of a remand till September 24, the Crown proposed bail of $5,000. Then it was decided to arraign Lindsay and the plea of guilty was made.

Although not represented by counsel, Lindsay elected summary trial.

ONTARIO BOARD STEPS SHARPLY ON PRICE CUTS

Orders Hamilton Distributors Not to Give Rebates, Discounts, Bonuses.

HITS ALL ONTARIO DAIRIES.

HAMILTON, Sept. 18 (CP)—The Ontario Milk Control Board has stepped into the milk industry of this province in no uncertain manner and banned all practices which might lead to price cutting, it was learned to-day. The giving of rebates has been banned throughout the province. The statement from the board was as follows:

"At the request of the Provincial Milk Producers' Association, the Ontario Milk Control Board was called to Hamilton in August of this year to investigate a situation that was existing in the Hamilton milk market.

"To avoid the possibility of a recurrence of the condition which existed last February whereby the farmers supplying the Hamilton milk market more than $1,000 each day, the board issued the following order to the milk distributors of Hamilton on August 30: 'Pending an adjustment of milk problems in Hamilton, you are hereby ordered not to take any action or promise price discounts, bonuses, rebates, etc., to customers until September 15, when further announcement will be made.'

Studied Whole Situation

"Subsequent to this ruling, the Board has given much time and serious thought to this most important matter, not only as it applies to the Hamilton market, but as regards its ultimate effect on the dairy industry in the province as a whole.'

"The culmination of the thought and study put on this far-reaching problem by the board is to the effect that if such practices as giving rebates, patronage dividends or discounts are permitted, they will ultimately break down the entire price structure to the disadvantage of members of co-operatives as well as all other farmer-producers.

"The Ontario Milk Control Board has therefore ruled that such practices will not be permitted. This ruling applies not only to Hamilton, but to all dairies operating in the Province of Ontario.

"An official notice carrying the ruling of the board will be forwarded to all distributors."

LONDON ERECTS BEACONS TO ASSIST PEDESTRIANS

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 18. (C. P. Cable).—"Belisha beacons" will be erected for protection of London pedestrians, another feature of the war on motor accidents. They get their name from Leslie Hore-Belisha, Minister of transport who presided at a midnight conference last night when it was decided to introduce them.

These are posts seven feet high with a yellow-painted glass globe, unlighted, at the top. They will be put at the cross-places for pedestrians at intersections or in the middle of blocks to warn motorists. They are not lighted because it has been demonstrated that in the dark they will reflect headlights a quarter of a mile.

LEADS RAINBOW ALL WAY ROUND 30 MILE COURSE

51 Second Margin on Contest Beats Enterprise's Former Cup Record.

Sopwith Beats Vanderbilt Over Line—Challenger Faster On, Off Wind.

By ANDREW MERKEL Canadian Press Staff Writer

Aboard U.S. Coastguard Cutter Mendota, Newport, R.I., Sept. 18 (C.P.) — Endeavour led Rainbow all around a 30-mile triangular course to-day to make it two straight in Great Britain's 15th bid for the America's Cup. She won by 51 seconds.

T. O. M. Sopwith, skipper of the challenger, outguessed Harod S. Vanderbilt at the starting line crossing at 12-knot clip.

Rainbow had preferred the weather position but Vanderbilt was too close to the line and had to stop the defender's way in order not to beat the starting signal. The result was Endeavour shot immediately ahead after the start and was never headed again.

Faster Boat

The challenger proved she is the faster boat both on and off the wind in the moderate weather of the day.

The Endeavour's crew handled sails promptly at all times and this proved an important factor in the win.

It also enabled Sopwith to break the record for a triangular course set y Enterprise in 1930.

Her time was three hours, nine minutes, one second, compared to Enterprise's old cup record of 3: 10:13.

With the start at 10.40 a.m., E.S. T., the official finish was Endeavour 1:49:01, Rainbow 1:49:52.

Repeats Shamrock Win

It was the second time in the 83 year history of the international racing classic that a British boat has won two successive races. The other time was in 1930 when the late Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV defeated Resolute in the first two races only to lose the next three and her chance at the cup.

Today's race was one of the closest in cup history but it established Endeavour as a favorite to regain the famous trophy won by the schooner America in 1851 and successfully defended since against 15 challengers.

LINDSAY MAN BEEN MISSING SINCE SATURDAY

21,300 ATTENDED FAIR

Drunks Pay for Special Constables Required at Fair.

LINDSAY, Sept. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Albert Hepburn, of Lindsay, aged eighty-one years, has been missing since Saturday, and the police with relatives have instituted a search for him. He resided with his sister-in-law, Mrs. R. Hepburn, Glenelg treet, and left home about nine oclock Saturday morning to purchase some tobacco. An hour or so later he was found near the chemical plant in the northern part of the town. He was lying in the grass. A citizen gave him something to eat, but was never seen afterwards. Grave fears are entertained for his safety, as it is claimed that his health would not stand exposure to the heavy rain of Saturday night.

Paid Constables

Monday was field day at the local police court. The cells were filled on Saturday night with drunks and a tidy sum was paid in fines. Some of the drunks were remanded, but a sufficient sum was taken in to pay for the special constables appointed during the fair.

It was announced in political circles that E. A. Gee, a local barrister, would be get the appointment of junior magistrate. Official notice of the appointment, it was claimed, would arrive this week. Mr. Gee formerly practised law in the West, and came to Lindsay about five years ago.

21,300 Attended Fair

According to an announcement from the directorate of the Central Fair, the receipts from attendance and grand stand showed an increase over last year of $1,397.41. There have been many wild statements made relative to the total attendance during the three days of the Fair, and some exaggerated reports have been published in the Toronto press. The total paid attendance for the three days has been placed at 21,300.

E. Roy Disney, formerly of Peterborough, and superintendent of Knitters, Limited, won the pony given by the Rotary Club at the Central Fair. Mr. Disney urged the employees of the plant to buy a ticket on the pony with the promise that if they won he would buy it at a good price.

A Treat?

LEXINGTON, Y., Sept. 18.—(CP)—Football players of the University of Kentucky gave Coach Chet Wynne an enthusiastic response when he invited them to a drugstore for a treat.

11000 TROOPERS ON STRIKE DUTY IN SIX STATES

Peace in Textile Industry Fades as 100,000 Extra May be Called Out.

PICKETS STRENGTHENED.

Georgia Governor Declares Martial Law—Gas Use to be Probed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(CP)—Peace in the United States textile strike seemed further away than ever today as strike leaders took up the question of calling out 100,000 workers in affiliated industries and mill owners remained determined to reopen more mills.

With 11,000 National Guardsmen mobilized for strike duty in six states, indications were that manufacturers would continue their offensive in resuming operations. The unions strengthened their picket lines, however, and the tense situation in far-flung textile centers was undiminished.

In Georgia, where martial law was declared by Governor Talmadge yesterday, the situation seemed to be quiet. There was virtually no disorder in other parts of the South or in New England.

A silk mill in Perkasie, Pa., was closed suddenly when a "flying squadron" of strike sympathizers surrounded the plant and shut off the power. State police quieted a minor disturbance at a towel mill at nearby Hatfield, Pa.

Council Meets

The executive council of the United Textile workers, headed by President Thomas F. McMahon, convened to hear latest reports of the strike, now in its third week. Besides the task of deciding whether 100,000 rug, dyeing, underwear, rayon and carpet workers should be called out, the strike leaders also expected to discuss the question of relief.

A Senatorial investigation into the sale of tear gas bombs for use in the strike threatened. Senator Bone (D.-Wash.) said the munitions committee would inquire into the source of gas used by authorities. Officials of Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Pittsburgh, and United States Ordanance Engineers of Cleveland, which manufacture gas, are to be questioned, possibly today.

The net result of mill owners' drive to resume operations was a matter of intense dispute. Against the management's claims of gains, Fancis J. Gorman, chairman of the national strike committee, declared "the strike is bigger than it was on Saturday."

BREAKING WAGE LAWS COSTLY

Consider Fining Employers $500 For Each Worker "Cheated."

EXTRA $500 TO EMPLOYEE.

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP.). — Penalties under consideration for infractions of the Ontario Government's proposed wage standards call for $500 fines for employers who "cheated" their workers—the $500 to be paid for every worker so treated. J. F. Marsh, Ontario Deputy Minister of Labor, in describing the proposed legislation, said a penalty also would be placed on employees who accept less than the wage laid down by the Government.

In his address before the Registered Hairdressers and Barbers of Ontario last night, the Deputy Minister explained that Attorney-General Arthur Robuck would have the final say when employers and employees were unable to reach agreement on a minimum wage. A conference would be called by the Government with workers and employers attending before legislation is passed at the coming session of the Legislature.

If it developed at the conference that industries could not care for themselves they would find the Government would not help them, he added, in commenting on reports the proposed legislation would force industries from Ontario into other provinces.

Food and material to rebuild the city must be brought in by boat over long rough water journeys, from Southeastern Alaska or Seattle before ice freezes out all ships six weeks hence. Food may also be flown in by aeroplane from Fairbanks, half way across Alaska. Dog sled journeys from Fairbanks take months under normal conditions.

Hundreds of Nome's summer population of 1,000 were utterly homeless. In winter time the city has about 1,500 residents.

The temperature is near the freezing point.

Relief kitchens fed the city temporarily. City officials began a survey while the embers still glowed, to determine how long the remaining food would last.

Already new supplies are on the way aboard the liner Victoria, due in Nome a week hence.

The Coastguard headquarters at Washington sent the following radio to the Commander of the Bering Sea Patrol Force: "Proceed to Nome with cutters Chelan, Shosone, and Northland to render whatever assistance necessary to destitute and homeless. Ascertain from civil authorities at Nome by radio whether provisions required, and take steps accordingly."

MINISTERIAL SALARIES PROVE KNOTTY PROBLEM

By H. H. Gordon
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 18 (C.P.). —Lengthy sessions are in prospect for the General Council of the United Church of Canada. Five days have elapsed and the commissioners are still faced with a formidable program. Their deliberations are scheduled to conclude by the end of the week.

The knotty problem of ministerial salaries took up a considerable portion of yesterday's sessions, the report of the special committee dealing with this subject finally being referred to the sessional finance committee.

Pleas on behalf of the lower paid ministers both in the pioneer districts and in the smaller pastoral charges were made by a number of commissioners.

The disparity between high salaries of ministers in some city churches and those in far distant fields of labor, was referred to by several delegates.

In his Enterprise address last night, Mr. King charged the Conservative Government policies were the cause of sweat shops, low prices and reduced wages, uncovered by the mass buying inquiry, under the chairmanship of Mr. Stevens. He criticized Prime Minister R. B. Bennett for his reported intention of remaining in power until his full five-year term was completed, something rarely done by Canadian governments.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The next article on the menu of this natural diet we have been discussing is a glass of milk.

We can take our choice about a lot of things, but I really must insist on a glass of milk some time during the day. It doesn't make any difference whether at breakfast, lunch or dinner. In the case of children a glass is best at each meal. For adults one glass is enough. "The fountain of eternal youth", Dr. James A. Tobey calls it, and who shall gainsay him? In the dairy countries where milk is the food of all, it has been noted over and over again that men and women live to great ages.

What is it in the milk—this life-giving property? Is it some vitamin, some substance we have not isolated? Perhaps.

Milk has every nutritional element we do know about in it—except perhaps some of the vitamins. Especially it has a good supply of minerals—iron, calcium, phosphorus, although less iron than anything else. Vitamins A and B are present in milk, vitamin C is usually present, but is destroyed by pasteurization. Whether vitamin D is present or not depends on circumstances—principally the cow's diet. It can be produced in milk artificially by exposing the milk to ultraviolet light.

Protein, carbohydrate and fat are all present in milk, and 87 per cent. of it is water.

It is easily digested, although for some people the curd is somewhat indigestible. The formation of curd is the first stage in the digestion of milk, and is due to the action of rennin in the stomach. Lime water, or barley water added to the milk, will tend to prevent a tough curd.

The scoreboard on milk is:

Protein, plus; carbohydrate, plus; fat, plus; energy (one glass), 100 calories; minerals, plus; vitamins, plus; water, plus; digestibility, plus.

Most of us finish off our breakfast with a cup of coffee. What shall we say about that? If so many of us use it, it must have a place in the natural diet. But should it?

I believe it should. It has a bad name among people who regard anything which is a drug as harmful. Of course it is a drug and, of course, it has no food value if taken alone. But the cream and sugar you put in it gives it food value.

Its action as a drug is to improve the tone of the circulation, especially in the heart, kidney and brain. Therefore in middle-aged and elderly people with aging hearts it is really beneficial. Too much of it does make one nervous, but in moderation it is stimulating, and helps to ward off the fatigue of the daily routine.

As to its habit-forming qualities, these are considerably exaggerated. It is a habit easy to get over. I know that from personal experience. About two years ago my wife switched my evening cup of coffee to a caffeineless brand. I didn't find it out until about a month ago.

Grapes are rich in pectin, the jelly making substance found in fruits. The amount of pectin in the pulp varies with all grapes in different years. Experienced housewives know that the old fashioned, long boil recipes for grape jelly and jams required under ripe grapes because the pectin content in these is higher than when the fruit is really fit to eat, and prepare for winter use. The following is a splendid recipe for

* * * * * * *

RIPE GRAPE JAM

4½ cups (2¼ lbs.) prepared fruit, 7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar, ½ cup bottled fruit pectin.

METHOD: To prepare fruit, slip skins from about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes. Simmer pulp, covered, 5 minutes. Remove seeds by sieving. Chop or grind skins and add to pulp. Add ½ cup water and if desired, grated rind of 1 orange. Stir until mixture boils. Simmer, covered 30 minutes.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in pectin. Pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 11 six ounce jars.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Solves Difficulty

A housewife makes the following suggestion: "I was presented with a three-yard table pad of the quilted variety. Every time I wanted to use it for a smaller tablecloth it was a nuisance. The problem was solved in the following manner: I cut it in three pieces, the first one being 54 inches long. The second piece was cut 21 inches long and the remaining piece was 33 inches long. Cotton binding about three-quarters of an inch was purchased and used to bind the cut edges of these pieces. Snap fasteners were then sewed along the edges and now I can use which ever piece suits the tablecloth being used. The 54-inch piece just fits my table. The 54-inch and the 21-inch pieces may be used with either one or two table boards. The 54-inch and the 33-inch pieces may be used with three table boards and all three pieces of padding snapped together fit the table pulled out its entire length."

GUESSING AT ONE TRICK.

A large percentage of hands require the declarer to guess, as no process of reasoning enables him to judge which way to take a finesse (when holding the A-10 and others in one hand, with the K-J-X in the other hand, with the Q and four other cards missing). In similar manner he and dummy may hold the same number of cards of two suits, with nothing to indicate which suit may be easier to establish, as was the case here. That South guessed the suit possible to establish was a lucky hit, although his partner praised him on his sound judgment.

	♠ A Q 10 9 ♥ A 10 7 2 ♦ 5 4 ♣ 8 5 4
♠ 8 5 4 3 ♥ Q J 5 ♦ K 10 ♣ K J 10 9	W N E S	♠ 7 6 2 ♥ K 8 6 ♦ Q J 9 7 ♣ 7 6 3
	♠ K J ♥ 9 4 3 ♦ A 8 6 3 2 ♣ A Q 2

Bidding went: South, one diamond; North, one spade; South, one no trump; North, two hearts; South, two no trumps, to discover whether his partner had bid long or short suits; North, three no trumps, which was the best call for the joint hands.

The opening lead was the jack of clubs. Declarer's queen won. The joint hands showed just eight certain tricks: four spades, one heart, one diamond and two clubs, or a single trick short of game. Each red suit missed six cards. Hearts had three honors missing, while diamonds had four honors missing, also the nine. Although the vital point was how the six cards were divided in each case between opponents, the dealer saw that it would be comparatively easy to lead hearts from his own hand, and he might have trouble trying to enter dummy twice to lead diamonds. South had brains enough to base his decision on the factor of simplicity rather than on anything else.

South led his nine of hearts. West wanted his partner to win the first heart trick, and lead clubs back through the declarer before West lost his entries, so West played low, the nine was allowed to run and East's K won. Back came a club. Declarer played low. West's nine won. He led the ten, clearing his short suit, and leaving him with a long club. South led another heart. West's J forced the ace. Back went a heart, losing to West's Q, but setting up the ten, and giving the declaring side the ninth trick for which South had been fishing.

The defenders won two heart tricks and two club tricks, but they could not win another trick in any of the remaining suits. Dummy discarded one of its two diamonds when West took his long club. Having taken his club trick West led his K of diamonds. South's ace won the trick and dummy won four spade tricks. It would not have gone as well had South played to establish diamonds. He guessed right.

The local scenes turned out splendidly and and constitute a pictorial record of the city and its activities that should have a great historical value. Mayor Denne's clear voice, surrounded by the members of the civic office staff, opens the series, with Fire Chief Gimblett and Chief of Police Newhall making brief speeches later, with pictures of the police force and the snappy-looking fire-fighting lads and their equipment.

Then there is the main stem, with the faithful market clock in the distance, the Post Office staff headed by Postmaster Lacheur, the C.G.E. and some of the schools. The individual efforts on the Capitol stage follow, also showing up remarkably well, considering the amateur nature of the performers. Mose Yokom and his orchestra screened splendidly and their music sounds delightful, while the different vocal and instrumental efforts also get a big hand. And as for the love scene—oh, my!

The pictures of the "Morro Castle" fire at sea are some of the most terribly realistic ever seen here. There is the wrecked ship itself, shots of the injured passengers and those who escaped safely, and there is a series of thumbnail interviews that are terrific in their united indictment of the crew.

"Beer and Pretzels," featuring Ted Healy and his stooges, is a modern counterpart of the face-pushing efforts of the old-time custard pie comedies.

As for the feature, "Return of the Terror," it has a little of everything—murder mystery on the inevitably stormy night, thrills galore, suspense that is sustained to the last minute, and the sort of comedy relief that seems quite unstrained and natural, furnished chiefly by that prince of picture-stealers, Frank McHugh, going strong in the role that suits him down to the ground, as a newspaper reporter with 'detecting' propensities.

The cast is inspired, with every part fitting like a glove, with the possible exception of the weak Mary Astor, who makes up in looks, however, for her artificial acting.

Dr. John Redmayne, named "The Terror" during his trial, is accused of poisoning several of the incurable patients in his private sanitarium, where he works also on a device to perfect the fluoroscope. He is persuaded to fake insanity, to escape the death chair, and is detained in an asylum. But he escapes and then the night of terror starts, with the real criminal one of the most improbable, as always. John Halliday, Lyle Talbot, Barrat, Pichell and our old friend, Stone, as "Soapy," have parts in this most entertaining of melodramatic feature pictures."

AT THE REGENT

"JANE EYRE"

Here, on the silver sheet, there live, move and have their being the figures in Charlotte Bronte's immortal masterpiece—those men and women who have charmed the interest of many a generation since the author, writing from a cramped environment in which hereditary disease struggled with repression and inhibition to make her life almost a useless thing, had it not been for the immortal fire that burned within her, wove on the tapestry of the written sheet the story of Edward Rochester and his little love, Jane Eyre, the governess whose early life in a strict orphanage had not the power to repress the instincts of a brave and romantic heart.

But it is not a little, dark heroine, plain, and with the living fire of courage and intellect burning within her, that emerges on the talking screen. It is a tall, blonde, beautiful girl (Virginia Bruce). And it is not the moody, almost savage Rochester who has fired the imaginations of countless generations of sentimental maidens," but the milder Colin Clive who takes a gentler mode of love-making. Beryl Mercer, as the housekeeper, kindly Mrs. Fairfax, and the actor who takes the part of the missionary, John Rivers, are perhaps the only true-to-the-book roles in the picture.

But one cannot expect perfection. The quaint charm of the old story has been retained in the raiment and the demeanor of women who trod gently in hoop skirts and curtsied to their betters. The old house, "Thornfield," preserves the traditions of richness and ease which permeated its atmosphere in the book, and the mad wife, Bertha, is just as the tale pictured her. The conflict between two opposing temperaments which raged back and forth between Rochester and the shy but courageous little governess, Jane Eyre, is missing, and perhaps it is just as well. The story, as pictured, is fascinating to watch, and the actors are admirable. Those who loved the written chronicle of Jane and her romance will like the picture with its fidelity to detail and atmosphere.

This reviewer regrets not having been able to see the second feature, "The Fog."—Jeanette.

ELECTION DEPOSITS.

The C.C.F. Club of Windsor has passed a resolution calling for the abolition of the present law which requires every candidate for a seat in the Federal Parliament to put up a deposit of $200.

This is a matter over which there has been considerable argument, but the majority of electors, The Examiner believes, feel that there is little to be gained by changing the law.

While it may be regarded as a hardship in the case of an aspirant for public office who has little means to require him to make a deposit, there is little doubt that the requirement prevents a lot of irresponsible candidates who have not the slightest chance of being elected from clattering up the contest and causing more or less confusion as to the issues.

Those who have not enough confidence in their own chances to risk a deposit on the hope that they will get at least half the votes polled by the victorious candidate have little right to expect their fellow-citizens to have confidence in their candidature.

No deposit, it should be remembered, is required in provincial elections in Ontario, and the result was seen in the recent election when scores of candidates who hadn't one chance in a hundred of being elected plunged into the contest.

And after all the only aspirant for office who forfeits his deposit money is the one who fails to get half the votes polled for the winning candidate, so that the Dominion law does not penalize any person who may be regarded as a serious contender.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

One of the outstanding features of the annual meeting of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress in Toronto last week was that the majority of the delegates voted in favor of a system of contributory unemployment insurance.

This action is another proof of the fact that organized labor in Canada is free from radicalism, and that it recognizes that it has a responsibility to discharge.

While other workers' organizations, those whose leadership is Red in complexion, have come out for a policy of non-contributory insurance, the Trades and Labor Congress, after an interesting discussion of the two methods, showed a majority vote in favor of the contributory plan.

It will be the general opinion that the verdict demonstrates the good sense of the representatives of organized labor throughout the country.

Only the comparative few who have given no thought to the question or who are concerned more with stirring up controversy than they are in advancing the welfare of the people advocate a plan of unemployment insurance under which the whole burden would be carried by the state and the employer.

Public opinion generally takes the view that if there is to be unemployment insurance it must be established on a sound basis, and that can only be provided by a system by which the worker makes his contribution during the time he is employed in order to earn the right to participate when he finds himself unable to get work.

The Trades and Labor Congress has furnished another proof of its sane leadership and its common-sense appreciation of the problems of the day.

THE McCAUGHRIN CASE.

The decision of Mr. Justice Fisher, who investigated the McCaughrin case, indicates that a lot of political firing that was done over this matter represented in reality the discharge of blank cartridges.

The commissioner has found that there was no trafficking or buying of offices, but simply an arrangement by which the late Government endeavored to get rid of a magistrate considered to be incompetent in a manner that would make it as easy for him as possible.

Had McCaughrin's successor been called before the committee of the Legislature to give his testimony, Mr. Justice Fisher submits that little more would have been heard of the incident.

As it was the case was badly distorted for political purposes, and political orators rang the charges on it from platforms all over the province during the June election.

The finding of the judge who conducted the probe makes it clear that the chief mistake made by the Henry Government was in not discharging Magistrate McCaughrin long before it did.

At the same time, however, the public will agree with the commissioner that even the shadow of suspicion should be avoided in magisterial appointments, and that when it is considered desirable to make some financial provision for retiring magistrates and other officials that the transaction be done in public.

Secret arrangements, no matter how fair in themselves, always lead to the suspicion that the transaction will not stand the light of day.

GET US ON THE MAP.

In connection with the booklet which the newly organized Dominion Tourist Bureau is to issue early next year for distribution in the United States, it should be the business of the local City Council or the Chamber of Commerce or both to see that Peterborough and this section of Ontario receives a fair share of publicity in the new publication.

This thought is suggested by the fact that the booklet issued by the Ontario Government Tourist and Publicity Bureau for the current year—a well illustrated and admirable issue in many respects—failed to do more than mention this city or the Kawartha district. The words "Peterborough" and "Kawartha Lakes" appear only once, buried in a general paragraph, and there is nothing to indicate to the reader that one of the finest summer playgrounds on the continent is to be found in this part of Ontario.

To add insult to injury, one Peterborough picture is used in the booklet—a scene in Jackson Park by the way—but instead of being so described it is referred to as a country road, and so we lose even the benefit of even that much advertising.

This, the gateway to the Kawartha Lakes, one of the most beautiful chain of lakes to be found anywhere in Canada, deserves a better fate in the Dominion publicity that goes out next year—but unless some one in authority here takes the necessary steps it might well be that Peterborough would be overlooked in this federal effort as she was in the preparation of the provincial booklet for the present year.

Let us make sure we are on the map when the Tourist Bureau goes after new business in 1935.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.

The epidemic of strikes on this continent is drawing attention to the principle of collective bargaining which has both its supporters and opponents.

It is reasonable to grant labor the privilege of bargaining collectively for the good of workers, but the greatest criticism is aimed at the abuse of the system which places armed weapons in the hands of the workers to force their arguments.

An interesting sidelight on this problem was provided recently by Lord Iliffe, well-known British publisher, who, at a recent newspaper conference in New York(outlined to President Roosevelt conditions which prevail in England. For many years Britain has recognized the justice of concerted action by labor, but, as Lord Iliffe pointed out, "labor has responsible union systems in England. Ever since the general strike in 1926 they have recognized their responsibilities. Before that they played their own hand. They feel now that they must consider the general good. I think the same thing will apply in the United States. As soon as unions first feel power they do not always know how to use it. I am sure it will work out the same here as it has in Britain."

The trouble on this continent is not caused so much from the workers themselves bargaining with their employers as it is from scheming agitators who take advantage of the discontent of the workers to foment ill-feeling and strife accompanied by violence, in the presentation of the argument of the employees. Then collective bargaining becomes collective rioting, which is an altogether different thing.—Chatham News.

CODES ON TRIAL.

The success which will attend the textile strike in the United States is still in doubt. The unions have succeeded in calling out a vast army of workers, but the great general strike which was the aim of the employees has not yet materialized.

This strike is more than a test of strength between employers and employees. It provides a testing medium for the NRA itself, and the future of the New Deal in the States may depend largely upon the outcome.

This point was brought out recently by the Ottawa Journal which recalls that about two weeks ago President Roosevelt ordered a 10 per cent. reduction in weekly hours—from 40 to 36—for 250,000 workers in the industry, and a corresponding increase in the rates of pay. This the industry, through its code authority—it is already under the Blue Eagle—has refused to do. It is employing more people than in 1929; since its code was adopted it has increased wages in its northern mills by 55 per cent. and in the southern by about 85 per cent.; hourly wages in the industry are 20 per cent. higher than before the depression. These wage increases have been reflected in an increase in wholesale prices of garments of 40 to 60 per cent., and the industry claims that a new wage rise would mean a further increase in prices of garments and a falling off in consumption, this bringing injury all round.

The contention of the unions, shared by NRA administrators, is that the cotton garment industry, saved by its code, refuses to share its regained prosperity with its workers; that the old rates of pay in the industry were notoriously low; and that, in any event, the employers are out to smash the NRA law compelling collective bargaining.

There are many industrial leaders in the States who are of the opinion that code regulations cannot be indefinitely extended. Undoubtedly NRA codes are on trial in this strike, and the outcome will be of interest to this country as well; their codes have been discussed, but not yet adopted.—Chatham News.

PUBLIC SHOULD CO-OPERATE.

It is difficult to fathom the mentality of a person who will deliberately turn in a false fire alarm to send the fire brigade on a fool's errand. Evidently such an individual or individuals is in our midst. Fortunately no injury to persons or property damage resulted when the firemen responded to the "fake" alarms, although an accident was narrowly averted the other day as the fire trucks sped across King street on responding to a call sent in by an alarm fiend.

Commenting on the near mishap, Fire Chief Guerin declared: "Accidents happen just that way. A man who will turn in a false alarm and lay the public and the firemen themselves open to the danger of serious injury and death is a criminal, he merits a criminal's treatment." This is a strong statement. Nevertheless Chief Guerin is perfectly justified in making the emphatic assertion.

Quite recently a horrible tragedy occurred in Collinsville, Massachusetts, due to a false alarm sounded by a short circuit in the signal system. A truck, answering the alarm, overturned after skidding on wet car tracks and crashed into a telephone pole, pinning its crew underneath it. Two of the firemen were killed and six others injured, one of them critically. The truck was badly smashed, entailing considerable expense for the municipality. This goes to show that death lurks in the path of firemen travelling to or from a blaze. Hence sending in a false alarm can produce serious consequences.

Kitchener citizens will act in the interests of safety and of the city if they act upon Fire Chief Guerin's plea for co-operation in running the alarm fiend, or fiends, to earth.—Kitchener News-Record.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

In view of the grape situation, it is perhaps fortunate for the Ontario Government that it has no by-elections in the Niagara Peninsula to fight out at the present time.

Electors in Federal by-elections have probably never been served with such a mixture of provincial and Dominion issues as is being dished up in the present contests.

In the words of the golfer, the Enterprise is one up and three to go. Anyway the British challenger has made a great start in her attempt to capture the America's Cup.

More tourists entered Canada on sixty-day permits this summer than was the case last year. These are the visitors whose presence in the country means much to Canadian business and industry.

BE SATISFIED

To the Editor:

This is in answer to the one who signed himself, "From one who has lived in Peterborough for over 30 years." To my mind 30 years is too long for any one who would write such a letter of strife just now is neither a Christian nor a worthy citizen. He is either one of the landlords who have taken relief rent and the rest in cash, and there are lots doing it today, or he is an agitator, which we have no need for in the city at all. If he ever helped one on relief rent he would never have writen such a letter. Instead, he should go on his knees and thank the Lord he has work.

I think Peterborough have managed remarkably well, if both sides would be satisfied. You are one of those who would wail if your taxes went up one mill. But you are sure of your taxes and one half. Be satisfied for if the rents are raised your taxes will too. Can you not see that, or would you be like the man in the Fable who killed the goose who laid the golden egg? We are all sacrificing something these days. When employment picks up again do not think those who have had good Landlords now will not appreciate it and the other way about also. You must remember there are those on relief to-day (through no fault of their own) who never had to ask for one penny from any one, and who have their pride as well as the landlords. But because we cannot secure employment must we put up with all kinds of insults? It makes one wonder if we are any use in this world at all, yet we always paid our way before. There is also another way of looking at it: How about the taxpayers of Peterborough who have only their homes? Their wages are cut or earning so small that they can barely live and pay taxes, yet you would advocate raising the rents for the landlords who have a little income. If so, also the taxes go up. Then, either those householders lose their homes or go on relief. Probably you would like thata so you could acquire some chesp property?

Have you ever seen any one belonging to you go out on the street looking for a job, or a house, come back with such a hopeless and lost expression, as I have, and the wife must always have a good word of cheer, no matter how heavy the burden? Have you ever sat up at night after the children have gone to bed, washing and mending and making over so they may go to school like other children, as I have done, so that we may ask for as little as possible? Then when the husband does get a few hours' work, in comes the landlord demanding money or out you go. No matter how good tenants you may be. When the children are going to school almost barefoot or the wife and husband, as the case may be. Does our clothes never wear out? Granted, we could have it if we asked for it, but strange to say we also consider the taxpayer, and struggle along and try to manage on as little as we can.

It would do you good to have to go on relief for awhile, but you would be one of those demanding kind. Maybe then you would not be calling anyone saps of half-wits. I think those names suit you better when we are all striving to do our bit till employment does pick up. The like of you have caused hard times. Take the moat out of your own eye if you are so fond of the city of Peterborough and think twice before you write again and look on all sides of the question before you do. Or, if you are only an agitator for God's sake and humanity's sake lay off making it any harder to keep a roof over our heads until we get employment. We, none of us, want relief, we want work, but the like of you are hindering it coming by grabbing and crabbing. I have heard some landlords talk as if their taxes were raised hundreds of dollars instead of staying at the same rate. I believe they are down a fraction.

Now, if you have anything more to say, come to the house and say it. You can get my address from the Editor, and don't hide behind such a name.

Thanking you in advance, Mr. Editor, if you will give this letter space.

Yours sincerely,

From a Wife Of One Of the Unemployed.

MEET THE MARTYR

See that woman over there? I mean the pretty one with the wistful expression, with the drooping manner, with the sad eyes.

You say you'd like to meet her? She appeals to you? And you wish someone would introduce you? . . . I'll do it if you wish, but before I do I feel I ought to warn you.

She's a martyr. She has a talent for it. Somebody is always imposing on her, always laying heavy burdens on her frail shoulders . . . People are not fair to her. They ask her to do things they wouldn't ask of others . . . They seem to think that she can stand anything, forgive everything, endure any unfairness . . . It's her cross, she believes, and she patiently accepts the misfortunes that life imposes upon her.

You'll see. Talk to her a few minutes and you'll hear about her troubles. Your heart will swell with sympathy for her, with admiration for her patience and her courage . . . And you'll want to offer to help her. She'll sigh and refuse . . . And then you'll admire her sweet independence.

I'm cynical? I'm unfair? I should not have such thoughts, shouldn't say such things? . . . You may be right, perhaps I am what you say . . . But I'm convinced that she is a Born Martyr, and that she loves her martyrdom. She likes to carry those burdens, she likes to feel imposed upon. She may not know that, herself, but it IS the truth . . . Sometimes she reminds me of that bold gentleman of France who drew his sword in the public place, when Louis the Sixteenth was having his head cut off, drew it in the midst of a great crowd, and said, "Follow me who would save the king!" and was disarmed on the spot . . . He could not save the king. He knew it was impossible. All he wished was martyrdom, and somehow you must admire him for his valiant, foolish courage. . . . But our friend across the room is such a LITTLE martyr. She feeds on such small sacrifices. Her joys are so meager, her comfort is so ingrown and so deformed. She is such a traitor to all the bold, gallant, inspiring martyrs that make brilliant the history of our race, that I cannot weep for her in her troubles.

But still you wish to meet her, have an idea you may be able to help her . . . Very well, I hope you can.

A Thought

PRESENT PERFORMANCE IS WHAT COUNTS

No man can succeed in any job unless he adapts himself to his position and determines to do business as his company want it done. You may have served other companies, creditably or otherwise. Previous records or lack of them have no bearing whatsoever upon the present task in which you are engaged. No man can live on the glories of the past; no man should attempt to do so. It is the achievement of the present that really counts.

We cannot hope to achieve on the debit until we have adapted ourselves to the task at hand. All other alliances and connections must be forgotten. We must adapt ourselves to the company we represent and its system and methods of doing business. And this should be no trouble to any man who is really anxious and willing to make a success in life and make his mark in the work. Adapting ourselves to any job is the very first requisite in any undertaking. Unless we can adapt ourselves to the debit and its most exacting requirements we are certainly in the wrong business. You cannot succeed as an industrial man unless you learn adaptability.—Goldsboro District Bulletin, Durham Life.

Talc Mine Foreman Has Finger Charred

MADOC, Sept. 18. — (Examiner Correspondence). — On Saturday morning Mr. Dave Kernohan, foreman at the Canada Talc Company mine, near Madoc, met with a very serious accident. While working, shortly after seven o'clock, his right forefinger accidentally contacted a high-power electric wire, burning it to the bone. A fellow workman, noticing the accident, promptly released him by striking the arm away from the wire with a large rail before it was possible to turn the current off. Mr. Kernohan fell. Another workman promptly called medical aid. Drs. Eagleson and Beatty, of town, rushed out to the mine and first aid was rendered at once.

The doctors then removed the man to their offices in town where it was found necessary to amputate the forefinger which was charred black. The current had passed completely through his body, leaving large burns on the soles of his feet.

Mr. Kernohan is still in a critical condition at his home on Belleville road.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

BIRTH OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

On this date in 1841, Lord Sydenham (suffering from the injuries he had received when thrown from his horse and which were to end in his death two days later) prorogued the first session of the first parliament of the Province of Canada at Kingston. It had been a time of test of, and trial for, the new union and the governor-general. Sydenham had refused to nominate a representative of Lower Canada to his cabinet. When the members from that province protested that they had been brought into a union against their will, that their language had been proscribed and that they, with the larger population and a small debt, had been obliged to become responsible for the larger debt of Upper Canada, with its smaller population, Sydenham asked Lafontaine to enter the cabinet, but the invitation was refused and so it happened that Sydenham's only parliament was the very last in which autocracy held sway, for the next year saw the advent of the Baldwin-Lafontaine ministry and the beginning of responsible government.

Sydenham gave his assent to 102 bills, relating to education, copyright and many trivial matters, but the most important measure was the municipal act, which has proven the "magna charta" of our municipal administration. Up to that time no township or other unit ever taxed itself; it depended upon money voted by the legislature. Sydenham argued that the people must learn to take charge of their local affairs before they could fit themselves for the larger responsibility of provincial affairs. He compelled Lower Canada to set up local government in towns and countries, and then put through the legislature a municipal act, which, as developed by Baldwin eight years later, made each locality take charge of its own business. They must elect their own mayors or reeves or councillors; they must levy taxes for roads, for schools and other public purposes. Out of that Sydenham act has developed the municipal system which is now in common use throughout Canada. Now nearly a century later we find the municipalities swamped by debts and compelled to appeal to the parliament for redress, a kind of reversion to the plan which Sydenham abolished.

Madoc

Mr. Jesse M. Reid, of Madoc, spent Sunday with his father and mother in Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Reid. Mr. C. G. Reid is still under medical care at Kingston General Hospital, but is convalescing slowly after his recent serious operation.

St. Peter's Women's Missionary Society held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. W. K. Ellis, Mrs. McCaffrey presiding. Scripture reading, John 4:31-39, was given by Mrs. George West. The 23rd Psalm was sung to music sent from Scotland as used by the Covenanters. Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. McCoy sang a duet, after which roll call showed seven visitors present.

Trinity United Church W.M.S. held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. W. T. Harris. An interesting study was made of the Missionary Monthly and the 9th Annual Report. Missionary trails were followed by several members to home mission fields for the Indians and Orientals in Canada and to foreign fields in Japan, China, Korea, Trinidad and Africa, surveying the work being done in homes, schools and hospitals.

Master Everett Cassidy, who underwent an operation for appendicitis in Kingston General Hospital on Wednesday of last week, is reported to be recovering favorably.

Mr. G. N. Maybee, A.C.C.M., for years the very capable organist and choir leader of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, has resigned his position to accept a similar one in Christ Church, Belleville. He expects to retain his large class of music pupils in Madoc and to make his headquarters in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Cleak and daughter, Jean, left on Sunday for their home in Windsor after spending the summer vacation with Mr. and Mrs. John McKenzie. They were accompanied by Mrs. L. Watson as far as Markham where she will visit her niece, Mrs. Ross Townsend.

Mr. Allan Holmes, of Queensboro, while working on highway No. 7 last week, had a large stone fall on his right hand, breaking several bones.

FENELLA

Rev. H. A. Mellon, Gore's Landing, occupied the pulpit in Fenella United Church on Sunday morning, September 16, the theme of his address being, "The Brother of the Prodigal Son."

Rev. Mr. Findley, Saskatchewan, also gave a very interesting address on the conditions in South Saskatchewan.

Macdonald, Independent, who were officially nominated, did not attend the meeting which was addressed by Premier Hepburn and the Liberal standard-bearer.

"Bennett has run away from the by-elections, and now our Tory friends in West Elgin have taken to cover," stated Mr. Hepburn, whose resignation as House of Commons member to enter the Provincial field caused the West Elgin vote. He said he could not recall when both parties had not been represented at a nomination meeting.

Worst Winter Yet.

In a Port Stanley address the Ontario Premier declared the worst winter in Canada's political history faced the citizens unless there was a change in the fiscal policy but, he said, he was satisfied all by-elections would return Liberals then the government would be forced to the country and Liberals placed in power, bringing a fiscal policy change. Then would come debt and tax reduction and reciprocal trade treaties with United States and other nations, prosperity following throughout the country.

Besides Elgin West official nominations yesterday were held in North York and Toronto East. In the former riding W. P. Mulock was nominated Liberal candidate and Captain Harold Breuls, Conservative candidate. In Toronto East the candidates were Mr. Church and Captain H. P. Snelgrove, Liberal and Graham Spry, C.C.F.

Only in Toronto East and Elgin West did three-cornered fights arise. Besides North York straight party fights will be staged in the other.

Two by-elections in Kenora-Rainy River and Frontenac-Addington where nominations were held two weeks ago.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 60c to 64c; corn, 85c to 88c; rye, 55c to 57c; buckwheat, 56c to 58c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Cheese was quoted fractionally higher and butter declined fractionally in price on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Ontario colored cheese brought 10c to 10¼c a pound, ¾ higher than last week's closing price and Quebec cheese advanced the same amount, being quoted at 9½c to 9¾c a pound. Arrivals were 713 boxes.

Fresh No. 1 butter eased ¼c a pound; yesterday's quotation being 20c a pound in carlots or less. To the retail trade, small lots were 21c a pound for solids and 22c for prints. Receipts were 293 boxes.

Egg prices tended easier, graded shipments in carlots or less being 30c to 31c a dozem for A-large, in comparison with 31c straight, 28c to 29c for A-medium, against 29c straight; 21c for B and 19½c for C. Receipts totalled 1,197 cases.

New Quebec potatoes remained unchanged in price at 40c to 80c per 80-lb bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

All grains scored material advances in price yesterday, helped by an unexpectedly big decrease of 3,551,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply.

Furthermore, premiums for cash delivery of No. 2 hard winter wheat in Chicago yesterday reached 9½c over September contracts, a new high for the season. Predictions of an acute shortage of feed later in the year gave independent strength to the corn market.

Wheat closed firm, near the day's top level, ¾c to 1¼c over Saturday's finish; December new, $1.04¾ to $1.04¾; corn, 1¼c to 1¾c up; December new, 77¾c to 77½c; oats, ¼c to ½c advanced, and provisions showing 15 to 35c gain.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Lighter offerings, scattered buying, and more encouraging statistics enabled wheat prices to gain ¾c to ½c on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday.

October option closed at 83c, December at 83c-83¾c, and May at 88c. With country marketings Saturday reduced just under the 2,000,000-bushel mark, it required only moderate buying to give the market a lift.

Export business could not be traced in any volume, but some purchases were credited to houses with Chicago connections, and other support came from undetermined sources.

Pit trade was not active. A spurt in the closing stages put the market ahead about 1c, but the full advance was not held.

Chicago was an influence in the Winnipeg strength, advancing about 1½c. Liverpool closed ⅝d-¾d- lower.

World wheat shipments last week increased almost 1,000,000 bushels to 11,107,000 bushels. North America shipped 4,759,000 bushels.

There was a lull in demand for cash grains, and coarse grains held steady, rye showing the most

Textile Strike Aids Makers Of Gas, Guns

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(A.P.)—John W. Young, President of the Federal Laboratories Company, of Pittsburgh, manufacturers of tear gas and machine guns, to-day reported to the Senate Munitions committee that his company's business had picked up from five to 10 per cent. since the United States textile strike was called.

He said a plane which recently crashed in the Alleghenies while flying from Pittsburgh to Rhode Island was carrying his company's gas.

"I am sorry that this plane didn't get through because the National Guard later was forced to use rifles and two or three people were killed," Young said.

Young said his company did considerable industrial business, and that when calls came from industrial plants they were usually rush calls.

TECK DIVIDEND ON NEW BASIS

Drop in Production Reduces Amount of Low Grade Ore Used.

LAMAQUE PROGRESSES.

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (C.P.) — In to-day's trading Teck Hughes showed a loss of $1.70 since Monday of last week, when the selling drive against the stock became apparent for a reason that was undisclosed until yesterday's announcement of a dividend cut. Over the week trading in the stock averaged close to 50,000 shares daily and along with the selling by holders who knew what was coming there were said to be a number of informed short-sellers helping to depress the market.

The Teck board of directors, at a special meeting yesterday announced a quarterly dividend of 10 cents in place of the 15 cents that has prevailed for some years. Placing the stock on on a 40-cent instead of a 60-cent basis was said by President D. L. H. Forbes, to be found necessary because of the fact that the mine had entered upon a period of lower earnings. He confirmed a report that production would be reduced from 1,300 tons daily to about 1,000 or 1,100 tons daily, reducing chiefly the quantity of low grade ore handled.

Mr. Forbes referred to expenditure the Teck Company is making on its new property in Quebec, the Lamaque, where Teck has already invested $819,000 and will soon invest about $400,000 more. The Lamaque property will have its 450-ton mill going about May 1st next. Teck holds a 70-per cent interest in the Quebec enterprise.

OILS MOVE UP UNDER BUYING

Price Changes in Steel and Brewery Groups on Upgrade.

STEADY TONE.

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP).—Selective buying on a small scale spotted the industrial board of the Toronto Exchange with gains today, but there were enough recessions to take the shine off the mild afternoon show of buoyancy. The oils did better and most of the price changes in the steel and brewery groups were on the up side. Volume centred mainly in the oils, International Nickel and Brazilian.

Buyers were out in scant numbers but those on the scene were prepared to raise their bids slightly as the New York market was inclined to edge forward moderately.

Trading bulked mainly in the oils which recorded gains of small fractions, distillery and brewery shares were neglected while the inter-listed leaders, Nickel, Brazlian and Ford "A" firmed narrowly in the early afternoon.

Distillery shares were in small demand, only a few sales going through in the late afternoon. Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams added 3-8 each and Industrial Alcohol was up 1-8. The Brewing Corporation stocks, common and preferred, gained 1-8 to 1-4.

International Nickel was the volume leader, closing unchanged and Smelters improved a point to 126. Brazilian also firmed slightly.

SENIOR GOLDS MOVE UPWARD

Teck Hughes Holds Steady and Selling Falls Off.

NET GAINS GENERAL.

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP).—After selling down during more than a week, Teck Hughes apparently found bottom today and steadied at 4.65 to show a net loss of 20 cents from Monday's close. Its low point was 4.50. The turnover was again heavy.

Prices crept forward during the afternoon and small net gains were general in the gold group at the close while the base metal and silver shares showed little change in slow action.

The senior gold issues were slow but firmer with Hollinger up 5 cents to 19.90; Lake Shore $1 to $55; McIntyre 50 cents to $44 and Wright Hargreaves 30 cents to 9.10. Pioneer pulled along 50 cents to 11.75.

In the secondary group, Macassa, Howey, Sylvanite and some of the cheaper issues including Lamaque Contact, Maple Leaf and Stadacona were on the down side at the close.

URGE SPECIAL TAX

TORONTO, Sept. 18. (CP). — Payment of a special tax by bus and truck owners to all cities in which they operate was urged today by the convention of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, Canadian National Railways division. Reason advanced for advocacy of such a measure was to decrease the alegedly "unfair" competition such vehicles offer against the tax-paying railroads.

NORMAL SCHOOL HAS 144 PUPILS

mer accounts for the absence of more than 60 students who were planning to return this Fall to secure their full standing. Those who have already completed successfully the one-year course will be granted their standing without further study.

"The difficult conditions under which we worked last year will be relieved by the decreased enrolment this term," Dr. Bannister said. Last term, with a total of more than 290 students in the school, the facilities of the school were taxed to the limit. Eighty-six of the 1933 students were second year students.

No changes in the regular staff have been made. The services of Inspector H. E. Elborn of Kirkland Lake, loaned last year, will not be used this year.

JOHN DOUGALL TAKEN BY DEATH

peared with the paper famine of 1921.

John Redpath Dougall as an active young journalist interviewed President Abraham Lincoln in the White House, looked down on the streets of Paris as the victorious Prussian troops marched through the city in 1871, and witnessed the tumult in Rome which followed Garibaldi's campaign for the unification of Italy.

Even after being stricken with his final illness, Mr. Dougall directed the editorial affairs of his paper from his sick bed though he was unable to continue writing the editorials which had been a feature of his paper for over half a century. Frederick E. Dougall, a nephew, took over direction of the paper upon Mr. Dougall's forced retirement.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Nazi Legions Of Peace In Conference

TRADING LIGHT ON WALL STREET

Major Stocks Are Firm to Slightly Higher in Later Session.

NEWS ABSENT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—Stocks moved slowly today, but fractional gains predominated throughout the session. U. S. Steel Preferred was up a point, while Santa Fe, Du Pont, U. S. Steel Common and General Motors were unchanged to slightly higher. American Telephone lagged. The late tone was steady. Transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

There was virtually no news that might have affected the equities market as a whole. Pressure on bonds relaxed somewhat, but many irregularities continued to give the list a spotty appearance. U. S. Government Securities showed small gains and losses.

Negligible price changes occurred in the Canadian list. Dome, International Nickel and Canadian Pacific were all about unchanged. On the curb, Lake Shore was even, while Hiram Walker improved slightly. Dominion Government bonds were narrow. The Canadian dollar eased 1-16 of a cent at 103 cents.

Some activity developed among the low-priced shares. McLellan Stores got up a point, as did Loew's, while Paramount Certificates, Warner Bros. and Fox improved fractionally. U. S. Steel preferred was supported for a recovery of 2 points, and Union Pacific, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Steel common, and Howe Sound firmed a point or more each.

NEW PACKARD PLANT.

WINDSOR, Sept. 18 (C.P.).—Expansion of the manufacturing activities of the Packard Motor Company of Canada is indicated in the announcement made in Windsor to-day that the company will build a plant in East Windsor of ten times the capacity of its present factory in Windsor.

BLAME PROFIT SYSTEM FOR WARD LINER DISASTER

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. (AP).—Marine left-wingers along the waterfront, after conducting their own investigation into the cause of the Morro Castle disaster, held to-day "the profit system" had been responsible.

After hearing members of the crew testify last night those at the meeting decided the lives of passengers were endangerd by insufficient crew and junior officers to meet an emergency, that necessary repairs could not be made because of lack of time between sailings, and that the acting captain "fearing salvage costs delayed sending the S.O.S. signal."

The meeting was called by the Marine Workers' Industrial Union, left wing organization, and the American Radio Telegraphists' Association.

Death Threat Sent To Toronto Editor

TORONO, Sept. 18 (C.P.) — A threat of kidnapping and death was sent to L. Rucker, editor of a Toronto weekly newspaper, by "Spike," apparently the author of a similar threat to Crown Attorney N F. Newton of London, Ont., it was disclosed to-day by the Attorney General's Department.

Rucker in handing the letter to Hon. Arthur Roebuck, told the Attorney General his paper had been waging an active campaign against kidnappers and blackmailers and had "done everything but reveal the names and addresses of the guilty ones and their victims." Mr. Roebuck said the letter would be given to Chief Inspector John Miller of the Provincial Criminal Investigation Department for comparison with the letter sent Newton, for his part in uncovering an alleged blackmail ring in London.

Rucker, unable to express any suspicions as to the identity of the writer, said he also had been advised by a woman's voice "of English accent," "not to stay in the office alone for the rest of the week and to watch all visitors."

WOMAN ATTACKS ACCUSED BEFORE BRANTFORD COURT

BRANTFORD, Ont., Sept. 18.—(C.P.)—Violence flared in the court of Magistrate S. A. Jones here to-day as a woman struck a man she was accusing of trespass and her husband threatened to "get" defence counsel, A. H. Boddy, K.C.

Mrs. E. Hanchurak accused John Sutka, a former boarder, of trespass and he answered with the statement he was invited to the premises and money was asked of him at 3 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 11.

Angered at Sutka's evidence the woman struck him in the nose as she passed from the witness box, causing blood to flow. When Magistrate Jones later adjourned the hearing the woman again attacked her accused and the woman's husband threatened to "get" Mr. Boddy, who drew the attention of the court to the man's utterance.

The woman charged Sutka with entering her bedroom at 3 a.m. when her husband was in hospital recovering from an operation.

CONNECT MAINS IN GAS SYSTEM

Is Proposal Placed Before Utilities By Gas Department Head.

TO BE CONSIDERED.

A proposal by H. L. Beal, manager of the Gas Department, that two connecting links of gas main be laid in the city this Fall was laid over until a scrutiny of the returns on capital expenditures during the past years can be made, when the Utilities Commission met this afternoon. Mr. Beal will report on the Gas Department's past experiences with such capital expenditures at the next meeting.

The two mains under discussion would tie in on Douro street between Mark and Rogers streets and on Gilchrist street between McDonnel and London streets.

An application for a change in basis of power consumption from Class A to Class C received from the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, Limited, was granted. Class A consumer buy power on a 24-hour basis while Class C consumer buy on a 10-hour basis.

3 MONTHS FOR NON-SUPPORT.

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 18 (C.P.).—Fred Deschene was sentenced here to-day to three months determinate and six months indeterminate by Magistrate J. S. McKessock in Police Court on a charge of non-support of his wife and five children.

Relief Officer S. C. Manson told the court Deschene had received $400 relief for his family so far this year and had done only two days' work.

LOOK BEFORE YOU BUY See page 11

"Tight buttoned"

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit ?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy . . . to save . . . to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels . . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes . . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

YOUNG LIBERALS NAME OFFICERS HOLD BANQUET

Cyril Rice is Elected President of New Organization in Peterborough.

SHORT ADDRESSES.

A new organization which promises much in the way of advancement of Liberalism among the younger elements of the city and county, and also sees the firing of the first local gun, as it were, in the campaign which will be waged between opposing political factions in the prophesied Federal election for the coming year, saw its inception in the hall of the Canadian Legion last evening, when a dinner-table meeting of Liberal youth, masculine and feminine, of the city and district, elected officers for a society to be known as the Young People's Liberal Association of Peterborough City and County

About one hundred people were present at the gathering, commencing at half past seven o'clock with a dinner catered for by the Elite Cafe, whose proprietor, Louis Yeotes, was tendered a sincere vote of thanks by the chairman, Cyril Rice, for the excellent service rendered. Members of the Women's Liberal Club, headed by Mrs. C. R. Banks, served the repast at tables arranged in horseshoe fashion decorated with slender red streamers and flowers.

The report of a nominating committee composed of E. L. Sackville, Howard Quinn and Miss Dorothy Whatley, who withdrew to draw up a slate of officers for the organization, which had its inception in a meeting of thirty men some weeks ago, in the Chamber of Commerce, was presented by Mr. Sackville, the chairman, with the following accepted by the gathering as leaders of the new society:

Cyril Rice, president; Miss Ernestine McDonald, first vice president; Max Sloane, second vice president; Jacob Low secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee includes Mel McDougall, Fred Pepe, Stanley Delorme, Miss Lily Ellis, Miss May Holmes, with county representatives in Cecil Hancock of Smith township, Walter Thorn of Otonabee, and Miss Geraldine McAuliffe of Douro.

Honorary presidents: Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King and Hon. Mitchell Hepburn; Honorary vice presidents, Dr. Munro of Warsaw, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., J. J. Duffus.

Advisory committee: T. J. Carley, W. Scollard, William Mellis, Howard Quinn, E. L. Sackville.

G. N. Gordon Speaks

Hon. G. N. Gordon spoke in a brief, eloquent, inspirational talk in which he congratulated the gathering on the possession of Mr. Rice as a chairman possessed of the requisite energy and ambition to establish leadership.

Going on to speak of the importance of proper organization as an accessory to success, Mr. Gordon referred to the belief in thorough organization advocated by Lloyd George, who, from a parentless childhood spent in a little Welsh village with a shoemaker uncle, rose to a position 'more powerful than that of a king."

"Organization is a prime essential for any mass movement or movement toward progress. In Liberalism, we believe in the government of the people by the people for the good of all. Liberalism means democracy in its best sense, with benefits to no particular class nor organization. When you believe in the principles of Liberalism, you believe in the principles of humanity. And that is Liberalism in its true light, away from the sinister influences of partyism and intended to establish benefits for the people at large."

W. F. Huycke also spoke briefly. "One difficulty we have had heretofore is in the development of the free interchange of ideas. Don't give all your attention in this new movement to organization. Try to study the principles of Liberalism and in doing this I recommend to you Professor Hobhouse's book, entitled "Liberalism."

Force of Ideas

"Ideas are remarkable things" went on the speaker, pointing out how the force of an idea, the Bolshevistic theory which was an outgrowth of the last war, was able, by its force and power, to overthrow the mighty and ancient Russian empire".

He also referred to the holding of a Federal election in the coming year, "when Mr. Bennett must go to the country and when, I believe, he is going to get it in the neck."

"Peterborough has been famous for a long time for its devotion to lost causes. That is why so often we have a representative sitting in the shades of the Opposition, as is at present the case in the Ontario House. It is incumbent upon you, as a new and vital organization, to do your utmost to break away from that old condition."

Mr. Sackville, in presenting the report of the Nominating committee, said that the province has in Mr. Hepburn a man who appears to be able to lead Ontario out of the wilderness in which it has languished.

He spoke of the change apparent in the House and the way in which energy and vitality had replaced the former lacadaisical manner of conducting business there.

Mr. Sackville also referred to a statement made by a prominent Conservative worker of the city Speaking of a visit made to Premier Hepburn in connection with the retention of the services of Fred Marshall as Game Warden, the aforesaid Conservative spoke of the courtesy extended to the local delegation, and remarked that he "was almost ashamed to have voted and worked" as he had done in the last election.

Other brief speeches were made by the newly-elected president, Mr. Rice, the vice president, Miss McDonald, Max Sloane and T. J. Carley, who alluded to the failure of the Henry government as caused by the evils attendant on a government concerned with "job-dealing and patronage-seeking."

Ladies Serve

Mr. Rice extended appreciation to the members of the ladies' organization for assistance in serving and to the Canadian Legion for offering their quarters when the Moose Hall was found inadequate for the crowd.

Entertainment was provided by community singing led by the chairman and a brief session with Sam Harris of the Elite staff, who provided amusement in his own original fashion by telling a few stories and singing several songs that included an original composition and a parody on 'The Face on the Bar Room Floor."

Harry Yeotes also amused the company vastly by his impromptu additions to the program. He sang "Keep Young and Beautiful," with appropriate gestures and also gave a rendition of Little Jack Little's hit, "I Raised My Hat," with Miss Dorothy Whatley at the piano. Both entertainers got a big hand from their listeners.

Mr. Rice announced that the baby society had received a gift of $5 from the senior Liberal Association, this being a rebate on the expenses of the recount of ballots in the last election.

Joined by late comers, the audience repaired to the lower hall, where a dance wound up the evening, to music played by the Watson-Atkinson orchestra.

BROKE HER LEG AGAINST A STAIR

Whilst Hampered by Rheumatism

"Two years ago," writes a woman, "I was suffering with rheumatism in my legs, and when walking upstairs one day just kicked my right foot against the stairs, and broke my leg just below the knee. I was in hospital for four months, and when I came out someone advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I did so, and now I have no trace of rheumatism. I would not be without my daily dose of Kruschen, which I take every morning—half a teaspoonful in warm water."—Mrs. P. B.

The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action: assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is the cause of rheumatic pains. When poisonous uric acid goes—with its deposits of needle-pointed crystals—there's no doubt about those aches and pains going too!

ROSENEATH WOMANS AUXILIARY LAY PLANS FOR FOWL SUPPER

Treasurer Reports $19.10 From Travelling Suitcase for Month of August.

INTERESTING PROGRAM.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 18 (Examiner Correspondence).— On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. William Houghtailing opened her lovely home to the ladies of St. James' Woman's Auxiliary, when a full house with members and several visitors were present, Mrs. Herbert McCracken presiding over the meeting.

After the opening exercises, Mrs. Ernest Timlin read the 13th chapter of 1st Corinthians. Favorable reports were read from the various secretaries; Mrs. Frank Brown read a lengthy letter from Mrs. G. M. Wood, Toronto, regarding the annual meeting. The treasurer, Mrs. R. B. Nichol reported from the travelling suit case that $19.10 was taken in for the month of August. Mrs. Rupert Nichol kindly offered to take the suit case for the month of September; also orders are being taken for home-made socks, mitts and other articles that customers may ask for in household lines. Mrs. Ross McCracken reported for The Little Helpers $3.03 for the month of August, and Mrs. Ernest Timlin, $1.10 to the Extra-cent-a-Day Fund. On motion, the secretary was authorized to pay the balance of $10 to pledges.

Considerable time was taken in making arrangements for the church anniversary and supper. Sunday, Sept. 23, was the date set for the special church services, and owing to the Deanery meeting at Lakefield on Tuesday, Sept. 25, the date for the fowl supper will be Friday, Sept. 28.

The supervisors for the tables are Mrs. James Webb, Mrs. Edgar Braithwaite, Mrs. James Timlin, and Mrs. R. B. Nichol; Mrs. Clara Braithwaite and Mrs. Nixon Timlin in charge of the tea.

Rev. H. Francis Battersby was asked to secure talent for the concert following the supper.

Interesting Program

The following program was then given: A letter from Miss Estelle Braine, Diocesan Secretary-Treasurer of the Little Helpers, of 1590 Bathurst street, Toronto, telling that there are 4,145 Little Helpers; $904.82 has been saved, and after deducting $41.45, one cent for each members, there was $863.37 left, and this is used for missionary purposes; $40 was sent to the Dorcas secretary to buy Christmas presents for the Indian and Eskimo children; $30 was sent to Moorlands to help the poor; $40 was given to help send a missionary to Western Canada, and $13.37 was contributed toward sending supplies out West. To Miss Young, who taught in Japan was given $40; and the biggest achievement was $700 to the Junior and Little Helpers' Pledge Fund. A help was also sent to All Saints' Hospital at Atlavik, which is the most northerly hospital in the world. Many other things were mentioned in the letter that were very interesting, and made clear what was done by the money that is given to this fund.

Other items on the program were opening address of Dr. Cartwright, read by Mrs. James Timlin; Mrs. Frank Nicholl read a portion of his address at the closing of the annual board meeting of the W.A.

Rev. H. F. Battersby closed the meeting wtih prayer after which a delicious lunch with tea and coffee was served by Mrs. Houghtailing assisted by Miss K. Keyes, Toronto; Mrs. J. Baxter and Miss Eva Brooks.

PROBE INTERIOR OF DEATH SHIP

Board is Told of Passengers Leaping Overboard, Killed by Propellors.

WARMS' RECORD CHECKED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(A.P.) — The inquiry into the tragic burning of the cruise ship Morro Castle shifted to-day to Asbury Park, where the ruined liner lies deserted on the beach.

An all day inspection of the hulk was ordered by Dickerson Hoover, chairman of the United States' Department of Commerce Board which is investigating the cause of the disaster. The Grand Jury investigation was recessed until Thursday because of the Jewish holidays.

The Department of Commerce Board heard testimony yesterday that discipline was lacking among members of the crew when the fire broke out, that passenegrs jumped form the rear of the vessel while it was still in motion and were hit by the propellers, and that flames in the writing room, where the fire started, were drawn down the stairways and into the elevator well.

Inspection of customs house records also disclosed that Acting Captain William F. Warms of the Morro Castle had been suspended for 10 days in 1926 by the Steamboat Inspection Service for failure to hold fire and lifeboat drills on the Ward Liner Yumuri, of which he was then master.

'SALADA' TEA

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Mildred Bryce,
Box 4020, Havelock, Ont.

Your handwriting reveals you have a nervous tendency. It is as though you were not in the very best of health at present.

The tall, upper loops show imagination, and I am very much afraid that you let it 'Run away with you'. You seem to allow yourself to think that things are much worse than they really are. Try not to worry so much and everything will turn out all right.

The small letter formations show a natural reserve or shyness. You seem to shrink into your inner self rather than express your feelings, or else say things that you are sorry for afterwards.

You have brains, and the will-power to accomplish much, if you will only let yourself think that you have. Do not let that inferiority complex of yours ruin your opportunities of success.

You are emotional and easily hurt through your feelings. Your love nature is deep and sincere. You would do anything for a friend in order to create happiness but something seems to be forever dogging your footsteps. Is it not that you are afraid to give way and express your emotions? Or have you been under too strict supervision all your life?

Helen Brown,
63 Harcourt Ave.,
Toronto, Ontario.

The handwriting as your sample reveals is that you are a steady person by sheer force of will. That means that you have made yourself what you are by the use of your splendid mental powers and you should be greatly encouraged to continue.

The 't' bars with their upward stroke are perhaps a detriment to you once in a while, for they seem to portray the fact that if you get into an argument, it is difficult for you to let the other person or persons have the floor, as it were.

One of the letters which is almost a printed letter indicates a leaning towards art, but I think your mind is rather scientific. At any rate it has the power to search more deeply for hidden meanings than most.

You are attractive, neat in person, well poised and you walk with a quick, spritely motion.

The lower portion of some of your capitals depict musical interest. The upward curl at the terminal of your small letters gives you the ability to complete tasks.

Estelle Adams,
Barrie Ontario.

The close-clipped letters in your handwriting indicate that you are reserved to a degree of being afraid. You are, in fact, too reserved for your own good.

Your friends are carefully chosen, but those people who think they know you feel that you do not desire their friendship; on the contrary, you do—more than anything else.

Why not use your talent in order to make friends?

You have a most retentive brain and can acquire and retain knowledge. This would be instrumental in assisting you to gain a place in dramatic art, or in imparting knowledge to little children.

You work best when alone; you could find an outlet for your pent-up emotions by creating your own art. It may be household science, or dramatizing.

You really have the courage to do many important works, though you think you haven't. Why not make an impression by beginning to assert yourself now? Say to yourself, "I can, if I will, and I will". Then do whatever your heart most desires.

Evelyn Peasy,
Norwood, Ont.

Your handwriting shows that you are temperamental and inclined to be easily unnerved.

You rush headlong into propositions without first stopping to think over every side of the situation, then you often have occasion to be sorry for your haste.

Your capital letters denote generosity, and this characteristic also leads you astray, because you overdo it, to your own detriment.

The manner in which your letters seem to fall unevenly forwards reflects your versatile nature. Your feelings are easily injured and you readily lose patience. However, the real you is sympathetic, understanding and kindhearted, even if at times a little hasty. You are jolly, humorous, diligent and a quick thinker. You can accomplish a great deal in the space of twenty-four hours and I venture to say it will be to your ultimate advantage.

You are born under the sign of Virgo the Virgin. Your ruling planet is Mercury. Wednesday is your lucky day. Twenty is your number according to numerology, so that any figures which total twenty, such as 9. 11. 9., which are your talent, destiny and personality numbers, should be lucky for you. February and November are the most fortunate months for beginning new enterprises.

Zella J. Smith,
Norwood, Ontario.

The handwriting which you have so kindly submitted for analysis, reveals genuine intelligence and genteel refinement. You are well poised and a most gracious hostess. You seem to possess a happy faculty of making others with whom you come in contact, feel comfortable. This is an attribute which is to be envied, for so few people can really accomplish this characteristic without letting others feel that their endeavours are centered upon them.

I do not know what your chief ambitions are at present but you could aspire to a literary career, because your imagination is something which is very valuable. It is sensible, yet of an instructive type. It tells you the worthwhile from the useless, and allows scope for discrimination at all times.

Your "t" bar crossing denotes excellent will-power and determination, but not to such an extent that others might term you obdurate, in this as in your other characteristics genteel qualities come to the fore.

Your capital 'Z' illustrates an artistic tendency, and no doubt your personality is reflected in the manner in which you arrange your household drapes and furnishings.

Your disposition is not always the same, and this is quite commendable too, because it shows adaptability.

You belong to the type of people who are always loyal to their friends, but who are also quite choice, and do not allow themselves to mingle with all 'classes' as it were.

JEWISH YEAR 5,695 BEGINS AT SUNSET

Feast of Yom Kippur Will Bring in Jewish New Year.

Celebration of the ancient and solemn feast of Yom Kippur in the new Jewish year of 5,695 will begin at sunset this evening in the Aylmer street synagogue and continue until sunset on Wednesday.

For Jewry the world over, Yom Kippur is the great Day of Atonement, the Sabbath of Sabbaths, with its rigid "white fast."

Rabbi Abraham Fine of this city will be assisted in the services of repentance by Rabbi Krakovsky of Toronto, and incidentally an appeal will be made for the relief of stricken Jews in Europe.

Rabbi Fine explained to-day that, in accordance with Judean custom, Yom Kippur, the most sacred day in the calendar of Israel, is a special occusion when members of the old faith are required to repent of their ways, make restitution in money and by personal acts, in order that they may enter the new year free of sin. In the Hebrew conception, a sinner is one who has strayed from the path of righteousness, and his repentance will not be complete until he has returned from his transgressions to the true way of life. It is a day of prayer and fasting, beginning with the singing of Kol Nidre at six o'clock this evening. Yom Kippur sees a complete cessation of every-day routine of business and other work

"The Day of Atonement," said Rabbi Fine, "is set apart in Leviticus, chapter xxiii, verse 27: 'Also on the tenth of this seventh month there shall be a day of atonement; it shall be an holy convocation, and ye shall afflict your souls and offer an offering, made by fire, unto the Lord.' Its principal and immediate purpose is to arouse the consciousness of sin, and to stimulate desire for atonement and for reconciliation with God."

A Problem

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 18 (C. P.)—Eugene Klein and Albert Green, Jews, of Windsor, required as interpreters in the murder trial of Louis Gurista which began here to-day, are worried. The Jewish Day of Atonement, one of the most important in their callender, starts at 5.30 p.m., and they will be required tomorrow when the accused man takes the stand.

They approached Crown Attorney Smith informally about the matter this afternoon. "Greenberg played for Detroit one day last week and won a ball game. His rabbi said if it was for the good of the community, his conscience would be at ease," was the prosecutor's comment.

No decision in the matter was made.

Weddings

ARMSTRONG—YABSLEY

WARKWORTH, Sept. 18. (By Examiner Correspondent). — The United Church parsonage, Warkworth, was the scene, on Saturday morning, of a quiet wedding when Helen Vina, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Yabsley, became the bride of Bolton Armstrong, older son of Mrs. Armstrong and the late Joshua Armstrong.

Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of Bermuda blue canton crepe and brown hat. She was attended by Miss Helen Johnson. Mr. Arthur Armstrong, brother of the groom, was best man.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding dinner was partaken of at the home of her parents. Only the immediate relatives were present.

Following the dinner the happy couple left by motor for Niagara Falls and other western points. The bride travelled in a blue ensemble with matching accessories. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm in Brighton township.

Charge Of Brewing Beer Is Dismissed

A charge against an Armour road resident of brewing beer or other fermented liquor without an excise license was yesterady afternoon dismissed without costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Defendant, a middle aged woman, who was represented by W. J. Arthur Fair pleaded not guilty to the charge which followed upon a visit to her premises on June 25 last by Constable Thomas J. Woods of the R.C.M.P. Lindsay detachment.

The officer discovered four quart bottles of home brew and a bottle capper in the cellar at the defendant's premises, he testified. "I asked her where she got the beer and she said she had brewed it for her husband."

While the act has been amended since the charge against the defendant was laid, His Worship ruled that under the old Act the defendant was not required to obtain a license to brew beer for the use of her own family.

CITY OF CALGARY VOTES AGAINST RECEIVERSHIP

Council However Will Bring Their Plight to Attention of Premier.

BANK REFUSES FUNDS.

CALGARY, Sept. 18 (C.P.)—Motion to make application to have the city of Calgary placed in bankruptcy and its affairs handled by a receiver was defeated at city council meeting early to-day but council did decide to bring he financial plight of the city to the attention of Premier R. G. Reid of Alberta and his cabinet immediately and to seek advice as to ways and means of carrying on.

Matters reached a crisis when Mayor Andrew Davison announced the Bank of Montreal was not prepared to advance funds to meet the requirements of the city for the remainder of the year.

Another motion to ask the Alberta Relief Commission to take over administration of relief in Calgary was defeated. Mayor Davison said he was unable to state definitely at present whether in the event of the money bylaws being defeated at the polls tomorrow, the Dominion grant of $180,000 would be available for civic financing. The mony was to be provided on the understanding it would be used for work projects.

Councillor Disgusted.

Referring to what he called the "babbling" of councillors who wanted to put the city into receivership, Alderman Harold Riley stated he was disgusted.

Then men who directed the affairs of the city in its youth would condemn such a move, he said. The city had been paying 100 cents on the dollar until now.

Alderman Dr. W. A. Lincoln stated the city owed a total of $4,503,000 in current and capital debts against assets of uncollected taxes totalling $1,600,000. In addition the city owed merchants $125,000 for relief slips uncashed.

Mayor Davison said of the $322,000 advanced by the bank only $111,000 was left to meet interest on debentures totalling $187,000.

Taking the stand it was the only honorable thing for the city to do to prevent going further into debt, Alderman Harry Humble quoted the provincial statutes which empowered the Board of Public Utility to lower the interest rate payable by the city on its debentures while in receivership.

LEADS RAINBOW ALL WAY ROUND

Endeavour had all the hard luck with a torn jib and difficulty with her reaching jib as she rounded the first buoy.

The race was sailed in a breeze which at times reached a velocity of 14 knots but which dropped away to nine at the fitnish.

To-day's race was the second complete contest, the first race Saturday being declared off when neither yacht was able to finish within the time limit of 5½ hours.

Rainbow was leading then but in the heavier winds of yesterday and to-day Endeavour has clearly shown her superiority.

Vanderbilt Silent

The committee boat signalled the contenders asking them if they wished to race to-morrow, to which T. O. M. Sopwith, Endeavour's skipper-owner immediately responded in the affirmative. Vanderbilt had not yet answered when the press boat left the scene. Each captain is allowed a 24-hour postponement to make repairs or alterations to his boat if he desires.

The feat of Sopwith and Endeavour in taking two races really overshadows that of Shamrock IV as one of her victories was scored when Resolute was disabled. Both of Endeavour's triumphs have been clear cut.

The 20-Mile Mark.

Rainbow turned the 20-mile mark at 12.56.10, a minute 34 seconds behind the British boat.

Endeavour had increased her margin in the 10-mile beat to windward by a minute 29 seconds on a leg where Rainbow was thought to have the advantage in sailing.

It was a close reach home now.

The race at this point was a vindication of Sopwith's tactics and the seamanship of his partly amateur crew.

Rainbow had a slight edge at the start but Endeavour was footing faster as the yachts crossed the line. Fifeen minutes after the start Endeavour had opened up a lead of a boat-length, and she was carrying staysail in addition to Genoa jib. The Rainbow had a single head-sail.

Vanderbilt finding the Endeavour outreaching him, adopted Sopwith's sail plan, setting staysail in addition to Genoa. The yachts were logging 12 knots.

Endeavour had a slight tear in the clew but forehandedly Sopwith had a spare in tops ready to break out if the kite carried away.

Endeavour had opened up a lead of one and a half boat lengths as the yachts neared the first mark and prepared to luff around for the thresh.

Beautifully Handled.

Endeavour's sails were beautifully handled as she luffed around the buoy on the starboard tack with a 15 second edge on the defender. The Rainbow came around to port tack and Endeavour immediately tacked to cover. The yachts engaged in a tacking match.

Three miles from the second mark Endeavour was leading the defender by at least a quarter of a mile and she rounded the buoy a minute and 34 seconds ahead.

They both made short tacks after rounding the mark and went off on the port tack.

Both yachts broke out ballooners as they reached for the finish line 10 miles away.

The British sloop's elapsed time for the windward leg of 1.17.01 bettered the cup record, set by Reliance in 1903, by two minutes 57 seconds, but a shift in the wind had made the last hitch of to-day's beat more a reach than a beat and the comparison hardly would stand challenge.

The Start

Harold S. Vanderbilt, at the helm of the defender, sent her boiling across the starting line in the windward berth some five seconds ahead of T. O. M. Sopwith and his endeavour. A tear was showing in the challenger's jib.

There was a noticeable rent in the clew, appearing some two minutes before the start, too late for the British crew to shift canvas.

Soon after they crossed the line another tear appeared in the jib just above the first but Sopwith held to his course, gambling on the sail holding until they could get settled down to racing.

The tear was not at the point of greatest strain and is no particular handicap unless it should spread.

Both yachts had good way on as they crossed the line but the challenger was well under Rainbow's lee.

Sopwith Strategy

Soon after the start, however, Sopwith appeared to be bettering his position, working the big blue-hulled Endeavour through the defender's lee.

Both skippers started with a double rig, Vanderbilt soon doused his stay sail, then thought better of it and set it again a few minutes later.

Twenty minutes after the start Endeavour was a few yards in the lead.

Both were making excellent time in the freshening breeze.

Rainbow and Endeavour continued to make such good time that it appeared probable they would reach the 10 mile mark under the cup record of 50 minutes 20 second set by Vigilant in 1893.

They were outdistancing the spectator fleet and even the official boats had a hard time keeping up with them.

At 11:24 a.m., 44 minutes after the start Endeavour appeared to be holding the advantage she gained soon after crossing the line but as mark must be left to starboard and Rainbow was holding the windward berth it was a question if the challenger would be able to hold the right of way.

Crew Let Sail Away.

Sopwith decided to douse his reaching jib at that point and the challenger's crew let the big sail get away from them where it trailed in the water.

It was several minutes before they could get it inboard and her decks cleared. Finally a quadralateral jib was set in its place.

Vanderbilt also doused his reaching jib soon after and it also almost got away from their hands but they finally pulled it in. They then set a quadralateral.

Endeavour took the windward berth—the favored position—as they rounded the mark and started the 10 mile beat.

Endeavour luffed around the buoy on the starboard tack and Rainbow came about at the buoy to the port tack. Endeavour immediately tacked to port on her weather to cover. Five minutes after rounding the first mark Rainbow tacked immediately followed by Endeavour. The yachts were engaged in a tacking race.

Endeavour seemed to be sailing at a smaller angle of heel in a fresh north-west breeze. Endeavour's crew were now handling sails like veterans.

Endeavour had worked well up to weather of Rainbow at 12 noon and maintained her lead over the defender. Endeavour was increasing her lead slightly on the thresh to windward.

The breeze was moderating at 12.30 as the two boats continued along the 10-mile beat to the second mark.

Rainbow has been considered the better boat to windward and if Endeavour can hold her safe until they turn for home, where the wind will be off the port quarter, the British boat should win.

Endeavour came about on the starboard tack at 12.38, followed by Rainbow to give the first definite line on their relative positions. The manoeuvre showed the British challenger to have at least a quarter of a mile lead and it looked like a hopless task for Rainbow.

They had held on the port tack for 40 minutes without touching their canvas but with Endeavour pointing much higher into the wind and going along better than the defender.

Obituary

JOSEPH H. PRIMEAU

An old and respected resident of the city passed away shortly before noon to-day in the person of Joseph H. Primeau. He died following an extended illness at the residence of his son-in-law, Leo Clancy, 539 Rogers street.

A son of the late Charles Primeau and Mary Garrity, the deceased was a native of this city. For many years he was associated in business here in a barber and tobacconist business, with his late brother, John, who predeceased in May of this year. The business was located at the northeast corner of Hunter and George streets.

Funeral arrangements were not completed at the time of going to press

Top Speed in Race 11 Miles Per Hour

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 18 (AP)—Top speed for either Rainbow and Endeavour in yesterday's America Cup race was 11 miles an hour. The speed each boat was travelling at all times was calculated by Ensign Donald Adams, Chief Quartermaster Yankowich and their assistants in the chart room on the Coastguard cutter Mendota.

To sail the 30-mile course, Endeavour actually covered 33.9 miles and Rainbow, with her wider tacks, 35.6 miles.

Two More Witnesses In Ship Fire Probe

DR. G. M. PHELPS

ARTHUR STAMPER

Line by line, the story of the burning of the Morro Castle with appalling loss of life was pieced together by United States navigation investigators in New York, and important chapters were furnished by the men shown above. Arthur Tamper, left, third assistant engineer, told of manning the water pumps to keep up pressure on the fire hoses until smoke drove his men from the engine room. Dr. Governeur M. Phelps, centre, testified no alarm whatever was sounded and criticised severely the lack of organization displayed by the officers.

No. 7 Highway Proving Real Asset To City Many Strangers Coming to Peterborough

Although No. 7 Highway is quite a few stages from completion, it has already proved a benefit to Peterborough, and will eventually be a real asset, according to the experience of Louis Yeotes of the Elite restaurant.

The new highway has brought at least 25 per cent more strangers to Peterborough this year than we have ever had before," Mr. Yeotes said this morning, "and we all know that the construction work on several links of the road must have been an obstacle. Our meal checks showed that we have had a good tourist season, and I think that many of the visitors were from various parts of Canada who had never been in this city before.

I found out by talking with them while they were in the restaurant, and I learned that many of them had come here over No. 7 Highway. The people I am referring to told me that they had never been in Peterborough before, and they were surprised that it was such a large town. They said they were delighted with its appearance and its clean streets, and many said that they would be back this way again. There were so many of those visitors that one could see the future advantages No. 7 will bring to Peterborough. I think it will put this city on the map more than ever, especially during the long tourist season."

OTONABEE MAN TO STAND TRIAL

Committed to General Sessions on Charge of Shooting With Intent.

CERTIFIED SANE.

Following a preliminary hearing before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning, Josiah Cowan, 58-year-old Otonabee township farmer was committed for trial on a charge of "shooting with intent to maim." The accused who presented a calm demeanour while in the dock, was represented by G. N. Gordon, K.C.

His committal for trial was made on the sole evidence of Provincial Constable David Silvester, who told of having been called to the farm of the accused on R.R. No. 1, Indian River, on Tuesday morning, last, after Cowan had allegedly discharged a shot gun at Douglas Brazendale, 16-year-old hired boy.

When he arrived at the farm, the officer stated, the accused was nailing boards on a pig pen. A 6-gauge double-barrelled shot gun was lying within three feet of him. "I asked what the trouble was, and he told me about the boy coming from the field to get a drink of water."

There were words between the man and boy, which led to further trouble. Cowan stated that the boy threatened him with a stick. After that Cowan told the officer, he went into the house and got the shot gun.

Witness stated, he found an empty case of a shot gun shell lying in the laneway at the farm.

Accident Results In Gaol Sentence

Appeared on remand for sentence this morning, Walter Underwood of Nobleton was this morning ordered to serve one-month for causing bodily injury to Mrs. William Jones of Romaine street; and was further fined $100 and $5.75 costs or in default 3-months imprisonment on conviction of "having liquor." The latter sentence is to date from the time of expiry of the first sentence, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. ruled.

Charges against the accused resulted from a motor accident in which he was involved on Highway 7 east of Locks Bridge on Sunday afternoon, September 9. Mrs. Jones a front seat passenger in the car driven by the accused was injured by being thrown through the windshield of the car when it collided with the rear of another vehicle driven by Keith Breakwell, of Toronto.

The case against Elmer B. Liddell, of 603 Armour road who appeared to answer a charge involving theft of a lawn mower from a Water street residence, was dismissed. Represented by W. J. Arthur Fair, the accused pleaded a case of mistaken identity.

The banner that was carried was something beyond the ordinary, made with three bars, oval shape, and worded thus, "Hamilton, No. 8, in Honor of Canada's 400 Years." The pupils were dressed like Indians, using sacks for clothing material and their headgear was a band with the colored feathers, their faces swarthy and all wearing long black hair, making in all a very pretty and antique setting.

PLENTY OF HOPE

CALLANDER. — Providing no complications set in, there is every hope of bringing the Dionne quintuplets through their attack of intestinal toxemia, Dr. A. R. Dafoe announced to-day. Three nurses continue to give them constant attention, and as yet there has been no change in the daily routine of feeding or bathing.

Rival Comments

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 18. (AP).—Here's what the rival skippers had to say after the first test for the America's Cup:

T. O. M. Sopwith, Endeavour: "We are naturally very happy. It was one of the grandest races I ever had. We have got to have at least three more of them and whoever wins, it will have been worth while coming over."

Harold S. Vanderbilt, Rainbow. "We had too many minor accidents. Rainbow behaved as well as we expected. There was a nasty short sea but not much wind."

McLarnin Regains Title By Decision Over Ross

JUDGES ARE SPLIT ON DECISION AS BOXERS STAGE TORRID BOUT

Spectators and Critics at Odds Over Verdict in Fierce Fighting.

BOTH ARE BRUISED.

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. (C.P.)—There was no holding the Kellys or the Clancys to-day.

For that broth of a boy, Jimmy McLarnin was lording it over all the welterweight fighting-men of the world again.

The belting Celt from Vancouver loosed all the power in his stout arms upon the elusive head of Barney Ross last night and after 15 fury-filled rounds succeeded in retrieving the crown the courageous Chicago Hebrew lifted from Jimmy less than four months ago.

Like the rain that delayed the fight 11 days, the two little fistic giants pelted leather at each other almost incessantly from the flashing start to the weary finish. They neither gave nor asked quarter as they slashed with everything they had.

There was McLarnin's vaunted hitting power against Barney's greater speed. And in the end Referee Arthur Donovan voted for the former when the two judges disagreed on a verdict.

Judges Dispute

One of the judges, Charlie Shortell, scored six rounds for the Canadian, five for the champion and four even. The other, Charlie Lynch, held Ross won seven, Jimmy six and two were even. Referee Donovan gave McLarnin 10 rounds and Ross five, the only decisive margin chalked up.

It was the reverse of the scoring on May 28 when Ross outsped and outboxed a McLarnin who was below top form. Then, Referee Ed Forbes had to cast the deciding vote when the judges failed to see eye to eye.

But the majority of the 30,000 odd who paid $135,000 to see last night's spectacle—and certainly got their moneys worth—found the decision to their liking. You couldn't hear Joe "Leather-Lungs" Humphrey officially announce the re-crowning of McLarnin as the Madison Square Garden bowl became a bedlam of cheers. The boos were a poor second. McLarnin scaled 146¾ to 140¼ for Ross.

Poisonous Right

After Jimmy had forced the early pace with a drumming left hand, and taken a number of resounding smashes on the head as the champion flurried with either and to try and hold his own, the poisonous McLarnin right started his foe's left eye to closing.

By the eighth McLarnin's right eyebrow dripped blood and his left eye started to puff. Something had to give as the stout-hearted little Hebrew flung lefts and rights with a speed that was difficult to follow, trying to counter the stiffer punches McLarnin poured at the bobbing target before him.

An overhand right made Barney's lips pulpy in the next round and Jimmy caught the same sort of bleeding bruise in the 11th. It seemed both of them might drop from the exhaustion of their efforts. By the end of the 12th the Canuck's left optic was sealed tight, then in the 13th he opened a wide wound over Barney's right eye.

Cartwheel at Finish

The Dynamiter still had the gingo left to do a cartwheel after the last bell—his historic gesture of victory. He was prancing like a colt when he reached his dressing room and flung his arms abut old Pop Foster, his career-long manager.

"I knew I'd do it Pop," he shouted jubilantly, before settling down to tell the gathering newspapermen that Ross had been tough. "But there never was a minute's doubt in my mind that I'd take him this trip."

Pop spoke of a quick trip to Ireland for the McLarnins. "Then we'll take on any one."

Two doors down from there, in the Ross dressing room, there was dejection and argument with the decision.

"McLarnin gave me a much better fight than he did in May," Ross said, "but I think I fought the best fight of my career and naturally feel I earned the verdict."

NAPANEE LOSES PITCHERS' DUEL

Copper Cliff Defeats Gibbards 1-0 in Intermediate Playdowns.

FIRST IN SERIES.

NAPANEE, Sept. 18. — Bruno Taus, smiling stocky right hander for Copper Cliff, bested George Blazetich on the mound for Gibbard Athletics 1-0, in one of the greatest pitchers' battles ever seen at the local park in the second game of the semi-final intermediate 'A' O.B.A.A. play downs yesterday afternoon for Gibbards' first shutout of the season.

The visitors scored their lone tally in the 4th inning when Brennan tripled to deep right centre and went home on Koivula's single after Lapiere had struck out. He was the only visiting player to get beyond second base.

Gibbards were on the threshold of the run column in the second and third innings when on each occasion they had runners on second and third and one out but Taus was invincible each team, getting the next two batters. After the third only five of the local got on and one to second on a passed ball. Blazetich done a remarkable job as he held the northerners to 5 hits, striking out 7 and walking 3 but his mates were unable to get near Taus who pitched three-hit ball, fanning six and giving but one pass.

The teams meet here again Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and Coach Gerow will likely send Tommy Pointer to the mound. A record crowd will be on hand, as the winner will enter the provincial 'A' finals and a loss means elimination.

WESTCOLX TAKE FIRST GAME FROM KEENE IN GIRLS' FINALS

Come From Behind in Sensational Finish to Win by 12-11 Score.

MUCH EXCITEMENT

Westclox girls showed the polish and style of champions last night at the Ashburnham Bowl when they tangled with the Keene lasses in the first of a three-out-of-five series for the championship of the Ladies' City and District Loop, and staged a beautiful finish to come from behind and win 12-11 in a brilliantly-played nine innings battle.

The winners played sensational ball in the field, and backed up Mildred White who pitched the whole game in top style. White hit a snag in the first when Keene pasted out three hits for as many runs, but she steadied down in the next two, only to have the visitors get to her in the fourth for four hits, one a double by Short, and four more counters were chalked up. She finished the game but was hit freely and only the great defensive work of the team saved her from disaster. She fanned two and passed two. Jean Munro hurled for the Keene team except for two frames, the second and ninth when Marilyn McCarthy went in. The starting pitcher was hit hard, and inclined to wildness, allowing six walks. She was touched for twelve hits and fanned one. McCarthy fanned two and gave three singles.

Grace Hawkes and Gladys Mortimer led the winners hitting three singles apiece in five trips. Webb was next with a triple and single, while Chartren and Blade both had two safeties. Lois McCarthy was the heaviest clouter for the visitors with four out of five. Every other batter, Marilyn McCarthy and Munro, had two hits each. Marie Ferguson at short for Westclox, turned in a masterful game while Chartren and Mortimer also handled every chance. Grace McCarthy, in centre field for Keene, made a sensational running catch in the eighth on Hawke's hard hit fly.

The teams:

Keene: D. Cocks, c; Marilyn McCarthy, 2b, p; G. McCarthy, cf; H. Nelson, ss; M. McCarthy, lf; L. McCarthy, 3b; I. Short, 1b; J. Munro, p, 2b; R. Gainor, rf.

GOMEZ UNABLE TO HOLD TIGERS IN CRUCIAL GAME

Crowder on Winners' Mound Holds Battling McCarthy Team to Six Hits.

FIRST OF SEASON.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

They can nail the American flag on Navin Field's flagpole right now and be all but certain it will stay there until next Fall.

Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers, scenting a league championship for the first time in a quarter-century, pinned back the New York Yankees' ears 3-0 in the first game of what once looked like a crucial series yesterday and stretched their lead to 6½ games. Mathematically the race is still open but you can name your own odds if you think the Yankees have a chance of overhauling the leaders with only two weeks to go.

Joe McCarthy sent out his left-handed ace, Vernon Gomes, in an effort to keep the Yankees in the race but the southpaw was outpitched all the way by Alvin Crowder, Washington cast-off, and suffered his fifth defeat where he had been looking for his 26th victory. Crowder held the Yanks to six hits, three of them infield scratches and another a pop-fly ground-rule double, and fanned Sammy Byrd with two on and two out in the sixth to get out of the only really serious situation with which he was presented. Gomes, meantime, was hammered for eight hits and all the Tiger runs in the six innings he pitched.

Park Is Packed

A crowd of 36,211 fans packed Navin Field for the game and saw the Tigers beat Gomes for the first time this season. The southpaw had whipped them four times previously.

Otherwise the American League program for the day was marked by the sensational major league debut of George Hockette, a left-hander obtained by Boston Red Sox from Kansas City. Hockette held St. Louis Browns to two singles while Boston picked Irvine Hadley for eight hits and all their runs in the first six innings.

Senators Win

Another rookie, Reese Diggs, Baltimore sandlotter, pitched Washington Senators to a 13-6 victory over Cleveland Indians as Pete Susko, recruit first-sacker for the Senators, pounded out five hits including a triple and a double. Diggs allowed only eight hits but home runs by Earl Averill and Bob Weiland swelled Cleveland's run total. Eric McNair hit two home runs, each coming with two on, to lead Philadelphia Athletics to a 9-4 triumph over Chicago White Sox.

The entire National League programe was rained out.

Curlers to Perform Feats on Golf Links

KITCHENER, Sept. 18 (CP) —Exactly 174 curling golfers drawn from Ontario's leading curling clubs will take part in the first annual curlers' golf tournament to be run off under the auspices of the Kitchener Granite Curling Club here Wednesday. The tourney was originally slated for the Westmount Club but so great is the entry that it was found necessary to draw 50 to play at the Grand River Golf and Country Club.

Rulers of Ring Dethrone Champs

TORONTO, Sept. 18.—Two champions were deprived of their crowns at the annual meeting of the National Boxing Association held in the King Edward Hotel yesterday. Maxie Rosenbloom was dethroned in the light-heavyweight class for breaches of ring rules and conduct; Midget Wolgast's flyweight title was taken away, as he is serving time in jail, and Jackie Brown, who is in trouble in England for biting in a fight, was suspended in the same class. In the bantamweight class, Panama Al Brown is suspended, and Montreal was suggested as the best place to conduct an elimination tournament to fill the class.

PETES OPPOSE STRONG SQUAD

IN SEMI-FINALS

Scarboro Grads, lacrosse champions of the Toronto district, meet the Peterborough Kiwanis at 8.15 Wednesday night in the Armouries in the first of their home-and-home O.A.L.A. series. The Grads defeated the strong North Toronto team to advance into the Provincial quarter-finals against the victors of Central Ontario. The winner of this series—Wednesday here and Friday in Toronto—goes into the Ontario semi-finals against Burlington. A record lacrosse crowd of the year is expected to pack the local Armouries tomorrow evening.

The Scarboro team is a powerful one, made up of speedy, experienced players. They will be right in the pink after their tough series with North Toronto, and should give the Petes a hard battle on the locals' territory. As goals count on the round, the Kiwanis gang will be out not only to win the game but to try and get a five or six goal lead to carry back to Toronto. They will have their full team, including Shine Bovin—ace scorer who was unable to play here last contest—on hand, and fans can look for a battle royal between two smart lacrosse squads.

WINNERS MAKE FEW HITS COUNT IN HAMMERING IN THEIR RUNS

In Masterful Form, Brennan Yields Only Four Hits and Whiffs 11.

BLAKELY HOMERS.

NEWARK, Sept. 18 (A.P.) — For the second successive year, Newark Bears have been eliminated in the first play-offs after leading the International League during the regular season.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who finished third during the regular 1934 season while Newark was running away with the league championship, sent the Bears into the play-off discard last night by winning the seventh and decisive game, 2-0. Toronto now will play the winner of the Albany-Rochester series and the ultimate survivor will be the International League's representative in the Little World Series with the American Association champion.

Newark lost the decisive game because the Bears could not fathom the puzzling deliveries an old teammate, Don Brennan, served up to them. Brennan had been pounded for the three runs that gave Newark the sixth game on Sunday but Big Don was supreme last night. He allowed only four hits, fanned 11 and never was in trouble. Only one of Newark's hits was a clean blow.

Hits Are Scarce

Toronto did no more hitting against Jack Larocca and Charley Devens but the Leafs made full use of what opportunities they had. They scored the only run really needed in the second when Murray Howell walked, went to second when Fred Muller erred on Bill Regan's grounder and home on Leveque's single after an infield out. Toronto's other run came in the eighth when Lincoln Blakeley smashed a home run into the left field bleachers.

Larocca gave three hits in eight innings and Devens allowed another in the ninth.

A crowd of 7,000 saw Newark's downfall in the play-offs for the second successive year. Last season, the Bears led the league by a wide margin during the regular season but were eliminated by Buffalo in the play-offs.

Body Rule Against Hamilton's Protest

GUELPH, Sept. 18.—St. Catharines Grads, conquerors of Hamilton National Auto Bodies will be permitted to advance into the semi-finals of the Ontario senior "B" softball playdowns following decision of the O.A.S.A. executive to disallow a protest of the Hamilton club over the third game in the recent Hamilton-St. Catharines series. The protest was on the grounds that Pitcher Warren Dell, of St. Catharines, used tape on one of his fingers, in violation of rule 26 of the Ontario Association.

BUILDING TEAM MINUS SINCLAIR IS HIS PROBLEM

Must Weld a Better-balanced Squad Without Star as Keystone.

MUCH MATERIAL.

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP)—Perhaps the first real test of Warren Stevens' coaching magic is on the books for this Fall. The boss of University of Toronto Blues, Intercollegiate champions ever since Stevens took charge in 1932, will have to get along without Jack Sinclair, the kingpin of college backfielders.

Sinclair's graduation cost Varsity one of her greatest athletic heroes and the figure around which Stevens built both his champion machines. But, rather than being a death-blow to Toronto's chances this Fall, the departure of "Long Jawn" seems likely to result in a better-balanced, faster Blue brigade.

Stars of Half Line

A rear-division will be formed with such as these: Art Upper, 1933 Argonaut, who has got his scholastic standing back in shape; Bobby Webber, hard-hitting Balmy Beach plunger of last season; 19-year-old Bob Isbister, a fine punter from the itermediates; Bernie Taylor of last year's champions, and Jack Dawson, first-string flying wing.

For quarterback, Stevens has two of the most promising young pivot men in the east, Bobby Coulter and Whitey Miller. In this first senior campaign last year Coulter was a sensation with his open-field ball-carrying. Ineligible due to scholastic difficulties, Miller spent a useful season with Argonauts.

In addition to Sinclair, Varsity will be without Harold Arnup and Johnny Copp. Arnup graduated, and the line-smashing Copp was killed by a burglar who attempted to get into the Copp home here. His murderer is still at large.

Isbister May Kick

The youthful, 200-lb Isbister, graduate of Hamilton Delta Collegiate and son of Hamilton's great Bob Isbister of another gridiron era, may be called on to do the kicking. He booted the Varsity Intermediates to a college title last fall in his freshman year and appeared quite capable then of shooting with the best Senior aerialists.

As Juniors with Varsity, Coulter and Upper were a spectacular pair two years ago. On different fronts they scored successes at Seniors and now they are together again. Bruce Fenner is another promising halfback in the Stevens' squad and Sid Jackson, of the 1933 Juniors and Barry Gray, from Argo Juniors, are other bright hopefuls.

Varsity will have no difficulty at the ends with Andy Henderson, all-star of last season, to team up with Ronald (Butch) Alison and Gordie Keith. Gus Greco, 186-pound plunger from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Grady Laing, both experienced performers, are likely to start as middles.

The insides may be Stew Hennessey and Bill Bodrug, the latter from the Intermediate squad. Stevens has a big group of linemen working out daily and he does not anticipate trouble in welding a strong front barrier.

HIGH KICKING—Captain George Hill, of Dartmouth's football team tries out his educated toe during grid practice.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling etc.

By C. J. P.

Those Westclox damsels seem to have their minds made up to hang onto the Percy Bond Trophy—which means the gals' softball title—for another year, anyway. At least they swept aside all opposition last week to qualify for the finals with Keene and then upped and won the first playoff tussle last eve from Keene, 12-11. A good crowd ringed in the Bowl to see the Alarm Maidens come from behind with a great three-run rally in the last half of the ninth to cop the verdict. It's a three-out-of-five series, so the smart Keene crew may turn the trick handily yet, but they'll have to step on it to slow those Ashburnham lasses up, the way they're travelling now.

Scarboro Grads will meet the Kiwanis lacrossers at 8.15 tomorrow (Wednesday) night in the Armouries. The Grads polished off North Toronto to cop honors around the Queen City district, while Kiwanis won the Central Ontario section title. This is the first of a home-and-home series in the O.A.L.L.A. quarter-finals, the winner meeting the fast Burlington bunch in the semi-finals. Kiwanis will face a tough task here tomorrow, but may get a few goals of a lead to carry back to Toronto Friday.

The bantam baseballers tangle tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 down in the Exhibition Grounds. Columbus Boys of Toronto won the first one over the local King Edward team in Toronto Saturday without much trouble, but we're looking for a closer game here. The lads from the big town, where those skinned diamonds are like concrete, will find the turf at the Ex. much different, and the K.E. boys will be staging a much improved game before their home rooters. One never knows in baseball, so it might be worth taking at look.

• • • • • •

Is the T.A.B.A. falling down on the job of fostering minors in Toronto? Seems like it as the powers that be around that town didn't seem to realize that all summer the bantams were playing on small diamonds which were the vogue for the minors last year, but are not recognized by the O.B.A.A. this season. Incidentally, we can't say much for the system around Stanley Park that permits visiting ball players—like the local crew—to lose shoes, pants, windbreakers, sweaters, etc. They tell us someone visited the clubhouse during the game and swiped a flock of stuff. It's poor advertising for baseball in Toronto.

• • • • • •

The Petes are prepared to wind up the C.O.B.L. playoff series in Belleville tomorrow. They meet the Nats at three in the fourth tussle of this serial. We see no reason why they shouldn't finish it up at this time. The Petes are better all around and have been practically unbeatable on Quinte grounds. Poor old Chief Williams—the only flinger they have that can sometimes beat us—will be unable to hurl again so soon. He might possibly start, but it would be only a bluff, as we know for a fact that his pitching arm was all knotted up at the end of the Saturday game—he could hardly lift the arm. Yeah, it should be curtains for the Mills' crew tomorrow eve.

Some forty fellow curlers here gave a banquet in Hooper's last p.m., with President J. T. Braund in the chair, for Dr. N. H. Sutton—who was prexy in 1932-33 and has held every office on the local club—who leaves for the north to establish a practise in the mining district of Little Long Lac. Dr. Sutton, last year elected to the executive of the Ontario Curling Association, has been a prominent and popular curler and a good one, too, for years. He was presented by Past President M. Cruthers, on behalf of the local knights of the besom and stane, with a case of poipes as a remembrance, and several of those present spoke. He will be missed greatly around the Charlotte St. ice emporium this winter, Good luck, doc!

"Eyes Off the Ball" is the heading of an article on football by Dick Hanley in October's Esquire and stresses the fact that this is one sport where spectators can see more by not following the ball all the time. Hanley states, and rightly, that football fans miss a great deal of what goes on at games, paying too much attention to the ball carrier while overlooking the work of his interference, the blockers, guards and tacklers—all of whom pave the way for the odd spectacular run, pass or score. While he's speaking of the U. S. game, the same is quite true of Canadian rugby. It's a complicated sport and much that seems meaningless has its purpose in faking opponents out of position or off balance.

Jimmy McLarnin won back his welter crown by a split decision in N'Yawk last eve. There was plenty of interest locally in what the Irish Canadian would do. We thought he'd kayo Ross, and he tried hard, but Barney proved plenty tough. It is far from a satisfactory decision and will of course result in a third bout. Four postponements cut down the crowd considerably but no doubt the tin ear fans will flock to a rubber meeting of this scrappy pair of maulers during the winter.

The scores: Lancashire 206 and 333 (Duckworth 69, Bowes four for 73 and four for 66, Verity four for 50 and four for 79, Iddon 80, Tyldesley 82); The Rest, 385 for nine, declared, and 155 for two (Walters 79, Leyland 182, Wyatt 85 not out, Hendren 52 not out).

LADY GOLFERS IN MATCH PLAY

32 Master Club Wielders Survive Qualifying Round of Canadian Open.

LUCK OF DRAW.

TORONTO, Sept. 18. (CP). — Ordeal of an exacting qualifying round behind them, 32 master club wielders who survived the test, launched out with bolstered confidence to-day on the first round of match play in the Canadian ladies open golf championship. The opening duels will be staged over an 18-hole route and this process will prevail until the finals are reached on Saturday when the distance will be extended to 36 holes.

The luck of the draw played some queer quirks on the charging field, individually aspiring to supplant Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, on the coveted throne. The defending champion herself was drawn against Mrs. John Arends, of Detroit, a stout-hearted tournament player with a low handicap of four. Five of the six British stars, including Miss Doris Chambers, captain of the international team; Molly Gourlay, Mrs. Alec Gold, Mrs. J. B. Walker, and Mrs. George Coats, landed in the upper half of the brackets. Three of Montreal's starry quartette were also drawn in the upper half, while the Ottawa pair, Miss Lorna Blackburn and Miss Evelyn Mills had the misfortune of clashing in the first match.

Similar Fate

A similar fate befell six of the Toronto contingent, but with 12 local players surviving the qualifying round, the law of averages asserted itself.

In the lower half, Miss Margery Kirkham, Montreal favorite, drew a difficult assignment in Mrs. M. B. Harbaugh, of Willouby, Ohio, the only other United States player to crash her way into the championship flight.

Several other stirring duels, many of them with an international flavor, were in prospect on the days program. Mrs. R. Baeirsto, Winnipeg, will match her skill against the experienced British internationalist, Mrs. J. B. Walker. Miss Molly Gourlay will battle Toronto's Maud Smith, while Mrs. Soper, Montreal, drew as an opponent Mrs. Alec Gold, whose 85 yesterday installed her as one of the pre-tourney favorites.

Only games for the following Saturday were arranged at the meeting of the P. and D.F.A. last night, owing to the lack of a quorum to transact business. It is evident that unless more interest is taken in the game there will be no soccer in the city next year. It is up to the players to give every assistance to the men who form the executive.

On Saturday, Canadian General travel to Deloro to play the Smelters in a league game. Referee W. Harrington. If the city team wins they will have won the championship. In the city, Caledonians and Canada Packers meet in a league game on King Edward Park. Referee J. Morgan. Kick off at 2 o'clock.

J. T. Chamberlain, Canada Packers' goalie, is being married next Saturday after the game in the afternoon. Another city player, Archie McPhate, late of Caledonians, has taken unto himself a better half. Best of luck to both is the wish of the local fans.

Last Saturday in Lindsay, the Caledonians were defeated by Lindsay to the tune of six goals to one in a league game.

A special meeting of the Association has been called for next Tuesday evening Sept. 25th, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at eight o'clock when the executive must be added unto or otherwise quit for the season.

PILOT FLIES SUFFERER 1,000 MILES TO HOSPITAL

EDMONTON, Sept. 18.—(CP)—The northland's first mercy flight was completed today and R. W. MacKinnon, manager of the Imperial oil wells 100 miles north of Fort Norman, N.W.T., was in hospital here receiving treatment for an internal ailment.

Flown through 1,000 miles of snowstorms and strong winds, MacKinnon was brought here yesterday by Pilot Rudy Heuss of Canadian Airways, Ltr., his condition is fair, and physicians believe his ailment will be successfully checked.

MacKinnon took ill a week ago and word of his plight was flashed out. Pilot W. R. "Wop" May, famed Northland flier, flew from Fort Norman to the oil wells and then flew south through gales, finally reaching Fort McMurray, Alberta's end of steel 300 miles North of Edmonton.

Czechoslovakia steel plants are busy turning out guns and farm machinery.

MAX BAER, AS REFEREE, CAPTURES HARD MAT SCRAP WITH TOREADOR

When Wrestler Gets Naughty Baer Hits Him Soundly With Lefts.

MALLET USED.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 18 (AP)—Max Baer, boxer and actor, handed himself a wrestling decision here last night.

He was supposed to be just the third man in the ring in a wrestling match between Pascual Castillo, Spanish toreador of the muscle men, and Bulldog Jackson, Portland, but the heavyweight champion became a principal when the Bulldog tapped him on the back of the neck. The Livermore butcher boy promptly floored Jackson with two lefts to the jaw, after which the toreador snatched the third fall.

But Jackson wasn't through. He tried to get the timekeeper's mallet for the announced purpose of crowning Baer. Failing in that he challenged Baer to any kind of a fight he wanted to fight.

The champion decided to wrestle. He lifted Jackson at arms length and spun him around and slammed him to the mat. With his knee in the Bulldog's chest, Baer patted himself on the back and awarded himself the verdict of the impromptu match.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THE WOODBINE is a very busy centre these mornings with the different trainers exercising their charges over the east end racing strip. With the arrival of the three steeplechasers, the property of Miss Christie from New York every stable is filled to capacity and next week's racing program should see every event filled to the limit. Jockey Slate arrived with the jumping horses and will look after all riding engagements for this powerful stable.

× × ×

Billy Bringloe the former head trainer of the powerful Seagram stable, who has been handling a division of Harry Hatch's horses, on the eastern Canada circuit has arrived back in Toronto after a very successful season. Silent Billy as he is known to the race track regulars is the man who saddled Sir Harry when that powerful finisher won the hundred thousand dollar Aqua Caliente Derby seven or eight years ago and it would not surprise us in the least if he is installed as head trainer of all Mr. Hatch's horses.

× × ×

THE FACT that there is no racing in Toronto this week will not only give horsemen a chance to freshen up their stock but will give the fans and fannettes a chance to take stock of their own financial resourses and to gather a new bankroll where necessary in order to battle with the mutuals at the coming Woodbine meeting.

× × ×

A peculiar incident took place on closing day at Thorncliffe last Saturday. Two young stenographers from a downtown office received their pay at noon and decided to go out to the races to see if they could not invest it to good advantage. During the course of the afternoon one of them managed to about break even and just before the running of the last event they met to compare notes and the other one had lost everything except two dollars. By this time she was desperate and said she was going to buy a one-two ticket on the two longest priced horses in the race and her friend strongly advised her not to, but to follow her example and take the favorites. However she gambled the last two dollars in her purse on Phil R. and Gift 'O Gab and the rest is now history. She walked up to the cashier's wicket and he gave her over six hundred dollars and needless to say she went on home with no frown on her face.

THE ROCKINGHAM Park meeting is still drawing wonderful crowds even though Havre de Gras are operating at the same time but in a short time these two will have the racing situation to themselves. We still just have twenty-one days of racing left in Canada this year and at that time all the horses, which have been campaigning here with the exception of a few Canadian breds, will be shipped to either of these points. As is the case each autumn there will be some sleepers from here that will register at a big price so keep your eye on the entries closely. Later on we will endeavor to keep you posted as to the live ones going down.

CHAPTER 42

Joan, having crossed the frontier from France to Spain, was racking along with Farley in a lumbering "Diligence" into which the passengers had been bundled when an accident happened to their train. The ark-like vehicle was cramped and crowded and bitter cold with the piercing winds which blew down from the Sierras.

Farley, sitting straight and disapproving beside her mistress, commented, "You'll catch your death."

Joan shook her head, "I'm as warm as toast with this rug over me. You'd better take my fur coat, Farley."

"I don't want it, Miss Joan. I wear red flannels. I don't hold with those wisps of crepe in winter time."

Joan flashed a smile at her. Farley was a great delight. The Englishwoman's lack of humor and her unawareness of it made her seem perpetually like one of the figures in a comic sheet, who, while playing out their own drama of life with seriousness, are side-splitting to the spectator.

"We've got to eat at an inn in the next town," Farley stated with a sort of breathless indignation. I never heard of such management."

"But you've never been to Spain," Joan reminded her, "Farley, look at that girl down near the door, with the crescent curl on her cheek. She's like somebody out of a book."

"Bold and brazen, I call her."

Joan's laugh rippled, and then the two of them ceased to talk as they watched the animated scene about them. Everybody else was talking, and there was a wealth of gesticulation, much showing of white teeth, much coquettish tossing of heads. Crowded thus into the lantern-lighted wagon, the Spaniards showed a picturesqueness which they had lacked in the more modern setting of the train—and their faces were like those in the paintings by Goya—the women with a certain dark sweetness, the men saturnine, clean-shaven, mahogany-colored.

No men here like the men in Maine—like old John Leonard—rugged of build, their faces chiselled with the fine lines of stern purpose, their eyes lighted by the laughter which is their Yankee inheritance. No women here, like those slender Puritan goddesses, silver and white and blue, who come to old age as a birch tree comes to its winter, still slender and straight, though stripped of their summer charm.

These women and these men — a whole world of difference between them and Joan's own people. Romance here was guarded by iron grilles and shut away by high walls. Love-making was a matter of secretive signals; a flash of the eye, the wave of a hand, a rose tossed from a window, a guitar scrambling in the night. Hot blood was held in leash by the presence of a duenna. Yet everywhere there was an awareness of the passionate adventure. Joan felt as if she moved in a medieval world . . . "It's a sort of Canterbury pilgrimage," she said to Farley. Then laughed as Farley said: "I wish it was Canterbury."

They arrived at the inn to find it a dusky place, with clean rooms whose windows showed a shadowy mountain range, its peaks reaching up towards a star-spangled sky. When they had made themselves ready for dinner, Farley and Joan went down to eat at a long table with other passengers from the coach. There were big dishes of fruit on the table, and coarse but heavy napery. Joan had an egg poached in oil, a bowl of lettuce, crisp, sweet bread, and at the end golden-skinned grapes and fresh figs. Other people at the table ordered heartier foods—roast meats and platters of vermicelli, partridges dressed with burnt sugar, duckling with Guava jelly, veal delicately breaded and with a distinctive sauce, but Joan was satisfied with her more delicate choice, and felt a sense of esthetic repletion.

Later when she got into bed, she found a hot water bag at her feet. "You'd freeze before morning without it," Farley informed her mistress.

"Would I?"

Then as the maid opened the window for the night and let in a stream of icy air, Joan curled down into the warmth of her nest. "It's heavenly," she said, and smiled sleepily, and Farley, tucking her in, said, adoringly, "You look as snug as a kitten."

When Farley had gone, Joan lay gazing out through the open window into the night. So she was really in Spain! She had come because of a letter from Nancy Hallam—a letter which had arrived when Joan was feeling desolate, with Penelope gone, with the winter winds howling about the house, with the winter snows drifting high.

Penelope's old uncle had begged her to stay with him for a time. "Since his wife's death," Penelope wrote, "he seems feeble and ill. I cannot desert him."

Farley had come to the house in the woods to keep Joan company. There was also a cook brought from Portland, because Farley did not belong in the kitchen, and Joan could not, of course, play chef to her maid. And with these formalities had come a lessening of the charm of the old house in the woods. Penelope's sturdy and strong personality had, while she was there, pervaded everything. She and Joan had seemed to preserve together the unities of simple living as they had swept and dusted and cooked and washed dishes But now with Farley's eye as it were upon her; with meals being served to her alone in state and elegance, there came a sense of incongruity. Farley did not fit in, the cook had no real field for her culinary talents, and the place needed its mistress to make it something besides a solitude.

And just as this sense of solitude had begun to weigh upon her, there had come to Joan a letter from Nancy Hallam. It was written from Barcelona, on the paper of a famous hostelry:

"Will you tell me, my dear, what you think you are doing? Shut up there in the woods, like a nun in a cloister? When over here, there's such a world for you to live in? Of course I know that you are bounded on the north and south by Penelope Sears and your own small town traditions, and on the east and west by your romantic ideals and your mid-Victorian conventions. But over here, my child, people live just to be living. They worship the gods of a good time, and if they lose their Edens, they find thrilling interests outside of the garden! I have always felt that Adam and Eve before the fall dwelt in a somewhat restricted area, and that when they passed out through the gate of Paradise they must have welcomed the chance to frolic.

"Am I shocking you, my little Joan? Oh, well, I want you to come over here and eat the apple . . . to share with us for a time this glad gay world, and if you don't like it, you can go back to your Penelopes and your prunes and prisms.

"But joking aside, I want you to come for Drew's sake. He is absolutely miserable. He watches every mail for a letter and when none comes he is so depressed that it is pitiful. Why be so stingy, Joan, with your little notes? They give him no hint of what is on your mind. Are you trying to punish him? And if so, why? Surely you can't think that he wants to marry for your money? There are plenty of rich women in the world. And Drew could have any one of a half dozen. But for him there is just—you. Won't you believe it? Joan, he isn't perfect. I told you that in the beginning. But neither is any man . . . and he cares such an awful lot . . .

"I wouldn't say this if I thought you were happy. But I am sure you are not. And I know that if you shut Drew out of your life, you will hurt yourself horribly. So why crucify yourself? When Drew worships the ground you walk on?

"And now, do come. You'll adore it. You are too young to live up there alone with Penelope and your pussy cats. And Drew and I both love you. Not for what you have, but for what you are. You can believe it or not, but it's true."

It was a very subtle letter. Joan reread it until certain of its sentences seemed burned in her mind: "Drew is miserable . . . he worships the ground you walk on . . ."

Since she had last seen him in Baltimore, her correspondence with her lover had been intermittent and unsatisfactory. She had refused to let him come to her. "Why keep going over the same old thing?" she had said in reply to his constant reiteration, "I want you for my wife." And when he had urged that she let him come to Maine, she had said: "I'd rather you wouldn't. Something within me seems dead. The old glamor is gone. I don't know whether I can ever recapture it."

At last he had written that he and Nancy were leaving for Spain. "I am to look into some Spanish investments which Nancy and I made some years ago. And since you won't see me the ocean might as well be between us. We must go at once. Joan, won't you take the next boat and join us at Barcelona? I'll promise to be good and not worry you, and perhaps you'll let me try to win my way back to your heart."

His letter had thrown her into a perfect panic of loneliness, but Penelope's safe presence had saved her from flinging everything to the winds and following. "My dear, you must not. Give yourself more time."

Stop Rheumatism At its Source

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Urea, a blood impurity, should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and urea remains, it changes to uric acid which in minute crystals lodges in joints or between muscles causing excruciating pains. Avoid rheumatism by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Flush them every three weeks with Dodd's Kidney Pills—for over three generations the favorite kidney tonic and remedy. Non-habit forming.

THE STARS SAY . . .

For Wednesday, September 19

The planetary configurations bearing rule on the affairs of this day may be expected to precipitate very sudden and quite unforeseen circumstances and occurrences, these of a disruptive, disintegrating and devastating nature. A radical change, with new environment, interests and associates may be looked for, with employment involved and strangers conspicuous in affars.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of the sudden and unexpected, disturbing their affairs, particularly employment. Change of surroundings and interests is foreshown, but in all the friendly counsel and substantial support of those in place and power may be counted upon.

A child born on this day should have unusual talents, initiative in some subtle ways, but may be vain, boastful, restless and changeable. It should have much popularity and helpful friends.

Even Rheumatic Pains Eased Fast Now!

BAD HEADACHES, NEURITIS PAINS OFTEN RELIEVED IN MINUTES THIS WAY

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin.

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Equally important, Aspirin is safe. For scientific tests show this: Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Home and School Association News

COUNCIL MEETING.

The Home and School Council met in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. on Monday evening for the regular meeting, which also opened activities for the fall.

Mrs. E Wand, president, was in the chair, and presided over a very encouraging attendance representing all the schools in the city. The largest representation came from Queen Alexandra and Central Schools.

After the opening exercises, splendid reports were read by the secretary and the treasurer.

F. Kerr, principal of King George School, gave a much appreciated and interesting talk on "The League of Nations."

Mrs. Monk reported that all arrangements had been completed for the exhibition of handicraft by the various Home and School Associations in the city. This competition and a tea will be held in the Comstock show-rooms on the afternoon of September 28th. Prizes are offered for the best work, and keen competition and a large attendance is anticipated.

Arrangements are also completed for a convention, as reported by Mrs. Telford, to be held at Murray Street Church Hall on October 12th. This will include a conference in the afternoon, followed by supper at six o'clock. The speakers at the conference will include Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, Mrs. E. E. Reece of Birchcliffe, Inspector A. Mowat and Dr. C. V. McLean. Mrs. W. R. Morris will open the afternoon session, and Mrs. Wand will preside at the supper table. As this is the first conference of its kind to be held here, the Council anticipate much general interest and a large gathering of all those interested in school and child welfare work.

A short discussion on the formation study groups took place, but it was decided to leave this over until after the convention, from which information may be gleaned as to the best mode of procedure.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, with Mrs. N. Todd at the piano.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK . . By R. J. Scott

REV. F. L. KIPP IN LAKEFIELD

Anniversary Services of Lakefield Baptist Church Held on Sunday.

AFTERNOON TEA HELD

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 18 (Examiner Correspondence).—The anniversary services of the Lakefield Baptist Church were held on Sunday, with Rev. L. F. Kipp, editor of The Canadian Baptist, as the guest speaker. Despite the inclemency of the weather a hearty service was held in the morning, and in the evening the usual custom of waiving the service was observed by the United Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Rev. W. B. Walker, pastor of the church, was in charge of both services and in the evening was assisted by Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., and by Rev. R. J. Burton.

The evening congregation was especially large and attentive; the singing was hearty, Miss Nelson presided at the organ. Mr. Kipp took the story of the prodigal son as his subject, a story which is familiar to all, but which has many aspects and lessons which have influenced many lives.

Miss Winifred Payne sang very sweetly, "The Dream of Paradise," and during the service the choir rendered an anthem very acceptably. Several of the members of the St. Andrew's choir assisted the Baptist choir.

The church was decorated with a profusion of beautiful flowers and potted plants; the flowers, in the rich tones of the late summer, added a festal touch which was in accord with the occasion, the 71st anniversary of the Baptist Church in Lakefield.

Afternoon Tea

Mrs. H. P. Barrett was at home to a large number of her friends on Saturday afternoon at a delightful afternoon tea, the first of the Autumn season. Mrs. Barrett was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Barrett, Sr., and Miss Washington (her cousin(and Miss Ruth Jackson (her sister), all of Toronto.

ROTARY CLUB TO CONTINUE WORK AMONG SICK, CRIPPLED KIDDIES

Campbellford Service Organization Authorizes Doctors To Proceed With Services.

WILL EXAMINE 46.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 18. (By Examiner Correspondent).—There was no special speaker at the Rotary Club dinner on Monday, the time being devoted to report of committee on recent clinic. President Stanley H. Neale tendered a formal vote of thanks to Doctors Brintnell, Frederick, Stuart and McNeill who were guests at yesterday's luncheon, for their services in connection with the health clinic held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Friday last. The report was read and adopted and the committeee on crippled children of which Dr. Bruce Longmore is chairman, were authorized to proceed with the work.

Following is the report: "This clinic was held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Friday, Sept. 14 at Campbellford. The examining physicians were Doctors Brintnell, Frederick, MacNeill, Stuart and Longmore, Mr. Arthur K. Loucks, optometrist, assisting Forty-six children reported for examination, and each one was examined by at least two physicians, while the serious cases—or those presenting any question of the treatment required—were seen by all five. The type of cases ranged from crippling to minor ailments.

Nine of the cases did not come within the scope of our work, of these, one was an epileptic, who was referred to the Mental Health Clinic of the Ontario Department of Health. Four cases presented after careful examination, no definite disease, being victims of general malnutrition. The remaining four in this group were advised as to treatment required at home. The remaining thirty-seven had definite physical handicaps. Fortunately for our financial ability to care for these, thirty require only operations which we feel can be satisfactorily undertaken in town, and the physicians who took part in the clinic are willing to undertake these without other charge to the Club than the nursing care and surgical supplies required.

Seven Others

"Of the remaining seven cases, one of 'crossed-eyes' can probably be cured by glasses and as this may possibly forestall the necessity of an operation later, would recommend this as a sufficient reason to suspend our rule, that we cannot supply optical supplies. This leaves six cases which the examiners reported as requiring special surgical care, for which the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, was recommended, briefly described as follows: No. 1, A case of severe crippling in a bright boy who may be given a life of usefulness; No. 2, A case of increasing lameness caused by contractions in the sole of the foot; No. 3, Scar from a burn on infants face, which is drawing the face out of shape; No. 4, Disfiguring growth on a girl's forehead; No. 5, Case of antrum disease; No. 6, A case of cross eyes, so severe as to cause disfigurement of an otherwise good looking countenance.

In moving the adoption of this report Dr. Longmore also included a vote of thanks to the physicians who so generously gave of their time and also Mr. Arthur Loucks and "our host" Mr. Neal O'Keefe, who provided the clinic with every possible facility afforded by his excellent rooms.

GARDINER PLEADS FOR SUPPORT FOR 500,000 SASKATCHEWANIANS

Claims Wheat Growers Brought More Money to Province than Anyone Else.

CAN DO IT AGAIN.

KINGSTON, Sept. 18.—(CP)—The cooperation of spiritual, political and financial influences looking towards the maintenance of the 500,000 residents of Southern Saskatchewan is the need of the Western provinces today, Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan told a luncheon of Service Clubs here yesterday.

The Western Premier sketched a graphic picture of conditions in the drought-stricken areas of his province. Wheat had brought more new money into Canada during the past 30 years than any other commodity, he said. Saskatchewan had produced more of that wheat than the other eight provinces combined. Southwestern Saskatchewan had produced twice as much wheat over any 20-year period as all the rest of the provinces.

The 500,000 people living in that area had brought more new money into this country to turn the wheels of industry than any other similar number to be found anywhere in Canada, Mr. Gardiner continued. If kept there they would produce the same results in the next 20 years.

Year's Work For Nothing

"Our problem in the drought area has no connection with the unemployment problem other than to the extent that unemployment lowers the price of commodities," said Premier Gardiner. "These people are working from daylight to dark, 12 months of the year and getting nothing for it. It is the re-establishment of an industry and homes that calls for solution.

"The objective of everyone in Canada whether entrusted with spiritual, political or financial power should be to place as many people as possible in prosperous, contented, happy christian homes.

"What we are asking in Saskatchewan is the co-operation of all these forces towards the present maintenance of these 500,000 people in their homes until they can repay."

A PROTEST

STRATFORD, Ont., Sept. 18 (CP)—Because his dog was destroyed at the local dog pound, Jack Mace has protested to Mayor O. J. Kerr against what he terms "an unwarranted exercise of authority by a public servant." Mace claimed the canine left home and failed to return. He visited the dog pound and found the animal had been gassed.

Over 50 Seeking Aged Lindsay Man

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 19. (CP)—A squad of more than 50 persons to-day continued efforts to find 81-year-old Albert Hepburn, missing four days. It is feared the aged Northwest Rebellion veteran has succumbed to exposure.

Searchers have scoured the Lindsay district thoroughly for some trace of the man who was last seen Saturday heading north on the railway track from the Lindsay Chemical plant to Cameron.

Additional parties combed the swamps and bushland along the Scugog creek and the Canadian National Railways line from Lindsay to Haliburton.

Officials May Cut Off License to Sell Milk—Legislation in Jeopardy.

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—(CP)—The Milk Control Board today is faced with a situation which may result in the Provincial legislation governing the distribution of milk being challenged in the courts. Chairman A. A. MacFeeters is considering what action to take as a result of a Hamilton Co-operative Creamery refusing to carry out the board's order that it must not give to its customers rebates that in effect reduce the price of milk.

The only penalty which can be imposed is to cut off the recalcitrant dairy's license to distribute milk. If the board does not exercise this power, it is believed, effect of the whole legislation will be nullified.

THREATS SENT LINER'S CREW

Be Blacklisted if Truth Told of Morro Castle Disaster, Probe Learns.

CAUSE STILL UNKNOWN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (A.P.) — Federal authorities investigated today a charge that members of the crew of the ill-fattd Morro Castle had been threatened with the blacklist if they tell the truth about the disaster.

The charge was given to United States Attorney Martin Conboy of William L. Standard, counsel for the Marine Workers International Union, who promised to produce sailors to testify to the threats.

Conboy, who has been conducting the grand jury investigation of the burning of the liner, said the charges would be given to his aids for investigation.

The department of commerce board of inquiry was still in the dark to-day concerning the cause of the fire as it plunged anew into the questioning of witnesses.

After a four-hour inspection of the ruined hulk on the beach at Ashbury Park, Dickerson N. Hoover, chairman of the commerce department's investigation board, said yesterday the examination showed "no indication as to the cause of the fire."

NOT EASING OFF ON PRICE PROBE SAYS STEVENS

Blames Mergers in Liberal Regime 1922-29 for Causing Sweatshop Conditions.

HITS COMBINES ACT.

Claims Packing Firms Could Raise Cattle Prices in Week to Everyone's Advantage.

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP) — "Whatever happens," Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is prepared to go on with the investigation he started into price spreads and mass buying in Canada. The situation, in his opinion, must be thoroughly analyzed before government action is taken.

"I am condemned," he told a mass meeting here last night in Massey Hall, "for seeking to know too much. I am considered to be a busy-body. Some of my friends of the so-called large interests would scarcely look at me. They hold up their hands in holy horror; I am an Ishmaelite.

"Well, it does not worry me very much. I have been criticised for talking too much to the public. I am talking to the public, as I have already intimated, for the simple reason that I found after talking to business organizations for two or three years there were no results."

Has Hope of Remedy

An overflow audience greeted the veteran statesmen from British Columbia, speaking on behalf of T. L. Church in the East Toronto by-election campaign. It heard the Conservative minister hold out definite hope of a remedy of a situation he said was caused by large-scale merging of business organizations in rcent years.

"Most touching," Mr. Sevents termed Liberal "solicitude for the imagined and concocted difference between the Prime Minister and myself." The answer to Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's statement that there is a "choice between Bennett and Stevens" lay in Mr. Bennett's introduction and motion of the price spread and mass buying probe resolution, he said.

Mergers to Blame

Mergers during the Liberal administrtaion between 1922 and 1929, charged Mr. Stevens, caused sweatshop conditions in Canada. During those years, he said, 120 mergers involved 550 firms. The Combines Industrial Act had led organizations to make corporate mergers of themselves instead of forming associations to determine what practics are "fair and honest and decent and what practics they will resist."

The Combines Industrial Act, the minister declared, "is more responsible than any other piece of legislation for the growth of the merger in this country." It encouraged

Climbing Boogey Man Terrifies Chicagoans

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (A.P.). — A "boogy man" who drops suddenly from tree limbs before startled women had a section of Chicago's north side on edge to-day.

His ape-man tactics have not passed beyond the scaring stage as yet, but he is the object of an intensified police search in the Summerdale district.

Last night, he popped out of the darkness before Mrs. Catherine Glaeser, 27, mumbling: "Come on, come on.' With a scream, she fled, and notified police.

The officers said several unescorted women have made similar reports.

CHACO WAR DISCUSSED.

Only Two or Three States Outside Pact to Ban Shipment of Arms.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

GENEVA, Sept. 19. (C.P. Cable). Bright and early, Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet foreign commissar, appeared this morning on the League scene. Smiling broadly, the delegate for the newest member of the League took his seat on the League Council in private session.

Then at the open meeting he formally took his seat at the council table. On his left Sat Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister to the right stood the empty chair of Japan. Next to that was Captain Anthony Eden, British representative who leaned across the vacant place to shake hands with the urbane Litvinoff.

The Chaco War

The main question before the council was the prohibition of arms shipments to Paraguay and Bolivia, warring in the Gran Chaco. Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, bluntly pointed out the Chaco war had gone on too long already and should be ended at the earliest possible moment. Further "adjournments" or postponements" would not add to the League's prestige.

"We must take up a definite attitude," M. Barthou urged. "We

YACHT CONTEST IS POSTPONED

Lack of Breeze Sets Race Between Rainbow and Endeavour Over Till Thursday.

SEA LIKE MILLPOND.

BY TOM HORGAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Aboard U. S. C. G. Cutter Argo off Newport, R.I., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The third race for the America's Cup between the British challenger Endeavour, victor in the first two, and the defending American sloop Rainbow today was postponed until tomorrow for lack of a breeze.

The postponement came only a few minutes before 12:30 p.m. E.S.T. the deadline beyond which a race cannot be started under cup rules.

The sea was as flat as a millpond with only an occasional puff of wind out of the southwest to ruffle the water and not enough to give any hope of sailing the race under the time limit of 5½ hours.

The postponement probably would have been made sooner but the race committee held off until the last moment so that President Roosevelt could see the start before starting back for his estate on the Hudson in the yacht Nourmahal, from which he witnessed the first two races.

Blockade Continues Against Erecting Pole

CAMDEN, N.J., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A mother of six who sat with her legs dangling in a pole hole for 37 hours, yielded the seat to her husband early today, and he carried on the blockade to prevent erection of a pole by the electric company.

Mrs. Elsie Barnable and her husband say it's their revenge for the time the Public Service Electric and Gas Company turned off the light when their little girl was sick.

Now, they note, it costs the company, several dollars an hour to keep men there waiting for the vigil to weaken. One complaint against the Barnables came from a neighbor, Denny Di Reizo, who said the life of his brother, Joseph, 23, a paralytic invalid, is being endangered.

Denny claims Joseph cannot eat except when his muscles are relaxed and that since the excitement begun is starving slowly. Denny threatens an injunction against the Barnables.

ONTARIO CODES FOR INDUSTRIES NEARLY READY

Expect to be Disclosed in About Ten Days Roebuck Announces.

TIME FOR DISCUSSION.

TORONTO, Sept. 19. (C.P.) — Drafts of the codes which the Ontario Government proposes to establish to govern industry in the province will be disclosed in about 10 days, Hon. A. W. Roebuck, Ontario Attorney General and Minister of Labor announced to-day.

Under the direction of J. F. Marsh, deputy minister, a special staff is drawing up the regulations.

Mr. Roebuck said the policy is to produce the rough drafts well in advance of the sitting of the legislature "so it may be discussed by both employers and employees, given to the public and laid before the numbers of organizations who will be invited to attend conferences with Mr. Marsh and myself."

The proposed act embodies principles of co-operation as well as compulsion, the Minister stated, adding "It would never get very far if we just depended on the big stick' but with a little compulsion we need a leadership. Where compulsion is unnecessary we get far toward regularizing rates of pay and hours of labor."

Asked how many fields of business, such as stores, the codes would reach, Mr. Roebuck replied "As far as we can get. The matter is an experiment. Mr. Asquith's policy was 'wait and see.' The success it meets with only time can tell."

PRESS SEARCH FOR LOST LADS

Planes Abandoned as Temagami Forest Too Dense From Air.

OVERDUE 2 WEEKS.

TORONTO, Sept. 19—(CP)—Hunt for S. P. Franchot and David Reisman, United States youths reported lost in the Timagimi forest reserve in Northern Ontario, will be conducted by ground forces instead of by airplane, it was believed today at the Ontario Department of land and forests which is supervising the search.

Planes have crossed the thick bush area twice this week and found no trace of the youths, said officials pointing out the impossibility of effective searching of the forest from the air.

Franchot's father, prominent Niagara Falls, N.Y., attorney has left for the north to personally supervise the hunt. The lads, two weeks overdue at the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway line from a camping trip are believed to have disappeared in the thick bush 40 miles directly west of Timagmi station.

UNITED CHURCH PUTS ISSUE TO PRESBYTERIES

General Council Approves of Principle of Ordination of Women.

VOTE BEFORE JUNE, 1935.

Congregations Are Refused Voice—Too Tardy in Making Returns.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 19. (CP) Approval of the principle of the ordination of women to the ministry of the United Church in Canada was recorded by the sixth biennial general council to-day. The question will be sent down to the various presbyteries in the form of a remit and the concurrence of a majority is necessary.

Diversity of Opinion

Some diversity of opinion developed in the debate on the question whether the remit should be referred only to Presbyteries or should go to the individual pastoral charges.

It was felt by some speakers that congregations should have a voice in view of the importance of the matter while others referred to the difficulty of getting returns from all the charges.

It was finally decided to send it only to Presbyteries. The remit asks Presbyteries if they are in favor of legislation making the ministry open to both men and women.

The vote must be taken and the returns reported to the executive on or before June 1, 1935.

Sam Carter, Guelph, declared the commissioners had had plenty of time to consider the matter. "We have come here with our minds made up, and it has been discussed before," he said.

Other speakers wanted a full debate before a vote was taken, but

SPIKE RUMORS OF FOUL PLAY SKIPPER'S DEATH

Morro Castle's Fourth Officer Claims He Saw No Marks of Evidence.

TRIED TO REVIVE HIM.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. (AP). — Rumors that Captain Robert R. Willmott, who died several hours before his ship, Morro Castle, was swept by fire, had met with foul play were spiked to-day by an officer of the liner.

Howard Hansen, fourth officer of the liner, told the Department of Commerce board investigating the disaster that he had been summoned to the dead captain's room, that he had tried to revive him unsuccessfully.

"And were there any marks of violence on Captain Willmott's body?" asked Karl C. Nielsen, hull inspector

"Not that I saw," was the answer.

Rumors that Captain Willmott had died from unnatural causes, probably through poisoning, were responsible for analysis of his charred remains.

Quizzed closely about the part he played in fighting the flames, Hansen testified he was not familiar with the operations of certain parts of the Morro Castle's fire signal system.

Nielsen remarked that it seemed "strange" for a ship's officer to profess this ignorance.

The witness said that he had heard no orders given from the bridge to lower lifeboats, and that he had seen no fire doors closed to block the advance of the flames.

Previously, a passenger, Doris Wacker, 18, of Roselle Park, N.J., testified that after she had emerged from her cabin to the deck she saw no officers about, nor were there any stewards in evidence to assist the frantic passengers.

NEVER BEFORE CABINET.

No Details to be Revealed Until Members Have Discussed It.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 19. —(CP)— Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, Premier of Ontario, today confirmed a report that the Provincial government has prepared the framework for unemployment insurance legislation in Ontario. This will be used in case the Federal Government doesn't carry out the national plan.

"The tenative measure has been prepared under the supervision of Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare," said the premier, "but has not been discussed with the cabinet. Until this is done I do not care to reveal any of the details."

Mr. Hepburn is at his home today suffering from a heavy head cold, but will be out this afternoon to meet Rt. Hon. GOLD SHIPMENT BELIEVED SAFE

Denver Chief Issues Challenge to Any Gangster, "Try and Get It."

$200,000,000 INVOLVED.

DENVER, Sept. 19. (AP). Chief of Police Albert T. Clark to-day challenged anyone to "try and get" a $300,000,000 shipment of gold due here to-night from San Francisco.

Although the Chief's challenge was meant to exclude no one, it was directed in particular at George (Baby Face) Nelson and John Hamilton, accomplices of the late John Dillinger, who were reported to have been seen here.

"We'll shoot it out with them anytime, any place," Clark said.

Detectives armed with riot guns cruised through streets radiating from the United States mint on the edge of the downtown district after police received the report.

Clark said the informant was positive in his identification of the gangsters.

The gold shipment, the fifth from the mint at San Francisco to the mint here, was slated to arrive to-night. Already $315,000,000 to $345,000,000 it was estimated, has been transferred to the Government's storehouse in Denver.

Maine Town Orders National Guard Out

ACTION FOLLOWS STATE'S WORST TEXTILE RIOT

Officials May be Forced to Declare City Under Martial Law.

HAND-TO-HAND BATTLES.

Four Arrested—Pickets Nabbed Outside Factory at Lewiston.

WATERVILLE, Me., Sept. 19—(AP)—National Guardsmen were ordered to duty here today after the wildest riot in the textile strike in Maine to date occurred outside the Lockwood Manufacturing Company mill. There were indications the city would be placed under martial law.

The National Guard was turned out after local and state highway police fought a hand-to-hand battle with pickets at the mill gates. Four men were arrested and police sought others allegedly implicated in the rioting.

The Lockwood Mill, a cotton manufacturing concern, employs 600 operatives, nearly 300 of whom have been on strike. The demonstration was staged in an endeavor to bring other workers into the strikers ranks.

The mill operated on a greatly curtailed basis.

At about the same time that the Waterville strikers were rioting, police in Lewiston, another Maine textile centre, took five men and two women pickets from Biddeford into custody as they and other pickets from that city tried to induce employes of the Lewiston bleachery and dye works to join the strike.

NOME DOLING FOOD SUPPLY

Hundreds of Homeless Rush to Erect Shelters Before Winter Arrives.

20 BLOCKS RAZED.

NOME, Alaska, Sept. 19 (A.P.)—Nome doled out its meagre food supply to-day and labored to partially rebuild the fire-swept city before winter comes.

Damage from Monday's disastrous fire was placed at $3,000,000 by the City Council and business men.

In near freezing temperatures, amid scenes of blackened ruin, city and federal agencies tirelessly worked arranging more permanent places for the several hundreds of homeless to live. The food supply, which must be used sparingly until replenishments arrive in vessels from the States, was being rapidly depleted.

Two restaurants, hurriedly set up in shacks, exhausted their supplies of ham and eggs yesterday, and people stood in line buying their remaining food. Grocers who had managed to save some supplies before their buildings were burned, were besieged by buyers.

Moves to bring aid here from the "outside" by Federal, Red Cross, territorial and other groups, brought cheer to the stricken city.

Three coastguard cutters, carrying some food supplies from their bases, were reported nearing the city.

No building material is available here, but first steps to clean up the debris left by a conflagration which swept over more than 20 square blocks, levelling the entire business area and much of the residential district, was under way. The deaths of two Eskimos, trapped by the flames, remained the only loss of life discovered.

Trent River

Mr. and Mrs. David Walker had their infant son, Reginald James baptized at the Sunday afternoon service at the United Church.

Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Watson return to Campbellford this week after summering at "As You Like It."

Mr. and Mrs. Mowry, of Providence, R.I., have been visitors with their daughter, Mrs. Earl Fairbrother at their summer home.

The Provincial Highway Department is improving conditions on the road at 'Maple Inn,' residence of Mr. J. Cook, where the land is low. The cement walk has been raised and the field adjacent on the Fairbrother property is being tiled to the river, thus correcting the wet condition at this point in the spring.

The work of completing the cut through the mountain of rock at the western approach to the village of Marmora, is completed. The new road was opened for traffic last week thus making an attractive and picturesque entrance leading on to the new bridge, a handsome structure over the River Moira. The road of good hard rock bed, has been finished with crushed stone and covered with tarvia, thus making the new entrance most attractive to motorists, as the former one down the winding hill, proved treacherous for traffic, especially when in an icy condition.

Million Dollar Blaze Levels City of Nome, Alaska

Here is a view of Nome, Alaska, where a catastrophic blaze has swept away federal buildings, the entire business district, and most of the residential area, causing hundreds of homeless, and more than $1,000,000 in damage. Firemen dynamited whole blocksof buildingsin vain attempt to stem the rapid onrush of the flames, according to Washington reports.

Hymnary Presented

A feature of peculiar interest at the morning service of St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday was the presentation of a handsomely-bound Hymnary for uses in the pulpit, the Woman's Association of which Mrs. F. J. Smith is president, making the gift and the minister, Rev. A. L. Spence, receiving it on behalf of the Session and the congregation.

Speaking of the pleasant duty which he had to perform, and mentioning appreciatively the fact that "any need of the church, or the parsonage, is fully met by the Woman's Association," the pastor read the inscription on the fly-leaf of the book which is silk and has gilt edges, and offered the dedicatory prayer. The initial use of the new Hymnary was in the service which immediately followed.

The special musical selection was a trio, "Sweeter as the Years Go By", by Mr. and Mrs. H. McDowell and W. H. Coombe, and the pastor, as in duty bound, read the sermon preached to the General Council now in session at Kingston by the retiring Moderator, Rev. T. Albert Moore, D.D., the theme being "A New Heaven and a New Earth."

On Friday, September 28, two of the commissioners to General Council, Rev. Mr. Best and Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, will bring echoes of what has been transacted at this highest administrative body of the United Church to a public gathering at St. Andrew's, Millbrook. Bethany, Lifford, Pontypool, and other churches of the vicinity to join with the local congregation for the meeting.

SOPWITH READY FOR THIRD RACE HOPES ARE HIGH

British Skipper's 2 Wins Show Recovery From Saturday's Apparent Stage Fright.

TWO BOOMS DIFFER.

By ANDREW MERKEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 19 (C.P.)—With a couple of half hitches bent on the America's Cup, T. O. M. Sopwith set out in his Endeavour to-day with high hopes of adding another turn, in the moderate to fresh weather indicated. He must bend in all four turns before he can drag the battered silverware from its 83-year-old anchorage in the vaults of the New York Yacht Squadron.

Obviously the sailing series is not yet won and anything may happen. But following Saturday's apparent attack of stage-fright Sopwith, by his two decisive wins and consummate sportsmanship, has achieved a moral as well as an actual advantage that bodes well for his future success. This goes for the crew as well as the skipper of the clean-lined British challenger. Apart from the human element, Endeavour has proved herself the equal of the United States defender in reaching and her superior on and before the wind in moderate weather.

Extra Ballast

Under the new rules governing the contest, it is provided that a competitor must carry at least seven short-tons of interior fittings. Realizing the challenger carried a considerable amount of excess baggage, Sopwith asked and received permission from the sailing committee to remove a portion of the impediments. He still carries an excess amount but is naturally chary about changing a winning trim.

An odd slant on the present rig of the rival yachts is that Rainbow is carrying a flexible boom of a type sponsored and subsequently discarded by Sopwith, while Endeavour is sporting a boom known as the Park Avenue, introduced by Enterprise in the series of 1930 and tried out and later discarded by Rainbow.

Vara, Harold Vanderbilt's power yacht now mothering Rainbow, carries something on her deck suspiciously like a spare boom, but whether of the flexibile or Park Avenue type has yet to be determined. It will be remembered that Valsheda and Shamrock V have each carried away two flexible booms to date and that Endeavour has rid herself of one.

The only item entering into the rig of the rival yachts that is not a matter of competition is sailmaking. The sails of both challenger and defender were made by the same English firm which cut and sewed the sails of Nelson's victory. Rainbow's are the product of their City Island, N.Y. loft and Endeavour's of their Gosport plant.

SKEPTICAL OF STORY.

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—(A.P.)—Detroit and Pontiac police to-day dropped their investigation of a story told of Mrs. Violet Talbot, 30, that she had been kidnapped Tuesday and held for several hours by two men who talked about "kidnapping Schoolboy Rowe," Detroit Tiger pitcher. Detectives Joseph Moffatt and John Duval announced after questioning her last night, that they did not intende to even make a report on the case. Mrs. Talbot said she was released in Pontiac, Mich.

VISIONS DANGER OF DICTATORSHIP FOR DOMINION

King Charges Bennett Failed to Keep Promises—Scores Central Bank.

SUPPORTS COL. MULOCK.

By RAY BROWN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MARKHAM, Ont., Sept. 19 (C.P.)—Moving west Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King to-day carried his by-election campaign into the constituency of West Elgin which was represented in the Federal Parliament by the man who is now Ontario's premier.

To-night the Dominion Liberal leader will join with Mitchell F. Hepburn in supporting the candidature of W. H. Mills, chosen by the Liberals to contest the West Elgin seat. The meeting will be held at St. Thomas. West Elgin's contest is a straight fight between Liberal and Conservative. The Conservative candidate is H. Borbridge.

In Markham last night Mr. King appealed to the electors of North York to support Col. W. P. Mulock who carried the banner in the riding which the Liberal leader represented in parliament from 1921 to 1926. Mr. King charged the present administration at Ottawa with betrayal of the people, failure to implement promises made at the last general election, and a determination to hang on to power in the face of a dissatisfied electorate.

Fears Dictatorship

The danger of a dictatorship in Canada was also held up to his great audience by the Liberal chieftain. Citing recent legislative enactments by the Government he warned his listeners that the powers of Parliament were gradually being vested in the Government. Notably he criticized the new central bank legislation on the ground that it would vest in a private corporation the power to control note circulation and credit disruption. Thus rights which should belong to the representatives of the people were going to be handed over to a private body.

A recent statement which he said had been made by Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, to the effect that the results of the by-elections would not influence the Government to change its term of office brought criticism from Mr. King. Mr. Manion was assuming the dictatorial attitude of a Hitler, Mr. King averred. He was telling the people that the Government would stay in power whether they liked it or not. The view of the majority was not to be taken into consideration.

Mr. King expressed the belief that the people of Canada had now come to the conclusion that, in dealing with social questions, the Liberal mind was needed, "and not the Tory mind."

On Thursday night the Liberal leader will return to Toronto from St. Thomas to speak in support of Major H. P. Sneigrove, candidate in East Toronto. This will constitute his concluding speech in the by-election campaign. He will, however, go to Montreal where he speaks at a rally on the following night.

Ellsworth Sailing For Antarctic Again

DUNEDIN, N.Z., Sept. 19 (AP)—Lincoln Ellsworth and his fellow expedition members sailed to-day for the Antarctic aboard the Wyatt Earp.

Early in the year when Ellsworth returned from the Antarctic after the failure of a previous expedition, he said he was just about through with deliberate adventure. He said he wanted a home.

"I want to make one more flight—then I'm through," he said in reference to his ill-fated South Polar expedition.

The explorer recently denied his plans called for the delivery of medical and food supplies to Admiral Byrd's camp, as was published in a statement by Dr. Francis Goman of Baltimore, Ellsworth's physician.

London's famous tower, the Monument, was visited by 80,000 people, who paid $5,000, in the last 12 months.

Special Meeting of City Council Asked for Hospital Project

M. O. H. REPORTS ON WORK DONE IN FIRST MONTH

Board of Health Asks for Special Meeting of City Council.

FIVE HOUSES CLOSED.

Cannot Pass By-law to Regulate Bakeshops Outside Municipality.

A recommendation in the report of Dr. G. Mufray Fraser, M.O.H., for the month of August, suggesting that a special meeting of the city council be called to discuss the advisability of establishing a tuberculosis sanitarium in the Queen Mary hospital, was adopted at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Health.

A letter from City Solicitor Corkery advised the Board that the council could not pass a bylaw to regulate bakeshops outside the municipality from which bread is sold in the city.

Report of M.O.H.

Dr. Fraser's comprehensive report was as follows:

"On assuming my duties on August 1st, in company with Mr. Stocker, chairman of the Board of Health, I made a thorough inspection of the Queen Mary Hospital. I found the building in a clean condition and all equipment in good order. A number of local improvements were advised and I am pleased to report that these have been carried out very satisfactorily. A suggestion was made that this hospital be used as a tuberculous sanitarium for the City of Peterborough. It was requested that I communicate with the Deputy Minister of Health and ask his opinion in this matter. Dr. Bell visited Peterborough during August in company with Dr. McKay of the Ontario Department of Health and made an inspection of the building. His opinion was that it would make an ideal hospital for tuberculous patients and that it should be put to that use as soon as possible. He advised, for the care of such infectious cases as might arise, either the erection of a small pavilion or the leasing of a house in the city which could be prepared on short notice. At a later date Dr. Bell told me that he had discussed the matter with the Minister of Health and that it had met with his approval.

As requested by your Board, I examined several swimming areas in the city and samples of water from these were examined in the laboratories. All specimens showed gross pollution. Warning signs were erected in one area only. It was felt that as the swimming season was practically over there was no advantage in erecting signs at other places. I believe this pollution is entirely agricultural and enters the water in surface drainage. It demonstrates however, the possibility of the water being contaminated with pathogenic germs, and is therefore dangerous to the public health. In view of this condition, there will necessarily need to be in future more strict supervision of the city's ice supply.

Five Houses Closed

The inspection of dwellings in the city resulted in the closure of five houses as being unfit for human habitation. The necessary regulations were carried out in this respect.

During the month I inspected the premises of all milk vendors and where breaches of the by-law were found, warnings were given. For the most part I found the dairies clean and making an honest effort to produce clean milk. In the near future it is proposed to make an inspection of all milk producers and Dr. Berry of the Ontario Department of Health has agreed to send down a Provincial milk Inspector to assist in carrying out this work.

During the month all bakeries in the city were inspected and conditions were found to be fairly satisfactory. One bakery outside of the city limits supplying bread to Peterborough was examined. Authority for the examination of premises in which food is produced for consumption in Peterborough is given in the amendment to the Public Health Act, 1934, section 10, s.s. 2.

All restaurants were examined and with a few exceptions were found to be clean. The chief fault was in regard to disposal of garbage. Warnings were given in this respect.

There were a few sporadic cases of reportable diseases, a detailed report of which is attached herewith.

Recommendations

That the municipal council hold a special meeting to discuss the advisability of establishing a tuberculosis sanitarium in the Queen Mary Hospital.

That a resolution be passed by the city council requesting that the Minister of Health grant permission to make the regulations published in the annual report of the Department of Health for Ontario, 1927, applicable to the City of Peterborough. The following are the regulations: (a) Regulations governing slaughter houses; (b) Regulations governing bakeries, etc.; (c) Restaurants, public dining halls, refreshment rooms, etc.; (d) Cleansing of the eating and drinking utensils in hotels, etc.; (e) Ice cream (all regulations); (f) Delivery of bread, buns, and other bakery products; (g) Lodging houses; (h) Roller towels; (i) Baber shops.

That representatives of the Board of Health confer with representatives of the Peterborough Health Association to discuss all health activities sponsored by the association and to consider ways and means of co-ordinating the work of the two bodies.

That similar steps be taken with the Well Babies' clinic."

HASTINGS CHILD STRUCK BY TRUCK

Five Year Old Girl Miraculously Escapes Death in Street Accident.

HASTINGS, Sept. 19. (By Examiner Correspondent). — Ruth Warner, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warner miraculously escaped instant death on Tuesday morning. The child was crossing Bridge street on the south end when a large transport driven by Fred Livingston of Montreal, with a heavy shipment for the local tannery on, was going north. The youngster was standing on the curb when the driver first saw her and the next instant she was in front of the truck, he swerved the big machine to avoid her but the back of the truck caught her and threw her heavily to the road.

The driver immediately stopped, had the child removed to her home nearby and summoned Dr. W. N. Campbell and Dr. J. A. MacDonald.

At first it was thought the unfortunate child had received a fracture of the skull, but late Tuesday night her condition was not critical.

Constable Calberry investigated.

BETTER TEAM PLAY WINS FOR DINTY'S

Hard Play and Heavy Checking Keeps Millbrook Crowd in Uproar.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—An enthusiastic crowd of fans, hard play, heavy checking, numerous penalties, and some fine combination work especially on the part of the visitors, featured the first game of the plays-off, in the inter-county series, between Dinty's Inn and Millbrook, at the Cosmos rink Monday night. Dinty's Inn took the count by one goal in a total score of 5-4.

Slippery ground following the recent heavy rains made playing difficult, and at one time there was a lively dispute that nearly ended with Peterborough walking off the the field when Manager Nattress of Millbrook objected to Staunt of Peterborough wearing spiked shoes in defiance of the regulations governing play. The visitors got more shots on the goal, and put up a better brand of combination, than the homesters, giving them the advantage throughout.

The teams:

Dinty's Inn: Goal, LeFebvre; defence, McDougal, Staunt; centre, Gardiner; wings, McGregor, McGee; rover, Routley; subs, Creighton, Collins.

Millbrook: Goal, Larmer; defence, Creighton, Lebarr; centre, Stinson; wings, Ingram, Edmunds; rover, Gray; subs, Brown, Ingram Donnelly, Nattress.

Referees— Creighton, Peterboro; Dawson, Millbrook.

The date of the next game in the play-off will be announced shortly.

physical merging of corporations, while penalizing individual firms for "associating together."

Since the Conservative Government came into power, only four mergers have taken place, Mr. Stevers said. "And yet the suggestion is made that sweatshops are caused by monopolies. There is Mr. King's statement."

Hits Chain Stores.

Meat prices were forced down by chain stores which put inferior meat on the market at low prices and forced butchers to compete. In the case of beef, the butcher must buy cheap to compete and the result was cheap beef flooded the market. "That," asserted the Minister, "sets the price of good beef."

Mr. Stevens charged "the head of the biggest packing concern in Canada" could put good and choice beef steers on the Toronto market at seven and eight cents within two weeks—instead of at four and four and a half cents, as at present. It would not do his business "an atom of injury." And farmers' purchasing power within a year would increase by $30,000,000 or $40,000,000.

"I cannot speak now for a definite action by any government or any parliament, but I will say this: If these heads refuse to recognize their duty and their opportunities and do their part to set the economic structure of Canada right, then I say that public influence—whatever that may mean; I know what I mean—public influence will."

Mr. Stevens charged the only Liberal policy before the people was Mr. King's promise to repeal the Ottawa trade agreements. The Minister defended the 1932 Ottawa agreements and said "we were obstructed and opposed throughout the whole piece."

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT HASTINGS DANCE

Step Dancing and Haymakers' Music Are Big Features of Evening.

HASTINGS, Sept. 9.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—About five hundred people attended the Hastings street dance held on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Park Commission and the Woman's Institute.

Considering the late season and the recent inclement weather, the dance proved most successful in every way, the night proving quite ideal and just chilly enough to keep the dancing peppy.

Many preparations were made to make the event better than ever. Music was furnished by Lakefield's seven-piece McManus' Haymakers' Orchestra, and was appreciated by everyone. An added attraction was the numerous step dances by members of the orchestra and by Mr. Douglas Crowe, son of Albert Crowe, of Alderville, who was also present.

Car loads came from points far and near, the receipts totalling an amount considerably over $200, including the sum realized from the two booths and bingo. The proceeds will be used for the Athletic Park.

The bingo game, with its prizes of well-filled baskets and hams, was in charge of the men, and the booths in charge of the ladies, did a most thriving business, as hot dogs, pie and coffee were in great demand.

Those assisting in the booths were Mrs. W. Fowlds, Mrs. J. A. McDonald, Mrs. S. Spooner, Mrs. R. King, Mrs. S. Scriver, Mrs. J. B. Scriver, Mrs. G. Sine, Mrs. G. Faux, Mrs. A. J. Brown, Mrs. G. Kerr, Mrs. W. Walsh and Mrs. S. Fife.

Liberal Campaign Moves To St. Thomas

(By The Canadian Press)

Battle front of the Liberal campaign in the five Ontario Federal by-elections moved to St. Thomas to-day where a Liberal rally will see Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader, and Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, head of the Provinces Liberal Government, on the platform. The Liberal leaders will speak before an audience in the Granite Rink to-night.

Support for Wilson H. Mills, Liberal candidate in the Elgin West by-election, will be sought by the two Liberal leads. Mr. Hepburn's decision to quit the Federal fold to head Ontario's Government made the vacancy in Elgin West.

Mr. King moved into Elgin West from North York's by-election campaign. He spoke at Markham last night in the interests of Col. W. P. Mulock, Liberal candidate, who faces Captain Harold Bruels, Conservative, in the voting that takes place Sept. 24.

THE NEW PRIMATE.

The honor that has been conferred upon Right Reverend D. T. Owen, Bishop of Toronto, in his election as Primate of the Church of England in Canada will be especially appreciated here, for Peterborough has some reason to claim the new head of the Anglican Church in this country as one of her own citizens.

Archbishop Owen—the new title comes to him automatically by reason of his office—lived for some time in his boyhood years in this city, and is remembered by many of the older citizens, who are delighted to learn of the distinction he has earned in the church to which he has given his life.

And those who do not recall the Primate's residence in Peterborough but have come into contact with him since his transference to the Toronto See as Bishop and have been charmed by his simplicity and his most gracious personality, are equally pleased that the electoral college of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada has honored him by elevating him to the highest position in the gift of that church.

VETERAN WRITES "30."

The death of John R. Dougall, the veteran editor of the Montreal Witness, has brought to an end a journalistic career that is undoubtedly unique in the history of Canadian newspapers.

Mr. Dougall, who was 93 years of age, had been associated with the Witness for seventy-three years, coming to it when he graduated from McGill University, and ever since 1870, three years after Confederation, he had held the post of editor—surely a record of service that is unsurpassed in Canadian newspaper annals.

Under his editorship the Witness throughout seven decades has steadfastly adhered to certain principles which Mr. Dougall espoused at the beginning of his career, and from which he never wavered.

Always the Witness stood for free trade, was an eloquent and consistent advocate of strict temperance, and never tired of working for complete civil and religious equality in Canada.

The dean of Canadian editors, Mr. Dougall had a trenchant pen and a convincing style; his articles always commanded attention, and his appreciation of every important issue that came before the Canadian people during his long term of service was awaited with interest by other newspapermen throughout the country and by the public.

While the Witness suffered many blows at the hands of fortune, and after a long period as a daily reverted to a weekly status, some twenty years ago, its influence, thanks to the vigor of Mr. Dougall's columns, remains an important factor.

Canadian journalism is the poorer by his passing.

THOSE BY-ELECTIONS.

With the official nominations over, the campaign in the five Ontario by-elections to fill vacancies in the Federal House is now in its final and most hectic week.

There are straight two-party contests in three of the ridings, while in the East Toronto and West Elgin fights three candidates are aspiring for election.

It is interesting to note that three of the constituencies in which voting will take place next Monday, Frontenac-Addington, East Toronto and North York, have been held by the Government, while Liberals were successful at the last general election in West Elgin and Kenora-Rainy River seats, made vacant by the entrance of Hon. M. F. Hepburn and Hon. Peter Heenan into the provincial field.

Under normal conditions it would be safe to predict that the opposition candidates would not only hold the two ridings previously listed under the Liberal banner but would add to these the North York constituency, which was kept in the Conservative column largely through the personal popularity of the late Herb. Lennox.

But conditions are not normal, and as a rule hard times mean just that for the party in power, which might be sufficient justification for assuming that the opposition will make a clean sweep on Monday.

It is being declared by Liberal speakers from every platform that such a result would force a federal election within a month or two.

Frankly The Examiner can see no reason for believing that Government defeat in all five by-elections would produce any such development.

We rather support the view of the Brantford Expositor, which refers to the situation as follows:

> "At various times, in various by-elections and by various party exponents the victory of this or that candidate has been described as containing potentialities calculated to force some existing Government to go to the country. Such talk in vulgar parlance is 'the bunk.' Any administration, within statutory limits, has the right to choose the date of appeal, and the only possible forcing is by carrying a vote of want of confidence in the House itself."

THE CUP THAT CHEERS.

Our American cousins are accustomed to have a little fun over the fondness of Canadians for drinking tea, and figures given out by the National Review would seem to indicate that there is a solid foundation for this indictment.

We are a heavy tea-consuming country, for last year we imported some 36,192,227 pounds of tea, valued at $7,389,717, and for several years before that the average was even higher, running around 40,000,000 pounds.

Indian black tea leads all others in popularity, imports of this tea last year totalling 21,509,291 pounds, valued at $4,562,633, while Ceylon black holds second place with total imports of 10,962,876 pounds. Imports from China and Japan were much lighter, the total of green tea from Japan being 2,426,355 pounds, while China contributed 644,086 pounds of black tea.

Teas shipped to Canada either from London or the producing countries are delivered into customs warehouse, and, before the importer can take delivery of the teas, samples are taken from the various chests and forwarded to an official tea examiner. The teas are tested carefully for adulteration or unfitness for public consumption. If the samples fail to conform with the customs regulations, which is not often, the entire shipment is forfeited to the Crown and destroyed.

There are two official tea testers, both of whom are attached to the Department of National Revenue, customs division. One tester is stationed at departmental headquarters, Ottawa, and the other at Winnipeg.

According to Chinese legend, the virtues of tea were discovered by the Emperor Shen-mung, 2737 B.C. From China a knowledge of tea was carried into Japan, and there, according to historical records, the cultivation was established during the 9th century.

The first known mention of tea by an Englishman was contained in a letter written from Firando-Japan, in 1615 by an agent of the East India Company. He wrote to a friend asking for "a pot of the best sort of chan." Tea began to be used in England about the middle of the 17th century, supplies being obtained from Java. Prices in England ranged from 26 to £10 a pound. In 1658 one of the first known tea advertisements in England appeared in the Mercurius Politicus. It read: "That excellent and by all physicians approved China drink called by the Chineans Teha, by other nations tay, alias tee, is sold at the Sultaness Head, a cophee-house in Sweetings Rents, by the Royal Exchange, London."

TRAINING IN TRAFFIC.

The increasing number of motor accidents in which children are the victims, seems to indicate a need for more teaching of safety rules in the schools.

In this city progress has been made along commendable lines, through the training of "school traffic officers"—older boys of the schools who take up positions on the street during hours when scholars are assembling or being dismissed to guide them over the dangerous places. It has been found that motorists as a rule respect the "authority" of these young "traffic cops," and the results have been gratifying.

It would seem, however, as if something more were needed in the instruction of children to warn them of highway dangers. We learn from the Stratford Beacon-Herald that over in the Netherlands a system has been in vogue for some time that might commend itself to authorities here and in other municipalities. This plan begins with the children to whom observance of rules and regulations is a matter of good citizenship. Their training in traffic regulations and problems is a requirement before they can become members of a traffic club of high standard. In Amsterdam alone 700 children recently took traffic tests under the supervision of the police, with the result that virtually ninety per cent. of the applicants worked out fifteen different traffic problems, made the required trips on their bicycles through the busiest sections of the city, during the most congested hours, accompanied by motor police to check up on youthful contestants, and received diplomas and badges of the State Traffic Club.

Probably something of this nature might be possible in Canada. Anything that would assist in protecting the lives of the children and in relieving the nervous strain on motorists as well is at least worthy of consideration.—Chatham News.

FACING BOTH WAYS.

A man in Orangeville is reported to have won $30,000 on a winning sweepstake ticket, and Attorney-General Roebuck has announced that the province will take steps to secure the money. There was legislation to this effect passed at the last session of the Federal Parliament, but the enforcement of the law becomes the function of the individual provinces. Provincial authorities can take action if they desire, or they can do nothing about it. Mr. Roebuck favors taking action.

It is not many days ago that the announcement was made from Queen's Park that the per diem provincial levy on racing tracks had been reduced from $5,000 to the nominal figure of one dollar. The reason was that the province did not desire to see the racing tracks close down. There was greater revenue to be made from the share of earnings which the provincial treasury would take from the pari-mutuel machines in the betting section.

So there you have two provincial problems and they cannot be put together without pieces sticking up. In one case the province is going to take the money away from a man because he won it by betting on a horse race in an outside country. It is going to demonstrate to him that such practice is wrong; he should not bet his money on a horse race and he is going to be shorn of the profits.

In the other case the provincial authorities charge race tracks one dollar per day so the tracks will remain open. When the tracks are open the pari-mutuel machines can operate, and pari-mutuel machines are there to encourage and regulate legalized betting on horse races.

Just how a Government can encourage and discourage betting is something we cannot understand.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A FUR TRADING REFORMER.

On this date in 1810, Joseph Frobisher, the Englishman from Yorkshire, who was one of the founders of the fur trade, at least as it is related to national development, died at Montreal. Born April 15, 1740, he came to Canada in 1768; his brother, Benjamin, had come in 1765; his other brother, Thomas, came in 1773. In 1774 Joseph reached the Saskatchewan, established a small trading post on the Churchill river (which he called the English river) and returned to Montreal with a rich cargo of furs. This was the first exploration by Montreal merchants into the West. This suggested to Alexander Henry, the Frobisher brothers and other traders the formation of a trading syndicate, which was the foundation of the North West Company. Joseph returned to Montreal in 1776 and in 1779 married Charlotte, daughter of Jean B. Joubert, a French surgeon.

But he did not confine his activities to trading. On November 24, 1784, a meeting was held in the Recollets' chapel at Montreal, which may well be considered the cradle of the constitutional liberties we enjoy today. A "Canadian Committee" was formed and a memorial signed by about 500, including James McGill (the founder of McGill University) and Joseph Frobisher asked for self-government. That memorial begged the king "to put an end to the disorder and confusion which at present exists in the laws and the courts of the province, which put our properties in danger, strangle trade and totally destroy that confidence which could exist, and will exist, among the population if it shall please you to grant us a constitution and a government based on stable and liberal principles and make this distreaed colony a brilliant jewel in the imperial crown of England. And future generations will agree with the present that the security and happiness of the people of the Province of Quebec depends on union with and submission to the crown and government of Great Britain."

It was not until 1792 that a legislature was granted. Joseph Frobisher was one of its first members, sitting from 1792 to 1795. His end was tragic. He retired from business in 1798 and after his death the estate was not able to pay its debts and liquidation reduced property valued at 3,765 pounds to only 126 pounds, to be divided among the family. And the succeeding Frobishers were very poor!

MANY HAVELOCK PUPILS INJURED

Over Seven Per Cent. of Enrolment Suffering Broken Bones or Sprains.

MOSTLY DONE AT SCHOOL.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, September 19. — The inference gained from a casual visit to the Havelock Continuation School, would lead one to believe the name "Hardluck" was a more appropriate name for the village than the one it now has. No less than eight students from the Continuation school classes, numbering 110 in all, are suffering from some kind of injuries. Broken bones, sprained wrists, slight fractures and what not. Talking in decimals, 7.27 of the school is incapacitated.

Queried by The Examiner Monday, it was found that eleven-year-old Marie McGuigge had her left hand and part of the forearm badly crushed in the wringer of an electric washing machine. She was helping her mother with the washing at the time. Eugene Gordon, fourteen-year-old boy, had his right arm fractured while cranking Batterson's bakery car. Thirteen-year-old Keith Pollock suffered a bad fracture of the left arm, while playing football in the school's recreation grounds. William Rose, an older student of the Upper school, had his right thumb broken in a fall while playing tennis, in preparation for the forthcoming track and field competitions. Another Upper school student, Maurice Williams, sprained his left wrist while attempting a running high jump. Bernard Bedford followed suit shortly after. Miss Norma Bullied sprained her right shoulder while descending the school stairs on the way to physical training classes. Miss Reta Leeson, last but not least, was one of those injured in the Smith Township barn dance, when the floor collapsed. Her left wrist is sprained. It was at first thought to be broken, but an X-ray examination revealed the bones intact.

A stranger to the school might easily think he was in an emergency ward of a large city hospital.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

THE TERMITES WITHIN US

The termite is a small insect, more like a cockroach than anything else, that loves the dark. He makes his home in wood and eats away until at last the timber—which may be a fence-post in the middle of the desert, but may be one of the timbers that support a home—becomes an almost hollow shell that collapses when any sudden pressure is put upon it . . . Then the termite moves out or dies . . . In the lands where the termite lives and flourishes men fight him constantly because he is their enemy . . . But some men have termites even more dangerous within their own characters. Little termites of envy, callousness, selfishness, carelessness that can make a shell of a man, even though he seems as solid as ever.

When a man suddenly collapses sometimes people say, "What a hypocrite he was! He was like that all the time and we didn't know it." . . . But that need not be true, it almost always is not true . . . A better remark might be, "The termites have been eating away in that man's character. He gave way little by little to them, not knowing how weak he had become, and then he succumbed to sudden pressure. Perhaps the termites that betrayed him are working in us, too."

Perhaps they are. But if they are it is possible for us to acquire some knowledge of their inroads into our character . . . We know our own temptations and our failures fairly well. We have a general idea of the difference between the human being we were five years ago and the one we are now. We do not carry that knowledge in the foreground of our minds all the time. But in the flashes of self realization that come to everybody occasionally we see the difference plainly. We see that in some ways we are worse, in some ways we are better. We may not know just when the termites of destruction invaded us, but we know how we feel and that awareness ought to be enough to give us a clue to the changes that have taken place in our character . . . The only wise thing is for a man to look sharply, challengingly, at himself occasionally to see what he is truly like. And then to do something about it . . . But not to take this inventory too often. Because we have plenty of other things to do.

A Thought

ASPIRATIONS

Even if you are not sure that you can become a very much better man this year, or can do something to make this a very much better world, at least you can determine that there are a few things that are good that you can do that you have not been doing, and that you can make your influence for things that are best just a little broader and more effective. And if you can do that—well, that will be so much, at least. The true man is the man at his best. A man is not most human when he is fallible and failing and falling short of his own ideals and ambitions, but rather when he is reaching up to the fine achievements of his dreams and longings. Man is the one being that aspires, and he is most man when he is most man when he is best making his aspirations realities in his actual living.

TEMPERANCE DISCUSSED AT GIRLS' CIRCLE MEETING

The September meeting of the Living Link Mission Circle of Trinity United Church was held Monday evening at the home of Grace Sargent, Sherbrooke street, and was splendidly attended.

The meeting was opened by the president, Edna Forster, who after the business portion was dispensed with turned the meeting over to Grace Patterson and group.

Devotional and temperance items were read and a very interesting letter from the Circles adopted, Missionary Miss Vera Boyd giving an interesting account of her holidays.

Useful and pretty gifts for the bale were then displayed and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Legion Holds Meeting Program Outlined

Preliminary arrangements for the Poppy Day campaign to be held on November 10 were made at the monthly meeting of Branch 52 Canadian Legion on Monday evening, when the following committee was appointed: James Abraham, chairman; Comrades Millard, Dunslow and Stanley.

The meeting was under chairmanship of President Robert Haddow, and the House Committee was instructed to draw up a program of social activities for the coming fall and winter months to include, bridge, dancing, billiard tournaments, etc.

A number of old members were present at the meeting including Past Presidents R. E. Layfield, Dr. N. H. Sutton and Arnold Everett. President Haddow and Comrade Dunslow voiced the appreciation of the Branch to Dr. Sutton who was described as a "tower of strength" in the work of the Legion. The pending departure of Dr. Sutton was keenly regretted, the speakers remarked.

Past President Layfield urged the Branch to greater endeavour and briefly outlined some of the accomplishments of the past. He eulogised the work and calibre of the members and asked them to bear in mind the need of "carrying on."

Sea fishing has ceased on the Zuyder Zee, in the Netherlands, which was cut off last year from the North Sea, and good crops are being raised on some of the reclaimed land.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 97c to 99c; oats, 35c to 36c; barley, 60c to 64c. corn, 85c to 86c; rye, 55c to 57; buckwheat, 55c to 58c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Butter and egg prices were again easier on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter brought 19¾ to 19¾ cents a pound in carlots or less in comparison with 20 cents on Monday. To retailers, small lots were 20½ cents for solids and 21½ cents for prints.

Eggs were slightly lower, graded shipments in carlots or less selling at 30 cents for A-large, 27 to 28 cents for A-medium, 21 cents for B and 19 to 19½ cents a dozen for C. Receipts were 995 cases.

Cheese was unchanged at 10 to 10¼ cents a pound for No. 1 Ontario and 9¼ to 9¾ cents for No. 1 Quebec. At the auction 450 boxes of No. 1 Quebec white sold at 9½ cents and 227 boxes of No. 1 Quebec colored at 9¾ cents a pound. Arrivals were 1,664 boxes.

On the potato market No. 1 new Quebec per 80-pound bag were 40 to 50 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Lower prices that formed the rule most of the time in the grain markets yesterday, went hand in hand with notable absence of any vigorous buying.

Leading trade authorities said the conspicuous dearth of demand from wheat purchasers, appeared to be related to uncertainties associated with United States Government refinancing operations at present under way. Likelihood of some increase of domestic winter wheat acreage for the 1935 crop acted also as a weight on the market.

Wheat closed unsettled at nearly the day's low point, ¼ to ⅜ cents under Monday's finish; December new $1.04⅛ to $1.04½; corn unchanged to ¼c lower, December new, 77½c to 77⅝c; oats unchanged to ⅛c off, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

With only a minimum of support in evidence, wheat prices sagged ½c to ⅝c on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, despite moderating of hedging pressure.

Weakness in outside markets and general drying up of buying power left the market with no incentive to climb, October wheat wound up at 82½c, December at 83¼c and May at 87⅝c.

Export sales of 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were insufficient to steady the faltering market. Weakness at Liverpool was the result of continued pressure of Argentine wheat.

The easiness in the English market outweighed the slowing up of Canadian farm deliveries on the Winnipeg market. Trade was small in volume.

Net declines at Liverpool were ¾d to 1½d. Chicago and Buenos Aires were both easier.

Cash grains were steady, but coarse grains sagged.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

HOLLINGER HITS NEW YEAR HIGH

To-day's Session on Mining Market is Best in More Than a Month.

GOLDS ARE BETTER.

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP).—Although volume tapered off this afternoon from a brisk morning trade, the gold shares of the mining list held the bulk of their early gains. The session on the whole was the best the mart has seen in a month. Hollinger scored an advance more than a point to a new high level for the year. Base metals and silvers lagged but with some small gains showing in the groups.

Hollinger swung between 20.10 and 21.75 and closed at 21.50 for a net gain of 1.50, heavy buying in this market was reported for New York account. McIntyre advanced $1 in small trade and Bralorne, Wright Hargreaves and Pioneer were up 25 to 35 cents each. Teck Hughes appeared to be still in liberal supply and although the transfer was heavy the price recorded a gain of only 2 cents. An early gain of 12 cents was hot held.

STOCKS REGAIN MORNING GAINS

Substantial Rally in First Hour Followed by Quiet Firmness.

STILL UP A POINT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP).—Stocks were firm in quiet dealings today. Following a substantial rally in the first hour, advances were largely maintained into the late trading. U. S. Smelting and Allied Chemical got up around 3 each while gains of around a point or more were shown by U. S. Steel Common and Preferred, Case, Howe Sound and American Telephone. Transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

Bonds were firm, but commodities were mostly inclined to sag. Wheat and corn dipped around a cent a bushel in the earlier dealings, and cotton, rubber and several other staples were off a trifle. U. S. Government bonds again advanced a little, and the dollar was steady in foreign exchange dealings.

Among Canadian shares, Dominion Stores rose more than a point, while fractional gains were recorded by Dome, McIntyre, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel. On the curb, Lake Shore was firm. Dominion Government 4's were a shade easier. The Canadian dollar ruled unchanged at 103 1-16 cents.

The share market moved up 1 to 3 points in a number of issues in the first hour, sagged a little in the second, then pushed up again, in light dealings.

U. S. Smelting rose 3 points, and Homestake had one of its wide moves, getting up 8, ex-dividend. Miscellaneous issues advancing a point or more included American Telephone, U. S. Steel Preferred, Du Pont, American Can, Continental Can, Johns-Manville, American Tobacco "B", Liggett and Myers "B", International Harvester, Case, Howe Sound, Cerro de Pasco, California Packing, United Fruit, Armour Preferred New, I.R.T., Santa Fe, Union Pacific and a few others.

NICKEL CENTRE OF ACTIVE LIST

Profit-taking Cuts Early Gains But Session Ends Firm.

OILS ARE ACTIVE.

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP).—An upward trend in the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange was maintained till the close today. The turnover was substantial in nickel and the oils and only fair elsewhere on the board. Some profit-taking on the morning rally shaded prices mildly in the early afternoon but the list firmed again towards the tail end of the session.

The industrial share list perked up almost from the opening with buying centred mainly in the oils, nickel and Ford "A". International Peterolum was the morning feature, rising more than a point on heavy turnover.

The rally on the New York market had a stimulating effect, particularly the metal, oil and distillery groups. Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams gained ½ to a full point and industrial Alcohol "A" firmed a fraction. Nickel and Smelters both sold higher.

Raging Circus Lion Gives Town Thriller

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 19 (AP).—Circus guards to-day shot to death a raging lion after the beast had broken open his cage in a circus parade, pulled down a wagon horse and scattered crowds in terror.

The beast ran several hundred yards down the street after Patrolman John Robert Paul had fired five times at him as he sank his fangs into the horse's neck, taking refuge in the Hankins-Johann sheet metal works. Employees fled and the doors to the building were closed. A circus guard with a high-powered rifle opened one of the doors and fired four times at the beast, whose roars could be heard in the street outside the building.

Then, accompanied by policemen, the guard entered and one of the officers finished the wounded animal with a pistol bullet.

RADIO ROOM DESERTED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Charles A. Maki, third radio operator of the liner Morro Castle, who, according to earlier testimony went to the bridge for orders and did not return, testified to-day that he went back to the wireless room on the ship at 3.30 a.m. and found it deserted.

ITALY PROTESTS.

ROME, Sept. 19 (A.P.).—The Italian Government to-night instructed its Minister in Belgrade to protest strongly to the Yugoslav Government against a "virulent" anti-Italian newspaper campaign in Yugoslavia.

Air Artillery

CAZAUX, France, Sept. 19.—(AP) — France's famous "75" has been successfully fired from an aeroplane.

Five shells were fired from one of the artillery pieces mounted in a huge bombing plane yesterday.

It was the first test flight for the "artillery plane." Afterward it was asserted that the firing was accomplished without dangerous shock or vibration.

RUSSIA TAKES HER SEAT WITH LEAGUE NATIONS

must say what we think, and we must insist on the application of any decisions that are taken."

Edouard Benes of Czechoslovakia and Captain Eden agreed. Only two or three states, said the Briton, now remained outside the agreement to prohibit the export of arms to the Chaco.

"The time has come for decision," pressed Captain Eden. "The dispute has lasted far too long."

The Council then concurred in a resolution that as the prohibition of arms af Paraguay and Bolivia had been referred by the League Assembly to its political committee there would be no advantage in its further discussion at the same time by the Council.

Russia was taken into the League family yesterday and Mixim Litvinoff announced he would offer amendments to articles of the covenant which in certain instances, he said, legalize war.

The Danger of War

An indirect denunciation of both Japan and Germany as being out to refashion Asia and Europe by the sword was read by many delegates into Litvinoff's opening speech. War must appear to all as the threatening danger of tomorrow," said Litvinoff.

Later he spoke of open promulgators of refashioning Europe and Asia by the sword.

"Soviet Russia could not but observe," said Litvinoff, "increasing activity in the League of Nations of States interested in the preservation of peace and their struggle against aggressive militarist elements. More, it noted these aggressive elements themselves were finding restrictions of the League embarrassing and were trying to shake them off."

(Both Germany and Japan have withdrawn from the League).

Encouraged by the addition of Russia to the family, leaders of the League were reported to-day to be mapping plans to induce Germany and Japan to return to the fold. An official allusion to this was made by Salvador de Madariaga of Spain in a report to the Assembly yesterday, when he asked countries "still on the threshold of the League, some of them with their faces turned in other directions," to "reflect on their situation."

YACHT CONTEST IS POSTPONED

Both yachts la ynear the committee boat, rolling slightly in the swell but with their sails hanging slack.

It was the second time in five days the wind had deserted the boats. Saturday they started but were unable to finish under the time limit and the race was declared "no contest."

Another attempt will be made tomorrow to send them away at 10:40 a.m., the scheduled starting hour.

To a hail from the committee boat as to whether he wanted to race tomorrow, T. O. M. Sopwith, skipper-owner of the Endeavour gave an affirmative answer. None was immediately forthcoming from Harold S. Vanderbilt aboard the Rainbow, but it was believed he was too far away from the Wilhelmina to read the signal hoist she put up.

Buying Very Light On Farmers' Market

There were few buyers on the farmers' market at the mid-week sale this morning. Only two women came in with butter and eggs, selling the buttey at 23 cents a pound, and the eggs, choice quality, at 20 cents a dozen.

Nine or ten stalls were arranged on the open market, with a great deal of care and time lost because of the slack selling.

Irish Cobbler potatoes could be bought this morning for 75 cents a bag. Dooleys were 80 cents and Green Mountains $1 a bag.

Swiss chard was a nickel a bunch, elderberries and chokecherries were in demand, and scarce, late red raspberries were 25 cents in quart boxes. Crabapples were 30 cents a basket, corn 15 cents a dozen little melons 3 for a dime, preserving pears 35 cents a basket, with larger specimens at 40 and 50 cents.

Little bright pumpkins came to market this morning and late beans, at 8 cents a quart. Green tomatoes sold at 50 cents a bushel.

Apples were fairly plentiful. Baxters hold at $ 1a bushel. McIntosh at 35 cents a peck. Peaches were 75 cents a basket and blue grapes 35 cents.

Probe Under Way Cheaper Farm Power

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (C.P.) — Preparations were under way today for probe which may result in Ontario farms being furnished with cheaper electric power for domestic use. R. T. Jeffery, Chief Municipal Engineer, has received orders from the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission to investigate the possibility of providing power at the rates charged companies using electrical steam producing apparatus.

Reduction would amount to perhaps one-half or one-third cent per kilowatt hour, stated T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Commission yesterday, in outlining the plan. It would be applicable to power required for modern plumbing and washing machines.

UNITED CHURCH PUTS ISSUE TO PRESBYTERIES

the commissioners agreed with the view of Mr. Carter and the principle was quickly adopted.

The question of the ministry of women was precipitated by a notification from the Saskatchewan Conference which seeks to ordain Miss Lydia Gruchy of Kelvington, Sask., now working in the northern section of the province. It was pointed out that as a result of today's action the ordination, in the event the Presbyteries concur in the suggested legislation could not be proceeded with until after the next General Council in 1936.

Go On Mission Fields

The Council recommended to student graduates of the church that they place themselves at the disposal of the Board of Home Missions with a view to spending one year or more on some Western mission field.

The Sessional Committee on Home Missions reported 14 fields in Alberta and Saskatchewan are now without ministers. The appeal for single ordained volunteers had failed, and the board had not sufficient resources to pay the salary with moving expenses of married men from the East.

Discussing the report of the Committee on Negotiations with other churches, Rev. Dr. Salem Bland doubted whether direct approach in the matter of union would accomplish a great deal. "When union comes about I believe it will come as naturally as a ripe apple drops from a tree," he said in urging that the general movement against denominationalism should be fostered by the churches.

"Those of us who desire a United Christendom the more we work together the more we shall come to a state of mind where union will come about naturally and spontaneously."

The committee in its report states: "We recognize that the evils of denominationalism are still imposing limitations on the work of the Kingdom of God and that many communities are impoverished both economically and spiritually by unseemly rivalry and overlapping of work.

"We believe that these limitation can measurably be removed by a union of the competing churches, and regard it as our bounden duty to seek to realize such union."

BELMONT FAIR BEST IN YEARS

Exhibits of High Order—Colorful School Parade is Staged.

KEEN COMPETITION.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 19.—The most favourable weather in many years featured the Belmont schools' fair held in the Havelock park on Tuesday. The crowd was probably the largest on record and the fair as a whole was much better than that put on in previous years.

The school parade was a very colorful affair and the physical training and drills and the competitive school sports proved to be most interesting.

A most impressive salute of the flag and singing of the National Anthem in unison terminated the school parade. There were numerous entries in the vegetable and grain classes and every exhibit was of high order. The garden flower exhibits were especially attractive and not in ten years have such perfect specimens been shown.

Domestic Science and manual training exhibits were of a high order and again featured by an increased number of entries.

SIR JOSEPH FLAVELLE IS NOW ACCOMPANIED BY BODYGUARD

Believed to be Private Detective — Every Car Watched.

FEAR KIDNAPPING?

Canadian Press issued the following report from the Toronto head office last night:

"Last spring Sir Joseph Flavelle, with his bowler hat and walking stick, sallied forth daily (except Sunday) from his Queen's Park residence and walked briskly to his downtown office via the park and University Avenue. It was generally about 8.40 a.m., and he was apparently unaccompanied.

"Then broke the news of the kidnapping plot against J. S. McLean, Sir Joseph's nephew by marriage. The Labatt coup followed. The walks ceased.

"Sir Joseph has now resumed his walks to the office. It is the same bowler hat and possibly the same walking stick. But right at his heels —or more than six feet away at any time—there is a stocky business-like individual with his hands casually in his coat pockets. If any other pedestrian—man or woman—gets between him and Sir Joseph, he quickly closes the gap. He takes a good eyeful of any car stalled at the curb en route. Any figures at windows of buildings attract his particular attention.

"A private detective for Sir Joseph's protection? Possibly. It is noticeable he wears a black braid down his trouser legs, suggesting a member of Sir Joseph's household staff. He may be detective and butler, too.

"At the Flavelle offices it was stated: "Sir Joseph has not informed us of any precautions for guarding him'."

Obituary

MRS. ELIZABETH SPRY

The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Spry occurred at the home of her nephew, Mr. F. H. Dearborn, 675 Bethune street, Peterborough, on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 18.

For many years Mrs. Spry was a resident of Peterborough, and was a member of Knox United Church, but in recent years has been making her home with her sister, Mrs. McTaggart in Oshawa. She leaves to mourn her loss three sisters, Mrs. William Turner, MacGregor, Man., and Mrs. Dearborn and Mrs. McTaggart, Oshawa.

The funeral will be held from the home of Mr. Dearborn, on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, to Little Lake Cemetery.

JOSEPH HENRY PRIMEAU.

Joseph Henry Primeau, well-known to older residents of Peterborough as co-operator with his late brother of one of the city's earliest-established barber shops, died at his home, 529 Rogers Street, yesterday. He was 79 years of age.

Mr. Primeau spent his entire life in this city. He was born in the little home of his late parents, Charles Primeau and Mary McGarrity, near the present site of Nicholls Oval, in 1855. With his brother John, who passed away during May this year, he established the Primeau barber shop when still a young man on the north-west corner of Hunter and George Streets, and continued in business for more than forty years. He was an active and faithful member of the Total Abstinence Society, holding the position of secretary for more than 10 years, and a member of the Holy Name Society of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Death followed a lingering illness.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. J. J. Cassidy of Saskatoon, Mrs. Aileen Cunningham of Ottawa, and Mrs. L. J. Cleary of Peterborough. Three sisters, Mrs. Rose Power and Mrs. Susie Bontelle, both of Detroit, and Mrs. Margaret Huff of Chicago, also remain. His wife predeceased him sixteen years ago.

The funeral is to be held Thursday morning, proceeding from the home to the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 8.45 a.m. Interment will take place in St. Peter's Cemetery.

HOWARD HAMMELL

The funeral service for the late Howard Hammell, of 213 Reid street, was held on Sunday afternoon, being conducted at the residence by the Rev William McDonald.

On Monday the remains were conveyed to Owen Sound where, following a brief service at Breckinridge's Undertaking Parlors conducted by the Rev. E. Kenney of the United Church, interment was made.

The large attendance of friends at the services testified to the high esteem in which the late Mr. Hammell was held.

Pall bearers were Messrs. Thomas Hall, W. J., Arthur, Donald McGregor and Alfred Laycock, all members of Owen Sound Bowling Club of which the deceased was a member, and Messrs. O. S. Matchett and Stan McCabe of Peterborough. Interment was made at Greenwood Cemetery, Owen Sound.

Spain's 1934 wheat crop of nearly 5,200,000 tons is the second largest on record.

BEAUTIFUL VIEWS OF HOLY LAND SHOWN BY STEPHEN A. HABOUSH

Musical Travelogue Be Repeated in St. Paul's Church This Evening.

IN NATIVE COSTUME.

The Mosque of Omar, built on the site of the ancient Temple of Solomon over the living rock where the steel plows of Titus, bent on the destruction of Jerusalem, met their own end in its immovable stony element, where Abraham offered sacrifice and where, for countless generations, pagan, Jew, Christian and Mohammedan have worshipped in turn, formed the picturesque conclusion to a series of lantern-slide pictures, beautifully done in technicolor, which were presented last evening in the first of a series of Musical Travelogues to be given in the city this week by Stephen A. Haboush.

The photophone synchronized music which accompanied the showing of the pictures made an appropriate setting for scenes which were extremely beautiful, in a recital termed "The Seven Wonders of Jerusalem and Galilee."

Mr. Haboush was attired in a facsimile of the native costume of Galileans in Biblical times and Madame Haboush, accompanying him, wore the dress of a girl of Galilee, with the heirloom necklace which her husband described as a treasured possession of the wives of that province and the head-band of legal tender coins which constitutes a dowry, the loss of one of which, in the parable, so moved the owner that she turned the house upside down in search.

The scenes opened with a brief introduction by Mr. Haboush, and a reference to the benefits which have been derived from the mandate exercised by Great Britain.

The ancient city of Ludd, birthplace of St. George, patron saint of England, was shown, with the opening scenes accompanied by the soft music of "In a Monastery Garden." Then came Damascus, oldest city of the world, "emerald of the desert," which for four hundred years ruled two-thirds of the then-known world, where the narrow streets are covered seasonally "with corrugated iron from Youngstown, Ohio," where the little stores, eighteen feet high, ten feet wide and seven feet deep, may be rented for ten dollars monthly, where "featureless and figureless" women, swathed in shapeless garments, pass by and where all the races of the earth meet and mingle.

The Waters of Jordan

The hidden springs that feed the River Jordan led to the blue Sea of Galilee, where only small boats can live in security because of the giant waves which at times swamp larger craft, unable to achieve sudden moorings. A glimpse of the ancient city of Tiberias, still nestling by the side of the calm waters, was vouchsafed, and then came many pictures of the sheep which are famous the world over for their silken-stranded wool with its linen texture.

The old, strong faces of the East, eyes heavy-lidded, noses chiselled, beards patriarchal in type, glanced at the audience from the screen, and here the speaker emphasized the pronunciation of the word sheik, as something that resembles "shik-ah."

For the scenes of "Springtime in Galilee," the phonographic violin murmured the music of the "Souvenir," and the passion flower that grows nowhere but in the Garden of Gethsemane (and Gethsemane, by the way, means "oil place"), flaunted its blue petals on the screen, along with other flowers of the field. Nazareth, noted as one of the most despised of the cities of the Old Law, came next; and Bethlehem, with a view of the oldest Christian church in the world, erected by Helena, mother of Constantine, the Church of the Nativity, where English oak beams, after a fire, replaced the age-old wood taken from cedars of Lebanon. Scenes in this section were accompanied by the lovely music of "Silent Night" and at this juncture, the speaker recommended to his hearers the reading of John Oxenham's "Hidden Years."

A beautifully-rendered anthem made the musical background for some exquisitely-colored scenes illustrative of the 23rd Psalm, centering about the activities of a shepherd and his flock.

A picture of General Allenby entering Jerusalem was an interesting bit, with modern glimpses of changes in the ancient place, vouchsafed by picture of the million-dollar Y.M.C.A. and the great electric power house in the City of the Seven Hills.

Here, too, was the Tower of David, near which cabs now have a stand; the Mount of Olives, with "The Palms" as an appropriate musical setting, and the superb Russian church of St. Mary Magdalene, erected by the late Czar of Russia, where, in 1920, his daughter, the Princess Elizabeth, a victim of the Bolsheviks, was interred.

For the moving scenes from the Garden of Gethsemane, where olive trees look down on the place of Christ's betrayal and agony, Schubert's immortal "Ave Maria" sounded. Here were the lovely Roses of Sharon, which King Solomon alluded to as the lilies of the field.

A glimpse of the Via Dolorosa and the Stations of the Cross was followed by interior scenes of the Church of the Holy Sepuchre and its Shrine, with "The Rosary" as a musical setting.

And then came some very interesting views of models of the ancient temples which have occupied from time to time the site of the present Mosque of Omar and its companion, the Mosque of Aksa, once the site of the Basilica of the Virgin Mary, on the edge of the Temple area which Christ so reverenced. On its border is the famous Wailing Wall.

These models, which are marvellously interesting, reproduce in miniature the ancient temples and are the work of Dr. Schick of Jerusalem, who for thirty years has been perfecting these little facsimiles of places of worship now buried in the mists of antiquity. The Mosque of Omar, thirteen hundred years old, show practically unblemished the gorgeous workmanship of bygone age in its mosaics, its alabaster tiling and the glory of its springing arches and vaulted aisles. From this Mosque issues five times a day the call of the muezzin to prayer, translated by Christian hearers into a prayer to the Almighty and His Son. An appropriate vocal solo for this series was "Open the Gates of the Temple."

Madam Haboush entertained the audience briefly by showing and explaining several items of interest; a gold cloth headdress, heavily gemmed, sold by the daughter of the King of Arabia to keep her countrymen from starvation; a carefully-woven tapestry wall hanging, and a lovely white satin tea-cloth, also embroidered.

There was a very large attendance for the opening lecture of the week's series, with several hundred people gathered in George Street United Church, where the speaker was introduced by the Rev. J. E. J. Milliyard.

THREE-QUARTERS AND TWO-THIRDS WRAPS SMART

Left, velvet evening coat; right, brown monotone woolen suit; center, white satin evening dress with velvet drape.

One of the most important lengths in suit coats this season is three-quarters. Evening coats frequently are two-thirds.

One of the best illustrations of the suit with three-quarter length coat is shown at the right of the illustration. The suit is of brown self-striped monotone woolen. The furless coat is belted, has an inverted pleat and yoke in the back, and is finished with a scarf of self-material. The rust jersey lining matches the high-neck overblouse which buttons down the back and makes an effective contrast with the brown suit.

Photographed at left is one of the new two-thirds-length evening coats that molds the silhouette to the knee, and allows the dress to flare below. It is of translucent velvet and has a corded scarf that drapes softly about the neck. The full sleeves are cuffed at the wrist.

The white satin evening dress, center, is trimmed at the off-the-shoulder neckline with royal blue velvet caught in a huge bow at the front.

You can make a dramatic entrance in this dress, and may be assured besides that you are well dressed.

My husband tells me I look ten years younger since I've been wearing M.W. Locke shoes.

Nothing etches lines into the face more surely than badly-lasted, uncomfortable shoes. A good swinging stride will clear the eye and give a transparent freshness to the skin. A famous beauty specialist has said: "If women would take more care of their feet they could spend less money on facials—and the results would be better." M.W. Locke shoes are not dowdy, old-lady shoes. They are stunning as well as comfortable.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyst for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Mary Smith, Cobourg, Ont.

Referring to your letter of September the tenth, in which you desire a few personal questions answered, I should say that the request must be limited for obvious reasons. However, during my years of study as a graphologist, I have known other ladies who write so much like you do, and who have made a great success of their lives, that I feel sure you could too, with the right encouragement. You see, your weakest point is lack of confidence, and combined with that is a very nervous temperament, a not over-robust health, and no doubt weakened eyesight. Could you not try to thank God for His goodness to you in providing a home and kind relatives? Tell yourself that your happiness lies in showing appreciation for this very kindness, and then you will notice how much more happy you become each day. You will sing, you will laugh, and finally you will develop a talent all your own. You could cultivate flowers as a hobby, and join clubs and entertain societies in order to create new friends and help you overcome your nervousness.

You refer to educational limitations in your letter, and I would advise you to obtain a good dictionary, and try to learn the use and pronunciation of words, this will give you confidence in yourself. Then read the newspaper every day and try to remember the special news, so that your conversation will be interesting. Next; and a very important item too, is your choice of material and color in dress, and your daily care of hair and skin.

If you spend a great deal of time in the kitchen, make your biscuits "The best biscuits"; your cakes the most delicious ever baked and soon your fame will spread like a radio wave and there will be no need for you to leave your small corner in search for green pastures.

In order to encourage you, I want to tell you that my very best friend writes exactly like you do, yet she is a person with a charming personality and an excellent memory. She has gone successfully through the chairs of two fraternities. She is an especially good cook, she adores gardening and takes most of the first prizes at the fairs throughout the eastern townships. She plays the piano, sings and dresses to suit her type. She is kind and loving and sympathetic and above all adaptable. All these characteristics can be yours also—why not make them yours?

Harriett Roberts, 310 Aylmer St., City.

Your handwriting reveals versatility and impulsiveness. You seem to be a creature of many moods, and quite likely to change your temperament according to weather.

Your capitals suggest artistic yearning, but a state of uncertainty of mind keeps you unsettled in your desires. Your enthusiasm wanes if a project or undertaking necessitates too much of your time and energy.

You should, if possible, try to conserve your strength, for at present you appear to be rather subject to nervousness, especially when under undue pressure. You are energetic and capable of understanding the nature of others, much more sincerely and deeply than people can that are older and more mature, because you are sensitive to hurt.

You have a natural sense of good humor, and can usually see the funny side to most questions or situations.

I think you are a little inclined to be forgetful, and that you find it difficult to concentrate upon one subject for long at a time. This, however, does not detract from your merit, because you have so many good points to make up for it which are far more valuable. Your general character is good, loving and kind.

Your lucky number is 22, which is a super number and should assist you in all things which inspire you. Your birthsign is Virgo the Virgin. You are ruled by Mercury, which creates a high mentality. Your most fortunate months are February and November. Wednesday is the best day for important undertakings.

Margaret McAllister,
204 Richmond St., West,
Toronto, Ontario.

Your handwriting reveals many interesting characteristics. It tells of secretiveness, or a natural inborn shyness in expressing your emotions.

You are loving and kind, perhaps a little too sympathetic at times, then not sympathetic enough.

Your emotions depend upon the people with whom you are dealing at the moment. If they appeal to you, it is quite all right, but if not, you refuse to be wheedled into believing everything is lovely.

Your 't' bar crossings are not as strong as one with your character should possess, for they represent insufficient will-power.

However, as your downstrokes are strong and firm I think I can safely say that the trait is counter-balanced, and that your will-power is about normal.

Anything of an artistic nature should appeal to you. You have an analytical mind and are keenly interested in current events. Your capital letters portray an interest in music. The very small writing illustrates the ability to 'mind your own business', which is a very good characteristic when combined with your other qualifications. Your disposition is usually about the same, but there is a mysterious air attendant to your personality which is most intriguing.

Joan Kennedy,
127 Pearson Ave.,
Toronto, Ontario.

The writing as indicated on your sample shows many artistic tendencies. Your capitals all reveal fastidiousness and no doubt you are very choice in your manner of dress and prefer the very best of materials both in price and in quality for your wardrobe.

The smaller letter formations indicate a natural reserve which is typically you for you endeavour to keep your personal affairs to yourself. You are not selfish, neither are you mean, but most emphatically cautious. The easy flowing script illustrates genuine friendliness, poise and a gracious personality. You carry yourself with an air of distinction and according to your capital 'J' should be a leader in a social sphere, though I am rather afraid that you will not grant yourself this privilege due to your reserve.

Work of a secretarial nature should interest you because you could follow routine and detail to perfection and would not mind being under supervision. You respect authority at all times.

Intelligence is noted throughout the main body of your writing and you belong to the mental type. Strenuous physical activity should be guarded against for although you are not a weakling, your constitution is not as robust as you would like it to be.

Sympathetic vibrations upset you mentally when you are among sick people. Your 't' bar crossings show normal will-power so there is no logical reason why you should not make a success of your life.

Albert Johnson, Hastings, Ont.

Your handwriting describes you as a good hearted individual, easily led by those for whom you care. You have executive ability and should grasp the opportunity to express yourself as capable of attending to business affairs.

There is no reason why you should not make a success of your life, provided you do not let others interfere with your affairs.

You are the owner of a fairly good temper, but once in a while you do have to give way to your emotions—don't you? Although you calm down very quickly afterwards.

Your capitals express the idea that you are kindhearted. You appear to be easily excited when trying to arrive at a definite conclusion, for it is hard for you to make up your mind. You say that you are undecided as to what line of work you are best suited for, and at present you are certainly not in your correct environment for farming was not intended for you. I should suggest entering a class at night school in which you could learn something about mechanical engineering or draughting for you have ability in that line and plenty of talent with which to obtain success. I am glad to note that you are cautious and desire to keep one position until you have found another; discretion is one of your best characteristics. Your 't' bars with their looped up terminals show persistence and this will assist you greatly in the future. I admire your courage and hope that it will not be long before you find the right type of work to which you are adapted.

You ask if I find any particular faults or talents illustrated in your writing and my answer is: Many talents are depicted and your biggest fault seems to be rather a stubborn temper but this can be overcome. Can't it?

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

Your Health

by DR. LOGAN CLENDENING

For the latter two meals of the day—lunch and dinner—our natural diet—that is, the normal diet that average people eat—will consist of soup, meat, one or two vegetables, a salad and a dessert. For many people lunch and dinner are more or less close duplications of each other. For others lunch is a very skimpy affair, consisting of a salad and a cup of coffee; or fruit; or a sandwich and a glass of milk.

At any rate, we will consider just one meal, assuming the other one to be similar, and therefore not requiring separate discussion.

The soup may or may not have any nutritional value. A clear soup—bouillon—has none. Its value is as a stimulant to digestion—arouses interest through smell and taste, and starts the digestive juices. Heavier soups—cream soups, stock soups, cucumber soup, stews, vegetable and oyster stews—may have almost enough nutritional value for a full meal. They are easily digested and relieve fatigue, just the thing after a hard day's work.

Next the moot question of meat. Is meat part of the natural diet of man? Some think not and restrict themselves to vegetables, getting their animal protein out of milk and eggs.

On the contrary, it is quite certain that man's digestive apparatus is well designed for the use of meat. Even including the teeth, which are more canine than ruminant in structure. The digestive juices of the stomach are exclusively for the purpose of protein digestion. And one of the most important digestive enzymes of the pancreas is for the same purpose, carrying out protein digestion in the intestine.

So much for digestion. For nutrition—the use of foods for building materials in the body—there is even stronger evidence in favor of meat. The body must have proteins for building materials. Now proteins are made up of a combination of chemical structures known as amino-acids. The vegetable proteins—found in peas and beans and corn and wheat and nuts—contain certain aminoacids, but consistently are lacking in certain amino-acids found in animal proteins. And these latter are absolutely essential for the growth and maintenance of animal bodies. (And the body cannot build these from other chemicals. They must be furnished completely formed in the diet.)

To illustrate, two of these amino-acids, named tryptophane and lysine, are certainly essential in this sense. If young rats are fed exclusively on zein, an amino-acid found in vegetables, as the sole protein food, and a sufficient diet in all other respects, they not only cease to grow, but begin to lose weight. If now tryptophane is added to this diet they maintain their weight. If lysine is now added they begin to increase in growth and weight at a normal rate.

Of course, these essential amino-acids can be found in milk and eggs. But for most of us the most economical place to obtain them is from meat, and we must conclude that meat is part of a natural diet.

UNITED PRESBYTERIES TO VOTE UPON ORDINATION OF WOMEN

Rev. E. H. Oliver Leads Proponents of Move at General Council.

BOARD UNION OPPOSED.

(By H. H. Gordon, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP)—Reports of sessional committees were taken up by the General Council of the United Church of Canada to-day. The business committee have decided on lengthy sessions in order to deal with the heavy volume of business that awaits the council's consideration.

Of outstanding interest in yesterday's sessions was the discussion on the question of the ordination of women to the ministry of the church. Following the refusal of the Law and Legislation Committee to entertain the legality of the proposed ordination of Miss Lydia Gruchy of Kelvington, Sask., by the Saskatchewan Conference on the ground that the constitution recognized only a male ministry, Very Rev. E. H. Oliver appealed for the recognition of women.

The Council finally adopted a resolution by the former Moderator by which the question of the ordination of women will be referred to the various Presbyteries for their consideration and judgment and report under the Barrier Act to the executive of the General Council which will require the answer "Yes" or "No."

Proposals for the amalgamation of various boards were turned down by Council and on an amendment by Very Rev. T. Albert Moore, retiring Moderator, the amount of the appropriation to the Pension Fund from the Missionary and Maintenance Fund for the years 1934 and 1934 was limited to $245,000. The Board of Pensions had recommended $275,000 should be appropriated.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

PLAYING SAFE.

A careful player determines the most dangerous situation, to play that with particular care, just as the declarer of the hand shown today was obliged to do, in order to go game on a very generous contract. East's and South's play afford excellent examples of sound strategy.

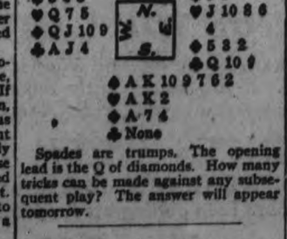
It was the second hand. North having made 4-diamonds on the first hand only 20 points were required for game by his side. Bidding went: South, 1-club; East, 1-spade; South, 2-clubs; West, 3-spades; East, 4-spades, which South doubled.

Not wanting to lead away from the tenaces in minor suits, nor from the K of hearts, South's opening lead was his top spade, telling the declarer just about what South held.

The 2 of spades was retained in dummy, for possible future use, and East's Q won. It was quite clear that South held the major tenace in clubs, with both missing kings. Perhaps he also held the J of diamonds. In which case East must lose 2 tricks in that suit, as well as a club and a heart trick, unless the declarer played with great care.

A club was led through South. The ace won the first defensive trick. Dummy's K of clubs won the third trick. The 7 of spades was overtaken with the K. Dummy used the 10 of spades to ruff declarer's last club.

With the K-10-9-8 of hearts against him it was evident that East had to lose a trick in that suit, play his cards as he would. The ace of hearts was led. Then a small heart was led. East's J was captured with South's K. Back came a heart and the declarer won his sixth trick of the 8 played. He could afford to lose only a single other trick. He led his Q of diamonds, giving opponents their third and last trick. South had either to lead a diamond, up to the A-10, or allow one hand to ruff a club, the other to discard a diamond.



Spades are trumps. The opening lead is the Q of diamonds. How many tricks can be made against any subsequent play? The answer will appear tomorrow.

Be Beautiful

Historians claim that the wife of that famous Roman emperor, Marcus Aurelius, had three hundred differently coifed wigs. The empress, apparently, had rather a yen for variety. And I don't think that she was any different, in that respect, than we moderns. For we, too, like to vary our coiffures now and then.

As I told you recently, it's a good plan to experiment with different coiffures occasionally. And the present time is really ideal, for the new coiffures and hats designed for fall are out. The hair stylists have quite outdone themselves this time. And they've turned out some of the most charming and individualistic coiffure styles I've ever seen.

In one of the most charming of the new coiffures, the hair is parted on the side, and softly waved away from the face. After the last wave, the hair is combed back over each ear so that just about half the ear is exposed. Then this hair, with the hair at the back of the head, is fashioned into numerous brush curls. And when the hair is properly combed out, these soft, fluffy curls cover the back of the head from the hairline on up midway to the crown.

In another charming coiffure the hair is parted a little to the right of the center, and brought back off the ears in soft waves. A fringe of tiny, fluffy curls is arranged over the upper part of the forehead, and the ends in back are formed into soft ringlets. These ringlets are then pinned about an inch above the neckline, so that they form what is sometimes called an avalanche at the back of the head. This coiffure is best for evening wear, but can be modified by eliminating the avalanche of ringlets, and forming the hair at the back into a soft roll from ear to ear.

A third individualistic coiffure eliminates any parting. The hair is all smoothly slicked straight back from the forehead, and fastened at the nape of the neck. There the ends are fashioned into fluffy brush curls. From these curls, all along the edge of the straight hair up to each temple, small, tendrily sculpture curls are then fashioned, in order to relieve the severity of the coiffure, and to lend the face softness.

A pleasant event of last evening was a kitchen and pantry shower held jointly by the choir and Gleaners Bible Class of Mark street United Church, in the Sunday School auditorium in honor of Miss Mabel Reynolds of the office staff of the Canadian Department Stores, whose wedding takes place on Thursday in Mark street Church. About sixty guests were present. The rooms were tastefully decorated with large white bells and streamers of pink and white. The bride-elect received a large number of lovely and useful gifts and was also the recipient of a beautiful butterfly wing table, the gift of the choir to Miss Reynolds, who has been a faithful member of several years. The table was presented by Mr. L. Agnew, accompanied by an address read by Mrs. B Morrison, expressing the best of wishes to the bride-elect, who made a suitable acknowledgment. Dainty refreshments were served from a table centered by an imitation three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom. Mrs. H. Hunter and Mrs. A. Andrus were in charge of the service. The evening's program commenced with community singing led by the Rev. C. D. Daniel with Mr. Harold Kitney at the piano. A signal from an alarm clock started the hunt for the gifts in the shower. The bride-elect searched for the clock and found it on the platform where the presents were also concealed, arranged on two long tables forming a V, with a chair for the guest of honor in the wider opening and a large basket of flowers placed at the V joint.

Mix crumbs with sugar, cinnamon and butter. Press the corn flake pastry firmly into an 8-inch pie tin.

Canned fruits, sometimes monotonous, become more interesting when served with cookies. The spicy flavor and crispness of this cookie make it a perfect accompaniment for bland fruits such as pears, peaches, or Queen Anne cherries. It may be difficult to keep the cookie jar full, but you can roll the dough in wax paper and keep it for days in the refrigerator, baking the cookies as you need them.

Tigers Defeat Yankees - Giants Retain Margin

SCHOOLBOY ROWE SUPREME AGAIN AS HE REGISTERS 23RD VICTORY

Greenberg Homers and Rowe Wallops in Other Run in the 2-0 Triumph.

ALLOWS SIX HITS.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer)

Detroit Tigers were credited today with another of the season's outstanding baseball feats as they continued their career toward the American League pennant. They not only had beaten the challenging Yankees twice put they had shut them out two days in succession as they built their lead up to 7½ games.

That stunt hadn't been done in over five years, not since the Browns inflicted three whitewashings in a row on the Yanks back in 1929. Following Al Crowder's six-hit, 3-0, triumph Monday, young Lynwood Rowe came through yesterday to limit the New Yorkers to another sextette of blows and win 2-0. That left the Tigers needing only two more decisions over the Yanks or four more victories regardless of the outcome of all New York's games, to clinch the flag.

Fifth Over New York

Rowe, winning his 24th victory of the year and his fifth over New York, was in superb form. He didn't give a walk in his duel with Charley Ruffing, never gave more than one hit an inning, struck out seven and let only one man reach third. In addition he batted in the second run with a fifth-inning single after Hank Greenberg had started the scoring in the fourth with his 35th homer of the season.

In the National League the Giants found the going a bit tougher and failed to gain, although the second-place Cardinals were kept idle by rain at Boston. The Giants split a double-header with the last place Reds, winning the second game 4-3 with the aid of Mel Ott's 35th circuit swat and a couple of walks off Allyn Stout that forced in runs. Cincinnati took the 10-inning opener 2-0 when Chick Hafey broke up a mound duel between Benny Frey and Fred Fitzsimmons by clouting a home run.

Pitching Feats.

The third place Cubs also broke even, beating the Phillies 7-3 with a 12-hit attack in the opener but losing the second clash 8-1 when Phil Collins granted them only five blows.

The pitching feats the league leaders seems faded out considerably when compared to Buck Newsom's stunt of pitching a one-hit game for the Browns and losing it 2-1 to the Red Sox. The hit, a single by Roy Johnson, followed a pair of walks in the 10th inning and brought in the winning run. Two more passes, an error and a fielder's choice accounted for the earlier Boston tally.

Phillies Fall.

The combined efforts of the Athletics and the Indians sent Philadelphia into sixth place in the American League standing and Washington down to seventh. Behind Bill Dietrich's six-hit elbowing, the A's pounded out a 6-0 triumph over the White Sox while Cleveland downed the Senators twice, 5-4 and 9-6. The opener went 12 innings before Milton Galatzer's triple decided the fray, while in the afterpiece the Senators started with a five-run burst only to have Cleveland equal it.

Brooklyn Dodgers did the day's heaviest hitting when they drove 17 blows to all corners of the lot in the course of beating the Pirates 9-4.

RACKETEERING IN BOXING

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—Evidence of racketeering in amateur boxing was given at the annual meeting of the N.B.A. completed yesterday at the King Edward when a warning was issued to the American A.A.U. of C. that unless conditions are cleaned up the control of amateur boxing would be taken over by the national association. Proof that the amateur boxers were amateur in name only was given.

Umpire Attacked In Oshawa Game

OSHAWA, Sept. 19—Oshawa New Service Cleaners and Toronto Orange Crush played to a three-all tie, in the first game of the fourth round O.A.S.A. playdowns at Motor City Stadium here last night. The game was called in the first of the ninth on account of darkness.

Bad feeling existed between the two teams for the last five frames and when Umpire Reg Fair called the game in the first of the ninth with the visiters leading 5 to 2, the Toronto players milled around the umpire while one of the players struck the umpire in the face.

PETES WILL BE FULL STRENGTH

Local Champs in Fine Fettle for Game With Scarboro Grads.

IN ARMOURIES TO-NIGHT.

Scarboro Grads are here tonight at 8.15 in the Armouries to play the local Kiwanis lacrosse team in the first game of their O.A.L.A. home-and-home series—this series being either quarter-finals or Ontario semi-finals, depending on whether or not Cornwall drops out. It should be a great struggle with the Kiwanis facing by far the toughest opposition they have met all year. A huge crowd is expected to pack the Armouries for what should be a thrilling, red-hot box lacrosse encounter with both teams out, not only to win, but to pile up a lead.

The Grads are pretty much the same team as that of Rouge Hill which met the Petes two years ago. They have improved a great deal, added a number of stalwart and experienced players, and are coached by T. Johnston, a former teammate of Connacher, Cotton, Reeve, etc. The players and their sweater numbers follow: Goal, A. Hurd (1); defence, T. Johnston (3); W. Marsh (12); rover, C. Hurd (2); wings, F. Donnelly (8), F. Stibbard (9); centre, W. Hawes (13); alternates, S. Prosser (6), E. Prosser (7), W. Crooks (15), E. Prudham (4), G. Coles (5), A. Stevenson (10), B. Thacker (14).

The locals' lineup in all probability will be: Goal, R. Creighton; defence, Cadd and Miller; rover, Hatton; wings, King and Bovin; centre, Dundas; alternates, Magee, Routley, McConnell, Lebarr, Jones, E. Creighton and Meyette. The return game will be in Toronto Friday.

Above are presented the additions to Ottawa Rough Riders for the coming season who it is expected will give the capital city grid squad a real threat in the pigskin punting race. All are newcomers to the Rough Riders with the exception of Ellowitz who starts his second season in Ottawa. Meiers was regular centre for Michigan State three years. Stands five feet eleven inches and weighs 200 pounds. Kowalik, from University of Michigan goes five pounds above that and will wear sweater number nine. Chris. Schearer hails from University of Detroit. He tips the beam at 165 pounds, while Bernard McNutt is another 200 pounder but is rated as a "ten-second" man. This speedster was captain of Michigan State last year and has been mentioned for All-American teams. Jack Derbyshire, who made his way to Ottawa from the Militia team of Winnipeg, may feel a bit lonely among this collection of American talent, but he comes to eastern football with a high rating from the west. They expect his two hundred pounds will make things interesting as a middle wing.

HAMMOND LEADS BATTERS

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(C.P. Cable) — Walter Hammond, the master batsman from Gloucestershire, strengthened his position as the leading regular English batsman in the cricket season which ended yesterday. A year ago Hammond led the averages with 67.81 runs an inning but this season he scored 2,366 runs for an average of 76.32.

Hammond's average was topped by the Nawab of Pataudi, but the dusky star played in less than half as many matches as Hammond.

El Goofy Ranks as Leading Hurler Although Has "Forgotten Man" Roles

Amply qualified for one of those "forgotten man" roles is Vernon Gomes, generally called El Goofy by New York baseball writers.

The Gomez has been doing a neat job of work on the mound for the faltering New York Yankees this season, but he's been somewhat forgotten in the sense that he has been getting little publicity in the matter as compared to some of his peers.

Many a liquid phrase has flown through sport department typewriter mills this season detailing the deeds of Schoolboy Rowe, Dizzy Dean and other of El Goofy's pitching contemporaries. But Gomez has been doing some great work gone unnoticed in other than New York newspaper headlines.

As this is written, for instance, Gobes leads both big leagues in the matter of victories. He is headed for the best seasop of his sparkling career. He has had a string of consecutive victories—10—which was topped only by Rowe's sensational 16.

What makes the number of Gomez wins most impressive is that only one was a relief job. That means Lefty didn't build his string through any one-inning lucky breaks.

Also, as this is written, Gomez leads in total innings pitched and total strikeouts and most complete games pitched. He is also tied for total shutouts—a matter of five, which honor he shares with Charley Ruffin, a teammate.

The string-bean Gomez qualifies for the title of the Thin Man of the Majors, but his emaciated frame—he has less than 160 pounds scattered over his length of six feet one inch—packs more power and punch than any other pitcher today.

NAPANEE WINS CLOSE VICTORY

Behind Tommy Pointer Defeat Copper Cliff 4-3 in Third Game.

SOLID CLOUTING.

NAPANEE, Sept. 19. — Gibbard Athletics, backing up their ace left-hander, Tommy Pointer with some real solid clouting, eliminated Copper Cliff here yesterday afternoon by taking a 4 to 3 victory in the third and deciding game of their O.B.A.A. intermediate "A" second round playoff series. The game was typical of championship baseball and the big crowd saw a close battle.

Pointer, who won the first game of the series Saturday, 10 to 2, not allowing an earned run, was not as stingy with his hits as usual and hard at times, but he had his ball the fighting northerners pressed him nipping the corners for 13 strikeouts and only passed two. Bruno Taus, a son of Italy, who started for Copper Cliff, was trying the iron man stunt following his three-hit 1 to 0 win of Monday, but he was not so hot, and the Athletics touched him for two hits and two runs in the first innings.

With Windsor and Southampton Western finalists it is not yet definitely known how the final series will be arranged.

"Smart Money" of Big Shot Wagerers Has Detroit Favorites Over Giants

It is an item worth noting that even before they have cinched the American league pennant the Detroit Tigers have been made the favorite by the big shot wagerers along Broadway.

"Smart money" thinks the Tigers are seven-to-five. "Smart money" has been wrong so often (example: the wise guys laid plenty last spring it would be either the Yanks or Senators) that little importance should be place on these odds.

However, a study of the respective strengths and weaknesses of the New York Giants and the Tigers revealed against different opposition (there's the hitch in trying to guess a world series winner) indicates that the Tigers may have a seven-to-five edge, at that.

The Detroit Tigers are favored to win the world series because they have a decided edge in batting and fielding. The New York Giants may have a better pitching staff but they have no Schoolboy Rowe. The Tigers have more strength behind the plate and they, and not the Giants, have the same hustling spirit which carried the New Yorks over rough spots last year. And—this may be the most important factor in a short series—the Tigers are the best base running team in baseball and the Giants are the weakest in either league along that line.

Do you still think New York will win the world series? O.K. Have it your own way.

INTERSCHOLASTIC RUGBY LEAGUE WILL HAVE FOUR STRONG TEAMS

Peterborough Collegiate, Oshawa and Lindsay in Senior Grouping.

TEAMS WORKING OUT.

The P.C.I. senior gridders have been grouped this fall with the same teams as made up their last year, Belleville, Oshawa and strong interscholastic rugby league Lindsay. While the Belleville team had no representative at the meeting in Lindsay Monday night, the club has been invited to join again and it is expected in shortly. Peterborough juniors are grouped with Lindsay, all junior teams in Central Ontario this autumn being formed into two-team groups, the winners playing off. The opening date set for play is Saturday, September 29th, and the schedule will be announced in a few days.

With the senior grouping last year generally considered satisfactory, the Peterborough, Oshawa and Lindsay representatives were agreeable to a continuation of it this year. Coach Shiels and his Belleville Collegiate team—winners last fall—are expected to join again. The Lakeshore group of schools declined to have anything to do with these teams and insisted upon staying in intermediate company, forming a group consisting of Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Whitby.

Three Junior Groups

Again in junior competition this Lakeshore section—which has more votes combined than the remaining schools—was against travelling too far and somewhat hesitant also about meeting teams from larger schools. It was finally decided to form three two-team groups with the teams in each group playing a home-and-home schedule, the winners meeting in semi-final and final playoffs. Lindsay and Peterborough were drawn together in this section. The P.C.I. home dates could not be arranged at this meeting as they were waiting to see how long the Peterborough baseball team would be using Riverside Park.

Coach H. L. Bamforth of the P.C.I. Seniors is working out nightly at the Oval with a good squad. Marsh, Jopling, Parnell, Ascott, Archibald, Dunkley, Sedgewick and Beatty of last year's team are all out again with the team and a number of the more promising former juniors and intermediates, including: Pulkinghorn, Woods, D. McPherson, Wilson, Barnard, the Clark brothers, Gardino and Patterson. More weight will be a noticeable feature of this fall's Garnet and Gray first-string squad, while the speed and science of former seasons will again be stressed. This team is shaping up well and should make a real showing in a strong group.

Agreement Fails On Boston Arena

BOSTON, Sept. 19 (AP)—Efforts of Boston Bruins National hockey team to effect a satisfactory lease with Boston Garden for the coming season proved fruitless yesterday.

Frank Calder, president of the N.H.L., made an unexpected visit here and with Art Ross', Bruins' boss, conferred with George V. Brown, manager of the Garden.

The Bruins, the Boston Globe said last night, were believed to have proposed that they pay 25 per cent of the gross, and bonuses above a certain figure.

TORONTO TO SEE FIRST OF SERIES

Leafs and Rochester Will Begin Championship Battle To-night.

PITCHING WINS.

NEW YORK, eSpt. 19. (CP). — Toronto Maple Leafs and Rochester Red Wings will open a best four-out-of-seven series to-night to determine which shall represent the International Baseball League against the American Association champions in the Little World Series.

The first two games will be played at Toronto to-night and to-morrow night; the next three at Rochester, and the last two, if that many are necessary, at Toronto.

Maple Leafs, who finished third during the regular season, had qualified for the finals Monday night by defeating Newark, loop champions, in the seventh and decisive game of their series, Monday night. Last night Rochester clinched the other berth in the finals by defeating the Albany Senators 3-1 for their fourth victory in five games. Rochester finished second during the regular season and Albany fourth.

Fine pitching by Pete (Jablonowski) Appleton principally was responsible for Rochester's decisive victory. The right-hander allowed eight hits but kept them well-spaced, walked no one and fanned 11. His starting foe was Darrell (Cy) Blanton and for the second time in the series the Albany strikeout king was chased from the premises before the game was over.

Rochester opened the scoring in the second on doubles by Moore and Mills but Albany tied it up in the Senator half of the same frame when Bill Brubaker doubled, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Hal Finney's single.

Blanton went out of there in the fourth. He started the frame by fanning Mize and Moore but Mills got his second double and went to third on Tommy Carey's infield single. Lewis' single sent one run in and Appleton's scratch hit scored another and sent Blanton to the showers. Bill Harris came in and limited the wings to two hits in the last 5 1/3 innings. One of these was a single by Mills, the "buster's" third hit of the game.

A huge crowd is expected to pack the Armouries for what should be a thrilling, red-hot box lacrosse encounter with both teams out, not only to win, but to pile up a lead.

The Grads are pretty much the same team as that of Rouge Hill which met the Petes two years ago. They have improved a great deal, added a number of stalwart and experienced players, and are coached by T. Johnston, a former teammate of Connacher, Cotton, Reeve, etc. The players and their sweater numbers follow: Goal, A. Hurd (1); defence, T. Johnston (3); W. Marsh (12); rover, C. Hurd (2); wings, F. Donnelly (8), F. Stibbard (9); centre, W. Hawes (13); alternates, S. Prosser (6), E. Prosser (7), W. Crooks (15), E. Prudham (4), G. Coles (5), A. Stevenson (10), B. Thacker (14).

The locals' lineup in all probability will be: Goal, R. Creighton; defence, Cadd and Miller; rover, Hatton; wings, King and Bovin; centre, Dundas; alternates, Magee, Routley, McConnell, Lebarr, Jones, E. Creighton and Meyette. The return game will be in Toronto Friday.

Upper left—Jack Derbyshire, middle wing. Upper centre — Francis 'Buddy' Meiers, centre and guard. Upper right—John Kowalik plays inside wing. Lower left — Chris. Schearer, a smart halfback. Lower centre—Bernard McNutt, sprinting fullback. Lower right — Abe Ellowitz, another star fullback and probably 1934 captain.

Above are presented the additions to Ottawa Rough Riders for the coming season who it is expected will give the capital city grid squad a real threat in the pigskin punting race. All are newcomers to the Rough Riders with the exception of Ellowitz who starts his second season in Ottawa. Meiers was regular centre for Michigan State three years. Stands five feet eleven inches and weighs 200 pounds. Kowalik, from University of Michigan goes five pounds above that and will wear sweater number nine. Chris. Schearer hails from University of Detroit. He tips the beam at 185 pounds, while Bernard McNutt is another 200 pounder but is rated as a "ten-second" man. This speedster was captain of Michigan State last year and has been mentioned for All-American teams. Jack Derbyshire, who made his way to Ottawa from the Militia team of Winnipeg, may feel a bit lonely among this collection of American talent, but he comes to eastern football with a high rating from the west. They expect his two hundred pounds will make things interesting as a middle wing.

HAMMOND LEADS BATTERS

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(C.P. Cable) — Walter Hammond, the master batsman from Gloucestershire, strengthened his position as the leading regular English batsman in the cricket season which ended yesterday. A year ago Hammond led the averages with 67.81 runs an inning but this season he scored 2,366 runs for an average of 76.32.

Hammond's average was topped by the Nawab of Pataudi, but the dusky star played in less than half as many matches as Hammond.

El Goofy Ranks as Leading Hurler Although Has "Forgotten Man" Roles

Amply qualified for one of those "forgotten man" roles is Vernon Gomes, generally called El Goofy by New York baseball writers.

The Gomez has been doing a neat job of work on the mound for the faltering New York Yankees this season, but he's been somewhat forgotten in the sense that he has been getting little publicity in the matter as compared to some of his peers.

Many a liquid phrase has flown through sport department typewriter mills this season detailing the deeds of Schoolboy Rowe, Dizzy Dean and other of El Goofy's pitching contemporaries. But Gomez has been doing some great work gone unnoticed in other than New York newspaper headlines.

As this is written, for instance, Gobez leads both leagues in the matter of victories. He is headed for the best seasop of his sparkling career. He has had a string of consecutive victories—10—which was topped only by Rowe's sensational 16.

What makes the number of Gomez wins most impressive is that only one was a relief job. That means Lefty didn't build his string through any one-inning lucky breaks.

Also, as this is written, Gomez leads in total innings pitched and total strikeouts and most complete games pitched. He is also tied for total shutouts—a matter of five, which honor he shares with Charley Ruffin, a teammate.

The string-bean Gomez qualifies for the title of the Thin Man of the Majors, but his emaciated frame—he has less than 160 pounds scattered over his length of six feet one inch—packs more power and punch than any other pitcher today.

NAPANEE WINS CLOSE VICTORY

Behind Tommy Pointer Defeat Copper Cliff 4-3 in Third Game.

SOLID CLOUTING.

NAPANEE, Sept. 19. — Gibbard Athletics, backing up their ace left-hander, Tommy Pointer with some real solid clouting, eliminated Copper Cliff here yesterday afternoon by taking a 4 to 3 victory in the third and deciding game of their O.B.A.A. intermediate "A" second round playoff series. The game was typical of championship baseball and the big crowd saw a close battle.

Pointer, who won the first game of the series Saturday, 10 to 2, not allowing an earned run, was not as stingy with his hits as usual and hard at times, but he had his ball the fighting northerners pressed him nipping the corners for 13 strikeouts and only passed two. Bruno Taus, a son of Italy, who started for Copper Cliff, was trying the iron man stunt following his three-hit 1 to 0 win of Monday, but he was not so hot, and the Athletics touched him for two hits and two runs in the first innings.

With Windsor and Southampton Western finalists it is not yet definitely known how the final series will be arranged.

Ralph Winegarner, Indians—Batted in three runs in doubleheader against Senators as pinch hitter and pitcher.

Don Hurst, Cubs, and Phil Collins, Phillies—Hurst made four hits in first game; Collins held Cubs to five hits in second.

"Smart Money" of Big Shot Wagerers Has Detroit Favorites Over Giants

It is an item worth noting that even before they have cinched the American league pennant the Detroit Tigers have been made the favorite by the big shot wagerers along Broadway.

"Smart money" thinks the Tigers are seven-to-five. "Smart money" has been wrong so often (example: the wise guys laid plenty last spring it would be either the Yanks or Senators) that little importance should be place on these odds.

However, a study of the respective strengths and weaknesses of the New York Giants and the Tigers revealed against diferent opposition (there's the hitch in trying to guess a world series winner) indicates that the Tigers may have a seven-to-five edge, at that.

The Detroit Tigers are favored to win the world series because they have a decided edge in batting and fielding. The New York Giants may have a better pitching staff but they have no Schoolboy Rowe. The Tigers have more strength behind the plate and they, and not the Giants, have the same hustling spirit which carried the New Yorks over rough spots last year. And—this may be the most important factor in a short series—the Tigers are the best base running team in baseball and the Giants are the weakest in either league along that line.

Do you still think New York will win the world series? O.K. Have it your own way.

INTERSCHOLASTIC RUGBY LEAGUE WILL HAVE FOUR STRONG TEAMS

Peterborough Collegiate, Oshawa and Lindsay in Senior Grouping.

TEAMS WORKING OUT.

The P.C.I. senior gridders have been grouped this fall with the same teams as made up their last year, Belleville, Oshawa and strong interscholastic rugby league Lindsay. While the Belleville team had no representative at the meeting in Lindsay Monday night, the club has been invited to join again and it is expected in shortly. Peterborough juniors are grouped with Lindsay, all junior teams in Central Ontario this autumn being formed into two-team groups, the winners playing off. The opening date set for play is Saturday, September 29th, and the schedule will be announced in a few days.

With the senior grouping last year generally considered satisfactory, the Peterborough, Oshawa and Lindsay representatives were agreeable to a continuation of it this year. Coach Shiels and his Belleville Collegiate team—winners last fall—are expected to join again. The Lakeshore group of schools declined to have anything to do with these teams and insisted upon staying in intermediate company, forming a group consisting of Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Whitby.

Three Junior Groups

Again in junior competition this Lakeshore section—which has more votes combined than the remaining schools—was against travelling too far and somewhat hesitant also about meeting teams from larger schools. It was finally decided to form three two-team groups with the teams in each group playing a home-and-home schedule, the winners meeting in semi-final and final playoffs. Lindsay and Peterborough were drawn together in this section. The P.C.I. home dates could not be arranged at this meeting as they were waiting to see how long the Peterborough baseball team would be using Riverside Park.

Coach H. L. Bamforth of the P.C.I. Seniors is working out nightly at the Oval with a good squad. Marsh, Jopling, Parnell, Ascott, Archibald, Dunkley, Sedgewick and Beatty of last year's team are all out again with the team and a number of the more promising former juniors and intermediates, including: Pulkinghorn, Woods, D. McPherson, Wilson, Barnard, the Clark brothers, Gardino and Patterson. More weight will be a noticeable feature of this fall's Garnet and Gray first-string squad, while the speed and science of former seasons will again be stressed. This team is shaping up well and should make a real showing in a strong group.

Agreement Fails On Boston Arena

BOSTON, Sept. 19 (AP)—Efforts of Boston Bruins National hockey team to effect a satisfactory lease with Boston Garden for the coming season proved fruitless yesterday.

Frank Calder, president of the N.H.L., made an unexpected visit here and with Art Ross', Bruins' boss, conferred with George V. Brown, manager of the Garden.

The Bruins, the Boston Globe said last night, were believed to have proposed that they pay 25 per cent. of the gross, and bonuses above a certain figure.

TORONTO TO SEE FIRST OF SERIES

Leafs and Rochester Will Begin Championship Battle To-night.

PITCHING WINS.

NEW YORK, eSpt. 19. (CP). — Toronto Mape Leafs and Rochester Red Wings will open a best four-out-of-seven series to-night to determine which shall represent the International Baseball League against the American Association champions in the Little World Series.

The first two games will be played at Toronto to-night and tomorrow night; the next three at Rochester, and the last two, if that many are necessary, at Toronto.

Maple Leafs, who finished third during the regular season, had qualified for the finals Monday night by defeating Newark, loop champions, in the seventh and decisive game of their series, Monday night. Last night Rochester clinched the other berth in the finals by defeating the Albany Senators 3-1 for their fourth victory in five games. Rochester finished second during the regular season and Albany fourth.

Fine pitching by Pete (Jablonowski) Appleton principally was responsible for Rochester's decisive victory. The right-hander allowed eight hits but kept them well-spaced, walked no one and fanned 11. His starting foe was Darrell (Cy) Blanton and for the second time in the series the Albany strikeout king was chased from the premises before the game was over.

Rochester opened the scoring in the second on doubles by Moore and Mills but Albany tied it up in the Senator half of the same frame when Bill Brubaker doubled, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Hal Finney's single.

Blanton went out of there in the fourth. He started the frame by fanning Mize and Moore but Mills got his second double and went to third on Tommy Carey's infield single. Lewis' single sent one run in and Appleton's scratch hit scored another and sent Blanton to the showers. Bill Harris came in and limited the wings to two hits in the last 5 1/3 innings. One of these was a single by Mills, the "buster's" third hit of the game.

NEW INVADERS PROVE METTLE IN FIRST ROUND

Led by Ada Mackenzie, Canadians Strive to Retain Championship at Home.

AMERICAN STAR.

By Edwin S. Johnson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (C.P.). — Scenting an ominous threat to spirit away the title to distant fields, the Dominion's defending forces buckled on their armour and sharpened their weapons to meet the challenge to-day in the second round of the Canadian ladies' open golf championship.

Six invaders, who proved their mettle in torrid battles of the first round yesterday over the Toronto Country Club course, sought further conquests to-day in their bid for the crown. Of this group, five are from the British Isles and one from the United States.

Led by the brilliant Ada Mackenzie, defending title-holder of Toronto, a band of 10 determined home-breds, however, offered a formidable barrier to the opposition advance. Yet the business-like manner in which the British players achieved their triumphs in the first round installed them as strong favorites. And if one of the overseas squad succeeds, it will mark the first trip the crown has taken abroad since the victory of Mrs. W. A. Gavin, back in 1922.

Strong Invader.

A newcomer to Canadian tournaments from the United States, Mrs. M. B. Harbaugh, Willoughby, O., also was causing some concern. The Ohioan shot into prominence by administering a first round defeat to Margery Kirkham, Montreal, one of Canada's foremost contenders. Although she caught the Montrealer a trifle off her game, Mrs. Harbaugh displayed a fighting heart and an assortment of brilliant shots to take the decision 3 and 1.

To-day the American will engage another ranking star among the home-breds, Mrs. Vera Ford of Vancouver. Either of these stars was favored to advance to the semi-finals against Diana Plumpton, runner-up in the British open last year, or Mrs. W. G. Fraser, Ottawa, former holder of the Canadian open crown.

Stirring Duels.

The second round draw offered prospects of several other stirring duels. Heading the list was the match between Miss Mackenzie and Mrs. J. B. Walker, the Irish internationalist, who meet in the first tussle of the day. Miss Plumpton drew as her opponent, Mrs. Roy H. Horne, Edmonton wearer of the Alberta crown, and the sensational Molly Gourlay, champion of Surrey County, meets Mary Hunter, sole survivor of Hamilton's small but starry squad of entrants.

The luck of the draw also pits two British players against each other, Miss Doris Chambers, captain of the Curtis Cup team, and Mrs. Alec Gold, runner-up in the Canadian open at Montreal two years ago.

Mrs. A. B. Darling, of Montreal, who accounted for the only casualty among the Britons yesterday, stacks up against Miss Evelyn Mills, of Ottawa. If Miss Mills can get her shots clicking, she will have achieved more than Mrs. George Coats, the Scottish internationalist could do in the first round clash with her adversary's best efforts to gain the verdict on the 18th green. It was the most thrilling contest of the day.

The final match of the day's program is an intra-city affair between Mrs. F. J. Mulqeen and Mrs. Ronand Holmes.

Jimmy McLarnin, "baby faced" battler regained his welterweight throne by a decision, in a bruising 15-round battle with Barney Ross at Madison Square Garden, in New York City, after the bout had been postponed several times by rain and inclement weather. Here is a Central Press photo rushed by plane, showing Jimmy facing the camera, waiting for Barney in the seventh.

Fresh From Polo Grounds and Ringside They Take to Heaving Deck.

TANG IN SPEECH.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 19.—(A.P.)—A group of yachting experts, fresh from the press box at the Polo Grounds, the golf links of Brookline, the tennis courts at Forest Hills, and the Garden fight ringside, line the careening deck of the good ship Argo, member of Uncle Sam's coast guard.

Having survived two days of personal contact with the sea, brine fairly drips from their whiskers, there's the salty tang of free running waves in every speech, and none now surpasses them in knowledge of things nautical. Yachting costumes aboard the press boat range anywhere from golf knickers to the same severe business suits in which you talk things over with the boss.

It 's wet, cold, blowy, and the sea rolls long and high under the swooping hull. Off to port sails the huge armada that accompanies the British challenger Endeavour and the American defender Rainbow on their daly bouts for the America's Cup.

Challenger About Early.

The challenger is up early, scudding about under mainsail and staysail, tuning up an hour before the start.

In the argument that follows, it develops that the difference between a Genoa jib and a working jib is nothing more than the difference in the weight of canvas and a slight variance in design. All said in front of the main sail are foresails, and these are divided into jibs, balloon-ers, spinnakers, staysails, quadrilaterals and such.

There's a reference to the fact that a "Mae West" balloner was so named because it billowed up front, and the "Greta Garbo" jib got its name because it adds to a yacht's footage. Jibs have nothing to do with jibes, or gybes, which have to do with turning a sloop around.

Broad reach into the wind means sailing with the wind blowing almost at right angles to the boat and a narrow reach is the trick of sailing against a wind that is almost dead ahead. It 's a wind'ard beat when the wind is head on and you tack back and forth in order to get ahead, like a ski runner working his way up hill.

Lawn Bowling by Herb Martin

Well, The Mixed tournaments have scored once more. The games committee has, after reviewing all the facts, decided that on Friday night it will be mixed.

—o—

They Couldn't very well do anything else. They are almost bonded to give the majority what they want—and mixed it will be.

—o—

Everybody Remembers the big crowd and the good time that was had by them last Friday. Well, we want even a bigger crowd this Friday night. Not that we want to break any further records—that's not the idea—but we just thought that thirty-two rinks would be a glorious finish to a wonderful season's bowling.

—o—

The Bowling Season is rapidly coming to a close, and who knows but what Friday night might be the last mixed event of the season. Everybody from the president down to your humble servant has promised to be there. If last week's was a big event this week's sure looks much bigger.

—o—

It Will Be wide, wide open—that means everybody, past present and future bowlers—men, women and 'children'.

Junior Champions Humble Higher Team

St. James', Junior Church Softball League champions, handed the Intermediate loop winners, Mark Street, a bad 18-7 lacing last night in a post-season series opening game. Playing much steadier afield and getting good hurling from Ridley, the Juniors led all the way in the short contest. Mark Street was minus two regulars and the fielding was shaky. Wildness of Pitcher R. Hunter also proved costly. Although the game started in good time, it dragged out so the contest was called in the sixth, the score reverting to the fifth. The second game of the three-game series will be staged Thursday at 5.30 in the Oval. The teams:

Mark Street—Ferguson c, Parsons ss, Brady 3b, M. Hunter 1b, Darwin rf, R. Hunter p, Sager 2b, G. Hunter lf, Wright cf.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C. J. P.

Along about a quarter past eight this glorious eve, there is a mighty attractive sport feature lined up at the Armouries. It is a box lacrosse game between Scarboro Grads and the local Kiwanis, first game of a highly important series. Not only should it be plenty close, but it should be very exciting and the fans can look for high jinks in each and every quarter—with no quarter asked or given (except, of course, the quarter they ask you for at the door). Kiwanis will need all the rooting they can get as they face a crew tonight that will likely prove tougher'n a two-bit steak to take. Ought to be a honey.

• • • • • • •

With the interscholastic rugby groupings announced for this slice of the province, we see again where the schools along the Lakeshore have altogether too much to say. They gang up on the oldtime halls of learning, like P.C.I., Lindsay and Oshawa, and force these big places, that have carried the smaller ones for years and have brought gridiron glory to Central Ontario, to do just what they (the smaller schools) say. You see, they've got the voting power, and that's that. Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Whitby have all declined again to step up to a senior ranking and will play in intermediate company. And they wont even play with us as juniors!

• • • • • • •

So here's the layout. P.C.I., Lindsay, Oshawa and maybe Belleville—they haven't said anything yet—will make up the senior group this fall, while three two-team junior groups have been formed, with Lindsay and P.C.I. in the one up this way. Juniors play home and home games, winners of the groups then playing off. Senior schedule will be drawn as soon as Belleville decides where to go, and when P.C.I. can obtain Riverside Park, after the ball team is through. Schedules are due to commence a week from this Saturday. Dope on our prospective teams appears elsewhere today.

• • • • • • •

Bill Breese, coach of the Lindsay Seniors, has up and got himself married. Last year, he broke an ankle drilling his team, and Coach Legon of P.C.I. advised him to get married as he would run less chance of getting injured! Bill replied at a banquet that, while he understood matrimony had its good points, he would continue to take his risks like a man on the athletic field and shun married bliss. Apparently, Coach Breese was a marked man, and will now have to watch himself on the gridiron or hear from the little missus!

• • • • • • •

The Petes left at ten bells this a.m. to be in Belleville in plenty of time for their game at three with the Nats. A big crowd is expected for this number, with all the loop officials and some of the O.B.A.A. big shots on hand. There is the sneaking idea pretty general—even in the minds of the Belleville bunch, we suspect—that this is the final game of the C.O.B.I. playoffs this year. The Petes are pretty generaly favored to win today, if the game isn't rained out, and thereby cop the title. If they should lose today, you'd find quite a bit of loose money floating around here Saturday willing to back the Nats in a fifth game. At least, so we've been told by members of the gambling gentry.

• • • • • • •

Bill Kay, local member of the O.B.A.A., has been notified by the Ontario body that Cogs win their intermediate baseball series with Kingston Hawks. There are some eight intermediate B-1 teams left in Ontario at present, including Meaford, Penetang, Welland, Chatham, Waterloo, Milton and Cogs. The local team will likey loaf around a couple of weeks while some of the western outfits are mopping up on each other, and then step right into the provincial semi-finals. It might be a good idea for them to arrange an exhibition game or two in order to keep in the pink.

• • • • • • •

We find the local lacrossers are in a post-season loop, although the players here don't know it and although their regular season isn't over. Seems Belleville put up a Challenge Trophy for this type of yearly play with the Asjmaa Club, Peterborough and Cobourg in it. They've even drawn up this schedule: Sept. 27—Kiwanis at Belleville; Oct. 2—Cobourg at Kiwanis; Oct. 5—Belleville at Cobourg; Oct. 11—Kiwanis at Cobourg; Oct. 16—Belleville at Kiwanis; Oct. 19—Cobourg at Belleville; all games at 8.45 p.m., with first two teams playing two out of three late in October, O.A.L.A. rules prevailing. Of course, they're kind enough to say dates that conflict with our O. A. L. A. games may be changed.

• • • • • • •

Our juvenile Terriers are very liable to swing into the O. B. A. A. playdowns once again this weekend—if the shock isn't too much for them after these many weeks. It's not definite but a report has it that Chelsea Pirates and Arlingtons of Toronto wind up their series Thursday and the winner will meet Peterborough Saturday, though it doesn't say where. We should hear officially in a day or two. Herb Ralph has been working his boys out right along and hopes to go places still, but this delay didn't help the lads' game too much.

• • • • • • •

Picking 'em off the grapevine: Shine Bovin's bad knee may keep him out of tonight's lacrosse game here yet . . . . INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THIS WEEK being an off week in Canadian racing circles the eyes of the fans are mostly focused on the American tracks besides keeping one eye on the daily workouts at Woodbine. Bichloride, we recommended to you last week was successful in winning a heat at Lincoln Fields on Monday and paid off at over sixteen dollars for the usual deuce investment. Another one of our specials also clicked on the same day when Princeton got down in front of a classy field at Detroit.

× × ×

We hear that Candy Man is simply burning up the Woodbine racing strip these mornings. His latest workout was five furlongs in the exceptionally fast time of 1.05 which is certainly picking them up and laying them down. We might also mention that this was negotiated over a slow track. This horse Calchas has sure developed into a wonderful piece of racing material. Last year it looked as if his racing days were over on account of his very bad behaviour at the starting gate but this year George Hardy, his proud owner has him as gentle as a kitten. Nobody ever thought him to be any more than a fair sprinter until last Saturday at Thorncliffe when he just laughed his way home in a mile and a quarter event winning by six open lengths and going faster at the finish than at any time during the race. Do not be surprised if this one is stepped up a notch or two and takes some of the handicap performers into camp. Another thing in his favor is the fact that he always has the services of that capable jockey Tommy Almers to pilot him around the track. Top Hattie is up at the Woodbine these days and just rarin' to go but you will have to wait for a muddy track in order to see this one at his best, he wanting no part of a fast racing strip.

× × ×

WE HEAR that Harry Giddings has received a large offer from a powerful American stable for his good stallion Marine. We do not think that Harry will entertain the idea of selling this son of Man of War as he is the pride of Harry's large farm at Oakville. In speaking of this one it might not be amiss to mention that his record for the mile distance, which he made at the Blue Bonnets race track Montreal in the year 1930, has never been equalled let alone beaten. We look for the same Harry Giddings to have a big week during the Woodbine session as this is his favorite stamping ground. He has all the McLaughlin juveniles in tip top condition besides a number from the Robson farm of which he is also the trainer.

The Seagram stable have had a lot of luck this fall so far but it has all been bad however we can safely say that their good distance performer Energetic Boy will win his next start just as sure as there is ice in Iceland.

BRITISH PAIR REMAIN IN U.S. TENNIS FINALS

LAS ANGELES, Sept. 19—(CP)—Fred Perry and his South African traveling companion, Vernon Kirby, coasted into the third round of the Pacific southwest tennis tournament today, while Frank Wilde, the other British competitor in men's singles, was eliminated.

Perry defeated Bill Seward, of Stanford University, 6—1, 6—2; Kirby won from Leonard Patterson, local player, 8—6, 12-10, while Wilde lost to Alan Herrington, an oldtimer, 9-11, 6—1, 6—1.

Wilmer Allison, finalist with Perry in the United States championships at Forest Hills last week, was ousted by Jess Millman, California, 9—10, 6—6, 6—4.

BOB ELLIOTT RETURNS TO QUEEN'S TO AID SQUAD

KINGSTON, Sept. 19. —(C P)— With the arrival of Captain Jack Kostuik today, Queen's senior football squad lacks only two players, Howard Hamlin and "Abe" Zvonkin regular middle wings, from being complete for the season. Neither Hamlin nor Zvonkin will likely arrive this week and it is possible that both will miss the game in Hamilton on Saturday.

Prominent among the players to turn out was Bob Elliott, former stellar Queen's halfback, who is returning for a B.A. course. Elliott has been playing baseball all Summer and should be in the pink of condition for football.

DISGUSTED JUDGE?

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 19.—(C. P.)—George Wreaks of Mount Mailoton, faced a charge at the county general sessions of being in charge of an automobile while intoxicated. The jury returned a verdict of "not guilty." Said Judge George C. Thomson: "The jury in its wisdom have found you not guilty. I don't know why, but they have—so you are discharged."

LAD STRANGLES.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 19.— (C. P.)— Donald Vuengst, 20 months old, strangled on his mother's apron strings. The child, playing in his back yards, apparently stumbled into a loop formed by the strings of an apron hanging from a clothesline. His mother found the limp body when she returned to hang out another basket of clothes.

TANNERS WIN DISTRICT CUP

Defeat Elgin 9-8 in Exciting Third Game Before Large Crowd of Fans.

COME FROM BEHIND.

HASTINGS, Sept. 19 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Tanners won the Hastings and District Softball championship which carries with it the handsome "Uncle David" trophy donated by Frank Gilbert, when they defeated Elgin 9 to 8 in the third game played last night before a big crowd of howling fans.

Elgin took a big lead in the first frame when they got to Hahn's offerings for a triple, single and a home run by R. Scott, along with an error for four runs. Two walks and a single made it 5 to 0 in the second; Hahn struck the side out in this inning. The Tanners commenced to get their eye on the ball in their half of the second, when three singles and a double netted a pair of runs. The exact same hits with error produced four runs in the third and gave the winners the lead for the first time. They made it 7 to 5 with a lone run in the fourth. The Tannery support cracked temporarily in the fifth when a walk, two errors, a single and a double put Elgin on the long end of a 8 to 7 score. The joys of their supporters was deafening, but only lasted for a half inning as the Tannery crew pushed over a run on three singles. With the score all square at the end of the fifth the umpires decided that the game would go one more innings to break the deadlock. Elgin went out in order in their half. "Stubby" Scriver, the veteran of many a close game on the field and ice, was the first man up in the crucial sixth; he promptly singled, as did Hahn, "Curly" Scriver sent a hot one through short to score "Stubby" and end the battle.

The teams:

Stickles, lf; Lemoire, 3b; L. Scriver, 2b; Hahn, p; G. Scriver, ss; Turcotte, cf; M. Scriver, 1b; N. Scriver, c; C. Scriver, rf.

Elgin.—Preston, c; J. Richardson, p; M. Ccott, 1b; R. Scott, 2b; G. Richardson, 3b; R. Richardson, ss; Fleming, lf; Stinson, cf; Grady, rf.

COACH LEGON TRAINING P.C.I. JUNIORS IN RUGBY

There will be no local intermediate team, and Coach E. F. Legon will handle the juniors. He expects to bring these youngsters along all the way up to senior and has a surprisingly young squad working out daily at present. Jopling, Kelly, Legon and Patterson of last autumn's outfit remain and the rest of the squad are newcomers—all being sixteen and under. It is a mystery team, being entirely an unknown quantity and may not go any too well this first season together, although high hopes are held out for these junior gridders. They will doubtless continue to be a mystery until proven on the field of combat against their Lindsay opponents.

CHAPTER 43

But now Penelope was not there to save her, and after reading Nancy's letter, Joan wrote, impulsively, "I am going to Spain, Penelope, to be with the Hallams. I know you won't approve of it, and perhaps I shouldn't have gone if you had been here. But I want to try my wings! Perhaps I'll fly back to you, but I am restless and unhappy. I want something that life isn't giving me. I may find it in Spain. Who knows? Perhaps I'll never find it. But I shall go and look."

Farley's delight when she was told Joan's plans was unbounded. She frankly hated the woods. She would have preferred London or Paris to Spain, but anything was better than a place where the storms shrieked like lost spirits, and where there was nobody for company but a Portuguese cook and a cat.

So here they were, and Joan, gazing out of the window thought of the morrow and what it would mean to her. She had not told Drew or Nancy that she was coming. She had felt a sort of childish glee in the thought of their surprised delight when they saw her.

The moon shone now above the mountains—a great heavy-hanging moon, like a disc of copper sunk in a sable sea. Joan sat up to look at it. The air was cold and she wrapped her shoulders in a blanket. She felt very much alone in that wide still world. A little afraid of what was before her.

Yet why should she be afraid? Drew loved her and she was going to him. And things would be as they had been at the beginning. Once more the king would come into his own and the queen would be happy!

Yet—would she be happy? Joan got out of bed, went to the window, and stood there with the cold air streaming in upon her. Her face was lifted to the golden sky; her eyes were closed, her hand on her beating heart. She prayed like a child: "Lord, tell me what to do."

The morning brought sunlight, a courtyard crowded with people as picturesque as a musical comedy chorus, and Farley in an optimistic mood when she entered her mistress' room with thick hot chocolate on a tray.

Joan, turning away from the window where she had been watching the crowd, said, "Some people have just come in by motor. That's the way to travel, Farley."

"Mrs. Delafield always did."

"Could we get a car here?"

"I can ask."

"Would it be very expensive?"

"Why should you mind that, Miss Joan?"

Joan laughed, "I keep forgetting."

"It's best to remember," Farley reminded her, "there's no reason why you should be stingy."

Stingy! The word struck Joan with the force of a blow. Drew had called her that on that August morning in Granitehead. And since then things had never been the same. Would they ever be—the same?

Her mind dwelt heavily on that memory until Farley came back, and the two of them were occupied with their new plans. They could, it seemed, ride in the car that Joan had seen in the courtyard. It was a hired conveyance, and the driver had only two passengers—American ladies. He could take two more—he had asked the ladies and they had consented. They were at breakfast, having started early for Barcelona.

When Farley finished her story, Joan said: "What luck! Have you seen the ladies, Farley?"

"No, Miss. But I fancy they're the right sort. And I asked about the driver. The people here at the inn know him, and he's safe and respectable."

When a little later Joan went downstairs, she stood for a moment looking in at the door of the dusky dining room. Everybody was eating breakfast, so that the tables were crowded, and plates were heaped with fried fish and bacon and eggs, and other hearty foods were being eaten in a hurry.

Joan was aware of eyes upon her—steady, appraising eyes. She was still wearing mourning, and her face was framed by a helmet of black felt and by the black fur collar of her coat, which gave to her skin a cameo-like clearness. Her eyes under their long lashes had the deep blue of sapphire seas, and the hair which showed beneath the helmet was soft and shining.

As she moved, feeling uncomfortable under the steady gaze of the men, she heard some one call her name: "Joan . . . Joan Dudley!"

She turned back to see a woman standing up at one of the tables and waving. A young woman in an orange coat which was like a splash of sunlight in the dusky room. Joan had a confused sense that there was something familiar about that orange coat. Something which had happened a long time ago.

For the woman who wore the coat was Rose Carter!

Joan threaded her way between the crowded tables, and Rose leaned across her own to say, „My dear, how amazing to meet you here."

"Isn't it? When did you come? You were not on the train."

"No. We motored up this morning."

Mrs. Carter who had shaken hands with Joan said: "We motored up here for breakfast, because they told us the food was good. We had an atrocious dinner last night at the hotel where we stopped."

"The food here is marvelous," Joan agreed. "Last night I ate things that were quite different and delicious, and the chocolate this morning was heavenly."

She hadly knew what she was saying. For it had come to her as she stood there that these two were the Americans with whom she and Farley were to ride. Could anything be more incredible and more irritating. She hated the thought of it. And why was Rose on her way to Barcelona?

She said: "I fancy we're to share your car. Farley made the arrangement . . . there were two American ladies the man told her."

Rose laughed, "Queer thing our all happening to meet here, isn't it? But we shall be glad to have you. Mother and I are being terribly bored by each other. We've been in Paris for weeks. In a ratty little pension. And you will have so much to tell us. My dear what a change in your life."

"You mean — Aunt Adelaide's death?"

Rose was blunt: "I mean — your money."

"Oh, that . . ." Joan put that aside with a gesture. "I really don't know what to do with it. And I haven't spent much. I asked Farley this morning if motoring would be too expensive."

"Nothing is too expensive, if one can afford it," Rose said. "Drew and Nancy should teach you that." She hesitated for a moment, then: "I suppose you are going to join the Hallams?"

Joan countered, "Are you?"

"Yes. Drew wrote that Barcelona was deadly. It sounded like an S.O.S., so we jumped into a car and came."

All the blood in Joan's body seemed to surge and retreat. She was dizzy with the reaction. An S.O.S. — Rose to the rescue! The two of them arriving—together!

She tried to speak with calmness. "Drew and Nancy don't even know I'm coming. I decided at the last minute."

"Drew will be thrilled."

Joan blushed, and hated herself for blushing. And she hated the thought that she was going on with Rose to Barcelona. Had she come all the way for this? To ride neck and neck with Rose Carter for Drew's favor?

* * *

It was on the way to Barcelona that Rose said, bluntly, "Have you and Drew made up?"

Joan stiffened, but she managed to say lightly, "Who told you we had fallen out?"

"Drew did . . . or at least he said the engagement was off. And everybody is saying that when you came into a fortune you threw him over."

Joan seething within, gave a careless laugh, "I am sure Drew did not tell you that."

Rose glanced at her, weighing the calmness and coolness of this still, white maiden against the unsophistication of the child she had met at Granitehead. "No, he didn't," she admitted, and then, presently, "Your money has made a difference in you, Joan."

"In what way?"

"You have more poise."

"Have I?"

"Yes. And you aren't taking yourself so seriously. Or Drew."

Which was of course all Rose knew about it. Nothing had ever been so serious to Joan as this matter of meeting her lover. But Rose must never know it—never.

She was glad when they reached Barcelona and could separate. She had had a feeling all along the route that Rose and her mother, as she sat between them, were dragons, ready to pounce upon her if for a moment she lost her head. Which was silly, of course. But none the less disturbing.

She and Farley went at once to the big hotel, and Rose and her mother rode on to where they could get cheaper quarters.

For Thursday, September 20

While, according to the lunar transits governing the events of this day, there may be unusual activity with much stirring in the direction of fulfilled ambitions, yet there may be many thwarting, disturbing and inharmonious factors to be reckoned with. Some tenacious obstacle or crystallized condition must be removed, and at the same time prudence, calmness and self-restraint must be exercised, as violence, accident, fire or theft menace. With wisdom there should be the high fruition of many cherished ambitions and desires. New contracts and projects flourish.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of splendid achievement, with steady progress and prosperity, after they have disposed of some tenacious obstacle or frustrating circumstance. Also they are beset by a menace of violence, strife, accident, theft or fire. Great prudence, control and wise initiative are called for to reap excellent benefits and fulfilled ambitions.

A child born on this day should be excellently endowed with varied talents, should be ambitious and energetic, but may need to practice moderation, self-control and good nature in order to attain their highest prospects.

Geologists who have just completed a survey of the country between Patna, India, and the Himalaya foothills, where the disastrous earthquake occurred last January, declare that shocks, independent of volcanic action, are always possible there.

Many factories in Rumania are resuming.

An ordinance issued in 1293, which has just come to light in England, stipulated that no one should pay more than two cents for a hen or a gallon of beer, half a cent for a loaf of bread, 16 cents for a dressed lamb, or $2.50 for a cow.

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (CP)—Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck, Ontario Attorney General, to-day knew nothing of any search being made in Timmins and Kirkland Lake for the Labatt kidnappers.

Police officers were reported rushing northward after Albert Pegram and David Meisner, two of the suspect. "It looks like just a story. It might be true, but we know nothing about it," said Mr. Roebuck after a conference with Major-General Victor Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police.

Inspector Hamer Gardner, officer in charge of the investigations, was reported to be still in the London-Windsor district and not in Northern Ontario. Other officers identified with the case were at Queen's Park. Reports indicated no new developments.

STRIKERS ENJOY LIFE IN PRISON

Some of the Boys Fear "the Little Woman" May Have Something to Say.

MEALS MIGHTY FINE.

ATLANTA, Sept. 19 (A.P.)—Interned in one of the strongest prisons in the United States, 16 women and 112 men arrested by National Guardsmen for textile strike disorders commented to-day that "the meals are mighty fine," and some of them added: "We're not having a bad time at all."

With the possible exception of a few men who wondered what the "little woman" would say when they got back home, there didn't seem to be a downcast persons in the camp to-day. However, they are in prison "indefinitely."

The old prison, built overnight at the National Guard Rifle Range near here, requires no more of its inmates than that they cause no trouble. Meals, beds, ice water and medical care are free, there is no work, and they are encouraged to spend their time pleasantly.

"And say," said E. N Brown of Hogansville, "it ain't bad-a-tall. The grub is a little better than I have been getting during the depression."

But S. E. Boswell, also of Hogansville, says with a grin that he and "some other boys" may have something to worry about.

He leaned on the barbed-wire fence enclosing tents and the half acre men's prison and confided:

"You see, the little woman doesn't know where I went when I left home Monday at two in the morning to go to Newnan for picketing. I'll bet I catch the devil when I get home," he said with a grin, "but some of the other boys are in the same boat."

Campaign by Canadian Ministers is Approved by Anglican Synod.

STARTS IN MARCH.

MONTREAL, Sept. 19 (C.P.).—A great inter-denominational religious drive to take place across the whole of Canada by Canadian ministers who would work as a team, supplementing each other's efforts, will be started next March. Program for the drive was approved last night by the 13th General Synod of the Church of England in Canada.

Each denomination will choose its own leaders, who will address not only their own members but also the entire communities they visit. Next fall four great leaders of British religious life will be brought over to Canada to deliver addresses. The program is the upshot of work of the joint committee on the evangelization of Canadian life, of which Rev. Dr. G. C. Pidgeon, of Toronto, is chairman.

As his first duty after becoming Primate yesterday, Archbishop Owen presented a watch to L. A. Hamilton, Toronto, retiring as honorary treasurer of the Synod after 17 years of active service. The presentation was made on behalf of the General Synod. Archbishop Owen will assume the presidency of the Synod to-day, replacing Most Rev. A. U. De Pencier, Archbishop of New Westminster.

The Synod approved a motion by Rev. J. F. Morris, Montreal, that a general secretary be appointed for the Social Service Council to take the place of Rev. Canon C. W. Vernon, of Halifax, who served as general secretary at Toronto for many years. Canon Vernon died early this year.

A Miracle

NAPLES, Sept. 19. (C.P.-Havas).—A nine-gun salute today proclaimed to the world a miracle whose authenticity is vouched for by thousands of witnesses.

It happened in the Church of San Genaro and was hailed as a Divine portent for the birth of a child expected shortly to Princess Maria Jose, wife of Crown Prince Umberto of Italy.

The miracle was the liquefaction of the blood of San Genaro.

In the early morning, vials of the dried fluid were set against lights in the church and prayers were offered up. After an hour the blood liquified, worshippers observed. Immediately a great cry of acclamation burst from the crowd.

says Fr Farthing was to institute an organization for the perpetuation of the ancient rites, ceremonies and teachings of the respective bodies. Further to assign such credentials to these bodies composing the federation as would signally distinguish them from the pseudo-mystical movements widespread in the Western World to-day. It is stated that the Imperator of the Rosicrucian Order, A.M.O.R.C., Dr. H. Spencer Lewis, was awarded high honors in accord with the Order's new position and responsibility with the Federation.

ELECTORS' REGISTRATION CALLED OCT. 15 TO NOV. 17

OTTAWA, Sept. 19. — (C.P.)—Registration of electors in Dominion electoral districts throughout Canada will commence on Oct. 15 and end Nov. 17. A proclamation setting these dates is being issued by Dominion Franchise Commissioner John Thompson.

The issuing of the proclamation is merely part of the work in the preparation of the new lists under legislation passed at the last session of Parliament. In no way does it suggest any decision for holding a general election.

COUNTERFEIT U.S. BILLS CIRCULATING IN CANADA

Peterborough merchants have been on the watch for counterfeit United States currency during the past few days. An unknown number of the bogus bills are said to be in circulation in Canada at the present time.

A warning circular which has reached local agents of the Canadian National Railways from the office of F. J. Buller, regional treasurer, states: "There apparently has gone into circulation in Canada a considerable number of counterfeit United States $10, $5 and $1 bills. Scrutinize carefully all such denominations of bills before acceptance

Rosicrucians Join Ancient Federation

North America's sole representative in the newly organized "Federation Universelle Des Orders et Societies Initiatique" is the Rosicrucian Order, A.M.O.R.C., so states R. Farthing of 416½ George St., District Commissioner of the Rosicrucian Order here. Fr. Farthing relates that in the bulletin just received from the Rosicrucian Grand Lodge in San Jose, California, it is announced that at an international convention held in Belgium, near Brussels, in August, the highest officers and delegates of the oldest fourteen initiative orders and societies declared the Rosicrucian Order, A.M.O.R.C., to be the sole body in North America duly affiliated with the federation.

Sponsor Idea Among Unemployed Country Must Keep Them, Says Opponent.

SITUATION REVIEWED.

By A. J. McKenna
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

MONTREAL, Sept. 19 (C.P.).—A special committee of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada will draft a recommendation of the subject of unemployment to be submitted to governmental authorities. This emerged last night from a general discussion by the Synod of social problems, while the report of the Council for Social Service was under discussion.

"The subject is one of the most important we could possibly be called upon to deal with at this session," declared Rev. W. H. Vance, of Vancouver, in moving for the special committee. No resolution should be issued by the Synod, he thought, until it had been given most mature consideration. Rt. Rev. W. Lyons, Bishop of Ontario, seconded his motion.

The discussion brought forth contrasting views as to the value of the unemployment camps operated by the Dominion Government.

Teach Discipline

Prof. P. G. C. Campbell of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., found the camps were of great value as they taught discipline, required men to work at useful tasks and equipped them with useful trades.

"The Government is doing splendid work with its construction camps and is entitled to praise," Rt. Rev. J. A. Richardson, Bishop of Fredericton, agreed.

From Rev. H. Solly, West Summerland, B.C., came the view, however, that the camps should be abolished. "The camps breed the ides among these men that the country must keep them," he declared. The real trouble with the country was that there was a disproportionately large portion of the population in the urban centres.

On the general topic of unemployment, Ven. Archdeacon J. W. J. Andrew, St. Thomas, Ont., said one of the saddest sidelights of the situation was the number of young men, fresh from school, who were joining the ranks of the unemployed. They did not want to be a burden to their parents, Archdeacon Andrew said, so they left home with no prospects for their future.

POLISH OPPRESSION HAS FORCED ONE MILLION GERMANS TO FLEA

Upper Silesian Farmers Systematically Terrorized by New Rulers.

HAVE NO REDRESS.

(By Pierre Van Paassen, Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 19—Seventy thousand Jews have fled from Germany since Hitler came to power. But one million German farmers have been driven out of Upper Silesia since that rich province was virtually handed over to Poland at the peace conference by men, one of whom, Mr. Lloyd George, admitted that he thought Silesia was Cilicia, a Turkish province in Asia Minor. The Jews in Germany and the Germans in Upper Silesia left for the same reason: terror and oppression.

"Too Many Foreigners

It is not that the Poles hate the Germans. They don't. On the whole the Poles admire the Germans. The secret of Poland's cruel treatment of its minorities can be plainly gauged from a speech held by the well-known Polish politician Stanilas Grabski in a full session of parliament. "We are going to build our relations with the national minorities in Poland," he said, "on the foundations of brotherly love. But love for your own countrymen is a different thing than love for strangers. The percentage of strangers in our country is too great. There is a way in which the percentage can be brought back from twenty to one and a half. Foreign elements in Poland will have to look around and see if they can't fine another home somewhere else. Polish land belongs exclusively to Poles."

This means that Germans, Ukrainians, White Russians, Slovaks, Ruthenians, Carpatho-Russians, Jews, by far the greatest majority of the inhabitants of the Polish republic, are considered strangers simply because the peace conference handed their provinces over to the newly set-up Polish state. You and your ancestors live for centuries on a piece of land. All at once, at the end of a war, that piece of land falls to a new state and you are told that you are an undesirable foreigner. The new rulers begin a campaign of molestation, which gradually regenerates into persecution and you are forced to abandon the home of your fathers.

Conference Is Forgotten

Of course the same peace conference attributed certain rights to national minorities. Their property, their language, their religion and customs were to be respected, but the peace conference disbanded fourteen years ago, and all the complaints to the League of Nations have been ineffective.

In Upper Silesia the Polish government first destroyed the communal (not communistic) system of farming among the Germans. It suspended the operation of farmers' banks and credit organizations which the Prussian farmers had founded in the years before the war. Taxes were raised to impossible heights. Thousands and thousands of farms were simply expropriated. Helpless the German farmers looked on as the new government systematically ruined them.

The German Fatherland, just beaten in a disastrous war, could not help. Berlin had no power to intervene. Germany was not a member yet of the League of Nations. The systematic ruination of the German farmers in Upper Silesia went on unchecked and nobody in the world bothered about it. The German farmers had expected that the change from Germany to Poland had made them Polish citizens. All at once they discovered that they were being treated not only as undesirable foreigners but as alien intruders.

Campaign of Terror

With this went a reign of terror. Thousands of German farmers were arrested. German societies were declared subversive and the leaders accused of high treason. In every expropriated German farm a Polish settler was installed. Every home vacated by the terror-stricken German peasants was simply appropriated by a Pole.

In spite of all this a large part of the Germans held their ground. Everybody knows the attachment of German settlers to their land and the excellent citizens they make. The German farmers of Upper Silesia had no objection to the Polish government. They were resigned to the change of government. All they wanted was to be left undisturbed in their possessions and bring up their children. This was obviously of great advantage to the Polish state, which stood in need of a stabilizing influence among all its minorities. Warsaw decreed otherwise. The taxes went up and a whole system of pressure was invented to force the Germans to give up.

Small Compensation

Six thousand German farms, big and small properties, were expropriated in 1927 alone. Ridiculous small sums of compensation were granted the disowned Germans. Small settlers were not given any compensation at all. They were simply thrown out. In the same year, 1927, 3,964 German settlers were thus pauperized. Slowly the German population of Upper Silesia was pushed out.

And yet thousands of Germans have stuck it out, in spite of persecution and arbitrary measures. "We go around with our teeth clenched," said one German farmer to me. "We have long felt that our battle for our economic existence was a hopeless one, but we have gained new hope since Hitler came to power. The Fuehrer will not leave us in the lurch. He will force Poland to respect our rights." I told him I hoped he was right, but in my heart I knew that Hitler has done far less for the Germans living in former German provinces than Stresemann or Bruening.

Worse have fared those Germans who dared to vote for Germany at the time of the plebiscite in 1920. They were shown no mercy at all. Accused of treason, of subversive activity, of hostile acts against the state, thousands of them landed in jail. There is not a single editor of the many small German newspapers published in Upper Silesia who has not been in jail at one time or another for speaking up for the rights of his fellow Germans. Many are in jail at this hour. Yet the German press in Poland fights on. It is a remarkably single-willed press. You find no party strife in those papers. No quibbling over non-essentials. They fight because they want to save whatever there is left of what their forefathers in the course of centuries have created.

"How can a total stranger help you?" I asked a group of German farmers in K., when they had quietly and dispassionately told me the story of suffering through which the men and women of their village had gone since Silesia became Polish.

"Tell the truth about us," said the pastor of the commune. "Say that we live in the Middle Ages, that we are deprived of our most elementary human rights, that we are persecuted and hounded day after day, year after year, that we are forbidden to teach our children their mother tongue, that we are menaced in life and possessions. Say that the Germans in Upper Silesia live in a hell on earth. And you won't exaggerate," he added. "For that is the sober truth!"

All I can do is write this brief article, where volumes are required!

Will be Heard at Brock Street Summer Gardens Starting Thursday.

The Brock street Summer Gardens, continuing in a policy of presenting the very best for their patrons, have engaged the services of the celebrated Gene Fogarty and his band, for Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week.

Fogarty and his players made a big hit on their appearance here last spring. The rink was jammed with the patrons who wanted to hear this orchestra, one of the whizz-bangs of the season, with Personality plus radiating from their playing and the popular leader. It is a ten-piece aggregation and the boys go from here to commence an engagement on Monday at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa.

Admission to the Rink for this super attraction is as usual, ten cents, with five cents for dances.

Supreme Court Sessions for Victoria Open Before Mr. Justice Rose.

DAMAGES SETTLED.

LINDSAY, Sept. 19.—The Fall session of the Supreme Court of Ontario opened yesterday at the Court House with Mr. Justice Rose of Toronto presiding. The Grand Jury returned a true bill in the charge of criminal negligence preferred against Robert Myers, formerly of Peterborough. This charge arose out of a fatality which occurred on the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway during the summer, when Jack Fowler of Lindsay was killed following a collision. Fowler was riding a motorcycle to Peterborough when it crashed into an oil truck driven by Myers.

The action for damages preferred against Robert Grandy of Greenbank, by A. T. Claxton, of Lindsay following a collision on the Lindsay-Whitby Highway, was settled out of court for a lump sum in favor of Mr. Claxton. The action for slander preferred by Eliza Daynes, of Oakwood, against Wm. Copplestone, of Mariposa, was dismissed as neither the plaintiff nor her lawyer made their appearance. The plaintiff, who was manager of the telephone exchange at Oakwood, sued Copplestone for the sum of $2,000 for alleged slanders made in connection with a conversation over the telephone.

FEED OUTLOOK IS MUCH BRIGHTER

Several Sections of Ontario Facing Feed Shortage Coming Winter.

OATS YIELD WELL.

"Peterborough County farmers are finding themselves in a very favorable position at the present time," Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions said today. "Barley and oats yields have been practically double the yields of the past two years and, compared with other sections of the Province, the feed outlook here is very good."

During his vacation, Mr. Runions travelled on an itinerary which gave him an opportunity for a comprehensive survey of conditions in Southern Ontario. "Between Middlesex and Dundas I have seen no district in a better position than ours," he said. "Several districts are facing feed shortages this winter but it looks as though local farmers will have no complaint. The hay crop has been down a bit in quantity and quality but sufficient to take of needs. Pastures are in good shape."

Talk of reduction of livestock holdings in the face of a necessity of buying outside supplies of hay has been current in other sections of Ontario during the past two weeks. Milk shortages have been predicted for the coming winter months in Western Ontario but no such difficulty threatens Peterborough farmers, the representative states.

Many local fields of oats yielded better than 50 bushels to the acre this season while yields of 45 to 50 bushels were common. Barley harvests of 40 bushels to the acre were general. Last year only a few fields in the County offered better than 25 bushels of oats or 20 bushels of barley to the acre.

The Spring wheat harvest brought a fair average return of between 20 and 25 bushels to the acre in the County. The potato yield was comparatively good and the root and vegetable crops in general escaped the serious damage inflicted by frost elsewhere.

Actual tests by housewives have proved that Pearl White Naptha Soap makes quicker, richer suds—suds that last longer—suds so brisk and active that they draw out even the most obstinate grease and grime without hard rubbing and scrubbing. Clothes are definitely whiter and smell sweeter when washed with Pearl. It is a more economical soap, too, for Pearl lessens work and saves time on washday.

"Mine is a large family and I used to dread the weekly wash. Then I discovered Pearl White Naptha. No more 'blue' Mondays! Pearl does the work for me and I don't feel a bit tired."

"My! how white Mother's linen is! I'm going to use Pearl when I'm married. I don't want to wear out my new linens with hard rubbing —I want them to last."

"I'm out working all day. I haven't much time for washing clothes and I don't want extra work at the end of a hard day. I use Pearl because it does my laundry more easily and quickly."

You will prefer Pearl White Naptha for more reasons than one. Buy a bar—it costs so little. Compare it with any other laundry soap. Its pure whiteness and clean, fresh smell will delight you. There's nothing like it to ensure a cleaner, sweeter wash in such a short time.

Prospectors, Mining Firms Rush Winter Supplies—Gov't Supplies Maps.

JELLICOE, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP)—With nearly 240 square miles of land already staked, mining scouts, prospectors, geologists and all the colorful crew which make up a Canadian gold rush swept into this district to-day in search of the magic metal.

Through the Sturgeon River area, over a belt 56 miles long and 16 miles wide, the hunt for gold has reached feverish proportions. Since January 1 of this year 3,800 claims have been reported. The mining recorder's staff at Port Arthur has been increased three times and from Sept. 1 to Sept. 15, 450 claims were recorded. The office is issuing 30 licenses per day.

Provincial Geologist H. C. Rickaby, with Dr. E. L. Bruce, has returned to Toronto from the Long Lac area after a hurried survey trip for the Ontario Department of Mines. To make a departmental survey, the two men were flown in and out of the new area by planes of the Forestry Department.

From this town, chief point of embarkation for the new field, hundreds of men are setting out daily. From here "Hard Rock" Bill Smith, noted northern prospector, started the movement to the Little Long Lac area in August, 1931. The boom gained impetus slowly, but suddenly the picture changed.

The First Strike

From Little Long Lac district, prospectors paddled along the Sturgeon River towards Lake Nipigon. Rene Maloney, another veteran of Northern mining, made the first outstanding strike on the Sturgeon River. News of the strike spread to a small group of outstanding prospectors who with characteristic reticence said nothing about it.

Slowly but surely, however, the news filtered through the North country, and each day more and more of the mining fraternity took the sturgeon River and Little Long Lac trails. This month, the search reached its peak.

REGISTER VOTERS WEEK OF OCT. 15

Two Enumerators in Every Urban Sub-division Registrar Announces.

OFFICIAL NOTICE RECEIVED.

The registration of voters under the new system put into effect at the last session of Parliament will take place in this constituency the week of Monday, October 15th, Vincent Eastwood, Electoral Registrar for the Peterborough riding, has been officially notified. Registration will begin on the 15th and be completed on Saturday, the 20th; thus allowing six days for the work.

Under the new plan there will be two enumerators in every urban sub-division; the sitting member and the defeated candidate at the last election—in this case E. A. Peck, M.P., and J. J. Duffus—each having the right to name one enumerator in each polling sub-division. The electoral registrar may, however, reject any of these selections if he considers them unfit for the duties of the position. In the rural sections there will be only one enumerator for each polling sub-divisions to be selected by the electoral registrar.

After the registration has been effected, Mr. Eastwood will begin sittings as revising officer on Nov. 5th, to make any corrections that may be necessary in the lists.

Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and chairman of the inquiring committee. Mr. Stevens has campaigned throughout the ridings, defending his activities following sessions of the committee, while Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal, has charged his issuance of a pamphlet regarding the committee's findings was a breach of ethics.

Mr. Stevens promised early legislation to end the suffering of workers, forced to accept low wages and long hours because of mass buying operations, when he addressed meetings at Richmond Hill and Newmarket last night in the interests of H. A. Breuls, Conservative candidate in the North York by-election. He reiterated his statements that heads of packing firms could increase the returns to farmers if they wished and that pitifully low wages were given to women and men in the clothing industry.

King Raps Stevens.

Mr. King, who appeared before a St. Thomas rally with Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn to support Wilson H. Mills, Liberal, in the Elgin West by-election, criticized Mr. Stevens' actions in placing before the public everything gleaned by the committee and then attacking heads of industries for their ethics. Mr. Stevens' ethics, the Liberal leader said, should be condemned because he was discussing the case

LAKE SHIPPING TIED UP BY FOG

Toronto Ferry Grounds in Harbor, Delaying 400 Commuters 2 Hours.

NONE INJURED.

(By the Canadian Press).

Dense fog over Lake Ontario and Lake Erie to-day delayed shipping at some ports and caused a ferry boat to run aground in Toronto harbor.

The Toronto Transportation Commission's ferry Bluebell ran aground on a shoal and delayed 400 commuters almost two hours. The work boat Elmer pulled the ferry off the shoal after it had been summoned by the Bluebell's mate, who went ashore in a life-boat. Only a few passengers were aboard the vessel when she grounded. None was injured.

Harbor officials at Port Colborne on Lake Erie reported seven vessels delayed in passag through the Welland Ship Canal as fog rendered visibility so low they were unable to proceed. No danger occurred.

Hamilton reported fog there not so dense as in other lake ports, and shipping moved without difficulty. No vessels arrived, however.

Fog prevailed also on the Upper St. Lawrence River, but was not heavy enough to delay shipping.

LINDBERGH CASE RUMORED "HOT" BREAK EXPECTED

Three Phases, if Any, Go Wrong it Would be Tragic Says Official.

SPECIAL ACTIVITY.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Arrest of Richard Hauptmann in New York in connection with the Lindbergh kidnapping was announced by Attorney General Homer Cummings.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—A reported impending "break" in the 2½-year-old mystery of the Lindbergh kidnapping case caused Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" emissary of the Lindberghs, to be taken to police headquarters this afternoon.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(A.P.)—A gathering of many of the noted figures in the investigation of the kidnapping and slaying 2½ years ago of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., led to unconfirmed reports at police headquarters to-day that a "break" in the case was imminent.

Attorney General Homer Cummings would not deny or confirm reports that important developments were expected in the case.

In answer to a question as to whether the abductors of the famous aviato's son had been arrested he said, "I wish it were true."

William Stanley, assistant to the Attorney General, however, said:

Case is Hot.

"The case is hot. There are three phases of it and if anything should go wrong with them it would be tragic. I'm sorry that's all I can tell you now."

The Lindbergh baby was stolen on the night of March 1, 1932, from the home of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh near Hopewell, N.J. It was later found dead.

J. Edgar Hoover, investigating chief of the Department of Justice, was in New York to-day, presumambly directing efforts to bring the case to a successful conclusion.

Since the enactment of the so-called Lindbergh kidnapping law, the Department of Justice has had a special squad of men assigned to the case. This squad reports only to Hoover.

While official word of their activities was lacking, it was reported that three men were being questioned in connection with the kidnapping.

BODY LOCATED IN FLOOD WATER UPON OPS FARM

Posse of Over 60 Had Combed District for Albert Hepburn Two Days.

DISAPPEARED SATURDAY

Victim Was Reil Rebellion Veteran—Present at Capture —Inquest Ordered.

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 20.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The body of Albert Hepburn, the eighty-year-old veteran of the Northwest Rebellion, who disappeared on Saturday morning, was found yesterday afternoon on the farm of W. J. Nelson, of North Ops. The discovery was made by Mr. Nelson. The body was half submerged in flood water following the heavy rainfall of Saturday night and Sunday.

Under ordinary conditions the body could have been seen from any point on the farm, but it is believed it was under water since the heavy rainfall. All day yesterday a detachment of about sixty men combed the swamps along the Scugog River south of the town and also searched the C.N.R. Haliburton line and C.P.R. line running to Port McNicoll in the hope of finding the unfortunate man.

Last Seen Saturday

He had lived with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Richard Hepburn, Glenelg street. On Saturday morning he started out to purchase some tobacco, but never returned to the house. In the evening Mrs. Hepburn notified the police of his disappearance and a search was at once instituted. It was learned that on Saturday afternoon the deceased was found resting in the grass by Mr. T. Twohey at his farm on the northern boundary of the town. Mr. Twohey took him in and provided him with a lunch, and he continued on his way. It had been his custom to take strolls during the week. It is believed that he became confused and lost all sense of direction, wandering on to the Nelson farm in the hope of finding the highway. Darkness apparently overtook him, and it is thought he became exhausted. The terrific rainstorm followed and the unfortunate man succumbed to the elements.

The late Mr. Hepburn was one of the best known residents of Lindsay. He lived in the Township of Ops, on what is known as the John Finnigan farm, practically all his life. He is survived by two children residing in the United States.

Reil Rebellion Veteran

In the year 1885 the deceased answered the call for volunteers to serve in the North West Rebellion. He enlisted in the detachment of the 45th Regiment from Lindsay under Major John Hughes and left Lindsay on April 1st. The detachment was linked up with the Midland Battalion under command of the late Lieut.-Col. A. T. Williams, of Port Hope. It was known as "C" Company and led the charge at the Battle of Batoche. Mr. Hepburn was present at the capture of Louis Reil, the Rebel leader.

Chief of Police Lawler announced last ngiht that an inquest would be held.

Rev. W. P. Meagher Celebrates Silver Jubilee of Ordination.

PRESENTATION MADE.

Rev. P. J. Kelly Preaches Sermon at Celebration in Chapel at Mount.

The celebration of the Silver Jubilee of the Rev. William P. Meagher of Lindsay, was a joyful event of this morning at Mount St. Joseph, where Father Meagher solemnized his first Mass, on September 10th, 1909. Owing to the death of the late Bishop Scollard, the holding of the Jubilee celebration was postponed until this morning.

Everything united to make the affair pleasant and memorable. Golden sunshine, filtering through the translucent tints of the windows in the apse of the Chapel, where scenes in the life of the Patron of the Order, St. Joseph, are depicted in stained glass, fell on the gold vestments of the officiating priests, on the gold lace that draped the altar, on the gold of the crucifix and wreathed ball which hover over the head of St. Joseph himself, enshrined in a niche above the tabernacle, and the golden lights in flame-tipped candles and electric wall fixtures. Bright accents of color on the white altar were tall vases holding white lilies, white and pale pink asters and glowing red salvia.

To the music rendered by the choir of the Mount, the Solemn High Mass was celebrated by the

False Alarm Calls Whole Department

Fire Chief George Gimblett and the city police are on the trail of a person who turned in a false alarm to the Fire Department a few minutes after seven o'clock last evening. The call brought all apparatus on a fruitless run to Box No. 51 at the corner of Brock and George Streets.

Determined to stamp out the dangerous practice, the Fire Chief states that the culprit will be dealt with severely. The law provides a fine of $5C or six months in jail in such cases.

Shortly after the return from the false alarm, the apparatus was called to 633 Downie Street, where an automobile was in flames. The blaze, believed to have been caused by a backfire, was put out before extensive damage was done. A chimney fire at 249 Reid Street after ten o'clock was put under control in short order through the use of chemicals.

Hot ashes in a wooden box caused a fire in the upstairs of the building to the rear of the Fitzpatrick and Geraghty store on the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets this morning. Firemen responding to a call a few minutes before six o'clock found a hole burned in the floor, but halted the flames before they could spread further. Damage was light.

BEATS SOPWITH OVER HALF MILE IN THIRD RACE

Genoa Gib Borrowed From American Yacht Vanite Costs Endeavour Contest.

LOSES BY 3 MINS. 2 SECS.

Challenger Hits Soft Spot in Wind After Leading for 21 Miles.

By ANDREW MERKEL
Canadian Press Writer

Aboard U.S. Coastguard Cutter Mendota, Newport, R.I., Sept. 20 (C.P.) — An old Genoa jib borrowed from Vanite, wind blown and misshapen, cost T. O. M. Sopwith to-day's race for the America's Cup.

Had Good Start.

The challenger was away to the best start of the series and had established a lead of a full mile at the outer mark. Jibing around the buoy and coming on wind with Genoa jibs set, Sopwith immediately began to fall to leeward. When he got into a soft spot and saw the defender getting a better slant he came about and established himself on the Rainbow's weather bow. But he had tacked too late. The defender carried his wind through the challenger's lee and with sails drawing perfectly, continued to open up his lead.

As Rainbow crossed the line the challenger was half a mile astern.

Rainbow's margin of victory was three minutes two seconds. Sopwith dislikes Genoa jibs which have proved faster on the wind in smaller classes on both sides of the ocean. It may be he will order one tonight.

The Rainbow Passes

Sailing on her best point, Rainbow apparently gained from the manoeuvre on her skipper, familiar with the winds of the course, and shortly after two o'clock with about nine miles to go to the finish passed the challenger.

Sopwith led by six minutes and 40 seconds at the outer mark but on the reaching his Genoa jib borrowed from vanite, gave him trouble and the defender crept up under his lee aided by a fresh slant of wind.

The Start

The 10-minute warning signal was hoisted at 10.30 and the two boats jockeyed behind the line with Genoa jibs set.

The five-minute preparatory signal went up at 10:35 and the start was made at 10.40.

Sopwith again took measure of Vanderbilt at the start crossing to weather and with better headway. Endeavour immediately went away and two minutes after the start was clear ahead.

The yachts had mainsails and Genoa jibs set.

Rainbow took in her Genoa jib and set a parachute spinnaker three minutes after the start. Endeavour was carrying on with a balloon jib. Vanderbilt was running dead for the mark while Sopwith appeared to be tacking down wind.

The Annie Oakley

Six minutes after the start Endeavour broke out her spinnaker as Rainbow seemed to be closing the gap. Sopwith was carrying two kites to Vanderbilt's one but it was questionable if the arrangement was proving helpful.

The air was so light that Endeavour's Annie Oakley spinnaker—the ventilated sail—only partly filled, the rest hanging in folds. Rainbow's lighter sail bulged proudly.

Fifteen miutes after the start the yachts were practically on even terms.

Endeavour appeared to be slightly

Latest Move in Nazi Fight to Make Pastors Join Party or Get Out.

NO SEPARATE CHURCH.

BERLIN, Sept. 20. (AP).—Theofil Wurm, whose defiance of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller cost him the Bishopric of Wuerttemberg, is a prisoner to-day in his own home by order of Dr. August Jaeger, powerful Nazi commissioner for Protestant churches in Prussia.

Police guarded the Stuttgart home of the churchman against any attempt to leave.

Dr. Jaeger in a foreign press conference on the Nazi state's plan to fight any attempt to create a church independent of the state, said: "Whatever opposition remains is the outgrowth of misunderstanding. Our duty is to go through national socialism's totality of ideals. Church policies is not a matter for clergymen but for the highest church administration. This has nothing to do with the preaching of God's word."

On the Nazi theme of anti-Semitism, Dr. Jaeger said. "The Jews kept the race pure by the methods now adopted in Germany. Germany will keep itself pure."

A further development in the Nazi fight against recalcitrant clergymen came with the announcement of Reichsbishop Mueller of Hanover that all opposition pastors become Nazis or get out.

RIVAL YACHTS HEAD SEAWARD FOR THIRD RACE

Endeavour With 2 Wins Conceded Excellent Chance of Regaining Cup.

NEED GOOD WIND.

All Changes Possible Made to Speed Rainbow Says Vanderbilt Hopefully.

(By Andrew Merkel, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 20 (CP)—Endeavor and Rainbow, representing the finest handiwork of rival British and United States yacht builders, were under tow early this morning bound for the jousting ground off Benton's Reef, where their skippers, T. O. M. Sopwith and Harold S. Vanderbilt will for the fifth time in six consecutive days, prepare to break lances over possession of the America's Cup.

Sopwith, at the helm of the challenger, has already won two knightly encounters. He must win two more before Vanderbilt has won four in order to succeed in this quest.

The opening contest sailed last Saturday was called off owing to expiration of the time limit, with the defender in the lead, and yesterday the yachts lolled about the starting line lacking steerage-way for the greater part of two hours, when the sailing committee decided upon a postponement until to-day.

There was a promise of wind early this morning and indications were a start at least would be made.

With Endeavour holding a two-race lead there is no purpose in concealing the danger of the America's cup returning to England, after an 83-year absence.

Fast as Possible

"I believe," said the defending skipper Vanderbilt, "that Rainbow has been made as fast as it is possible to make her. All possible changes were tried in the trial races and those that helped her were made. There is nothing I know of we can do to improve her.

"Endeavour is a very fast boat. She has more stability than Rainbow and that is an advantage in a strong breeze."

Vanderbilt did not say so, but he knows that ability of a boat to stand up in a strong breeze is a decided advantage to a yacht beating to windward, but a handicap in faint zephyrs. Most observers are of the opinion that one of the Rainbow's advantages in light weather is the ability of her crew to handle light sails faster than the Britons.

But if moderate to strong breezes blow over the open ocean course nine miles southeast of Brenton's Reef, there is little reason to believe the next contest for the old mug will not be sailed at Cowes, England.

PRESS SEARCH FOR YOUNG MEN

Father of One Leads Party Into Timagami Bush for Overdue Pair.

HOPES STILL HIGH.

TIMAGAMI, Ont., Sept. 20.—(C.P.)— While friends and relatives held out hope of safety, two young men were to-day being sought by bands of searchers worried at the continued absence of the pair. Two weeks overdue on a canoe trip into the Timagami waterways, Stanislaus Franchot, 23 year old Harvard law student, and David Reisman, son of Dr. David Reisman of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, left Bear Lake for a trip into the lake area they are said to have known well. No word has been heard from them since they asked a forestry look-out man to post a letter for them some time ago.

Dr. Reisman, who is heading an expedition into the district, expressed the belief the men would be found soon.

"Once in the forest the boys had no way of communicating with the outside world," he said. "They may have decided to prolong their trip, or they may have lost their canoe and are working their way back afoot."

No serious doubts are being held the men would be able to find food to replenish their depleted stock, as the district provides plenty of game and fish. Illness caused by the continued wet weather was a more grave threat, it was believed.

Trollies Crash In Fog 50 Passengers Hurt

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 20.—(CP)—At least 50 work-bound passengers escaped serious injury today when two trolley cars crashed head-on on the southern edge of this city in a dense fog.

The cars were moving on a one-way stretch of track when they collided.

A signal system for the single track, it was stated, failed to function properly and allowed the cars to both enter the block. Operators of the cars said they were unable to see the other advancing in the fog.

Police Lieut. Thomas Truesdale, enroute to report for duty, said none of the passengers was seriously hurt, although all were shaken considerably.

STIRLING, Sept. 20.—A gilded day of sunshine with a light southern breeze, autumnal tints on the trees, blue skies and far horizons, contributed a perfect setting for Stirling's fair yesterday, brought out a big crowd, and guaranteed a satisfactory surplus in the gate receipts.

Horse races, soft ball games, horseshoe pitching, a concert by the local band, and an extensive midway including several "gyp" games which were closed up around three o'clock when some of the customers squawked about having been taken for comparatively small amounts, were incidental features in the agricultural background.

Exhibitors Total 100

Yesterday's crowd was largely from the district between Marmora and Belleville with hundreds from the Sidney, Rawdon and Huntingdon township section. Many visitors were here from East Peterbor-

BISHOP WURM HELD PRISONER

Latest Move in Nazi Fight to Make Pastors Join Party or Get Out.

NO SEPARATE CHURCH.

BERLIN, Sept. 20. (AP).—Theofil Wurm, whose defiance of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller cost him the Bishopric of Wuerttemberg, is a prisoner to-day in his own home by order of Dr. August Jaeger, powerful Nazi commissioner for Protestant churches in Prussia.

Police guarded the Stuttgart home of the churchman against any attempt to leave.

Dr. Jaeger in a foreign press conference on the Nazi state's plan to fight any attempt to create a church independent of the state, said: "Whatever opposition remains is the outgrowth of misunderstanding. Our duty is to go through national socialism's totality of ideals. Church policies is not a matter for clergymen but for the highest church administration. This has nothing to do with the preaching of God's word."

On the Nazi theme of anti-Semitism, Dr. Jaeger said. "The Jews kept the race pure by the methods now adopted in Germany. Germany will keep itself pure."

A further development in the Nazi fight against recalcitrant clergymen came with the announcement of Reichsbishop Mueller of Hanover that all opposition pastors become Nazis or get out.

STILL A FAN

VANCOUVER, Sept. 20 (C.P.) — Fifty-eight years ago Walter F. Graveley, 23-year-old yachting enthusiast, sailed on The Countess of Dufferin, Canada's first bid for the highly prized America's Cup.

To-day at 81, Mr. Graveley, founder and honorary life commodore of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, is watching with keen interest the duel between the British challenger, Endeavour, and the American defender, Rainbow.

RIVAL YACHTS HEAD SEAWARD FOR THIRD RACE

Endeavour With 2 Wins Conceded Excellent Chance of Regaining Cup.

NEED GOOD WIND.

All Changes Possible Made to Speed Rainbow Says Vanderbilt Hopefully.

(By Andrew Merkel, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 20 (CP)—Endeavor and Rainbow, representing the finest handiwork of rival British and United States yacht builders, were under tow early this morning bound for the jousting ground off Benton's Reef, where their skippers, T. O. M. Sopwith and Harold S. Vanderbilt will for the fifth time in six consecutive days, prepare to break lances over possession of the America's Cup.

Sopwith, at the helm of the challenger, has already won two knightly encounters. He must win two more before Vanderbilt has won four in order to succeed in this quest.

The opening contest sailed last Saturday was called off owing to expiration of the time limit, with the defender in the lead, and yesterday the yachts lolled about the starting line lacking steerage-way for the greater part of two hours, when the sailing committee decided upon a postponement until to-day.

There was a promise of wind early this morning and indications were a start at least would be made.

With Endeavour holding a two-race lead there is no purpose in concealing the danger of the America's cup returning to England, after an 83-year absence.

Fast as Possible

"I believe," said the defending skipper Vanderbilt, "that Rainbow has been made as fast as it is possible to make her. All possible changes were tried in the trial races and those that helped her were made. There is nothing I know of we can do to improve her.

"Endeavour is a very fast boat. She has more stability than Rainbow and that is an advantage in a strong breeze."

Vanderbilt did not say so, but he knows that ability of a boat to stand up in a strong breeze is a decided advantage to a yacht beating to windward, but a handicap in faint zephyrs. Most observers are of the opinion that one of the Rainbow's advantages in light weather is the ability of her crew to handle light sails faster than the Britons.

But if moderate to strong breezes blow over the open ocean course nine miles southeast of Brenton's Reef, there is little reason to believe the next contest for the old mug will not be sailed at Cowes, England.

MEDIATION STRIKE BOARD REPORTS TO ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—(A.P.)—The Presidential Mediation Board, stepping into the United States' textile strike breach, apparently is dispatching to President Roosevelt to-day its report on the situation.

The chairman of the board, Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire, is going to a conference in the Summerwhich House at Hyde Park, N.Y., and is believed to carry with him the report. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins also is going to the luncheon parley.

The sudden action of the President in calling the conference comes at a time when the opposing sides in the controversy stand at an absolute impasse.

PRESS SEARCH FOR YOUNG MEN

Father of One Leads Party Into Timagami Bush for Overdue Pair.

HOPES STILL HIGH.

TIMAGAMI, Ont., Sept. 20.—(C.P.)— While friends and relatives held out hope of safety, two young men were to-day being sought by bands of searchers worried at the continued absence of the pair. Two weeks overdue on a canoe trip into the Timagami waterways, Stanislaus Franchot, 23 year old Harvard law student; and David Reisman, son of Dr. David Reisman of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, left Bear Lake for a trip into the lake area they are said to have known well. No word has been heard from them since they asked a forestry look-out man to post a letter for them some time ago.

Dr. Reisman, who is heading an expedition into the district, expressed the belief the men would be found soon.

"Once in the forest the boys had no way of communicating with the outside world," he said. "They may have decided to prolong their trip, or they may have lost their canoe and are working their way back afoot."

No serious doubts are being held the men would be able to find food to replenish their depleted stock, as the district provides plenty of game and fish. Illness caused by the continued wet weather was a more grave threat, it was believed.

BARRIE DEFEATS TWEED IN FIRST

Stellar Pitching by Barrie Hurler Cuts Down Tweed Score.

PLAY AGAIN SATURDAY.

BARRIE, Sept. 20. (CP).—Barrie Roxy Aces defeated Tweed Seiberlings 8-3 last night to take a one-game lead in the semi-final round of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association's intermediate "B" series. The return game will be played in Tweed Sept. 22, the winner of the round meeting Stoney Creek or Byron for the title.

Ken Guilfoyle's stellar pitching produced the victory for the Barrie team. He struck out 14 and allowed no walks. Clark started on the mound for Tweed, but was sent in to retirement in the third frame, Luffman taking his place.

Eddie Stransman, Reid and Hines of Barrie had two safe hits each. Meraw, McCuncheon and McCrea of Tweed also connected for two safeties. Stransman and Meraw hit for three bases when there was a runner on the paths.

CLARKSBURGH, W. Va., Sept. 20.—(C.P.)— Frank Rhea went under ether for an operation just a year ago. He celebrated the anniversary here for a dinner. Included in the guest list was the doctor who performed the operation; the lawyer who did not settle up his estate; the reporters who didn't write his obituary, and the undertaker who didn't—but why mar a happy anniversary?

Trollies Crash In Fog 50 Passengers Hurt

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 20.—(CP)—At least 50 work-bound passengers escaped serious injury today when two trolley cars crashed head-on on the southern edge of this city in a dense fog.

The cars were moving on a one-way stretch of track when they collided.

A signal system for the single track, it was stated, failed to function properly and allowed the cars to both enter the block. Operators of the cars said they were unable to see the other advancing in the fog.

Police Lieut. Thomas Truesdale, enroute to report for duty, said none of the passengers was seriously hurt, although all were shaken considerably.

STIRLING FAIR WELL ATTENDED WEATHER FINE

100 Exhibitors Are Reported by Secretary of the Fair Board.

HORSE RACES GOOD.

Fine Showing in Light Horses, Dairy Cattle, Sheep and Poultry.

STIRLING, Sept. 20.—A gilded day of sunshine with a light southern breeze, autumnal tints on the trees, blue skies and far horizons, contributed a perfect setting for Stirling's fair yesterday, brought out a big crowd, and guaranteed a satisfactory surplus in the gate receipts.

Horse races, soft ball games, horseshoe pitching, a concert by the local band, and an extensive midway including several "gyp" games which were closed up around three o'clock when some of the customers squawked about having been taken for comparatively small amounts, were incidental features in the agricultural background.

Exhibitors Total 100

One hundred exhibitors were reported by the secretary, J. E. O'Donnell, with an exceptionally fine showing in light horses, dairy cattle, sheep, poultry, and domestic products. Three hundred birds occupied all the pens that were judged by W. J. Abernethy of Campbellford.

Yesterday's crowd was largely from the district between Marmora and Belleville with hundreds from the Sidney, Rawdon and Huntingdon township section. Many visitors were here from East Peterbor-

BRITISH LABOR UNIONS PRESENT SOLID FRONT AGAINST FASCISM

[By Central Press Canadian]

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 20.—Resolutions proclaiming British Labor's abhorrence of Fascism and demanding that the working classes present a united front to prevent Fascism being introduced into Britain are on the agenda of the annual Trades Union Congress at Weymouth.

A resolution put forward by the Association of Women Clerks and Secretaries notes "with abhorrence that Fascism means the subservience and enslavement of women." The National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers asks the congress to urge every section in the trade union and Labor movement to "co-operate in fighting the menace of Fascism."

The large number of resolutions on the subject of Fascism is indicative of the growing concern of the trade union moguls at the large number of secessions of trade unionists to the newly formed Fascist movement headed by Sir Oswald Mosley.

The National Union of Clerks hints at this in "regretting that a few individuals have allowed themselves to be diverted from real service to the working-class movement by the propaganda of quite unrepresentative bodies."

The congress will deal with a total of more than fifty resolutions on a wide range of subjects, including in addition to the Fascist "menace," the problems of the housing of the poor, Labor's protest against proposals for the sterlization of the unfit, reduction of the working week to forty hours, raising of the school-leaving age, and a series of resolutions on economic questions.

"Born out of the post-war confusion and despair," a manifesto declares "the Fascist party in Italy and the Nazi party in Germany have used their powers to suppress, by violence, all other parties. Murder, torture and exile were their weapons. They have filled the world with the horror of their deeds. Concentrating the power of the state in the leader of the party, a servile obedience has been exacted from every citizen.

"Fascism brings in its train nothing but oppression and suffering. The Labor movement is determined that Fascism shall be thoroughly exposed once and for all. Each affiliated organization, every lover of democracy and freedom, is called upon to make all possible efforts to achieve this object, and to strengthen the hands of the Labor movement in the campaign to ensure the victory of democracy and socialism over the forces of dictatorship and reaction."

Sporadic street fights continue with overzealous British Fascists. Two persons were fined at Greenwich recently as a sequel to a conflict with a crowd at Lewisham. A Blackshirt was seriously injured in a Chelsea street attack.

AMERICA PEOPLED BEFORE 500 B.C.

British Museum Explorer Found Traces of Ancient Civilization.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20 (C.P.) — The discovery in Central America of an ancient civilization, to which is attributed the uncovering of secrets of astronomy, mathematics, medicine, and the alloying of metals, is recognized as one of the most important of achievements of present-day exploration.

Pioneer in such exploration is Frederick A. Mitchell-Hedges of the British Museum, who recently visited Montreal. For the past 25 years Mr. Mitchell-Hedges has travelled throughout Central America.

Mr. Mitchell-Hedges stated he was not at liberty to discuss the details of his discoveries but admitted that "somewhere in Central America" he had found "more than remnants" of a civilization antedating that of the Mayas (hitherto the earliest known in America and of which the first established date is approximately 500 B.C.). He believes that what he has discovered is the earliest and original civilization in America—a queer and eerie race which was, in many respects, as advanced as some modern white races.

ROTATING EARTH WAS EVER SOLID

Scientist Refutes Idea That Shifting of Continents Made Earth's Climate.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Sept. 20.—(C.P.). — Considerable climatic changes on the face of the earth in past centuries, of which there is ample evidence, were probably caused by periodic softening of the substratum and a rotation of the surface blocks around parts where softening had not taken place, declared Prof. W. T. Gordon before the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Delivering the presidential address to the plant life section, Prof. Gordon rejected the theory that wholesale shifting of continents, involving vast changes in the position of the north and south poles ages ago, had been responsible for the startling changes in climate in different sections.

Plants afford one of the best indexes of climate changes, the professor said, and afford evidence these changes have been very considerable in past times. Plant fossils whose living relations inhabit tropical lands have been found in rock formations in Greenland, for instance.

But the theory of widespread shifting of continent could not be accepted, said Prof. Gordon. "The earth so far as we can see has always been solid and rotating at an enormous rate. If we are to assume wholesale melting of the subsurface rocks then the speed of rotation would soon play havoc with the crust."

England's free library services cost, in the last year, 33 cents per head of population.

Link Suicide Note With Missing Cashier

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Both city and State reservation police said to-day they had received no request to search for Clifford C. Smith, missing cashier of the Long Island railroad, New York, reported to have threatened to end his life in the Niagara Gorge in a letter received by the Pinkerton Detective Agency in Chicago Saturday.

Police recalled, however, that on Saturday afternoon a note was found pinned to a tree on Luna Island in which the writer said that he had committed suicide. This note was signed "Arral" and gave a New York address.

The note read:

"Dear Ida,—I have committed suicide and hope you will not be angry. I owe a large sum of money to a man which I am unable to repay. Write my father and mother and tell them that I am sorry but it was the only way out."

Police thought there might be some connection between the note found on the tree and Smith's reported threat of self-destruction.

Havelock

Mr. and Mrs. Albert King of Belmont have moved to one of W. W. Redden farms near Trent River recently.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Palmore and Mrs. W. Roberts of Orillia were the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Roberts and family.

Numerous depots for the collecting of Buckingham wrappers have been placed at important places in the village by the C.P.R. Recreation Club. This year, as last, toys will be given for the needy children in the district on the redemption of old wrappers.

The W.M.S. of Havelock United Church met at the home of Mrs. Alex Plunkett last week when a large number were present. Mrs. Thos. Easterbrook assisted by Mrs. Chas. Spencer had charge of the devotional exercises. The lesson study was led by Mrs. A. Anderson. The speakers were Miss M. Seeney, and Mesdames M. E. Wilson, (Rev.) J. Scott and C. H. Roberts.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Barlow of Belleville were recent guests of Rev. and Mrs. Hugh Brown.

Miss Nelson, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society in Peterborough visited her friend, Miss M. Seeney of town last week.

Mr. N. C. Wade has returned from a delightful trip to Chicago and the World's Fair.

A large number of local citizens made applications for shares of the Bank of Canada which went on sale Monday. Orders ranged from one to the limit fifty, the larger orders being more popular. An announcement from Ottawa says the new bank's notes will be smaller, even more so than those issued by the United States treasury department.

Mr. C. L. Copp, I.P.S., of Peterborough, was in town Tuesday for the big successful schools' fair.

Mrs. Nurse Quiin and son Ernest, and who is a former Royal Irish constable, and her daughter, Mrs. Lamonte, and little son Albert, all of Toronto, but recently from Belfast, Ireland, are guests of their old friends, Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird.

A large number from here are as usual planning on attending East Peterborough Agricultural Society's Fair in Norwood on October 10th.

Mrs. H. G. Scott of St. Catharines, nee May Wiseman of town, is the guest of Mrs. C. H. Roberts.

Miss Grace Elmhirst of Peterborough and formerly of Belmont married Robert Wrightly of Belmont on Saturday last week in Peterborough. They will reside on Mr. Wrightley's farm when they return from a wedding trip.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

COTTESLOE.

Miss Sylvia Clysdale spent a few days last week with her cousin, Miss Irene Payne.

Mrs. E. N. McDonald returned home on Friday after holidaying at Round Lake.

Miss Laura Webster, accompanied by Master Johnny Gillespie, of Peterborough, spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Webster.

What might have been a serious accident occurred early Saturday morning. Mr. Varty and friends, of Havelock, while motoring to Bancroft Fair, failed to make the turn at the fifth line corner, overturning their car into the ditch. Fortunately the occupants escaped uninjured. The car, not being damaged a great deal, was repaired in a few hours and they returned home.

The Cottesloe W. M. S. held their annual monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Cecil Jenkins, of Havelock, on Wednesday, September 12. A number took advantage of this opportunity of again meeting a former member and secretary. A good program was enjoyed, also the social hour which followed.

Mr. Albert Webster, also Mae and Armand, spent Saturday in Peterborough.

THE SUREST WAY.

The Sarnia Canadian-Observer hits the mark squarely in the centre when in discussing relief problems it declares that while the old voucher system providing orders for groceries, clothing and other supplies may not have been perfect, it at least assured a fairly equitable division of the relief among all the members of a family, while, on the other hand, cash in the hands of a head of a household may not result in so satisfactory a distribution.

The weakness of the cash system is, The Examiner submits, completely exposed in the above paragraph.

It explains why wives of unemployed men in London, Ontario, have complained against assistance being given in the form of cash, for they have found that when the head of the family obtains his allowance in money he is inclined to spend it in ways that do not contribute to the welfare of the household.

To grant cash relief at a time when the beer parlors and other attractions put temptation in the way of heads of families is too great a risk, for certainly relief allowances are necessarily too meagre to permit diverting any portion of them for the providing of necessities to the buying of luxuries.

All things considered, the municipality that adheres to the voucher system is taking the surest way of providing for the needs of its citizens who are in want; to pay in cash merely paves the way for waste and distress, for in many cases money that should go for bread and milk would be squandered on beer and other luxuries.

ELIMINATING THE UNFIT.

In an effort to cut down the number of traffic accidents which has reached a startling total the British Ministry of Transport is reported to have reached a decision to impose compulsory driving tests upon all motorists who have been granted licenses since last April.

The object of this examination is to eliminate all the new drivers who by reason of physical defects or other disabilities are considered unfit to be entrusted with the responsibility of handling a motor car.

The British plan has much to commend it in theory, but in actual practice it has been found that most drivers who are suffering from some form of physical disability are correspondingly careful in their driving technique and very rarely are involved in accidents.

The most difficult feature about solving the accident problem as a matter of fact is that it is as a rule the normal driver who gets into trouble, and that more often than not does so with a car in good shape and under normal weather and road conditions.

That is to say, that when conditions are especially threatening unusual care is generally exercised, but, on the other hand, when the road is straight and smooth and dry, the visability good and everything conducive to safe driving, many motorists relax and take a chance—and then comes the smash.

Weeding out those who are apparently not fit to handle a car is not likely therefore to cause a very marked reduction in the list of accidents.

TOO MANY TEACHERS.

The noticeable decrease in registrations at the Peterborough Normal School this term can probably be explained by the fact that for the present the teaching profession is overcrowded and more teachers are seeking appointments than can be provided for under our school system.

This condition, of course, has been aggravated by the decision of the Hepburn Government to abolish the second year of the Normal School training course, thus throwing upon the market a considerable number of teachers who had intended taking their second year, and who had been granted leave of absence for the purpose of attending Normal School.

It is an unfortunate situation that there should be an oversupply of teachers because, as was perhaps inevitable, this competition for school appointments, combined with the desire of school trustees to cut expenditures to the lowest possible degree, has lowered the general scale of teachers' salaries, especially in the smaller schools, to a point that certainly does not represent a fair return upon the time and money spent by the teachers in preparing themselves for their professional duties.

There are those who suggest that the situation might be relieved by closing the Normal Schools for a year or so, but there are obvious objections to such a drastic course.

However, it is not a very encouraging outlook with scores of young teachers unable to find employment and with many others faithfully serving the community for remuneration that is pitiably inadequate.

DISSATISFIED HOTELMEN.

Hotelmen of the Niagara Peninsula held a meeting a few days ago to discuss the situation which has arisen as the result of the establishment of the beer parlors. The unanimous opinion seemed to be that the sale of beer was not going to prove profitable because too many licenses were being granted and the revenues so split up it would mean little advantage to the legitimate hotel trade.

When the proposals for the sale of beer by the glass were first made, the general assumption seemed to be that licenses would be issued only to more prominent hotels that had been in business through the prohibition era and had maintained an efficient service to the public. Such institutions held the opinion that they were entitled to some extra consideration because they had maintained creditable accommodation for the public through a period when the possibilities of reasonable financial returns were discouraging. Their complaint now is that beer licenses are given to places that offer only inferior accommodation, have only small capital investment and are therefore in a position to reap profits from the sale of beer while the more expensively-organized hotels suffer from such competition.

Attempts to arrive at satisfactory methods for the sale of liquor have never been outstandingly successful. The open bars of a former period were a continual source of worry both to their owners and the Government that was held responsible for their existence. No new technique in the sale of liquor has been evolved that promises much improvement over the old abuses. As time goes on the Government, from its experience, may be able to establish more effective regulations for the control of beer sales, but the outlook is that it will have to experience quite a lot of grief before it can provide a method that will be satisfactory to the sellers and will not be too offensive to those who believe that total prohibition is the only answer to the liquor problem.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

AUGUST FATALITIES.

August, according to figures prepared by the Ontario Safety League, was a decidedly unlucky month in this province, for in the thirty-one days no fewer than 168 persons were killed by some twenty different accident hazards—37 more fatalities than were recorded in the same month last year or more than one death a day more than in August, 1933.

The worst of these hazards, automotive vehicles, took 96 lives during August, while the aquatic hazard was responsible for 46 deaths. 16 persons lost their lives in falls, and the railways accounted for ten fatalities.

Stirred by these figures, J. F. H. Wyse, the general manager of the Ontario Safety League, has issued the following advice:

To motor vehicle drivers:

1. When starting out, check the condition of tires, mirror, brakes, horn, lights and windshield wiper. Make this a habit.

2. Report and have fixed any mechanical trouble. Do not drive with makeshift repairs.

3. Even if you have the right of way, give the other driver lots of room at intersections. He may need it.

4. Watch for signs and signals and obey them.

5. Never pass another vehicle on a blind curve or approaching the crest of a hill, and especially not at an intersection.

6. Between speed and safety, choose safety every time.

7. Do your slowing down when approaching an intersection, be prepared to stop.

8. Back up as little as possible, but if you must back, sound your horn first and then watch with great care where you are going. Make sure that there is nobody in the way behind you.

9. Always watch out carefully for children. Keep your eye always on them as you cannot tell what they may do when they are near your roadway.

10. Keep in line until you are sure there is room to pass the car ahead, and remember to practice care, courtesy and common sense.

To pedestrians

1. Watch your step.

2. Let your head guide your heels.

3. Where automatic signals govern traffic, cross street intersections with the GREEN light which says GO.

4. Stop when intersection signal shows RED. It means S-T-O-P.

5. If you have to walk along the travelled portion of a street or highway, where there may be no sidewalk, take the left side facing traffic. You and the driver of a motor vehicle can then both see each other more readily.

6. Cross only at street or highway intersections, where the driver should be watching for you. Do not take a chance by jay-walking or crossing diagonally.

7. Always stop and look before passing alleys and garage entrances; before crossing a street and before stepping off a street car.

8. Guard yourself constantly against the dangers of on-coming motor vehicles.

9. Before passing from behind a parked car, watch for street traffic.

10. Remember that eternal vigilance is the price of safety.

HALTING STOCK FRAUDS.

Ottawa evidently means business in its campaign to check, so far as possible, the frauds which have for too long been foisted on the investing public. The authorities at the Capital have been making little noise about the enforcement of the new Companies Act passed at this year's session of Parliament, but it is now revealed that they have been quietly doing a great deal of work.

To date, some 300 stock salesmen, imported here from the United States, have been sent back across the border. Only when one of these solicitors launched a fight against deportation was it brought to light that this campaign has been going on.

Most of these salesmen have been indulging in one practice, long looked on as one of the trump cards of the fake stock seller, but forbidden under the new law. They have been operating by telephone, calling householders whose names have been placed on "sucker lists" and trying to induce purchases of certain shares which are of very doubtful value.

The very fact that this personal canvassing goes on is enough to warn the prospective customer with any knowledge of trading. Reputable firms do not need to allow this personal soliciting for business.

When the new Companies Act was introduced, this ban on house-to-house canvassing and telephone solicitation aroused the liveliest interest in the United States. It made certain types of brokers in that country sit up and take notice. They had been carrying on this kind of business for years, and they considered the new Canadian law most drastic.

Evidently they have been laboring under the delusion that the section was put into the act just to look pretty. At any rate, they have attempted to send men here and carry on as in the past. They have found that the Dominion means to protect its citizens from unscrupulous market manipulators and peddlers of worthless stocks.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

168 persons accidentally killed in Ontario in one month is a record that does not flatter the common sense of the people of this province.

Graham Spry is the C.C.F. candidate in Toronto East, and there is a feeling that he will have to live up to his name if he is to have the slightest chance of being elected.

Although Canada's export of farm implements has dwindled from the peak years, it is encouraging to note that in the year ending June, 1934, exports amounted to $2,337,554 as against $1,263,562 in the previous twelve months.

Russia is a member of the League of Nations. And as the small boy delights in saying, "So what?"

When Mussolini goes in for military training he evidently does not fool. The scheme just announced is one of the most drastic on record.

ACTS AS BOOMERANG

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was puzzled a few nights ago when I read a letter published in The Examiner written by someone calling upon the property owners not to accept relief rent for their houses. At the same time calling them half wits, fools, etc., for taking relief rent. The object in writing such a letter must be one of three things: (1) to start unpleasant arguments; (2) someone with an axe to grind; (3) someone who delights with fiendish glee in seeing people with their families and furniture thrown into the street without a roof to cover them. If the lake is the object—which would be the natural outcome if this advice was heeded by the landlords then it would act as a boomerang to the civic authorities of Peterboro'. Every sensible person knows that people who are to be evicted from their home are not always going to submit tamely to this form of treatment even though it is by a bailiff properly authorized to do so. Human nature being what it is will rebel, goaded on by desperation and a forlorn outlook.

The time for action by the government to relieve this acute situation is long overdue. This problem has been solved in England. Tenants there cannot be put out on the street until the landlord has proof that the tenant has a house to move into. Such laws should be in effect here now, but instead of that, our laws are conflicting in this regard. The Municipal Act calls upon each municipality to provide food and shelter for its citizens, yet we see citizens thrown out of their houses by the bailiff authorized to do so by law, and living and sleeping in the streets for three or four days at one time; while the Vagrancy Act gives the definition of a vagrant as a person who lives on the streets or goes about from place to place without any visible means of subsistence.

Each municipality should be compelled to erect or have within its boundaries, houses suitable for evicted tenants on relief when other houses could not be obtained for relief rent, instead of sleeping in the streets or in cattle barns as has been the case in Peterborough.

Now in conclusion, let me give a few words of advice to the writer of that notorious letter. In the first place his arrogance proves him to be narrow-minded, selfish, and cruel. The theme of his letter becomes nauseating even to the landlords receiving relief rents by his demeanor in indulging in nasty names to those who do not measure up to his standard; the advice is "Love your neighbor as yourself."

Man's inhumanity to man,
Makes countless thousands mourn.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the valuable space in your paper.

Yours sincerely,
W. S.

A Thought

HABITS RULE US

Thrift is a habit. A habit is a thing you do unconsciously or automatically, without thought. We are ruled by our habits. When habits are young they are like lion cubs, soft, fluffy, funny, frolicsome little animals. They grow day by day. Eventually they rule you. Choose this day the habit you would have to rule over you. The habit of thrift is simply the habit which dictates that you shall earn more than you spend. In other words, thrift is the habit that provides that you shall spend less than your earn. Take your choice.—Elbert Hubbard.

THE FIRST TRIUMPH OF SCIENCE

BY H. W. L. MAHOOD

Long time has passed since Science had its birth. The point, however, is definite. Before that point in time the Sun, and Moon, and Planets, and Stars were to the people gods or angels. The sword of Orion was gemmed with stars. The groups of the stars that adorned the heavens were the trophies of the gods. In those ages there was no science of any kind.

People dreamed but they did not know. Deep in their hearts there was reverence. It found expression in poetry, in legend, and in myth. Then there came a time when an observing eye discovered. That observation is surrounded with a blaze of glory. From the observation that the stars retain their relative places came Science. Then followed the discovery that the times of their rising and setting varied with the seasons. Adventure became bold. The most thrilling adventures have been into the secrets of our world. In what game, in what horse race, in what boat race, the thrill of attempting to split an atom? Except in religious experience there is no other realm with the thrilling experiences to be found in Science. To find yourself in the very presence of God is the great adventure. And this can be an every day experience. He is within reach. We are fashioned for the thrilling rather than for the monotonous. No need for any life to be one of monotony.

Later, the discovery was made that the Sun, the Moon, and the Planets move among the Stars in a plane, and that the belt of the zodiac was marked out and divided. Man's mind was now at work on the thing. From that day the mind has never stayed on any one thing. That was an alert mind which from this genesis began to forecast the future. Eclipses were discovered to occur in cycles of nineteen years? These humble Scientists were able to tell the people when another eclipse of the Sun would occur, or one of the Moon? The periods of the planets were soon discovered Thus Science was born.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

NEW GLASGOW, N. S.

As might be supposed, this thriving industrial centre of Nova Scotia was named for Glasgow, Scotland, by James Carmichael, a Scot, who built the first house here and gave the town its name.

The town was founded in 1809 and grew rapidly as a shipbuilding port. The presence of coal in large quantities in Pictou county, contributed largely to making it a steel-making centre and several large collieries may be found in the locality.

It is 103 miles from Halifax and 42 miles from Truro and is placed in a setting of incomparable beauty.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

ANY MAN'S PRAYER.

LORD, LET me grow.
I ask only this.
Let me rise, let me increase in power and wisdom. I do not mean the little power that gives man authority to say, "Do this" and "Do that" to people—the power to hire-and-fire. Nor do I ask for the mean knowledge that sometimes passes as wisdom, the canny understanding of the weaknesses and appetites of my fellows that allows me to lead them as I desire.
No, I do not ask for these.
Only let me grow, let me know.
"Let me know those things a man should know."
Let me know the good truth. Let me know the fair wisdom. Let me know the bigger things. I shall try to take care of all the smaller, trivial, necessary or futile things. . . . Men will tell me how to get from here to there, and when Dempsey beat Firpo, and how many championships Bobby Jones won, and Greta Garbo's real name, and the low-down on the latest story in the papers, and who's going to run for governor, and what a man should do for that pain, and where he can safely put his money. . . . I shall find out these things for myself. . . . But these are not the things a man should know.
Let me know, Lord, let me grow.
Let me grow out of my pretty ways, let me grow out of my foolish prides, let me grow out of my mean temptations, small indulgences, trivial jealousies. Let me climb, not upon the shoulders of other men, but on the great bulk of my own failures, on the slow accretion of my own struggles.
Lord, I do not ask for Peace. Neither do I ask for Security. Nor for shining worldly Victory. Nor for Praise. . . . I know that these are sweet upon the lips of man. I know they would be sweet to me. I know, too, that a part of me desires them greatly. . . . But I do not ask you, Lord, that you should grant them unto me, from your outstretched hand.
But I do ask that I should GROW—
That I should KNOW the things worth knowing—
And these great gifts will be more than enough for this eager, restless seeking petitioner.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

WHEN TARTE WAS DISCIPLINED

On this date in 1902, it was announced that Hon. J. Israel Tarte had resigned the portfolio of Public Works in the Laurier cabinet. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had gone over early in the summer to attend the coronation of King Edward VII. While there he was taken seriously ill and there were doubts as to whether he would recover. Whether it was just pure inability to keep in harness without the strong hand of the leader on the reins or whether he had come to the conclusion that Laurier's day was done, Tarte defied party policy by going into Ontario and preaching higher tariff protection for Canadian industries.

For a time it looked as if he would get away with it, but Laurier got better and came back to Canada to live for seventeen years thereafter. It was a Saturday afternoon when the Prime Minister arrived at Dalhousie Square station, Montreal, from Quebec. A large contingent of Liberals, and not a few Conservatives, were there to bid him welcome. Among them, of course, was Tarte, still a minister. As Sir Wilfrid emerged from his private car, flanked by Lady Laurier and his faithful body servant, we all saw at a glance that a very sick man had come home. . . . I happened to be near Tarte and I heard him say:

"Mon Dieu, il est mourant" (My God, he is dying!)

And it certainly looked like it. But Laurier was still very much alive, so alive that his first act on reaching Ottawa was to write a letter to Tarte berating his disloyalty, both to himself and the party, and asking for Tarte's resignation. There was, of course, no alternative. Tarte, who had been the chief means of electing Laurier to power, thought he was indispensable; but he erred. Laurier was supreme. Five years later Tarte was dead. The king maker of Quebec was no match for the political sovereign he had enthroned.

WHEAT MARKET OUTLOOK IS BEST IN YEARS BABSON SAYS

World Looks to the Canadian 1934 Wheat Crop.

GREAT SHORTAGE.

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Massachusetts, September 20—The eyes of all Canada, during the next few weeks, will be focused on crop activity; and, in particular, on the course of wheat—prices and experts. Constituting nearly one third of the Dominion's total exports, providing a livelihood for about one quarter of the total population, and having a direct bearing on the finances of the federal government through its ownership of a large carry-over, wheat affects nearly every aspect of the country's prosperity.

Canada Benefits

Although early estimates of Dominion wheat output ran high, July and August were disastrous for many western areas. The same districts that have been so hard hit in previous droughts are suffering and farmers find their situation acute in these sections. Unofficial estimates for the wheat harvest are now ranging from only 256,000,000 bushels to 275,000,000 bushels. Normally consumers in the Dominion use about 106,000,000 bushels per year. Hence, the wheat supply available for export this year, including the carry-over, will be about 357,000,000 bushels—slightly less than last year.

Canada occupies a strategic position in the world crop market at present. Your country and Argentina are the only two with a surplus of wheat available for export. It is estimated that the European harvest, outside of Russia, will be 300,000,000 bushels less than last year. Thus, Canada will probably export about 280,000,000 bushels this season. This is the most promising outlook in years, especially since Canada's export quota under the world wheat agreement before the present abnormal conditions developed was limited to 260,000,000 bushels. Last year's export figures totalled 195,000,000 bushels.

Farm Income Rising.

Already Canada is benefiting from the short crops south of the border. Not only is the United States out of the running as an exporter of wheat and other grains, but she is being forced to import for her own consumption. Within the past few weeks over 1,000,000 bushels of "Durum" wheat have crossed the border to meet the shortage in this variety. The price of "Durum" is high enough to make shipments profitable for Canada in spite of the tariff barriers. Moreover, there is a shortage of feed in the States and millions of dollars' worth of hay, oats and other fodder must be brought in from Canada.

Accordingly, what ordinarily would have been a poor crop year in the annals of the Dominion is being translated into surprisingly good returns. A favorable reduction of carry-over totals is in sight, which will bring further advances in prices during the next year. Current prices around 85 cents per bushel are only slightly below the high for the year. This compares with a scant 70 cents last September and 39 cents at the depression low in December of 1932. On the basis of the price rise, the total farm income should be considerably higher this year.

Farmer Chief Gainer.

Dairy products—output and exports—have been sustained at favorable levels to date. Although prices have not reached unusually high levels, the trend is definitely upward. Over the past year quotations for all farm products have advanced thirteen per cent. and are now the highest since 1931. Moreover, this increase in farm income means an increase in farmers' purchasing power since the articles he has to buy have advanced only seven per cent. Thus, the farmer has been the chief gainer in the past year. In the states the increased cost of manufacturing under the NRA has offset to a large extent the increase in purchasing power as a result of the drought and Government efforts.

Naturally the drought is hard on the farmers whose crops have been ruined. Drought conditions have become chronic in large areas of the Prairies. Bad harvests for the past six years in southern Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta have worked hardships. The government has plans to move about 45,000 families out of the stricken areas into the north. For those remaining, steps will be taken to refertilize the land and, in the meantime, feed will be transported by the railways at two-thirds the normal rate. Further help for the farmer has been assured in recent months through passage of the National Products Marketing Act, the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, and the amendment to the Canadian Farm Loan Act. These three Acts may be called Canada's 'New Deal' legislation.

What About Inflation?

To help finance its various relief measures, the government is taking advantage of its powers conferred by last session's amendment to the Dominion Notes Act by issuing some $30,000,000 of currency against 25 per cent. gold support. Immediately whisperings of inflation are being heard. In every reader's mind there is probably the question: "How can I protect myself against possible inflation?" Although Canada's proposal of note issuance is so far very moderate, I may well answer this question as I have for my readers in the States—"Buy a small home with land enough for a good vegetable garden, and raise a family of spiritually-minded, healthy, industrious and intelligent children."

Studies of the course of radical inflation in European countries show beyond doubt that owners of homes and small farms weathered the upheaval most successfully. Of course, common stocks would rapidly appreciate in price but there is something instinctive in humanity which forces men to turn to land, buildings and other real property in times of violent financial storm. Hence, look around a bit for an attractive farm or home. They are the "cyclone cellars" of an inflationary period. Canada's excellent position in the world wheat markets this year will prevent widespread agitation for radical inflation, because history shows that farm sections rather than industrial areas are usually the promoters of unsound money.

British Jack Tar Visits With Cousin

Albert Neale of H.M.S. Scarborough the Britain naval ship in which Premier Ramsay Macdonald and his daughter Ishbel cruised off the coast of Newfoundland and Labrador, was a recent visitor to this city, when he made a brief stay with his cousin, Mrs. John Doherty, of 259 McDonnel street.

Granted shore leave while his ship was tied up at Montreal, Sailor Neale, whose home is at Watford, London, England, took the opportunity of visiting with his cousin whom he had not seen since she came out to this country fifteen years ago. He has been with his ship for the past eighteen months on the Bermuda station.

Barryvale Farmer Slugged In Argument

RENFREW, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP)—Nathaniel Stoughton, farmer of Barryvale, Ont., was in hospital here to-day suffering from a serious wound in the head, alleged to have been inflicted by a double whiffletree wielded by Cecil Riddle, a neighbor. His condition was reported as critical.

Stoughton, while driving calves from a neighboring farm passed Riddles' place, when an argument is said to have arisen, which ended when, it is alleged, Riddle hit Stoughton over the head.

Riddle was arrested on a charge of assault.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

OILS BUOYANT UNDER TRADING

Industrials Rise After Mid-day Slump to Close Around Day's Best Levels.

TRADE IS SLACK.

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP).—Industrial shares came back from a mid-day slump to close around the day's best levels. Oil issues gave the strongest demonstration with trading heavy in International Petroleum and Imperial. Nickel, Brazilian, C.P.R. and Ford "A" were off very small fractions. Foods showed buoyancy and the distillery group was firm with only Walkers Common closing on the down side.

News of market importance was lacking and the local trend moved in line with developments on the New York board. Some of the oils and Brazilian and Nickel came out in fair volume but trade was slack on the whole.

Weston's Common continued its recent advance, imparting a stimulating effect to other food shares. Banks did little and in the interlisted group the oils were firm to strong and the distillery issues moderately soft.

Morning recessions in the golds were almost entirely recovered this afternoon except in the high-priced group where Lake Shore gave the main exhibition of strength. Dome, Hollinger, Bralorne and Wright Hargreaves closed 25 to 50 cents lower and McIntyre and Lake Shore added 50 cents each for the day. Teck closed at 4.40 for a net loss of 30 cents.

STOCKS REACT UNDER SELLING

Sentiment is Not Bright But Gloom Not as Thick as Previously.

MIXED TENDENCIES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Stocks backed and filled quietly today. Scattered selling in the forenoon gave the list an irregular appearance. The mixed tendencies continued into the late dealings despite some buying in rails. American Telephone was a soft spot. U. S. Smelting reduced a 2-point loss to a fraction. Small gains were shown by Santa Fe, Delaware and Hudson, Chrysler and Sears Roebuck. Transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

Sentiment in the financial markets was not too bright today but, at the same time, the gloom did not appear to be so thick as recently.

Stocks were unable to continue their forward thrust of the previous session and prices displayed a highly irregular tone in trading that still lacked any show of activity. Bonds, however, were inclined to do better, although U. S. Government Securities were narrow and quiet.

Scant changes appeared in Canadian shares. International Nickel, Dome, McIntyre and Canadian Pacific were all steady. On the curb, Hiram Walker was even while Lake Shore sold a shade lower. Dominion Government bonds were quiet. The Canadian dollar ruled unchanged at 103 1-16 cents.

Small gains were recorded by shares of Armour of Illinois Preferred (new) and Howe Sound, both ex-dividend, Loew's, Sears Roebuck, General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse, Reynolds Tobacco "B" and Alaska Juneau were a trifle firmer.

80 Japanese Planes Sent To Manchukuo

TOKYO, Sept. 20 (AP)—Eighty Japanese naval planes roared today toward Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo, shortly after that "independent state" sent a protest to Soviet Russia.

An official denial was made here that the planes were sent as a result of difficulties with the Soviet. Instead, it was said, the action was a gesture of friendship and congratulation to Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo upon his enthronement —which took place March 1.

The whole board improved in the last hour on heavy turnover. Lake Shore sold at $58, a new all-time high price.

BEATS SOPWITH OVER HALF MILE

ahead at 11:06, 36 minutes after the start, as Vanderbilt, at the helm of Rainbow, vainly attempted to work the defender between the British boat the breeze.

Sopwith Dodges.

Rainbow luffed slightly to blanket Endeavour a half hour after the start but Sopwith met the manoeuvre by luffing clear of the threat, while it now appeared the challenger was slowly increasing her small lead. She was doing a little better than six knots in a light breeze.

Endeavour appeared to be increasing her margin over Rainbow with every minute and at 11.15 had pulled out to a clear advantage of two hundred yards.

Both were slightly eastward of a true course to the mark due to Vanderbilt's unsuccessful efforts to blanket the challenger.

Rainbow finally began to move along, and at 11.36 appeared to be holding Endeavour to her lead.

The British boat's big spinnaker is of much greater area than Rainbow's "May West" kite. Both drew well.

A Sail Change

At 11.55, an hour and 15 minutes after the start, the challenger doused her spinnaker and set a reaching jib, of a larger sail area than Rainbow's Genoa, the canvas trailed in the water for a moment but was quickly hauled inboard.

At noon Rainbow was close reaching, evidently looking for further change in wind.

The British sloop began to widen the gap under the new sail spread and at 12.16 had a clear lead of 1,000 yards over Rainbow.

She was approximately 3½ miles from the outer mark at 12.20.

Rainbow 6 Minutes Behind

Endeavour turned the mark at 1:00:39, two hours, 20 minutes, 23 seconds from the start.

Rainbow made the turn at 1.07.09, six minutes 40 seconds behind the Challenger.

The Endeavour had logged an average of 6.8 knots on the run to the outer mark.

Vanderbilt soon bore away from the course, staking everything on finding a favoring slant of air to keep Rainbow footing faster.

Endeavour, well to weather of the defender, appeared to be holding her lead at 1.30 p.m. Both were off the course on starboard tacks.

With 2¼ hours to go Endeavour was 10 miles from the finish line and would finish within the time limit if the breeze held. The challenger was holding her lead and was logging over six knots of Rainbow's best point of sailing.

At 1.45 Endeavour came about on the starboard tack on Rainbow's weather bow a few hundred yards to leeward.

Rainbow Creeps Up

Ten minutes later Rainbow seemed to be working through Endeavour's lee. The defender's Genoa was a better sail for conditions than the challenger's jib. They were sailing a biscuit's toss away from each other.

At 1.55 Vanderbilt was through Sopwith's lee and had his wind clear.

Endeavour went about on a port tack again at 3 p.m., losing yards more of her lead.

Rainbow headed to leeward of the line.

When they slipt tacks Rainbow was rapidly overhauling the challenger and it appeared to be only a matter of minutes until she would overtake her unless she should hit a "soft spot" in the light air.

At two p.m., it was estimated they were 10 miles from the finish.

Searching for the favorable slant of breeze Rainbow was getting, Sopwith sent Endeavour back to the port tack again. The defender was apparently spilling back wind against the challenger's canvas.

Her genoa was luffing and it appeared Rainbow would pass her any minute.

Endeavour Drops Back

At 2:05 Endeavour was back in the starboard tack, a quarter of a mile astern of Rainbow. The challenger's old genoa jib borrow from Vanite, continued to cause him trouble.

The American boat was footing faster and pointing higher into the wind than the British boat.

The latter, although more nearly on the course, was sagging off and either she was getting into soft spots of air or Sopwith was pinching her.

At 2:20 Rainbow still was drawing away.

At 2:40 p.m., four hours after the start, Rainbow was figured to be 4½ miles from the finish line and more than half a mile ahead of Endeavour.

The latter's Genoa jib was still drawing badly.

It appeared likely Rainbow could fetch the finish line on her present starboard tack.

The wind had hauled around to east-southeast.

The breeze was freshening.

As they continued on their course it began to appear doubtful that Rainbow could fetch the mark without another hitch while that seemed well within the ability of Endeavour.

If that should prove to be the case it would tighten up the race as Rainbow would lose time going about.

HONOR PRIEST ON ACHIEVING

Jubilarian, assisted by the Rev. V. G. McFadden of Downeyville and the Rev. C. McCarney of Lindsay.

In the sanctuary were His Excellency, the Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Peterborough, Rt. Rev. Monsignor W. J. McColl of Lindsay, Very Rev. Dean O'Sullivan of Ashburnham, the Rev. P. J. Kelly of Hastings, who preached the Jubilee sermon, the Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore, the Rev. P. Butler and the Rev. J. Walsh, of Kinmount, the Rev. V. J. Gillogly of Victoria Road, the Rev. J. Garvey of Lakefield, the Rev. P. J. Galvin of Grafton, the Rev. H. Black of Parry Sound, the Rev. E. Welsh of Lindsay, and priests of the city; the Rev. J. Finn, the Rev. Dr. J. B. Masterson, the Rev. J. C. Maloney and the Rev. C. Begley.

Nuns of the St. Joseph Community were present in numbers, from the city, from Lindsay and Toronto. Among them was Rev. Mother Cyrilla of Toronto, who is a native of the town of Emly, in Ireland, County Tipperary, where Rev. Father Meagher was born.

Attending the Mass were many friends of the Jubilarian, numbering about one hundred and fifty people from the city and district.

Sons of St. Patrick

Without announcing any especial text for the occasion, Rev. Father Kelly preached one of the eloquent and appropriate sermons for which he is noted. He said, in opening sentences:

"Outside the city of Jerusalem there is a small hill and on that hill the Son of God, made man, was crucified. That hill is the centre of all history and from its relation to that central hill every human activity takes its importance. Those who lived in the remote centuries before His advent looked forward to the coming of Jesus Christ and ever since, mankind looks back to His death. The centuries passed under the Old Law were only important because they led up to the death of Christ on Calvary."

The reverend speaker drew a parallel between the career of Abraham, who left his father's house, his kindred and his country, to go at the command of the Almighty into a foreign land and there fulfil the will of the Lord and be the forerunner of a great race, and the career of St. Patrick, patron saint of the Jubilarian's home land of Ireland, who also, at the command of the Lord, left home and kindred to raise up in Erin a great company of priests.

Abraham, in his time, reverenced the work of Melchisedech, who was the first to offer the sacrifice of bread and wine to the Almighty, in a foreshadowing of the unbloody sacrifice of the New Law. And Abraham also, at the command of God, made ready to offer Isaac, his first-born, as a living sacrifice.

Abraham fulfilled the mission of the time in which he lived, and St. Patrick, following the call of God, established in Ireland many monasteries and consecrated an astonishing number of bishops and priests.

Rev. Father Kelly referred to the preponderance of priests of Irish blood and lineage who have ministered to the want of this diocese through many years past, and spoke of the Jubilarian as yet another link in the chain of those who, leaving home and kindred in the older land of Ireland, came out to an untried country and strange surroundings to spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Alluding to the Jubilarian himself, the speaker said he was struck by the comments of old friends of Father Meagher, who commented often on the soundness of his preaching of the Gospel, and concluded with the words: "In the years to come, Father Meagher will be remembered most, perhaps, by his fidelity to the Mass. And it is the Mass, and only the Mass, which makes up priests and brings back to us the immortal sacrifice of Calvary."

Reception and Banquet

At the conclusion of the Mass, a reception was held in the old Chapel of the Mount, at present in use as a spacious reception hall, where the Jubilarian received the congratulations and good wishes of his many friends.

Later, in the old reception room, a banquet was served to the Bishop and priests, with shining crystal and glass arranged on long tables centered by circular mirrors holding cut-glass bowls of small vario-colored sinnias. The room was decorated with many ferns and palms and large sinnias in big bowls. Greenery decorated the arch between the two large rooms and at each plate was placed a gay boutoniere in a single yellow nasturtium, to brighten the sombre black of the clergy.

During the repast, the presentation of a beautiful set of breviaries, the gift of his fellow priests, was made to Father Meagher by Rev. Father McCarney, while Father McFadden read the following address:

"Reverend and dear Father—Your Bishop, His Excellency Right Reverend Denis O'Connor, and your fellow-priests of the Diocese of Peterborough have assembled here to-day to assist at your Solemn High Mass of Thanksgiving to God for the many graces bestowed upon you during the course of the last twenty-five years. You are to-day celebrating your silver jubilee in the priesthood. And we, your co-laborers in this portion of God's vineyard, wish to extend to you our hearty congratulations as well as our best wishes for many more years of fruitful work in God's holy service.

"Twenty-five years ago you celebrated your First Solemn Mass in the chapel of Mount St. Joseph and it is quite fitting that you should offer up this Mass of Thanksgiving on the occasion of your silver jubilee in this same holy place. Your work in the holy priesthood has been exercised in various parts of the Diocese of Peterborough, and in all these places your efforts to further God's honor and glory, the salvation of souls and your own sanctification have been blessed by God's loving kindness.

"For a time your health was poor but we are glad to see that your needed rest under skilled medical care, coupled with God's goodness, has resulted in renewed strength and activity. It is our earnest prayer that you will long be spared to do everything in your power in the divine work of the salvation of souls.

"In the various parishes in which your exercised your holy functions the charm of your personality has made you very popular. In fact you emulated your famous countryman, Father O'Flynn, for 'you had such a wonderful way wid ye, Father Avick.' Your kindly advice in trials, your encouragement in difficulties, your consolation in times of sickness and death, have left fond thoughts in the minds of those to whom and for whom you exercised your holy calling.

"Again we extend to you our felicitations and, with prayers for God's help in your future sacerdotal activities, we ask you to accept this humble gift as a token of our esteem for you and in memory of your silver jubilee."

Signed in behalf of the Priests of the Diocese of Peterborough.

Rev. Father Meagher was born in the town of Emly, County Tipperary, Ireland. He received his classical education at the Trappist Monastery at Mount Melleray Abbey, Waterford, and his education in Philosophy and Theology at All Hallows' College, Dublin, an institution famous for his imparting of missionary lore.

He was ordained in Peterborough on September 10th, 1909, by the late Bishop R. A. O'Connor and solemnized his first Mass in the Chapel at Mount St. Joseph.

At different periods during the quarter of a century which has intervened, he has been stationed at St. Peter's Cathedral, Lakefield, Cobourg and Douro. At present, he is with Monsignor McColl in Lindsay.

During his stay in various places, Father Meagher has made a host of friends. As a heritage from his Celtic ancestry comes his pulpit eloquence, the readiness of a witty tongue, and the qualities of a warm, unstinted friendliness rising from the good heart that comes from Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grant and family, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hadley, of Norwood, have returned to town.

Mrs. George Ironsides, Booth Street, entertained members of the Bemersyde Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, to the number of twenty, on Tuesday last, to a social evening and bridge. Miss Mary Dickson won the prize, a beautiful cup and saucer, for highest score.

The many friends of Mrs. (Dr.) F. B. Brintnell will be glad to hear that she has so far recovered from her recent operation in Belleville Hospital, as to be able to return home.

before all evidence was obtained.

Unemployment insurance was injected into the political picture when Ward C. Pitfield declared before the Montreal Conservative Association meeting Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was planning to launch such a scheme in the Dominion when he returned from the League of Nations' sessions in Geneva. He described the plan as "the finest I have ever seen to combat unemployment" but he gave no details.

Contradicts Packers.

Stevens contradicted a statement by a packing company head that Canadian hog prices were determined by the price in Britain. Canadian packers controlled the price of meat, he charged, and could substantially increase the farmers' return if they wished.

"I say in regard to bacon sales and regarding beef stock, the packers play a much larger part in the welfare and fate of the farmer than has generally been realized in this country," the Minister asserted. "What I am trying to get at is a system that will give to the farmer a larger share of the consumer's dollar. They are entitled to it."

Mr. Stevens said "powerful interests" were holding his views on the meat situation to ridicule. It was unfortunate, he said, that a great many people accepted these broadsides at the Minister because they came from some "very eminent men in the business."

In Toronto to-night Mr. King will address a Liberal rally in behalf of the Liberal candidate in Toronto East, Major H. P. Snelgrove, who is contesting the riding with T. L. Church, K.C., veteran political warrior, and Graham Spry, C.C.F. candidate.

Mr. Stevens will speak to-night at Harrowsmith in Frontenac-Addington.

Weddings

EAGLESON—CAMPBELL.

COBOURG, Sept. 20 (Examiner Correspondence). — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Manse was the scene of a pretty marriage on Saturday, when Marjorie Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell, was married to Mr. John Gerald Eagleson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eagleson, Toronto.

The bride wore a becoming frock of pale blue satin with pretty blue hat and silver shoes. She wore a corsage of roses and sweet peas pinned with a brooch her mother received from her father on her wedding day, forty years ago. Miss Lenora Campbell was bridesmaid for her sister, and wore pale green crepe with black hat and shoes and a corsage of roses and sweet peas. Mr. Arnold Comrie was best man.

A buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Eagleson left for a trip to North Bay and other points. They will reside in Cobourg upon their return.

Expectation of life is increasing in England, declare statisticians, who say that a boy at birth may count on living 56 years and a girl 60 years, the figures half a century ago being 42 and 45 years respectively.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 20 (Examiner Correspondence). — James Creighton and a companion had a miraculous escape from serious injury late Tuesday night when a motor car in which they were driving on Highway No. 30, just south of Meyersburg, crashed broadsides into a cow—with disastrous results to both car and and cow; the car being put out of commisison and the cow instantly killed. Warkworth 8, Grafton 5

In the first game of the Northumberland League playoffs for the Sam Clark Cup, Warkworth defeated Grafton by 8 run to 5, at Warkworth Wednesday afternoon.

Judge O'Connor, of the 11th Division Court of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, had a very light docket here on Tuesday—only two minor cases appearing on the calendar.

Through the courtesy of W. A. Fraser M.P.P., a consignment of Colonial bent grass has been secured from the Experimental Farm at Ottawa and the grounds are being re-seeded.

Campbellford Club now stands top of the list in the Trent Valley League, having won 18 and lost only ten games.

Messrs A. J. Meyers and Walter S. Wiggins who succeeded in winning the men's doubles in competition for Eastern Ontario Districts, went to Hamilton on Thursday last, competing with some of the crack teams of Western Ontario for the Provincial Championship losing out to a Tilsonburg pair by the narrow margin of 22-20.

THEORY OF EVOLUTION WORRIES PREBYTERIANS

CHARLOTTE, N.C., Sept. 20 (AP)—The theory of evolution, which stirred the South nearly a decade ago and brought on the famous Scopes' trial at Dayton, Tenn., to-day was causing new sensations in Presbyterian circles here.

A special committee of the Mecklenburg Presbytery, which embraces Charlotte, was designated to propost some action with regard to text books used in State schools which, it was claimed, expound evolution and were subservient to Christian teaching.

At the Presbytery meeting the Rev. E. A. Dillard of Charlotte, held up a Sixth Grade textbook—Smith Burnham's "Our Beginnings in Europe and America"—where he said was "Shot through with evolution and teaches Jesus Christ was a mere social reformer."

He said one of the books listed for parallel reading by the Smith Burnham text was "Tree Dwellers."

CITY FOREGOES BUSINESS TAX

Trustees for Bondholders of William Hamilton Co. to Pay Property Taxes.

By motion of the Committee of the Whole, the City Council at a special meeting last evening instructed City Solicitor John R. Corkery, not to enter suit against The National Trust Company as trustees for the bondholders of the William Hamilton Company to recover $1,132 in outstanding business taxes.

Action was taken on motion of Alderman James Hamilton, seconded by Alderman James Ellis after the position had been outlined in committee by the City Solicitor. He explained that in July last The National Trust Company were appointed trustees for the bondholders of the William Hamilton Company, and by a court order were put in possession.

Subsequently, Mr. Corkery said the City bailiff was put in the plant to hold goods and chattels for arrears of taxes, amounting in all to $3,500. Claiming that the action of the city was not legal The National Trust Company threatened action unless the bailiff was removed. While The National Trust had since agreed to pay property taxes of $2,224 out of monies in hand, they had repudiated the business taxes of $1,132, and Mr. Corkery was quite satisfied that it would be unavailing to take the matter to law. Business taxes he said were not a lien on land, and the city could not seize machinery or other goods for business taxes because The National Trust were put in prior possesion under a court order.

SIR STEPHEN KILLIK PREDICTED NEW LORD MAYOR OF LONDON CITY

Brilliant Scene Scheduled at Guildhall on Michaelmas Day.

SHOW COMES NOV. 9TH.

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 20 (CP) — On Michaelmas Day, Sept. 29, the Livery of the City of London will meet at Guildhall to elect a Lord Mayor for the ensuing year.

It is almost certain that the choice of the Aldermen, Sheriffs and Liverymen of the City Guilds will fall upon Sir Stephen Killik, the senior Alderman who has not yet "passed the chair."

Sir Stephen is now the senior member of the Stock Exchange committee, and has been a member of the "House" for nearly 35 years. He is a leading authority on Argentine affairs, and has rendered the Corporation of London notable service in the conduct of its finances.

Sir Stephen's election as Lord Mayor will be accompanied by the usual ritual. The red-carpeted dais, upon which the aldermen in their scarlet robes and the high officers of the city in wigs and gowns will dispose themselves, will be strewn with sweet herbs. This is a relic of the precautions which used to be taken centuries ago when the plague was rife in London. The common crier will step forward and demand that "All you who are not Liverymen depart the hall on pain of imprisonment"—but no one will move.

Unanimous Vote

Sir Stephen Killik's name will then be proposed by the Recorder of the city, and the Liverymen will respond with the unanimous cry of "All."

Some time next month the Lord Mayor-elect will attend the House of Lords to receive from the Lord Chancellor the official intimation of the King's approval of his appointment. His actual assumption of office will be on November 9th, when, accompanied by that quaint paraphernalia known as the Lord Mayor's Show, he will journey to the Law Courts and be sworn-in before the Lord Chief Justice.

new prospectors, all urged on by the lure of the precious metal. Along the railway tracks prospectors sit and wait for a chance to move into the new territory. Jellicoe has but one store and quite frequently the rush for supplies exhausts its stocks. There is one hotel, a post office. But the village is a divisional point on the Canadian National Railway and hence a favorite starting place for the gold-seeking prospectors.

A Great Rush.

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP).—"One of the greatest gold rushes since the old days of the Yukon and Red Lake" declared Hon. Paul Leduc, Ontario Minister of Mines, in commenting to-day on the strikes and consequent rush to the Sturgeon River area of Northern Ontario.

"Following the first reports from the area," he said, "we ordered H. C. Rickaby, Provincial geologist, and Dr. E. L. Bruce to fly in and make a survey of the field. Dr. Bruce is mapping the Little Long Lac district geologically for the Department. This Department is now completing a preliminary map of the new district for prospectors' use as quickly as possible from previously published maps. Practically all other work has been suspended so the map may be in the hands of the prospectors without delay.

"Mr. Rickaby and Dr. Bruce both reported they were favorably impressed with the new field, and a formal report is expected within the next few days.

"Naturally, we are very pleased with the discovery of the new area, and no pains are being spared by the Department of Mines to obtain the full benefit for the province.

Desert Port Arthur.

As an example of what such activity means, I would point out there is not one able-bodied man on relief in the city of Port Arthur today, all having either gone to the mining field or obtained work in some connection with firms supplying materials for the new field.

"The new discovery is practically at Ontario's back door. Unlikely distant fields where transportation costs are high and difficulties are great, the new field is bisected by the Canadian National Railways transcontinental line.

"The finds are within seven or eight miles of the railway, but a winter road to reach the properties will be about 13 to 15 miles long on account of the large number of lakes in the district. The winter road is being cut by a man from the companies' interests.

"An an indication of the interest being taken in the field, one company has shipped in five tons of supplies by aeroplane in the last ten days and the freight costs by air run close to $40 per ton."

Farmers Swap Wives But Judge Spoils It

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., Sept. 20 (AP)—Two Cass County farmers have made one swap that will have to be cancelled—at least for the time being.

Their trade of wives, effected through the divorce and marriage route, has been called off by Circuit Judge Leslie A. Bruce.

On September 12, Judge Bruce granted divorce decrees separating Roy Hart and Lou E. Oliver, the farmers, from their mates.

Three days later, the four journeyed to Kansas City where Mr. Hart married Mrs. Oliver and Mr. Oliver wedded Mrs. Hart.

All might have gone well had not Judge Bruce noticed their names in a list of marriage licenses printed in a newspaper. Describing the divorce actions as "deliberate collusion," he set the decrees aside.

A Word from Zellers To the People of Peterborough:

Our new home at the corner of George and Simcoe Streets will shortly be ready for our occupation. In the meantime, we feel that the folks of Peterborough are entitled to know something more than the mere name of a business which hopes soon to enjoy its patronage, and we take this opportunity of telling you something about ourselves and the type of store we will operate.

Zellers Limited is a Canadian Company, incorporated in 1931 under a Dominion Charter, operates in Canada only and is not controlled by or affiliated with any other Canadian or foreign organization.

The President and Founder of the Company, Walter P. Zeller, is a Canadian and a Gentile, whose ancestry in the Province of Ontario dates back over one hundred years. He was born on the farm originally settled by his grandfather in Waterloo County in 1831, and was educated in the public and high schools of Kitchener.

The type of store the Company operates is distinctive in that no attempt is made to carry all the diversified lines of the Department Store nor to confine the price range in the manner of the Price Limit Store. This departure from established practice permits the Company to offer a wide assortment of general merchandise, both fashionable and staple, commonly known as being "Moderately Priced and in Popular Demand."

The assortment will include Men's and Boys' Furnishings' Ready-to-Wear, Millinery, Accessories, Hosiery and Lingerie for Women and Children; Housewares, Smallwares, Piece Goods and Toilet Goods.

The Company's policy is based on the firm belief that its success in Peterborough depends entirely on its ability to become an asset to the community.

Splendid progress is being made by Peterborough Contractors in the remodelling of the premises we will occupy, and an announcement regarding the opening date will shortly appear in the Peterborough Examiner.

DOMINION DECLINES EXTERNAL CONTROL OF MINORITY GROUPS

Prof. O. D. Skelton Upholds Poland in Stand Before League.

THREE-HOUR DEBATE.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

GENEVA, Sept. 20 (CP Cable).—Canada to-day followed Poland in declining to accept external control of her minority groups. The statement of her position was made in the political committee of the Assembly of the League of Nations.

Prof. O. D. Skelton, submitting Canada's position as the committee debated a Polish resolution pressing for generalisation of the protection of minorities, said it was difficult to see the consistency of those supporters of the motion who argue that international supervision is working badly in their own countries, yet that it would be the best interest of all other countries to adopt it.

The committee debated the resolution for three hours without coming to any decision, and postponed further discussion until to-morrow morning.

Startles League

Poland last week startled the assembly with the declaration that henceforth, in effect, it will decline to recognise international supervision of her radical, religious and language minorities because such supervision was not generalised for all countries.

Poland therefore drew up the present resolution. It takes the ground that existing minorities treaties are binding only on certain members of the League whereas others are free from any legal undertaking in this regard. It argued that such a state of affairs afforded international guarantees to certain minorities only, leaving others which could in no circumstances appeal to the League without international protection.

Such a distinction, said the Polish resolution, "is in contradiction with equity and justice."

Poland therefore proposed the conclusion of a general convention for the protection of minorities, "such a convention to provide for the same undertakings on the part of all members of the League, and to ensure international protection for all racial, linguistic and religious minorities.

Poland wanted an international conference summoned to this end.

System Open to Objection

Prof. Skelton said the Canadian delegation "recognize that the present sytem of guarantee of minority rights in certain countries by outside control is open to definite objection. But is must also be recognised that any alternative solution of the problem which was presented after the war by the existence of important minority groups in those areas of the continent of Europe which had been thrown into the melting pot of the results of war and revolution, would have involved still further difficulties.

"The solution now existing was accepted by the new states to whose jurisdiction the minorities in question were assigned. I listened during the discussion for the advantages of the settlement while retaining its advantages, but I have listened in vain.

"It may well be hoped that in time a system of external control will no longer be found necessary, that gradual lessening of antagonisms inevitable at the outset, and growing recognition of the majority groups within each state will create conditions making revision desirable and possible.

TRUCK DRIVER TO STAND TRIAL

Preliminary Hearing of Negligence Charge Before Magistrate.

BAIL SET AT $4,000.

Following preliminary hearing before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning Frank Driscoll, 29-year-old Canada Packers truck driver was bailed for trial in the sum of $4,000 on a charge of criminal negligence.

The charge against the accused results from an accident at Bennett's Crossing in North Monaghan township on the morning of September 5, in which William Sutherland of Orpington Road was fatally injured, when the truck driven by Driscoll was struck and wrecked by a C.P.R. Peterborough-Toronto train. W. J. Arthur Fair was counsel for the accused.

Crown Attorney V. J. McKiderry, K.C., called three witnesses to privide the evidence on which committment was made. They included John Hickey, 17, of 197 Westcott street; Harry Bird, 288 Briarwood avenue, North Monaghan; and Provincial Constable David Silvester.

John Hickey in evidence stated he was seated in the cab of the truck with the accused. About a mile before the crossing was reached, he testified the driver offered William Sutherland, the victim of the accident, a ride. Sutherland climbed on to the rear of the truck.

The boy stated that owing to the nature of the surface of the road the truck approached the crossing at a slow rate of speed, "about 15 to 20 miles an hour."

"The driver asked me is there anything coming and I said no," the boy told the Crown. "The truck continued over the crossing and I heard a yell from Sutherland, and then the crash."

The witness Bird was going to his work in North Monaghan gravel pit, he testified, when he heard the crash and returned to the scene of the accident. Prior to the crash, he stated he heard a train approaching. "It sounded two long and two short toots on the whistle."

FLYING BISHOP OF THE ARCTIC SLEEPS ON COUCH WORTH $20,0000

Rev. A. L. Fleming Sets Record for Travelling in Covering Diocese.

FUR BED IS LUMPY

(By James Montagnes, Central Press Canadian Writer.)

TORONTO, Sept. 20.—A new record in Arctic travel was set by Right Rev. A. L. Fleming, Bishop of the Arctic for the Church of England, when he covered practically all the western and central Arctic regions in three months this summer. Using every modern means of transportation possible, the bishop travelled 8,710 miles by train, 4,062 miles by aeroplane, and 1,650 miles by water, a total of 14,422 miles in that time.

Every year Bishop Fleming visits some part of the Arctic, but this is the first time that he has been able to cover so much of the region in so short a time. Visiting missions, schools, hospitals, fur trading posts, is the reason for his annual trips.

Canada's flying bishop found that all was not plain sailing. From Aklavik, 120 miles north of the Arctic circle, he set out in a motor boat to Shingle Point, about 110 miles distant, where a school for Eskimo children is located.

"There was a lot of snow on Shingle Point, and it was surrounded by unbroken ice," Bishop Fleming explained." We could not approach it on account of heavy seas and the wind which has increased. We could find no lead in the ice, and so we put down anchor within 20 yards of a small island. I got very little sleep that night. In the morning an Eskimo and I went ashore in a canoe. We looked around and an hour later followed the ice till we found a lead which took us into sight of the school.'

Another time, while travelling by air with Pilot W. R. "Wop" May, R. J. Cromie of Vancouver, and a mechanic, the plane was forced down on a small lake in the Great Bear Lake area, by fog.

"We made a record trip one day of 1,301 miles,' Bishop Fleming said when explaining that air travel has speeded up the entire northland. "We left Aklavik at 5.16 a.m., flew over the Arctic Ocean at a height of two miles, ran into a snow storm at 6.45 a.m., landed at Fort MacPherson and found only the Indians awake at 7.45 a.m. Our stay lasted 45 minutes, then hastened to Arctic Red River, then to Fort Good Hope. At 1.10 p.m. we arrived at Fort Norman and headed for Cameron Bay which we made at 5.10 p.m. In an hour's time we left for Coppermine, where I preached to the Eskimos in Baffin Land Eskimo. We left Coppermine at 12.45 a.m. for Cameron Bay, where we arrived at 2.15 a.m. Pilot May told me that was a record trip for one day."

After his western Arctic trip Bishop Fleming came to Toronto, then took the train for Churchill on Hudson Bay, and by motor-powered sailboat travelled to Chesterfield and Baker Lake. While travelling back from Chesterfield to Churchill the sleeping accommodations of the small boat were so crowded that the bishop with two other passengers had to put their sleeping robes in the hold.

"I spread my sleeping robe on top of seven bales of fur, valued at $20,000. It was the most valuable couch I had ever slept on, but I cannot claim it was comfortable, for the fur in bales is tightly packed and I always had to lie on a hard lump."

"The depression has been felt by the Eskimos," the bishop replied to a question regarding the economic position of the natives. "Many of them have lost their schooners, because with the drop in fur prices they were unable to keep up payments. Now instead of one family to a schooner, it is common to see three or four families on a schooner.

The Eskimo remains a cheerful fellow, always greeting you with a hearty pumping of hands, a smile and a song. He is full of enthusiasm. He can adapt himself easily to new conditions, because he has had to for generations in that difficult country."

Since the tax on German champagnes was lifted the number of employes in the industry has almost doubled, while a large increase in the orders for goods of related industries has been recorded.

FINDS POLAND MAY JOIN IN WAR AGAINST SOVIET, RUMOR ALLIANCE

Germany Also Expected to Aid Japan for Territorial Loot.

WHAT OF U.S.A.?

By PIERRE VAN PASSAEN.
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 20.—When the Japanese government decides to clinch the present campaign of provocation and excitation in Manchuria with an open declaration of war again to Russia—an eventuality which observers agree may come any day now—Japan will not be alone in fighting the Soviets. Feverish preparations are in progress in diplomatic circles to complete an alliance between Japan on the one hand and Poland and Germany on the other.

I was told here in Warsaw by a man who ought to know that the only thing holding up an outbreak of hostilities in the Far East at the present moment is the attitude of the United States of America. As far as Britain is concerned the Japanese statesmen believe that Britain will not interfere in the slightest in an eventual conflict, but on the other hand is prepared to go the limit in supplying the Nipponese army and navy with armament and munitions.

Rumors of Alliance.

Rumors of a renewal of the British-Japanese alliance, although denied, have gained so much currency of late, that the Moscow press states frankly that Britain is most likely to join the Japanese-German-Polish military combination against Russia. This is counting without public opinion in England, which is on the whole opposed to war of any form.

No observer of the international scene doubts, however, that Japan is driving for war. The arrest of the Russian employees of the Chinese Eastern railway, which is owned by Russia, came precisely at the moment when Russian and Japanese negotiations had virtually agreed on the sale-price of the railway to Japan. Rather than [illegible] this source of trouble outright (the Chinese railway namely) the Japanese broke off negotiations at the last moment and so not only perpetuated, but accentuated the state of extreme nervous tension in the Far East. In spite of this and the arrest of Soviet citizens in Manchuria and the arming of a force of 150,000 White Russians, Moscow has remained utterly calm reasserting its desire to maintain peace. On top of that comes the article by a prominent Japanese diplomat in the London Sunday Express in which he says that just because of Czars of Russia pushed their conquests of Asia as far as the Pacific ocean in the past, this is no reason why Japan intends to abide by the present situation. If this cynical warlike argument is admitted, the Japanese may well invoke it against the British position in India in days to come, when they decide to extend the application of their slogan "Asia for the Asiatics," which in reality means Asia for the Japanese, to its logical consequence.

Must Keep China Quiet.

Before launching the attack against Vladivostok and Eastern Siberia, the Japanese are seeking to make sure of the Chinese war lord, Tsang Kai-tsjek, who has recently appointed General von Seeckt his chief of staff. Tsjek is to be prevailed upon to neutralize or at least hold in check any possible support which the Chinese Soviet regions may send to the aid of Russia. Two prominent Japanese diplomats, one of whom is the Japanese ambassador to Washington, are now on their way to confer with Tsang Kai-tsjek.

Enough is known of the subject matter of the recent conversations between Colonel Beck, Poland's foreign minister and General von Blomberg, chief of the German Reichswehr, to say that Poland and Germany plan a joint action against Russia in the west, the moment Japan attacks in the east. Poland, I learn, will seize the whole of Lithuania and will give the Polish corridor back to Germany. Then together the allies intend to march into the Ukraine as far as Odessa, which is to become Poland's outlet in the south.

Russia No Match.

Military observers are of the opinion that Russia's forces are no match against a combination of Poland, Germany and Japan, with Britain standing by benevolently on the side of the allies and several other small states coming in, in the hope of getting a little plunder. In spite of formidable defensive preparations in the Far East, the Russians will have to withdraw from Vladivostok almost at once, I was told, since Japanese armies have already penetrated so far into Mongolia that a flank attack by these forces would trap the Russian Far Eastern army in an area where no supplies could reach it.

Two factors, both of utmost importance, are seen as pushing Japan to a quick decision. In the first place there is the exploitation of the Kuznek iron ore district which is being pursued by Russia with redoubled energy. By springtime enough steel mills and other armament factories will be in operation there to supply the Far Eastern army with all its needs and make it independent of the western industrial centres. Once Kuznek and Magnitostroy, another vast new steel centre which emerged from the five year plan, are in readiness, Japan's chances of success in an armed conflict with Russia greatly diminish.

Japan Needs War.

The second factor driving Japan to war is the catastrophic economic condition of the country. This crisis stimulates the revolutionary movement among the masses which finds expression in the periodic revolts of the famished peasantry and the miserable city workers. The revolutionary movement in Japan is growing day by day. The militarist party in Japan, therefore, counsels an immediate war of aggression against the Soviet Union in order to find an issue out of the crisis and put up a barrier against the revolutionary ferment in the country.

While the attitude of the United States is giving the military lords of Tokio cause to reflect, it is not expected that America will give much trouble. With Britain observing a benevolent neutrality in favor of Japan, and the British navy, therefore not an adversary, the Japanese have no fears of the American fleet which is much inferior to theirs and moreover too far removed from its bases to undertake any effective action. In the war that stands before the door, Moscow will, therefore, have no allies in spite of all the pacts of non-aggression, but a world in arms against her. If that war lasts any length of time, however, that is if the Soviets can hold off the hostile armies for a year or so, the only chance of success for Russia is revolt in the armies opposing her and in the action of the friends of Russia in hostile states. Otherwise the great experiment of Soviet Russia is doomed.

U.S. PROBE TURNS TO POISON GAS

Told American Firm Sought to Set Up Chemical Unit in Colombia.

SALES MADE TO CHINA.

(By Stanley P. Richardson)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—A story of how a United States poison gas manufacturer sought to persuade Colombia to form a chemical warfare unit in its army was ready for development to-day at the Senate Munitions investigation.

The committee called B. C. Goss, President of the United States Ordnance Engineers Company, of Cleveland, for questioning about reports that he presented to Colombian officials two years ago a plan for a division of chemical troops, to be treated and equipped by him.

Information in the possession of investigators indicates that the plan involved the building and operation under his supervision in the Latin-American Republic of half a dozen factories to produce chlorine, mustard and other bases to arm the chemical personnel.

The extent of United States Ordnance Engineer's sales of poison gases to China as well as other Latin - American countries also is engaging committee attention.

Before calling Goss, the committee wanted to inquire further into the activities of the Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Pittsburgh.

Yesterday the inquiry developed evidence purporting to show that Federal Laboratories representatives smuggled tear gas, riot guns and cartridges into Argentina two years ago in violation of a Presidential ban; that the concern lobbied in National and State capitals against proposed legislation restricting the use of tear gas, and that it had paid commissions to an American naval officer for services to the company.

Piles Go Quick
Under Dr. Leonhardt's Internal Method.

Large numbers of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine, when salves do not help and wish is to escape operation.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts lifeless. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation and help to heal the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt was one of the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for large numbers of patients with a fine record of success and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with money-back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

So isn't it wise when other ways fail, to go to McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store, who say: "No matter what kind of Piles you have one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets must show you the safe, clean way to get rid of your Pile misery or money-back.

REINDEER HERD SLOWLY WINDING WAY TO CANADA

For Four and Half Years Herd Are Driving Crossing Arctic Tundra.

FOOD FOR ESKIMOS.

3,000 Head Are to Cost the Dominion of Canada $195,000.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 20.—For four and a half years a reindeer herd and its drivers have been winding a slow, perilous course across a thousand miles of arctic tundra, from the Seward peninsula to the Mackenzie river basin, to be consigned, as a relief measure, to the Canadian Eskimos of the northland.

Hopes were high that the intrepid Laplander, Andy Bahr, in charge of the expedition, which started in December, 1929, could make delivery of the herd this winter. Camped on the west of the Mackenzie river delta, awaiting favorable weather conditions and thick ice for the crossing, Andy bided his time until late last February. Then he drove the herd across to Ellis island, not far from the shore in the northern part of the delta.

Before all the herd had found sanctuary on the island, a terrific storm broke, driving man and beast to cover, lashing them with its brutal, icy blasts, and the herd stampeded back to the mainland. For three weeks the cold continued, stunning even the natives with its intensity, and making it impossible to keep the animals. When the gales released their numbed victims, Bahr decided that it was too late to attempt another crossing since the fawning season comes in May.

The herd and its drivers went into camp at Shingle Point, east of Demarcation Point, but before the 1935 spring thaws break up the ice on the wide delta through which the Mackenzie river empties into the Arctic ocean a new attempt will be made to complete the long trek. Receipt of the herd will do much to banish uncertainty and fear from the lives of people who dwell beyond the reach of relief agencies and whose supply of game and fish has been slowly dwindling until it is perilously close to extinction.

The Canadian government and an American firm, the Lomen Reindeer Corporation, are responsible for this trek over the roof of the world, across an uncharted, frozen country of unexplored rivers and unscaled mountains. In Alaska, the reindeer has come to the rescue of Eskimos once in the same situation as those in Canada. It furnishes food and clothing and meets other essentials of daily living. The herd now nearing the end of its long pilgrimage will form the nucleus of herds to come, establishing the reindeer industry in northern Canada.

Carl J. Lomen, head of the reindeer corporation which supplied the moving herd, and his brothers, have lived in Nome for more than 30 years. They have made an intensive study of the reindeer, its habits and its potentialities as a source of food and revenue. Pioneers in an effort to establish the reindeer industry on a commercial basis, they own about a quarter of the reindeer now in Alaska, and have been of great service to the Eskimos, who own the rest, in marketing products of the industry.

The Lomen organization agreed to deliver 3,000 head of reindeer—date left blank—for $195,000, the Canadian government to receive a refund of $65 for every head short of the specified number.

"There have been three or four times when things looked very black indeed," admitted Mr. Lomen. "For months at a time we have been completely out of touch with the herd. Sometimes it was lost. At other times it was impossible for Andy to send us word. But we have no misgivings. Next winter the herd will be delivered."
